By DANNY

In these days of soaring values. When you never can tell what's what. And whether the salesman. Or the butler. Is doing the most dodging. Or perhaps lying. But there isn't any bunk about this. No sales manager said it boastfully. No exhibitor dodged back of it. But John Kunsky paid $28,000. Or thereabouts. For "Why Worry." What a figure for Detroit!

Where will the end come?

"Why Worry" isn't the sort of picture that goes into a roll of honor. But it climbs way high on the bandwagon of money making pictures. There's many an exhibitor who would rather play it than any of the many big striking productions now on Broadway.

Bookings

Locally booking conditions aren't so happy with a lot of companies. The claim is made that some of the ring-leaders of the T.O.C.C. are holding off, and that in consequence many others in the organization are following suit and waiting for a break in prices. That may be good business in New York. But it may prove dangerous elsewhere. This isn't the time to be finicky and play poker for prices. This is the time to get the big ones while you can. But that doesn't mean to give your shirt for them, either.

If the Theater Owners Distributing folk will kindly let an anxious world know what product they have; or where it is coming from it will save a lot of people a lot of worry.

WORRYING?

Bill Fox was so worried Sunday he couldn't golf. Marcus Loew couldn't sleep! Ben Moss so agitated he almost fainted. All of which might be true. But it was not. Even the T.O.C.C. threatens disbarment to these gentlemen because of their actions. What has the teapot? They have framed the tempest.

Film Conditions in Europe As Seen By Lieber and Shauer

Europe "Not Sold"

Industry Doesn't Command Respect There as Here, Robert Lieber Found While Abroad

That motion pictures in Europe have yet to acquire the dignity which they have attained in this country, is the belief of Robert Lieber, president of First National, who returned last week from a three months' tour of Great Britain and the Continent.

"I find particularly," said Lieber, "that the press still has an idea that this business of ours is a sort of fly-by-night proposition that is going to pass beyond the horizon again. About every time a newspaperman asked for an interview the first question he fired at me was: 'Well, how long do you think this business of yours is going to last?' I gladly took advantage of the opportunity which was offered me at the banquet of the First National convention in London last month to give my answer publicly to this question. We have the most natural form of amusement for the

Seena Owen Sails Today

Seena Owen sails for Europe today to appear in a picture for Ideal Films, Ltd., which Henry Kolker will direct. Miss Owen has just finished work in "The Leavenworth Case," for Whitman Bennett-Vitagraph release.

Carrick Here From England

A. B. Carrick, managing director of Special Enterprises, Ltd., of London, is in New York to place his product with state right exchanges. Carrick states he is producing in England using American directors and American players.

A Billion In Capital

Invested in This Business, Says R. W. Saunders in "Bankers' Magazine"

Some interesting points with reference to the banking phases of the industry are presented by Richard W. Saunders, Comptroller Famous Players-Lasky Corp., and formerly cashier of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, in the Banker's Magazine out today.

In many respects Saunders tells of

"A Big Year Abroad"

Predicted by E. E. Shauer of Famous Players—New Arrangements for Central Europe Promised

The European picture industry stands on the threshold of what promises to be the most successful year in its history, in the opinion of E. E. Shauer, assistant treasurer of Famous Players, and director of the foreign department, just returned from a visit of several months. He was accompanied by Harold M. Pitman of the Paramount legal department and by Ike Blumenthal of the Berlin office.

"At no time since the war," said Shauer, "have the prospects for good business been as excellent as they are today. I found a great improvement in conditions over last year, and unless all signs fail, all branches of the industry are certain to enjoy an improved business during the coming twelve months.

"Perhaps the outstanding event of the new season to date has been the sensational suc-

England Luke-warm

Toward International Congress Slated for Paris Next Month—Producers Uninterested

(Special Cable to THE FILM DAILY)

London—The consensus of opinion here relative to the international film congress to be held in Paris in October seems to be that the plan does not amount to anything worth while.

A few British exhibitors may attend but the majority of producers and distributors here are professing no interest in it at all.

F. P. Profits Drop

Six Months' Earnings $1,891,048 or $127,289 Less Than Same Period Last Year—Dividend Declared

Famous Players-Lasky in its consolidated statement, which includes the earnings of subsidiary companies owned 90% or more, reports for the six months ended June 30, 1923, net operating profits of $1,891,048.15 after deducting all charges and reserves for Federal income and other taxes.

This total represents a drop of $127,289 over the figures for the same period in 1922 when the net operating profits were $2,018,337. In 1921, the six months' earnings reached a total of $3,078,697.

After allowing the payment of dividends on the preferred stock, the above earnings are at the annual rate of $13.24 on the common stock outstanding.

Yesterday the board of directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2 per share on the preferred stock, payable Nov. 1, to stockholders of record at the close of business on Oct. 15. The books will not close.

Ingram Here With "Scaramouche"

Rex Ingram arrived in town yesterday from Los Angeles with a print of "Scaramouche."

Flynn Leaves Goldwyn

J. E. Flynn, sales supervisor of the Eastern division for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, has resigned.

Loew Summoned by T. O. C. C.

Marcus Loew has been summoned to appear before the board of directors of the T. O. C. C. on Sept. 21 to explain why his organization settled with the operators despite a resolution binding all T. O. C. C. members to act as one on the problem.

Kane Found Europe Quiet

Production activities and the advance in the manufacture of pictures in foreign studios present no cause for worry to American producers, according to Robert T. Kane, production chief for Famous Players, who returned from abroad on Saturday. Kane found things in general rather quiet on the other side and declared that by far the most interesting event which occurred in England while he was there was the opening of "The Covered Wagon" in London. Kane said the premiere was one of the most auspicious of its kind and was talked about tremendously.

cess scored by 'The Covered Wagon' on its opening Sept. 5th, at the London Pavilion before one of the most distinguished audiences of theater-goers which has ever greeted a motion picture. Everywhere I went, everyone was eager to see what they call the great American picture.

"Arrangements will be made shortly for the opening of the picture in Paris, and other European capital cities will see this Paramount special as rapidly as preliminary arrangements can be completed.

"The leasing of the London Pavilion, Tivoli, Palace and Empire theaters by leading American producers and distributors for first run showings of big pictures marks a new step forward in the British film industry, perhaps the most important since the war. More attention is being paid to the elevation of the screen to the important position it demands in an artistic theatrical sense and it will also bring about a new era of exploitation in Great Britain which will have a tremendous effect upon the growth of the business during the coming years.

"Distributing conditions are becoming more nearly normal, with the completion of a number of new theaters, and before the year is over our British release schedule will be on about the same basis as in the United States.

"One of the many improvements which impressed me greatly was the wonderful spirit I found in business circles in the Central European countries, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria and Hungary, where the work of regeneration is already well underway. The people are cheerful, business is improving and money has become stabilized. Everywhere in Prague, Vienna and Budapest I found the people working with a will for the rebuilding of their countries. As a result of this great improvement in conditions we expect to announce shortly new arrangements for the distribution of Paramount Pictures in this territory."

Here for Premiere of Play

people that has ever been given to the world, and I don't care who the man is, let me know him, and I will entertain him with the cinema.

"I find also in Europe, and this holds true in the Scandanavian countries as well as in England, that the industry has not succeeded in 'selling' itself to what might be termed, for lack of a better term, the 'higher ups' in society, and as a result this amusement of ours is not treated with the same sort of consideration that is given it in the States.

"I went into a few theaters in Gothenburg, Stockholm and Christiania and I was really surprised at the excellence of their amusement houses. While the theaters are older and not as large as the better houses in the United States, yet from a standpoint of beauty and upkeep they can well be included among good houses.

"Unfortunately I saw very few Swedish theaters in operation because in that country and in Norway the theaters generally close during the short summer period. I find that the average Scandanavian is so intent upon making the best of his short summer that indoor amusements have no chance.

"In England I find that the theaters, generally speaking, are not as good as in Sweden. It is evident, from an examination of British building restrictions before the war, that England at that time did not recognize the necessity of good theaters as clearly as Sweden. Consequently, when building operations stopped in 1914, the British had not advanced as far as had the Scandanavian countries. There is, however, a strong tendency to build at the present time, and just before leaving London I visited a new house in the suburbs, a theater with nearly 3,000 seats, built by a man who thoroughly understands the motion picture business in its present day stage.

"In proof of my first observation—that the screen has not been recognized as a permanent and stable and dignified institution—I could cite any number of opinions of prominent men, all of which belittle the screen. But this will, of course, change even as it is changing today."

Action Against Elfelt

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Clifford S. Elfelt by Roger Ferri, with a claim of $240, Lewis Allen Browne $1000 and Madeline Bordigon $37. The petitioners claim he has left the state and that the office force has not been paid for recent services.

Elfelt recently announced a series of eight Jane Thomas Prod. for which Browne was to prepare several stories. Ferri, former state right editor of the M. P. World, resigned to become Elfelt's manager of distribution. Elfelt is understood to be in Los Angeles.

A Billion In Capital

financial operations regarding motion pictures from an elementary viewpoint, but among the interesting observations that he makes are included the following:

"The rise of the motion picture industry from nothing to eighth place among the industries of the country in about ten years, is one of the great business romances. . . .

"Today motion pictures are one of the principal recreations of over 30 per cent of the people, with capital invested in this country well over a billion, including over 20,000 theaters. Their value in spreading information can be contrasted with the fact that against these 20,000 theaters there are 2,500 daily newspapers and 4,000 public libraries. . . .

"Experienced executive ability must begin at the very start in the selection of the story to be produced, for the public taste is fickle and must be gauged some months ahead. Sometimes western dramas are the vogue, with quick changes to society, Oriental, costume, or other types, and as a picture takes about four weeks in preparation, six weeks in filming, and another month or two before it is actually released, the decision to invest a large sum in its production must be based on good judgment."

He says, "The question of expense is a vital one, for the cost of pictures has been steadily mounting from a few thousand dollars per picture until now the average is nearer two hundred thousand. Several factors have caused this; the increased cost of the 'rights,' which means of course larger remuneration to the author; increased star salaries, cost of materials, etc. The high salaries paid to stars are not mythical, but as the situation now stands, are governed by the law of supply and demand. The public is still in the throes of hero or heroine worship and looks for and patronizes the pictures of its favorite stars. The addition to the list of stars is surprisingly small considering the number of candidates and this naturally keeps up the value of those who have attained public approval. The picture companies therefore protect themselves by contracts, the usual contract specifying future options at increased figures. This is also an inducement to the star to give satisfactory service and thus bring about the exercising of the option which misconduct would prevent. A large company with a number of stars is therefore better able to withstand the loss of one or more without injury to its product. The answer to the star question will probably be more all-star plays, with a gradual cultivation of public taste toward the story rather than the individual player." And concludes by declaring that "the budget plan now in effect under which a certain sum is assigned for production of each picture, including story cost and overhead, together with a thorough understanding between the executives in charge and the director, is bringing about good results.

. . . "We might say a word here about the general criticism of the pictures produced. Motion pictures are almost entirely an amusement for the masses or majority of people. They do not want 'high-brow' pictures but do appreciate good wholesome entertainment. Some critics rave over "better pictures," but when the Famous Players for example, produces a beautiful Peter Ibbetson or Sentimental Tommy the response barely pays for the production. There is a sincere desire on the part of the producers to respond to any helpful suggestions and, in their own hearts, there is the urge to put their industry at the top of the ladder, but to produce only that class of picture would bring disaster to any company that tried it."

A Danger Relative to Production Cost

Saunders says: "There is a tendency on the part of some directors to outdo other companies or other directors and make large and imposing spectacles. There is a market for a certain number of these, but they constitute one of the dangers of the industry. If the cost of any picture is moderate it can nearly always be recovered whether the picture is a distinct success or not, but to recover on a high cost picture it must be a pronounced success. Bankers called upon for a loan on a negative, or to finance one picture only, may be amply protected if the picture has been properly made and the amount loaned is in reason. It should be remembered, however, that throughout the entire theatrical business there is a doctrine of averages. It used to be thought that if one out of five pictures was a 'knockout' it was a good average, but this has improved somewhat. No one can tell whether a picture will be a success or not, and money alone will not make it one. There must be an indefinable something about it that reaches the public. A large company, therefore, turning out a greater number of pictures is in a much stronger financial position, as not only can it more easily take care of a few mediocre pictures, but because of its experience, is more likely to avoid the kind of picture that does not become a popular success. A large company is provided with statistics and charts showing the results by stars, by directors, by kinds of pictures and by groups and barring on occasional miscue, can avoid having many mediocre pictures, while at the same time, most of its product will achieve pronounced success. . . . The cost of this picture remains in the inventory until its 'release,' which means the day on which it will be generally played throughout the country, which date is set by the distribution department on its 'release-schedule.' A 'pre-release' is often made, usually in a Broadway house. As soon as the picture is released the cost begins to be depreciated monthly—50 per cent in ninety days, 80 per cent within a year, and 100 per cent in two years, this ratio being the same as the expected cash returns. However, the depreciation is made irrespective of the returns, and it follows that the inventory of a picture company need never be revised as it is reduced automatically."

Relative to Distribution

Saunders says: "Sometimes the distributing is done under a trade name; for example, the Famous Players use the name "Paramount," which to exhibitors and the public means more than the company name itself. The advertising and general excellence of the product have given the name 'Paramount' a value so large it would be difficult to overestimate it, but it certainly would run into many millions of dollars.

"An interesting variation of the usual methods of pricing is that the value of a picture so far as its revenue is concerned does not depend upon the cost. A picture costing a hundred thousand dollars may conceivably bring in a revenue in excess of one costing twice that amount. The general method is for the experienced executives of the sales department, after careful study of each picture, to place a 'quota' upon it based upon what they believe the gross returns will be.

"Prices are also rated according to 'first run,' etc., the larger revenues coming from first run productions in the larger cities. Regard is also paid to the different sections of the territory, but the sales department conscientiously tries on the one side to bring in sufficient revenue to the company, and on the other, to so price the pictures that the exhibitor will be satisfied with the profit he makes. Sometimes a picture will prove much more popular than originally anticipated and the exhibitors will 'clean up.'

"Long before the release date the exchange salesmen have been visiting the theaters and contracting with the exhibitor for one or more pictures, for which a contract is signed and a cash deposit made. Could these contracts be recorded in the company's financial statement as 'receivables,' they would make a formidable item, for as a rule they are considerably more than the company inventory. Many hundreds of contracts are signed before a picture is even started. Many exhibitors take a producer's entire product, which they are only too glad to do as it insures their getting a constant flow of pictures from a producer in whom they have confidence, attached as it generally is, with national advertising. The picture industry now ranks nineteenth among national advertisers. . . ."

As to Exhibition

Saunders then relates at some length the various problems of distribution and distribution charges, touches upon the foreign situation and then gets into the question of the exhibition phases of producing and distributing companies, saying in part:

"The chief reason why a production or distribution company is interested in the ownership or control of a limited number of theaters, is the very natural one in all corporations of being able to be sure of an outlet for its diversified product. By controlling theaters in key cities there is an influence upon all the exhibitors in the vicinity that seems to be necessary, and a successful run in such key city increases the value of the picture to the local exhibitor considerably. It should be noted, however, that a monopoly is hardly possible in this business because no producer can deal with all exhibitors. One theater in each place must be given the first run privilege and after the run is over a certain time elapses before any theaters can have the second run. This means, of course, that the other theaters must secure their first run product elsewhere, and this fact alone would seem to be a positive and natural protection to all exhibitors."

In conclusion Saunders says: "There are a few other points of which bankers should have knowledge, one being the definition of 'residual value.' The inventory consists of (1) pictures in process, (2) those finished awaiting release, and (3) those released which have not yet been depreciated 100 per cent, in the manner referred to above. Some of the latter will have been released one month, others twenty-three months, and the sum total of these released pictures makes up the 'residual value.' Each month some part of each of these will be depreciated, although of course, new pictures will continue to be added, but at the end of two years each individual picture has been fully depreciated. In the inventory also are the (4) positive prints, which are depreciated within one year. While the life of a picture is thus indicated as two years, revenue keeps coming in sometimes for five or more years. This asset, which does not appear on the books, may easily run to a very large figure.

"It has been often said, and with reason, that if a picture company composed of production and distribution departments decided to liquidate, it could cut off its production and in time, through the continued rental of the pictures already made, work out its complete liabilities. There is a lot of truth in this statement.

"This brief summary of the scope of the industry will enable us to understand the accounting and executive sides. It is not too strong a statement to state that any strong motion picture company compares in its organization with that of any other modern business. They have freely drawn upon banking and other lines for executives, consult freely with their executive and financial committees, make use of charts and other statistical data, use machines for tabulating sales, compare prices, and in their auditing, checking and all other work, make use of all successful modern devices. Tax experts are employed and accounting firms like Price, Waterhouse & Company, whose senior partners have had much to do with the construction of the accounting methods, are freely consulted. . . ."

No Longer a Gold Mine

"It is not, however, any longer to be regarded as a gold mine with tremendous earnings. It is now on a proper business basis with a reasonable earning power, which it is hoped will be strengthened as methods of faster 'turn-over' and other improvements are made. There will need to be adjustments between the producer and exhibitor and more than all there will need to be a better understanding between them, but just as soon as they do reach a common ground of discussion and realize that each is perfectly willing that the other should make a reasonable return and that they are both working for a common goal, the chief unsettled conditions which exist at the present time will have been avoided. To all appearances this is not far distant, and the work of Mr. Will Hays and others who have the industry at heart is now beginning to bear fruit.

"What is really needed in the industry today is for producers, distributors and exhibitors to trust each other a little more. Now that bankers are becoming interested more and more, their level headed conservatism is bound to have its influence."

BUSINESS

By DANNY

There is happening at this moment probably the very greatest occurrence indicative of what can be accomplished by a selling organization. Famous Players-Lasky is straining every tention to make a record showing for the month of September. And is accomplishing a feat which will stand for some time as a record. There is every indication that during the month of September Famous Players will run its paid and played business to over $4,000,000. Efforts are being made to excel this figure.

A Staggering Figure

What a staggering figure this is! Think for a moment—it is almost as much as some concerns do in a year. Certainly it is a quarter of what its nearest competitor shows signs of doing in the entire year, and a trifle under a third of what another very large company will do. Incidentally it is a trifle under a half of what another large concern anticipates doing. Let "The Covered Wagon" is not included in this sales drive, and Famous expects "The Covered Wagon" to gross upwards into the millions, and bad showings included.

Credit Due

Chiefly to Sidney R. Kent, an unusually efficient sales manager. To his special aides. To an advertising department which works hand and glove with the sales department. A machine strongly perfected to sell pictures of a class. And last, but most important, a production department which for general average consistency ranks high.

The Award

There have been Paramount weeks galore. But this is a Paramount month. There are prizes for the best record, of course. But the real prize that every man is working for is to keep from his manager's desk the large, handsome engraved milestone which will go to the division making the poorest showing. And remain there for a year. How they are fighting to drive this tombstone on some other fellow's desk!

Shows Increase of $50,000 Over July, 1922—Total for Month Reaches $5,140,506

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Admission taxes collected during the month of July, as reported through the Treasury Department, totaled $5,140,506, as compared with $4,620,893 in the same month of 1922. This was an increase, for July of this year, of more than $500,000.

The special tax on theaters, museums, and circuses returned $813,147.02 to the Government during the month, compared with $746,397.10 a year ago. This was an increase of more than $65,000.

As noted, admission taxes for the fiscal year ending June, 1923 totaled $70,148,480 or a decrease of $3,236,475 over the previous fiscal year. This does not necessarily mean that

Newspapers Critics Air Their Views Regarding Features and Comedies—Lloyd Boosted

The second batch of opinions of authors and newspaper critics of motion pictures, has just been distributed to producers by the Hays office. This publication has collated the views of the newspaper critics and presents them below. The views of the authors were not collected for obvious reasons.

Hays, in his communication to the writers and critics, impressed upon them that their views would be held confidential, so no names can be offered. But it may be said that they are from all sections. In noting the opinions it should be borne in mind that in some sections, particularly in the smaller cities, the newer releases have not yet reached these communities, which in part explains the selections.

HANDICAPS

In an effort to bring about a better time, and better golf, the Committee in charge of the Fall Film Golf Tournament, has decided upon a new basis of handicapping the players.

This plan will not necessitate the careful attention to properly matched foursomes but will permit players to practically choose any partner they desire.

All play will be figured on the basis of 27 holes. Every player will be placed in a class—his proper division being found by averaging all his past scores—and those divisions or classes will be as follows:

Class A....	70—80	Class F....	100—105
B....	80—85	G....	105—112
C....	85—90	H....	112—122
D....	90—95	I....	122—130
E....	95—100	J....	130 and above

There will be three prizes for each division, first, second and booby.

Division winners will be figured on their gross score.

Handicaps will only apply on the low gross and low net and runner up cups and THE FILM DAILY cup.

The committee feels that all participants are going to like this arrangement—But remember 27 holes count—not 18.

prominently identified with the Canadian Exhibitors Exchange, was elected vice-president. A. Sporkados of Montreal, was appointed treasurer and Vincent Gould of Montreal, National secretary for Canada, with offices in the Albee Building, Montreal.

Directors were appointed as follows:

For Ontario—Harry Alexander, M. Gebertig and H. Giusler of Toronto; Fred Guest of Hamilton; Mayor J. A. Cooper of Huntsville and J. Coplan of the Princess, Ottawa; For Quebec—A. Denis, Montreal, and F. D. Bouchard, member of the Quebec Legislature for St. Hyacinthe; For Maritime Provinces—F. G. Spencer, St. John, N. B., and J. McAdam, Halifax, N. S. For Manitoba—W. Kershaw of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Exhibitors Association, and J. McNichol of Winnipeg. The Provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan were not represented and no officers were elected for those districts. Three more vice-presidents are to be elected as well as a representative from the Province of Ontario on the Board of Directors of the M. P. T. O. to speak for the Canadian division. H. S. Ross, K. C. Montreal, was appointed legal adviser to the Canadian branch. The only woman at the convention was Ray Lewis of Toronto, editor of the Moving Picture Digest, which was made official organ of the Canadian Division.

Important visitors and officials at the Canadian convention included Sidney S. Cohen, National president of the M. P. T. O., Harry Berman, New York, general sales manager of the Film Booking Offices; R. F. Woodhull, president of M. P. T. O. of New Jersey; Charles Whitehurst, Baltimore; J. M. Seider, East Orange, N. J., Harry Davis, Pittsburgh, A. J. Moeller and Howard Smith of Buffalo.

A resolution was adopted in which the Canadian members pledged support to the Theater Owners Dist. Corp., National Motion Picture Day, Monday, 19, was also approved. The annual convention of the Canadian Division of the M. P. T. O. is to be held in May, 1924. Another conference is to be held shortly in Toronto, Ontario, to arrange further details. Canadian directors are to hold meetings each month.

Sidney Cohen spoke on the movement toward "centralized control" of the moving picture industry and declared that the M. P. T. O. would relentlessly oppose this. Film rental prices and alleged distribution discrimination came in for discussion and President Cohen declared that the enactment of vicious laws had been prevented and several unjust taxes had been revoked as a result of the activity of the M. P. T. O. He pointed to excessive taxes in Canada and declared that moving pictures were to be classed as an economic necessity and not as a luxury such as theatrical performances for which the admission prices ran to $3.

Cosmopolitan Wins Test Case

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Champaign, Ill.—The Stoolman-Pyle Corp., has lost out in their suit against Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan for alleged violation of contract. The concern brought action for an injunction against Goldwyn when the latter gave the first run of "Enemies of Women," to the Orpheum, Stoolman's opponent, on Labor Day, after they had been promised the picture on their Famous Players' contract.

The court, in deciding in favor of Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, declared that the company had a right to rent the picture to whoever they decided, that they were not bound to any terms of the contract made with the Lasky company.

The decision of the court in Champaign is of importance inasmuch as the T. O. C. C. is in the same fix.

cluded, excepting "The Covered Wagon," which is being road shown.

The Best Feature

It is interesting to note that "Down to the Sea in Ships" and "Only 38," are equal favorites as "the best features" selected from the 54 critics who offered opinions. "Robin Hood" follows as the choice of six; "Penrod and Sam," as the choice of five, "Within the Law" as the choice of four; "Enemies of Women," chosen by three, and "Driven," by two. The features securing one vote each include:

"Peg of My Heart," "Oliver Twist," "Bali the Unknown," "Grumpy," "The Critical Age," "Quicksands," "Alice Adams," "The Rustle of Silk," "The Flirt," "Where the Pavement Ends," "The Go-Getter," "Salome," "Minnie," "The Famous Mrs. Fair," "The Isle of Lost Ships," "The Girl I Loved" and "The Flame of Life."

The Worst Feature

The critics were wide apart as to the worst feature they had seen. Four agreed on "The Rustle of Silk" as the worst, and the same number on "Souls for Sale"; three thought "The Village Blacksmith" the worst, and "Has the World Gone Mad," "The Shock," "Bella Donna," and "Adam's Rib" had two votes each in this class. Those features considered the worst which had one vote each were:

"Dollar Devils," "The Light in the Dark," "Children of Jazz," "Cordelia the Magnificent," "Is Divorce a Failure," "Jazzmania," "Salome," "The Snow Bride," "Crossed Wires," "Wandering Daughters," "Look Your Best," "Three Who Paid," "The Little Wildcat," "Refuse," "Secrets of Paris," "Kissess" and "Only a Shop Girl."

The Best Comedy

Harold Lloyd easily leads this list with 19 votes of the 54 critics. He tops all the other comedians by far. "Safety Last" got the 15 votes; "Grandma's Boy" three, "Dr. Jack" one. The "Our Gang" comedies got four votes." Doug MacLean follows with two votes for "Bell-boy 13," and one for "The Hottentot" and all the others, with one vote, are:

"Where is My Wandering Boy This Evening," "Connecticut Yankee," "The Love Nest," "Kick Out," "The Balloonatic," "Minnie," "Luck," "Penrod and Sam" and "The Hottentot."

There seems to be no choice between feature length and short length comedies, and the Hays office might do well to correct this in future reports.

The Worst Comedy

Most of the critics slam the comedies fearfully, few admitting that they can sit through them. Consequently these mentioned are far below the list of others in numbers. But "Mary of the Movies" was selected by four as the worst and heads the list. "Sixty Cents an Hour" had three votes for this doubtful honor, "The Pilgrim" had two, and the following received one vote.

"The Midnight Cabaret," "Mr. Billings Spends His Dime" and Baby Peggy in "Carmen, Jr."

St. Louis Split

It has been an open-secret for some nine months past that all was not serene within the ranks of the company although it is said their houses have all been good money makers during that period. However, it is said film politics has entered into the situation and several disputes have taken place.

The first definite outbreak came several months ago when Skouras Brothers, who own the Grand Central entered into a deal to obtain control of the Missouri, the big Paramount first-run house directly across Lucas Avenue from the Grand Central.

The deal was about to go through when Koplars is said to have intervened, pointing out to Skouras that under the contract covering the organization of the St. Louis Amusement Co. none of the principals were to become interested in another house without the consent of the others. Penalty for violation of that clause was forfeiture of a $50,000 bond. Koplars is said to have asked $25,000 for waiving this rule. Skouras declined to pay the price and as a result the Missouri deal was called off. Since then several little incidents have sort of aggravated the situation.

Now it is said Koplars has objected very strenuously to the booking methods of the corporation, which is controlled by the Skouras interests, as they have three votes on the board to two by Koplars.

St. Louis film circles have been speculating on a possible split between the Skouras boys and the Koplars-Hamburg combination. In fact in some circles it has been whispered that when the break came a new combine would be the Holdman-Koplars-Hamburg theaters against those controlled by the Skouras Enterprises, and that possibly some independent houses would also enter into a booking combination with the first named interests.

There is also a possibility that the Skouras interests will renew their negotiations for the Missouri should they break off entirely with Koplars and Hamburg.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Gold Diggers"—Warners Capitol

AMERICAN—On the stage "The Gold Diggers" was deemed a rather daring fragment of drama, but much of the hop was taken out of Hopwood ere it reached the screen. Really, there isn't a blush left in it.

DAILY NEWS—There's a light, laugh-enticing film—the very essence of youth and fun—which tends to keep its on-lookers smilingly satisfied and sends them home in happy humor. This is the "Gold Diggers," a charming adaptation of the play by Avery Hopwood. If you don't like this picture we don't know why not.

EVE. JOURNAL—Stage hit is success in film. A wholesome breeziness, spontaneous gayety and genuine humor pervade the screen version of "The Gold Diggers."

EVENING WORLD—"The Gold Diggers," may be a good film; it ought to be for it's well photographed; fairly well acted and has a number of what are known as "good lookers," in the cast; but we don't like it.

MAIL—"The Gold Diggers," is the first of Mr. Belasco's plays to arrive on the screen here, and though we sought diligently for the "new era," it was not forthcoming, at least in this picture. In all probability Mr. Belasco had little to do with this production. In its new form it manages to be a fair comedy.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Any one with an ingrown grudge and a peeve against the world in general can lift some of these troubles by visiting the Rialto and taking a look at "The Gold Diggers." It doesn't miss a laugh, nor forget a trick.

POST—It is an interesting picture, and marked by good acting by Hope Hampton, whose Jerry is much the best thing she has done. She plays it with feeling and spirit, and is thoroughly satisfactory. Miss Fazenda is also good, and the supporting company is fully equal to the occasion. As the play stands now the acting and photography are better than the vehicle.

SUN—It is safe to say that theatergoers who enjoyed "The Gold Diggers," will get a "kick" out of its film version. Hope Hampton made a very attractive Jerry out of the Ina Claire part.

TELEGRAM—It is even more exciting as a film play, by means of the enlargement of the field of action made possible by the obliging and accommodating camera's eye.

The Warner Brothers have made a remarkably interesting film of the play.

TRIBUNE—So it is with delight that we state "The Gold Diggers" is quite as good a picture as it was a play. And the reason is because director, scenarist, producers and cast have with an unwonted unanimity of purpose worked together to make the picture as much like the play as possible. as a picture is a complete success. Hope Hampton really is radiant.

WORLD—Still by virtue of an exceptionally charming performance by Hope Hampton, as Jerry, and an unusually laughable comedy characterization by Louise Fazenda the picture is remarkably entertaining.

"Red Lights"—Goldwyn Capitol

AMERICAN—Clues are taken up, villains taken out, situations taken back, and the audience taken in, as yet I haven't found what the whole thing's all about.

EVENING JOURNAL—"Red Lights," riots in action. Thrilling dangers crowd one another in picture at Capitol.

EVENING WORLD—"Red Lights," is a good experiment. At least it is chock full of experiments that it strikes us as one itself. It is well worth the seeing.

SUN—The production is an ideal detective play, thrilling and humorous. It contains just enough murder to give the film a sober tone, and yet it is not a riot of bloodshed. But the comedy itself absorbs an hour as pleasantly as anything we know. Griffith's caricature of the great.

MAIL—Mystery undiluted awaits those who go to the Capitol this week in "Red Lights." The mystic and the incomprehensible are given in no small amounts and the effect is the same as an overdose.

The picture has been put together clumsily, and had its director known when to stop "Red Lights" would have been more forcible. But despite these defects we liked it and must admit that several of the scenes gave us the creeps.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is a riotous delirium of blood, thunder and sudden death which should prove to be one of the year's "best sellers." It is the most wildly improbable, illogical, incoherent and generally confusing jumble that ever irritated an orderly brain. The picture cannot fail of great popularity. It's lots of fun and well worth an hour of anybody's time and a dollar of anybody's money.

POST—Fine photography and scenic effects are the principal charms of "Red Lights." It is filled with mysterious happenings which produced any amount of thrills. It is very well photographed and is well acted.

TELEGRAM—"Red Lights" is even more effective in picture form this week than it was on the speaking stage.

The competent direction of Clarence Badger, aided by ingenious lighting and other mechanical effects, has succeeded in transferring to the screen all the mystery, thrills and excitement of the story.

TIMES—"Red Lights" is one of those weird mystery films. The redeeming features of this strange concoction are the splendid photography and the scenic effects, but it is doubtful whether the producers off-hand could detail a comprehensive conception of the narrative. All they will say is that those who liked "One Exciting Night" will not be disappointed in this picture.

TRIBUNE—It is not only a thrilling mystery picture, it is a gay and jolly farce as well. Besides all this the cast is excellent and the comedy is really funny.

WORLD—actually impossible, moderately entertaining complication.

"Ruggles of Red Gap"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

EVENING JOURNAL—Despite not a little racy fun and incisive satire James Cruze's film production of Harry Leon Wilson's "Ruggles of Red Gap," remains a more or less inert affair.

EVENING WORLD—It sure is to laugh at the Rivoli this week, where "Ruggles of Red Gap," filmed from the famous stories of the same name by Harry Leon Wilson, is proving itself to be one of the most enjoyable films of the present season. It is a picture that shouldn't be missed.

HERALD—In spite of excellent acting and fairly close adherence to Mr. Wilson's text, has turned out to be rather lukewarm entertainment. The emphatic humor of the original becomes on the screen, labored low comedy; and the gorgeous absurdity of the story becomes mere foolishness.

Mr. Cruze has concocted a great deal of genuinely funny business—and it is these unobtrusive bits that are responsible for most of the laughs; but he has erred in making Red Gap too expensive a community.

MAIL—But there has come to the Rivoli a film which is as good as any of the larger screen plays and in many respects better. "Ruggles of Red Gap," is one of the most delightful motion pictures we have seen. It is skillfully directed, beautifully photographed, extremely well acted and is without one clumsy trick or hackneyed incident.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The humor is delicate, even subtle, and sometimes it just isn't there at all. You keep thinking all the time that it ought to be awfully funny, but it is a long time between laughs. Ernest Torrence's performance stands out.

"Ruggles of Red Gap" will never set the cinema world on fire, but it will supply a mild glow for a cool Autumn night.

SUN—The transition of Harry L. Wilson's successful novel and play to cinematic shape has been accomplished with the dexterity one would expect of the director "The Covered Wagon"—James Cruze. Ernest Torrence's portrayal of the swaging frontiersman, newly come to wealth of weird of ways and wardrobe, is a gem.

TELEGRAM—Edward Horton, a veritable find for the movie fans. Ernest Torrence, scores again.

TIMES—The present version is an entertaining one with many humorous twists, it has been approached from an angle that robs the tale of much of its charm. This is a good picture, but it might have been infinitely better if other tactics had been adopted by the scenario writer.

TRIBUNE—The picture does not delight our soul as the story did. Jan Cruze, that sure-fire director, has done best and he has received able assistance from the cast.

An extremely amusing picture, do not miss it if you care for Harry L. Wilson and his well-known people.

WORLD—Ernest Torrence is the most effective character man in motion pictures. We feel at liberty to recommend this picture largely because of the performance which Mr. Torrence gives. It is spirited, human and perfectly poised.

SURE FIRE

By DANNY

Many great, fine, big pictures are out. Practically all of them are assured of a certain volume of business. Just how much remains to be seen. Scattered among them are several, however, which are definite box office bets. Sure fire, dependable. Others, because of their splendor, sets, or whatnot, will get a certain quota. But not the quota set by the distributor.

All quotas for the big pictures of the season are too high. This, while a broad statement, will be verified six or nine months from now.

"THE GOLD DIGGERS"

Warner's latest, easily the biggest and best picture they have ever made. Sure fire at the box office. Full of humor, delightful and keeps an audience laughing right along. You know the kind of bubble that goes through an audience. When they like it. Well, it's there. Last reel or so needs straightening out. Continuity goes blaaah. But otherwise peachy. You can put this one in safely, get behind it, and it's a clean-up. Incidentally Hope Hampton is at her best; Alec Francis delightful, and Louise Fazenda splendid. Full of lokum, but all there.

Critics are funny critters. The Hays questionnaire proves it. Some of them included in their list of best pictures what others included in their list of worst features.

So it goes. Difference of opinion made the first hoss race.

LLOYD TOPS CHAPLIN

Those same critics put Chaplin in seat far back of Harold Lloyd. The way they figured Lloyd on top of the famous Charlie must make Chaplin feel good. Very good.

McCormick Resigns

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Oakland—S. Barrett McCormick, managing director of the new Fox Oakland, who was brought here to open the house, has resigned. McCormick will leave here today for New York.

Advance Reports Big

"Ten Commandments" Said To Contain Magnificent Spectacle, All Shown in First 20 Minutes

Confidential reports reaching New York concerning Cecil B. De Mille's new picture, "The Ten Commandments" characterize the production as a gigantic one, so far as spectacular appeal is concerned.

The picture has a Biblical sequence but, contrary to the general impression in film circles, the spectacle is understood to occur in the beginning of the film and runs for only twenty minutes on the screen. After that the story switches to the modern story. The Biblical episodes are said to have been made on an extremely massive scale. In one scene there appear 300 chariots racing across the sand with an unexpected thrill provided in the apparently accidental overturning of several of them as the horses reach a crest in the desert.

It is said there are two reels in color on which over $100,000 alone was spent. The picture costs considerably over $1,000,000.

Singer Here From London

Nine in Stanley-Keith Deal

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—Nine theaters are now operating under the Stanley-Keith arrangement covering pictures and vaudeville. Among the houses are the Grand Opera House, the Alleghany, Cross Keys Broadway and the Towers in Camden.

District Offices for Famous Houses

Famous Players yesterday issued a statement which, in part, said:

"Referring to an article recently published which rumored the removal of the Southern Enterprise offices from Atlanta, Harold B. Franklin reports that while the Atlanta offices will be discontinued as a home office, it will be continued as a District office. Furthermore, because of the remarkable development in theater activities in the southern section, district offices will also be established immediately in Memphis, Jacksonville, Charlotte, Dallas, Oklahoma City and San Antonio, with provision for additional offices in other active centers in accordance with anticipated expansion.

Arbiters Meet

Seven Western Exchange Centers at Los Angeles in Conference—C. C. Pettijohn There From N. Y. (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles The presidents of seven Film Boards of Trade met here yesterday at a conference called by Charles C. Pettijohn of the Hays office. The general workings of the arbitration system were gone into.

It is understood that this meeting is in the nature of an introduction to the national conference scheduled for New York this winter at which all of the arbitration boards which function as part of the uniform contract will hold a joint meeting to discuss changes in that instrument.

Those at the coast session include: Guy Navarre, Seattle; Sidney J. Goldman, San Francisco; W. F. Adamson, Salt Lake; C. W. Koerner, Portland, Ore.; William G. Underwood, Dallas; J. S. Hommel, Denver and Robert M. Yost, Los Angeles.

Brill Going to Coast

Sol Brill expects to leave for the coast next week.

"Potash" Breaks Records

The Sam Goldwyn offices were informed yesterday that the Baltimore police were called out Tuesday night to control the line at the Rivoli there where the people waited from 7 to 11 o'clock to see the picture. The Tuesday gross exceeded Monday's at the theater.

Michigan Exhibitors Here

W. S. McLaren, Phil Gleichman, Claude Cady, Glenn Gross, Fred Delodder, A. J. Keist and H. M. Richey, of the M. P. T. O. of Michigan arrived in town last night. McLaren and Richey are here to confer with officials at the Hays office while the others will attend to personal business. They are at the Astor.

Says Market's Gone

Sales Manager Declares State Right-Holders Have Dropped Off Alarmingly—Film Men in Accord

Just back from a sales trip that took him through what is considered one of the best amusement sections of the country, a well known sales manager for a state right organization openly declared yesterday that he found the market "gone"; that the independent field as such exists in name only and that he has only pity for "the producer or the fellow that has put good American dollars in a picture figuring the state right market for its sale."

His ideas were echoed largely by important state right organizations. On some points, Ray Johnson of Arrow, Jack Cohn of C. B. C., Irving Lesser of Principal and A. L. Aronson of Truart disagreed but at the same time they admitted that a good deal of what this film man says is true. This individual's name is withheld for obvious reasons but this is what he asserts:

"In every center, there are very few exchanges open, as a matter of fact there are 'fewer' than at any time in the picture business. Of those that are open for business, and consequently open to buy, only two kinds of product will interest them: The big picture in the sense of big money returns and big purchase prices and the small five

Northwest Irons Out Music Row

Minneapolis—The Motion Picture Theater Owners of the Northwest and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, at a meeting held here, resolved their differences and agreed upon conditions governing the licensing of all members of the M. P. T. O. of the Northwest, covering the public performance of copyrighted music. As a result of the conference attended in behalf of the M. P. T. O. by Steffes, Hays, Clinton, Kaplan, Friedman, Hitchcock, Johnson, Buchanan, Carrish and Dryer, and in behalf of the composers by Mills of New York; Hartmann, of Chicago; Sneath and Summers of local counsel, an amicable agreement was reached pursuant to which licenses will now be taken by all theaters in the territory including Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Northern Wisconsin. The agreement reached marks and end to the misunderstanding heretofore existing between the music men and the exhibitors of this section, and is in line with similar arrangements now being made wherever responsible exhibitor organizations get together with music people.

reel western that they can buy on a basis of from $7,000 to $10,000. Anything other than this, there is absolutely no market for. Of the big fellows there are possibly only one or two that are in a position to take on any extra product, since they are loaded up with the Warner, Lichtman and Lessee product.

"The little fellow buys all his five reels on a series basis, of from five to eight in the series and strives to get a program of this type lined up that will enable him to have one release a week. If you go into a town and this type of exchange is loaded, so to speak, you would be fortunate to get better than print cost out of him for your product. These fellows, of course, know who is able to buy in their town and who is not, and when you come to them they know your position and act accordingly. I have seen many, many contracts on this trip that gave the producer not more than $25 above his print cost. That's a fact.

"To summarize the whole, there is no such thing as a state right market at the present writing. I pity the producer or the fellow that has put good American dollars in a picture figuring the state right market for its sale. 'There ain't no such thing.' The Warners and Lichtman have the big exchanges tied up. They don't know how or where to turn. If they get good pictures all well and good, if they don't, there will be still 'fewer' fellows open next Spring.

"Business in the theaters is good, in fact, great. Every exhibitor will tell you that he had the best Summer that he has had in years, and with all the big pictures coming for the Fall things look great. The talk of high production costs and high rentals does not seem to cause them any undue annoyance, they are doing a big business now and anticipate even better luck."

W. Ray Johnson of Arrow declared:

"The statement is in some spots exaggerated and in others the truth. There are not so many state right exchanges as heretofore, it is true, but, in the main, those who have dropped out were the wild-catters, the men who bought a picture only occasionally. It is true now and always was true that the distributors of short reels have made the greatest success in the state right field. This, because, no matter whether a theater booked a First National, a Paramount, a Goldwyn or any other brand, the exhibitor requires a short reel to balance the program.

"There is no room for in-between pictures in the state right field. As proof of what the short reel means to the independents, let me cite the fact that 'The Santa Fe Trail,' a new serial of ours, has been sold 70% in four weeks. That's why we are releasing 64 comedies a year, and three serials."

Jack Cohn of C. B. C. said:
"State righters want an assured flow of product only. They do not want scattered pictures. I admit that conditions in the Mid-West territory are pretty tough, but this is true not only with state righters but with the national companies as well. Universal was compelled to lease a theater in Kansas City to house its first runs. State righters want big pictures. I point out what C. B. C. has done as proof. We are releasing a group of 12 and have sold 70% of the country."

Irving Lesser of Principal Pictures had this to say:

"It is true. Let me add to what this man says. The trouble with organizations dealing in the state right field is the fact that they cannot get the proper finances. That, in turn is due to the fact that they are unable to get quick play dates on their pictures and because the relative return on a state right picture as compared with that of a national distributor is small.
"State right exchanges will not progress until they are financed properly. They cannot assume new product until they pay off their obligations to the state right producer."

A. L. Aronson of Truart Prod. said:

"In the main, your informant is correct. There is no state right market. There is no room for $60,000 picture in the state right field. Good product, however, will always find a market and while, it may be true, that these same good pictures will not gross what they should, nevertheless, they will play dates. So far as Truart is concerned, let me say that most of our affiliations are with the same exchanges that are handling the Warner, Lichtman and First National product."

Newspaper Opinions

"Mothers-in-Law"—Preferred

Cameo

EVE. JOURNAL—Although credits for players, directors, cameramen and editors are liberally bestowed in "Mothers-in-Law," * * * the best contributor in the lot is not mentioned on the screen. This anonymous star is an infant who acts more naturally than anyone else in the cast.

EVENING WORLD—Anyway, it tells a charming story in a very acceptable way and we're right here to say that we were among those who applauded. * * *

It's an enjoyable film, well directed, well acted and with some startling photography.

SUN—An extremely sentimental photoplay is "Mothers-in-Law," * * * It is an attempt to place mothers-in-law in a favorable light. * * * The production was well photographed and entirely adequate. And if you enjoy an avalanche of sentiment you will like this picture.

MAIL—* * * The film goes on to prove that we have wronged our mothers-in-law. There is hokum a-plenty and extremes without end.

TELEGRAM—The story of "Mothers-in-Law," is a bit hackneyed in spots, nothing exactly new except its dress of ultra modern times. But the way it is handled by a cast, including Gaston Glass and Ruth Gliford, makes it stand out as one of the really worth while pictures of the season.

TRIBUNE—Such pictures as Louis Gasnier makes certainly never were intended for New York consumption. He must be a simple soul indeed, who could accept "Mothers-in-Law" with equanimity. It was impossible for us to regard it as anything save a clever travesty on the mother pictures.

New Exchange Opening

Hepworth Dis. Corp. announces the appointment of Ed. M. Hopcraft as manager of its New York Exchange, which is to be opened shortly.

Renews With Friedman
Al Lichtman has closed a deal with Celebrated Players of V. consin for the distribution of the I. preferred product in that territory.

Historical Pictures Plans

Historical Pictures, Inc., plans a series of two reels outlining an important event in history. They are to be endorsed by leading exhibitors and will be released in both the theaters and non-theatrical fields.

IN THE COURTS

William H. Barker has filed suit in the Supreme Court to recover $19,972 from Marshall W. Taggart, on several notes made in 1917, some by Phillips himself and others by the Prudential Pictures Corp. and Samuel Baehrach & Co., and endorsed by Phillips. Randall and Larson are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Los Angeles—Virginia Lee Corbin has filed suit against Fisher Prod., Inc., for $11,500 damages on an alleged breach of contract action. It is claimed that Virginia was kept waiting forty-five weeks for work and that only $2,000 has been paid under her contract.

Pittsburgh—Jack Marks seeks an injunction in the Harrison County Circuit Court to restrain Claude Robinson from using the name "Orpheum," for a theater at West Pike and Fourth St. Marks states that for several years he held a lease on the theater, the Orpheum. Later, when his lease expired, he purchased the Bijou on West Main St. and brought the name "Orpheum" along with him, changing the Bijou to the Orpheum. Robinson contends that the old Orpheum, which he now operates should retain its name.

The house is closed temporarily.

St. Louis—Frank Blatti of Harwood, claims he has been swindled out of $300 by a man representing himself to be a distributor. Blatti claims he answered an advertisement in a St. Louis paper offering a "good position to a young man with $300" and signed a contract to sell a film entitled "Yankee Doodle in Berlin" in Arkansas and Texas. He paid a deposit of $300 as good faith, and alleges he was to receive a salary of $200 a month. Later he wired his employers. Receiving no reply he hurried back to St. Louis. He notified the police and later John Le Roy was arrested. He pleaded not guilty. Edgar Quade also complained to the police recently of being done out of $300 in the same way.

Abe Meyer Back

Abe Meyer, secretary to Hugo Riesenfeld, returned Monday from a three weeks' transcontinental trip.

"The Right Spirit"

Kansas City—An editorial appearing in the current issue of "The Reel Journal," captioned "The Right Spirit," says in part:

"The present fine spirit of cooperation existing between the Kansas City Film Board of Trade and the Motion Picture Theater Owners of Kansas is a matter that should be brought to the attention of every exhibitor. The two bodies are meeting regularly in a joint board of arbitration and differences between exhibitors and exchanges are being amicably settled. The day is surely here when divergent opinions are orderly expressed in a regular manner rather than being secretly and unfruitfully nursed.

"Frankness and a sincere desire to improve any condition will always meet with success and these two factors are to be credited with the splendid feeling that is now so evident."

A City Court judgment for $807 has been recorded against the Motion Picture Advertising Co., who was sued by the Madison Avenue Offices, Inc., who sued for five months' rent due on offices occupied by the defendant. Mack and Taylor represented the plaintiff.

A judgment for $1,400 has been filed in the Supreme Court against Reginald Warde, Inc., in a suit brought by the Russo-American Cinema Exchange, Inc., who sued on an agreement under which the plaintiff, which expected to place films with the Russian Government, had permission to return prints, reels and cans but which it was alleged defendant refused to accept when they were offered. Of the amount sued for $1,000 represented a deposit given by the plaintiff. Arthur L. Davis was attorney for the Russo-American Cinema Exchange.

Philadelphia—A suit involving the lease of the Olympia, has been instituted when David Segal and Joseph Schwartzman began proceedings against the Olympia A. A., Inc., the Philadelphia Sporting Club, Inc., and Abraham Wax, now owner of the theater, asking the court to restrain the defendants from occupying it as a picture house.

The complaints contend that they have a right to lease the premises up until December, 1925; that in January, 1922, the place was rented to them for a yearly rental of $6,500 and that they were given at the same time the option, to take the house for another two years at $7,000 a year.

Objections were raised by the city authorities and for a time the place was refused a license, but the lessors, it is alleged, assured the complainants that the place would be put in condition demanded by the law. In November, 1922, it is averred, the Olympia, Inc., without the knowledge or consent of the lessees, agreed the lease should be given over to the sporting club and later that corporation consigned the lease to Abraham Wax, thus ousting the plaintiffs from any chance of continuing the pictures they had contracted for.

BUYING

By DANNY

Co-operative, as W. A. True, says, or otherwise, always important in an industry of this kind. Where is no basic standard. But there may be much behind what True, as president of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp., says. That has no relation whatever to what is otherwise understood by the term of co-operative buying.

Some of the questions asked of Carl Anderson at a meeting of California exhibitors—found elsewhere in this issue—may demonstrate this. Because there is a big gap between co-operative buying as is done generally, and a plan to deliver pictures such as is proposed by True.

Co-operative buying, in its usual sense, means a definite saving to all involved. It means an organization maintained without intent of profit; the purpose, and sole purpose of which is to economize in purchasing operations.

Is this the intent of the men back of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp.? Is it to be an organization conducted without intent of profit? If not, who is to get the profits and why? And if a profit bearing organization why should it be tied to a nation wide organization of exhibitors who got-together to rid existing evils?

Mr. True and his associates must appreciate this: that if the organized exhibitor body intends to go into the distribution business that they must select the distributors to in some manner solve the problem which they are exhibitors—develop. This may mean further encroachments of distributors (and producers) into the exhibition field.

Thinking men have long argued that eventually there must come a development which will bring this business into the organization of half a dozen or less chains of theaters, with film supplied from about that many sources. The question might well be asked: Is the exhibitor movement forcing this earlier than it might have otherwise come?

Deny a Bad Market

Sam Sax and Jesse Goldburg Declare Worthwhile Product Will Get Money From State Righters

Sam Sax, of Weber and North, and Jesse J. Goldburg, of Independent Pictures Corp., came to the defense of the state right market yesterday, following the gloomy picture painted by a recently returned sales manager, who declared the so-called independent field had been shot to pieces.

This is what Sax had to say in reply:

"First I want to say that the well known sales manager who openly stated that the state right market is gone must have gotten this information in a hotel lobby or a Pullman berth. In that case, he's right, it's gone—but if he hustled around the corner he would have found the same old business at the same old stand for high class product. I know because I found it.

"I'll admit that it's gone perhaps for mediocre product, but if you have the goods the business is always there regardless of what

O. releases, and would seat 2,000.

Won't Force Stock

Carl Anderson Says Exhibitors Won't Have to Buy in T. O. D. C.—Fully Financed, He States
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Exhibitors throughout the country will not be compelled to buy stock in the Theater Owners Dist. Corp., according to Carl Anderson, who spoke before a gathering of Southern Californian exhibitors on Wednesday.

Anderson's talk was in the nature of an explanatory one so that local exhibitors might get an idea of how the T. O. D. C. expected to work. He said the company was fully financed and that this also applied to the Anderson Pictures Corp. This is how Anderson said the T. O. D. C. would function:

"A sales quota on each individual picture will be fixed on a basis of a fair return to both producer plus a fair percentage for the distributor. The company will not handle high-priced product, realizing that there is room for the moderate-priced features in the field."

In response to a question by an exhibitor as to who would set the national quota, Anderson replied that this would be done by a committee of exhibitors seating in New York.

In response to a query as to who would set the individual theater valuation, Anderson answered that the T. O. D. C. was compiling a card index of the theaters in each territory, and that a list of each zone would be forwarded to the M. P. T. O. unit in that territory where an appointed committee will grade the prices. Each unit is expected to reach its quota by grading theater rentals down the line. All pictures will be sold individually and not in groups.

An exhibitor raised the question of whether the power vested in the M. P. T. O. by the national conventions in Washington, Minneapolis and Chicago regarding exhibitor distribution would involve the theater owners financially in the distributing company, and whether each theater would stand the proportionate losses of the releasing company. In reply to this, Anderson stated the T. O. D. C. was a regularly incorporated company with its liabilities limited.

Anderson was apparently not conversant enough to answer the many questions asked him. Glenn Harper, likewise did not have facts and details available.

Choice Prod. Through Anderson?

Schenectady Deal Important

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—The Farash Theater Co. has received a charter here naming William M. Shirley, of Schenectady and William F. Rafferty, of Syracuse incorporators. William W. Farley acted as representative.

Schenectady—News of the formation of the Farash Theater Co. has caused quite a stir in local film circles. William Farley, who acted as representative, represents the receivers of the State while Shirley manages the Strand of which Rafferty is the owner. It is believed that the new combination already has or soon will acquire the Albany, a competitor of the Strand owned by Paul Alberts. Shirley will act as general manager of the new company and arrangements are being made to form a booking combine between the three theaters, the State, Strand and Albany. The State went into bankruptcy as a result of the difficulties of Max Siegel.

Doubts Cosmosart's Assertion

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Minneapolis — Frank M. Willard, studio manager of Cosmosart made a number of lavish proclaims about the aims of his organization THE FILM DAILY recent quoted at length in "Greater Amusements" along the same lines. In addition to the assertions made in New York, Willard is quoted as stating that Cosmosart already has nine theaters ready for distribution.

"Greater Amusements," in a editorial comment on Willard's claims, declares:

"No effort has been made to solicit memberships in this territory for the Cosmosart association. If Willard's claim to membership is correct, he must have every territory sold 100 per cent. Even were the case, it would be problematical to claim membership total would reach a figure, for it is generally conceded that total number of theater owners in the United States does not exceed 14,000. Cosmosart Amusements at the present time is conducting an investigation of the claims Willard made in Minneapolis."

Among the statements made by Willard while in New York, was to the effect that Cosmosart would distribute the Lloyd pictures. This was later denied by Willard in the presence of John C. Ragland of the Lloyd organization and a representative of THE FILM DAILY.

This is why Sid Grauman's audiences were taken by storm!

The only great cast is that cast that tells a story in a great way.

"The White Rose"

Hammers out its appeal in tones that never jar because the players WERE the characters; not just acting the characters.

Not in recent years has any player won such lavish praise as MAE MARSH, who is greater in this picture than in "The Birth of a Nation" or "Intolerance."

Ivor Novello was specially selected from all young men of stage and screen for this role.
He is great.

Carol Dempster, a different type, always getting better and better, is better than ever in this film.

Nell Hamilton, one of those real "finds"
D. W. Griffith so often makes, is on his way to greatness.

Through it all moves that sensitive magic of quick humanity that only Griffith, the real master of the films, gives always to his work.

Your spectators laugh and they sigh story is so natural they become as inter-

As Don Allen in the New York Evening

It is no wonder Mr. Grauman's audi-

Another Tournament

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—Plans are being made for the next Detroit Film Golf Tournament conducted under the auspices of the Michigan Film Review. The last affair was quite a success and the forthcoming event is being looked forward to with much enthusiasm.

Leishman Promoted

E. D. Leishman, Universal auditor for the East, will no longer operate among the various exchanges. He has been promoted to a position at the home office.

Northern Jersey Strike Avoided

Negotiations between 34 theater owners of Hudson County and 400 musicians, operators, stage hands and billposters have been terminated successfully with the granting of a wage increase of from 10 to 15 per cent. At the expiration of their contract on Sept. 1 the employees requested a 30 per cent wage increase.

"Nellie" Principals Here

Lew Cody, Claire Windsor and Edmund Lowe, principals in "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," which Emmett J. Flynn will make next, arrived in New York yesterday. Most of the picture will be made here.

One of the spectacular scenes in "Nellie," is a crash on the elevated railroad. Arrangements for this are understood to have already been started by Goldwyn officials.

Deny a Bad Mark

territory you canvass. I have just returned from a trip too and I know that I found a state right market in a mighty healthy condition and I experienced no difficulty in posing of my product, and I have no set of pictures to offer either—just two pictures to sell—"Marriage Morals" and "Don't Make Money."

"L. Lawrence Weber and Bobby No are two whom our friend feels sorry inasmuch as they have put good American dollars in a picture, figuring the state right market for its sale. You can just bet the firm I represent did put good American dollars into their two pictures, but we are satisfied with the returns that we are getting on same.

"I particularly noted what our sales manager friend said about there being fewer changes open, but I found no fewer representative exchanges than at any time since I have been in the business. I'll admit in our business we have a mushroom growth in spots, but you will find that the we sisters leave us and that there are just many responsible, substantial exchanges in as there ever was and that they are just as anxious today to do business with you if you offer them worth-while product. Our friend can get the fact that 'the state right market is gone' out of his head."

Goldburg said:

"I don't know who the 'well known sales manager for a state right organization' whose comments you reported in today's issue of the FILM DAILY, but if he found the market 'gone'; 'that the independent field as such exists in name only,' my reply is that either his product was wrong; his price excessive, or as a sales manager he has lost his grip. I have every respect for R. Johnson of Arrow and Irving Lessor Principal, but if they mean to echo the statements of the man you quote, then they, too, have lost their grip on things. Instead of Warner Brothers, Lichtman or the First National product crowding out legitimate independent product, they have instead created a demand for worth while attractions. It is true that they have crowded out the shoddy pictures, and the negative that cost $500,000 that state right distributors were trying to dispose of on a $40,000 basis.

"I will stake my years of experience and reputation against that of your correspondent or any one else in the industry when it comes to a knowledge of state right conditions; and therefore, let me, state the following; they are more responsible, financially, well entrenched state right buyers in the United States today than at any time in the history of the industry. Fifty per cent of the state right buyers in the United States have money, tangible, convertible assets by way of cash in bank, stocks, bonds, and other forms of security, excepting film, than 95% of state right distributors or producers.

"Seventy five per cent of the state right producers and distributors have all their eggs in one basket and you will find more than half the state right buyers in addition to owning and operating exchanges, owning theaters, real estate and other assets out side of motion pictures.

There is a market for any kind of a five reel picture that has exploitation possibilities and box office valuation whether it is a big special or western just as long as the state right producer and distributor does not attempt to sell a $5,000 production on a basis of $50,000 or a $25,000 production on the basis of $75,000.

"The state right distributor who sells his productions for a little better than print cost is riding for a fall; that is why some of them come and go so quickly. They are not financed to hold out on their pictures until they receive their largest price or they are handling a production of a fly-by-night producer who is anxious to get as much money back and as quickly as he can get it as possible, and this distributor throws the picture all over the country. But they won't last long, and that class of distributor like the fly-by-night state right exchange men, is being rapidly eliminated and like everything else, it is a question of the survival of the fittest."

Deitrich Back

Theodore C. Deitrich, who has been in Europe for the past five months looking over the European field, returned yesterday on the steamship Stockholm. During his stay abroad he supervised two pictures and has brought back a print of each.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Screen Editions for Fall Product

First National is preparing exploitation to accompany Fall productions. Screen editions of "Ashes of Vengeance," "Potash and Perlmutter," "Flaming Youth," "Penrod and Sam" and "Her Reputation" will be issued by leading book publishers.

Gimbel's department store was the first to give a window display to the film edition of "Penrod and Sam." One of their large windows on 33rd St. was entirely devoted to the book, accompanied by stills from the picture. Stills will be provided with the other novels as well.

Big Campaign Puts This Over

Los Angeles—An exploitation campaign that took in many angles put "Three Wise Fools," over for a two weeks' run at the California.

Ray Miller, who handles the California's advertising started off with a billboard campaign, using 50 twenty-four sheets, 300 three-sheets and 1,000 window cards. Supplementing these were 250 special window cards distributed by the manufacturers of a popular brand cigar made, the "Sante Fe;" a window strip being made up from the still showing Gillingwater, Francis and Crane smoking cigars. These were placed in some of the best locations in the city. Later, 800 inches of display advertising were used in the five local papers as well as special stories, such as interviews with Boardman, Gillingwater, Crane, Francis and Vidor.

Other window displays, throw aways, banners, etc., brought the campaign to a close.

Several Angles Used by Snowden

Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Manager Clement of the Orpheum, and H. T. Snowden, Goldwynner, arranged a tie-up with Wolf & Dessauer's department store for the showing of "Souls for Sale." The management devoted a large window to the display of silks. Three models wearing blue gowns were posed in the window. A large card read: "Turquoise blue, the color of the elaborate gowns worn in 'Souls for Sale,' Rupert Hughes' daring story of Hollywood at the Orpheum all next week." Other stunts included:

A bally-hoo, consisting of 24-sheets mounted on an auto truck. 5,000 teaser envelopes, "How to get into the movies," and 1,000 hangers were distributed. Every downtown drug store in the city placed the Palm Olive strips in their windows; sixteen studio streamers were placed in big store windows. Telegrams from Rupert Hughes and Eleanor Boardman to the "fans" of Ft. Wayne were used in the teaser ads. A double page advertising truck of co-operative advertising was run in the Journal-Gazette,

Planes Advertise "Spoilers" At Fair

Milwaukee—Manager Roy McMullen of the Merrill, and Walter D. Nealand put over "The Spoilers," in great style when the picture played the theater recently.

The Wisconsin State fair opened August 27 for nine days and is usually attended by more than 100,000 people. Arrangements were made with the fair management to have the lower wings of the two aeroplanes used by Louis Voyer who changes planes in mid-air, painted as follows: "The Spoilers, Merrill Theater, September 1st—15th."

Fair Scenes Interest Crowds

Butler, Pa.—When John C. Graham of the Lyric, played "Souls for Sale," he centered his exploitation activities around the annual county fair.

The fair brought all the farmers for miles around to town. Graham had a camera man on hand with a well-bannered truck telling about "Souls For Sale" and from the truck moving pictures of the crowds were taken. Permission was secured to drive the truck around the track between races and pictures of the crowds along the track and in the grand stand were also taken. The pictures were then shown at the theater for the whole week of the celebration.

Another feature of the exploitation was the tagging of 5,000 automobiles with the "Souls For Sale" tag. Extra newspaper space was used including the Goldwyn casting director's "Souls For Sale" questionnaire.

Heavy Advertising Featured

San Francisco—When "The White Rose," was booked for the Strand, a heavy advertising and exploitation campaign helped hold the picture for a third week.

A billboard display covered the city with all sizes of paper and a newspaper campaign were featured. The type ads shown in United Artists' press books, were used and plenty of white space allowed. The opening announcement was made six days ahead of the play date and was followed with different ad copy each day, the space becoming larger and larger, with the big smash on the opening day. The whole length of the Strand building was covered with a sign 120 feet long and 15 feet high. This was the biggest sign in San Francisco.

Edward D. Barron, manager of the United Artists exchange, made a tie-up with Arthur J. Hill, of the State Life Insurance who induced his company to put up a huge sign on its building, free of cost, which read: "E. B. Barron (State Life Patron) says: See It! 'The White Rose' Strand Theater Now!"

Robbers Crack Francesca Safe

Boston—Fred Meek, who has been managing the showing of "The Covered Wagon" in this city for the past 14 weeks, has gone to Asbury Park to join another company. He is succeeded by G. G. Wallace at the Majestic.

Storm Damages Cincinnati Houses

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cincinnati—What is declared one of the most severe hailstorms ever recorded in this part of the country recently damaged screens and scenery of many of the local theaters when the hail came through defective roofs.

Ask Support for British Films

The Associated Press reports from London that British producers are begging the British public to patronize home-made films as an act of patriotism but that the response thus far is poor. One grievance, according to the dispatch, seems to exist because American producers do not have to pay the income tax there.

BY JOVE, it's simply ripping and that sort of thing. You cinema fellows will jolly well call it a blooming bear. And these American audiences—oh, I say, they'll just love it, don't y' know.

The N. Y. Evening Mail says:

"'Ruggles of Red Gap' is one of the most delightful motion pictures we have seen. It is skillfully directed, beautifully photographed, extremely well acted and is without one clumsy trick or hackneyed incident. We have no doubt that 'Ruggles of Red Gap' will prove to be as successful as 'Merton' and will give Mr. Wilson the enviable reputation of writing the best comedy of the stage last season and the best comedy of the movies.

"We thoroughly enjoyed this picture. Rarely have we laughed so heartily. 'Ruggles of Red Gap' is destined to take the foremost position in motion picture comedy. It will be a model which other producers may well follow."

Busy On Censorship

New York State Exhibitor Body Surveying Political Field—Assembly, Out of Office Jan. 1

The Assembly in Albany goes out of office the end of this year. In view of the fact that it was this portion of the State Legislature that effectually blocked the censorship repeal measure recently, the M. P. T. O. of New York is getting busy with a survey of the political line-up, so far as a thing is possible right now. It seems quite likely that the interests of the state will be swung into line in support of those politicians who are friendly toward motion pictures in general. Certainly, an aggressive campaign for the repeal of the censorship bill will be gotten underway in the near future.

The Day

Tuesday looks like a real party. And a real holiday in local film circles. Way over 200 well known film folk will go out in the open and enjoy the Fall Film Golf tournament. Many notables: Will Fox, Hal Roach, W. W. Hodgkinson, Marcus Loew (if he can get back from his new house opening in Pittsburg), P. A. Powers, sure, Adolph Zukor if he can get away, lead the producing contingent. Out of town exhibitors include Jules Mastbaum, Philadelphia; Tom Moore, Washington; Chris Diebold, Ohio; Guy Wonders, Baltimore; and others. Out of town exchangemen include Eddie Golden, Metro, Boston; Harry Asher, Boston, and others and golly what a fine crowd from every branch of the industry in town.

A wonderful collection of prizes—herewith thanks to all who presented them—a prize for every other player at least, as well as special trophies for the pinochle champion and other card playing champs—special booby trophies, fine food. Oh, boy; it's too much to write about.

Everybody—EVERYBODY—please pray for good weather Tuesday. With that it will be a party de luxe.

B. V. D.'s

When Bennie Schulberg produced "The Broken Wing," he had a problem on his hands. One of the real comedy punch scenes was where hero, clad in B. V. D.'s was rescued by sweetie. Who thereafter called him "BVD." And now the reviewers point out that B. V. D. underwear was advertised in the production. That's

Tax Fight Soon

New York, Michigan and N. Carolina Exhibitor Units Lined Up—Meeting Planned

Individual efforts for the repeal of the admission and seating taxes introduced by the Government originally as war measures may be crystallized shortly into one concerted action with exhibitor leaders from New York, Michigan, Wisconsin and North Carolina in the fore.

As a matter of fact, it would come as no great surprise if the first move along these lines occurred at the Jackson meeting of the Michigan unit, scheduled to occur on Sept. 24-25. Representatives of the various state organizations named above will probably attend the Michigan meeting where definite plans for an aggressive campaign will be outlined.

Gathering Data in 'Frisco

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

San Francisco—An attorney representing the Trade Commission is here gathering data, etc., to be used in the hearing against Famous Players. The attorney visited a number of small towns seeking information to be used as evidence.

When asked whether the Commission would bring the hearing to San Francisco, he stated that it is not likely, because of the great expense involved in bringing witnesses from the East.

A Special Prize

John MacMahon and the dramatic department of the New York American have donated a golf bag as a special prize for the golf tournament. It will be awarded to the player who, in the opinion of the Committee has performed the most meritorious playing act.

Reviews of the Newest Features

"The Gold Diggers"

Warner Bros.

As a Whole...FIRST OF BELASCO STAGE PLAYS ACQUIRED BY WARNERS; MAKES FINE ENTERTAINMENT FOR THE MAJORITY OF PICTURE GOERS; HOPE HAMPTON SHOWS BIG IMPROVEMENT IN ROLE IN A CLAIRE CREATED.

Cast......Here is another instance where "stick-to-it-iveness" has proven worth while—Hope Hampton, (maybe it is that the material suits her), makes a far better impression in this than she has heretofore; they'll probably like her a lot as the gold digger. Louise Fazenda and Alec Francis take care of the comedy angle in fine fashion.

Type of Story.....Comedy that supplies good material for the screen although there isn't enough to it to warrant the extreme footage in which it is being presented. It runs far too long and will be much improved by liberal cutting.

Chorus girl sets out to change rich man's opinion of herself, and chorus girls in general, but the worse she paints herself the harder he falls: result, marriage

Box Office Angle...There's good entertainment value and considerable audience appeal in this stage play adaptation to win it the approval of most picture patrons. Exhibitors will undoubtedly find it a profitable attraction.

Exploitation.....The title and success of the stage play should easily put this one over. Even where they may not know that it was a popular legitimate favorite, they are familiar with the term "gold digger," at least sufficiently to have a good idea of what to expect in a picture bearing the title.

Talk about Hope Hampton and her role of the gold digger. Also mention Louise Fazenda's name and tell them about her strenuous efforts to "land" a man. A trailer of Louise vamping Alec Francis will give an idea of the comedy the pair puts over.

For novelty exploitation have a number of girls, lavishly gowned, going about and carrying, instead of walking sticks, shovels brightly gilted. The shovels might serve for trays from which they can offer tiny gilt shovels bearing the title of the picture.

Direction by......Harry Beaumont; has given the piece a good production generally but might have been better on some angles. Has occasionally overdone the comedy business and the sets are usually overdressed.

Author ..... Avery Hopwood
Scenario ..... Grant Carpenter
Cameraman ..... David Abel
Photography ..... Good
Locale....A chorus girl's apartment
Length ..... 7,900 feet

Samuel Goldwyn presents "Potash and Perlmutter"

First National

As a Whole....ADAPTATION OF POPULAR STAGE PLAY MAKES GOOD HUMOROUS ENTERTAINMENT EVEN THOUGH TO GET THE COMEDY DIALOGUE IN NECESSITATED A GREAT MANY TITLES; PICTURE IS STILL WAY TOO LONG.

Cast......Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr, the originators of the famous Hebrew characters, make their initial screen appearance in "Potash and Perlmutter." Bernard's comedy registers the better of the two. Vera Gordon is very good as Potash's wife. Others are Martha Mansfield, Hope Sutherland and De Sacia Mooers.

Type of Story.....Comedy that takes a dramatic turn near the close. The story is rather slight for screen purposes, far too slight for the amount of footage accorded by director Badger. The comedy dialogue is naturally taken care of by the titles of which there are a great many, one reason why the picture runs so long. But it can be tightened up and to a great extent benefit the picture's value as entertainment.

Box Office Angle.....You should be able to sell this title easily. Besides the popularity of the stage play, there have been "Potash and Perlmutter" stories syndicated in the newspapers for years. You'll find that most of your folks will recognize the title.

Exploitation......Have two men resembling Potash and Perlmutter, if possible, going about advertising the picture. They might carry "sandwich" signs reading "I'm Potash," "I'm Perlmutter," respectively and each with the same line: "We're in the clothing business at (your address.) Step around and see what we have to offer."

A teaser ad in the "personal" column might read: "Wanted: A business partner. Fine opportunity. Small investment. Watch tomorrow's edition."

A trailer should interest them. Use scenes from the sequence in which Abe and Morriss entertain the out of town buyers at dinner. Also the early scenes in which Abe "butts in" on Morriss' lunch.

Direction by ..... Clarence Badger; evidently encountered some difficulty in getting the comedy business over since it was largely the dialogue, and the characterization of Bernard and Carr, that made the play, but he has handled it very well except for stretching it over too much footage.

Authors...... Montague Glass and Charles Klein.

Scenario ..... Frances Marion
Cameraman ..... Rudolph Berquist
Photography ..... All right
Locale....."Cloak and Suit" atmosphere and cafe sets.
Length ..... 7,770 feet

"Ruggles of Red Gap"

Paramount

As a Whole.....JAMES CRUZE, ERNEST TORRENCE AND EDWARD HORTON RESPONSIBLE FOR THE ENTERTAINMENT THAT HIS ADAPTATION OF SATURDAY EVENING POST STORY AFFORDS. CUTTING WILL MAKE IT STILL BETTER.

Cast...Ernest Torrence, probably the foremost character man on the screen today, makes much of the fun in role of uncouth westerner, whose wife would make a social lion of him. Edward Horton is very good as Ruggles, the valet, who is mistaken for an English Colonel and feted by the folks of Red Gap. Louise Dresser is the much perturbed wife of Torrence.

Type of Story.....Delightful comedy with situations that have been very well handled and always to the best advantage. Story contains a lot of sure-fire audience appeal and spontaneous comedy business that should make it an A-1 entertainment. It is amusing and thoroughly enjoyable. They're going to get a lot of fun out of the complications that ensue when the English valet is mistaken for a Colonel and feted by folks of western American town.

Box Office Angle.....You'll want to get this one. It is genuinely fine comedy entertainment that should prove a first rate box office attraction. If you know they enjoy a good laugh and want to be amused, depend upon "Ruggles of Red Gap" to fill the bill. They'll "roar" at the comedy play between Torrence and Horton.

Exploitation.....Your big bet here is the popularity of Harry Leon Wilson's novel, for one thing. Be sure to play up the title and the fact that it appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. For the benefit of those who follow up the works of the authors, also mention that Wilson is the author of "Merton of the Movies," another Saturday Evening Post novel, and a New York stage success that is still doing capacity business.

Next advertise the name of James Cruze. Even if they haven't seen his "The Covered Wagon" as yet, they'll associate his name with it and be interested to see this one. Mention Ernest Torrence and recall his appearance in "Tol'able David," "Singed Wings," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "The Covered Wagon" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame,"—the latter two they have probably yet to see. Edward Horton is another good comedian.

Direction by.....James Cruze; gets a lot of laughs out of Wilson's novel; they could be kept close together.

Author ..... Harry Leon Wilson
Scenario ..... Anthony W. Coldway
Cameraman ..... Karl Brown
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... Paris and Red Gap
Length ..... 7,590 feet

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame"

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole.....ONE OF THE REALLY GREAT BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS OF THE SEASON; WITH CHANEY GIVING A REMARKABLE PERFORMANCE AND A SPLENDID CAST; TREMENDOUS SETS

Cast Lon Chaney as the deformed bell ringer of the vast cathedral does his best—you know what should be. Ernest Torrence gives a fine performance and Patsy Ruth Miller is splendid.

Type of Story......Based on Victor Hugo's famous masterpiece, which perhaps gruesome in its interpretation for the screen, is proving a box office knockout in New York against the strongest kind of competition. Far too much material, the book and director made an effort to get too much in with result that some sequences are far too short and choppy, but in the end there is a real thrill.

Box Office Angle......This is one of the really big pictures of the year for that matter of many years. There may be some complaint because of the characterization of Chaney gives "The Hunchback" but it is true to the story and remarkably well portrayed. The one is "in."

Exploitation......Should be a cinch. You have much to play with. Fans everywhere know Chaney. His name should bring them in. His performance will send them out satisfied. The immense production stands out. Trailers showing the Cathedral set, with Chaney clambering down its facade, and swinging down the long rope to rescue Esmerelda should certainly bring them back. For those not familiar with pictures dwell on the importance of the showing of this classic. You should have a lot of people in who rarely go to see pictures, and this may start the coming as a general thing.

Then you have the name of Ernest Torrence, who has been a lot of good pictures. If you crowd have already seen "Merrill Go-Round," the name of Norma Kerry will help. There are other good names to be used. They will want to see Patsy Ruth Miller after this one.

Direction by...Wallace Worsley; has done pretty well considering the tremendous job he had to handle. The mob scenes are only fair, and the attack on the Cathedral and rescue could have been more spirited; but all in all a pretty good job.

Author ..... Victor Hugo
Scenario by...Perley Poore Sheehan and Edward P. Lowe, Jr.
Cameraman....Robert Newhard and Tony Koruman.
Photography ..... Excellent
Locale .....Paris in by gone days
Length ..... About 11,000 feet

Hollywood Previews

As productions are invariably cut after previewing, a general idea of each picture only is given, rather than a complete analysis. The usual review will appear when the picture is shown in New York.

Tom Mix in "The Lone Star Ranger"

Fox

As a Whole.....FINE ACTION PICTURE THAT WILL BE A FAVORITE WITH THE LOVERS OF THRILLS; MIX AT HIS BEST AND OFFERS A VARIETY OF DARING STUNTS.

Plot....Takes plenty of chances in offering thrills to please his admirers; puts a lot of pep into the role and furnishes a great deal of excitement; still wearing his gloves. Cast....L. C. Shumway, Stanton Heck, Ed Peil and William Conklin all plotting against Mix; Billie Dove a pretty heroine; others Frank Clark, Minna Redman and Tom Lingham.

Type of Story.....Not so much the story but the action it affords that counts. Plot itself is of a very familiar formula and for the most part quite obvious. Without the numerous thrills and the spontaneous sort of action that keeps it going, there would be little to recommend it. With Mix offering a thrill at every turn it furnishes first rate entertainment.

Outlaw is made a member of the Star Rangers on condition that he will round up a band of rustlers. How he handles the job alone suffices for a series of fine thrills touched off with the usual romantic angle with the inevitable "clinch" ending.

Box Office Angle....You know best what they want. You won't go wrong on "The Lone Star Ranger" if you know they like action of the sort usually offered in a Mix attraction.

Exploitation.....If your audience is right for it, boost "The Lone Star Ranger," and you should do a satisfying business with it. Be sure to let them know it is the best of Tom Mix's recent releases. Also let them know that the star's horse, Tony, has quite a prominent part.

One of the best ways to interest them will be a trailer. Show them one or two of the big thrills such as the stage coach spill and Mix's rescue of the heroine, his escape from the rustler band or any one of his "quick draws" when he gets his man first.

Of course the title can be advertised extensively since the Zane Grey novel has enjoyed considerable popularity. The usual book store tie-up should be effective exploitation.

A street stunt would be to have a man dressed up as a Star Ranger riding about advertising the showing. Small metal badges, star shaped, and bearing the title of the picture would be readily consumed by the youngsters and given good display. You might try it.

Direction by.....Lambert Hillyer; kept this one going at good speed all the way and provided good production.

"The Courtship of Miles Standish"

Associated Exhibitors

Here's another of those costly productions that actually run over the half million mark—and it certainly shows plenty of time and money. Unlike most of the others, it carries a story of American history, which alone would tend to make it a good bet.

But Charles Ray and his associates have turned out a most interesting production—one that should provide good entertainment and make exhibitors a profit. "The Courtship of Miles Standish" will be good for years to come—we probably will be seeing it ten years from now.

A very interesting story has been evolved from historical data, and both the sets and photography are exceptional. Perhaps the best storm scenes ever photographed are presented during the trip of the Mayflower to this country.

In a very rough state, this shapes up as a worthwhile production from both the artistic and box office angles.

"The Virginian"

Preferred Pictures

Tom Forman certainly hits with this one. He has obtained a production that will satisfy every type of audience. Perhaps the outstanding point of the entire picture is the new atmosphere—the picture was made in Wyoming, on exact locations of the story. Practically every scene is a Remington painting, but the action of the story dominates. The scenery is new to pictures, and decidedly refreshing from the general locale of stories with a western flavor.

Kenneth Harlan certainly shows up as a trouser in the part of the Virginian. This should add greatly to his popularity. Florence Vidor is as excellent as in her previous work this year, and Russell Simpson makes an ideal Trampas.

"The Virginian" will prove a good box office attraction.

"The Extra Girl"

Mack Sennett—Associated

Exhibitors

Mabel Normand comes to Hollywood to break into pictures. She lands in the wardrobe department. That's the thread of the story—what little connected story there is. But regardless, there are a few very clever gags that get over for laughs, and if your patrons are not so particular about connected continuity in a Sennett feature comedy, it may get over.

Mabel Normand does some good work, but she has shown to better advantage in previous pictures.

Exploitation Angle—Mabel Normand should get the bulk of the play, because she carries the whole picture, but it would be well to also impress the fact that she travels to Hollywood to become a star, and that most of the action revolves around her experiences in endeavoring to get before the camera.

Short Subjects

"Ruth of the Range"—Ruth Roland Serials, Inc.—Pathe

Good Fast-moving Serial

Type of production...15 episode serial
Following close upon the heels of the final chapter of "Haunted Valley" comes the next Ruth Roland serial entitled, "Ruth of the Range." As the title indicates, Ruth is again the daughter of a ranch owner. This time he is the inventor of a substitute for coal which if put on the market would ruin the market for coal, as it can be manufactured and sold very much cheaper. Remington, Ruth's father, is at the opening of the serial held captive by his enemy of thirty years' standing and who is the president of the Olympus Coal Co., which is endeavoring to keep the new invention off the market.

At times the action is extremely tense. The star exhibits all her usual courage and daring and some of the stunts employed will keep them on the edge of their seats. There is plenty of rough fighting, fast riding and quick action, with the plot running close to form and the lovers getting the worst of it at the end of each episode only to be rescued again at the beginning of the next one.

The cast includes Ernest Warde, who also directed the serial, Bruce Gordon, Lorrimer Johnston, Pat Harmon, V. Omar Whitehead and others. Allen Q. Thompson is responsible for the good camerawork. Some night effects in the first episode are extremely effective.

Judging from the first three episodes reviewed, the first of which is three reels in length and the others two, "Ruth of the Range" should easily satisfy a serial-loving audience. It has all the usual thrills, rescues and mysteries.

"No Noise"—Our Gang—Pathe

Another Riot of Fun

Type of production 2 reel kid comedy
From the first shot of this latest spasm of the incorrigible "gang," which shows Mickey Daniels being fed castor oil in the "horsepital" where he is having his "tonsilitus" taken out, through the ensuing two

"The Eternal Struggle"

Producer: Louis B. Mayer

Distributor: Metro

As a Whole.....NORTHWOODS DRAMA THAT HAS BEEN EXTREMELY WELL ACTED AND CAREFULLY DIRECTED; DRAMATIC MOMENTS CARRY REAL PUNCH AND ALL TOLD IT IS THE SKILLFUL TREATMENT THAT MAKES THE STORY INTERESTING IN SPITE OF ITS BEING FAIRLY TRITE.

Cast.....Renee Adore gives an exceptionally fine performance, one that should bring her several pegs up the ladder; her emotional work is particularly good and she has been very well photographed; her's is the outstanding performance in the picture while Barbara La Marr is shoved into more or less obscurity in a role that gives her very little opportunity to overshadow the work of Miss Adore; Earle Williams and Pat O'Malley are excellent as Mounted Police officers; others Wallace Beery, Josef Swickard, Anders Randolph, George Kuwa.

Type of Story...The basic theme is of a conventional order but with a careful treatment and capable direction, plus a splendid cast, G. B. Lancaster's novel, "The Law-Bringers," from which this was adapted, becomes an interesting dramatic entertainment well worth seeing.

Mounted officer goes out to bring in a girl wanted for murder. He realizes his love for her but puts duty first, brings her back but confession of another clears her.

Box Office Angle...They'll like this one. Where you know they favor a real red-blooded drama of the Northwoods with a fine love interest and good action, you can rest assured they'll be pleased with "The Eternal Struggle." It carries a first rate audience appeal. Good entertainment for a big majority of picture goers.

Exploitation...You can safely go to it to interest them in this one. And you will also safely make promises for it. Talk about the unusual love story. The story, in the main, is not new but there is a new twist in that the love between the officer and the girl is not mutual.

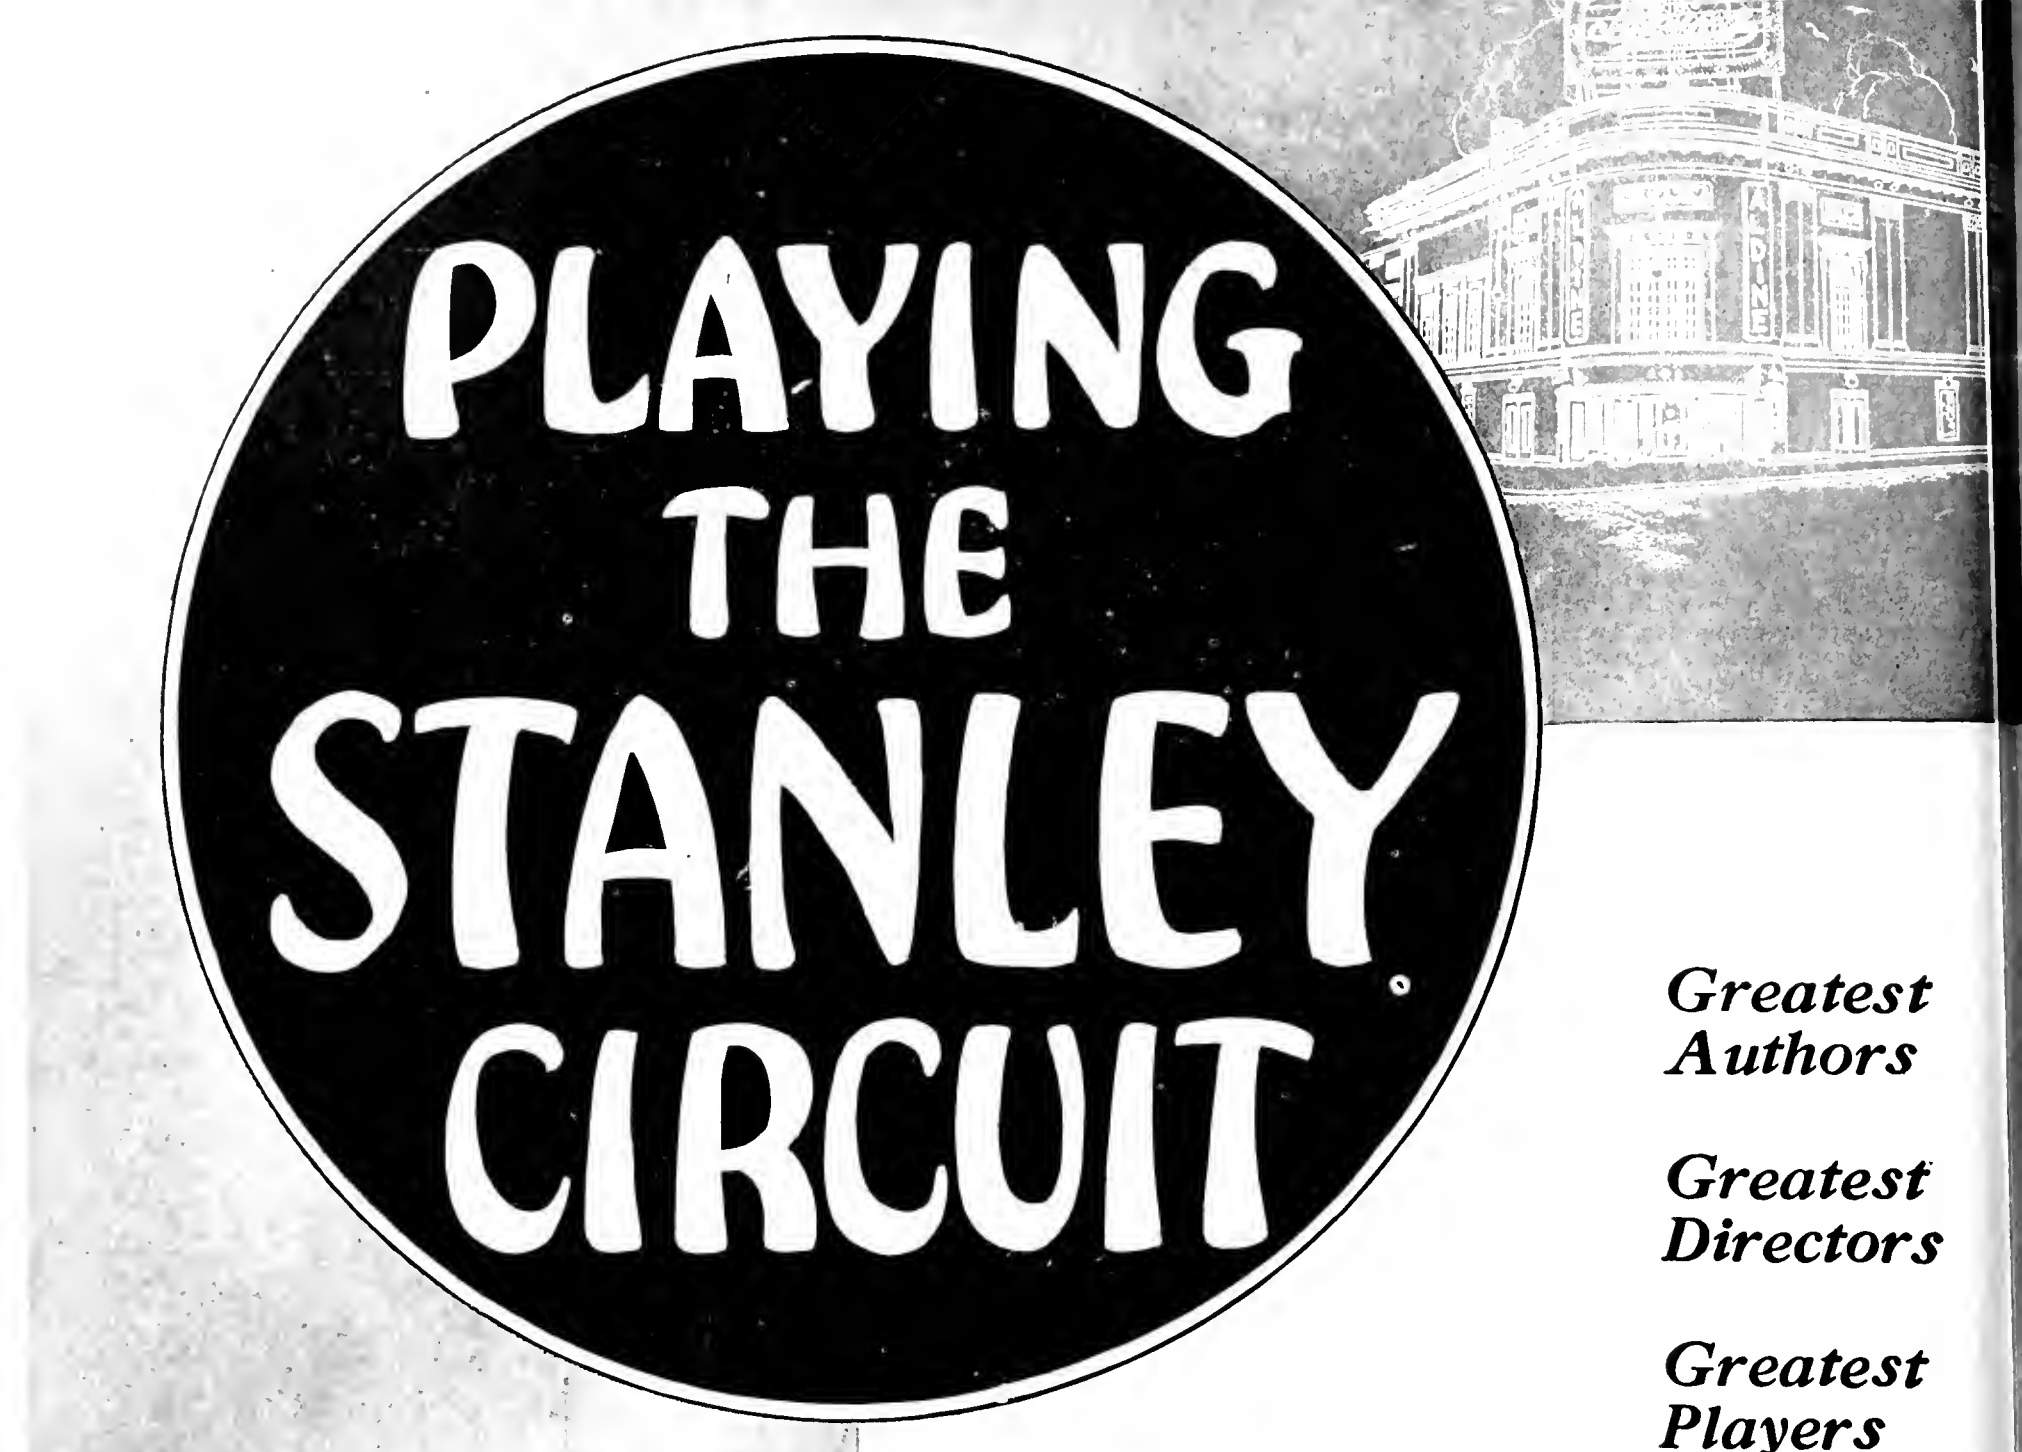

Let them know about the real thrill in the rapids sequence in which the girl is rescued by the man sent out to bring her in. Show them a trailer of the canoe shooting the rapids.

There is a fine Northwoods atmosphere and genuinely fine pictorial appeal.

Direction by.....Reginald Barker; has made a very good picture. It runs a trifle too long but otherwise there is little fault to be found with it.

Author ..... G. B. Lancaster
Scenario .... J. D. Hawks and Monte M. Katterjohn

Cameraman ..... Percy Hilburn

Mae Murray in
"The French Doll"

Producer: Tiffany Productions
Distributor: Metro

As a Whole.....IF THEY LIKE MAE MURRAY THEY'LL LIKE "THE FRENCH DOLL." OTHERWISE NO; LAVISH PRODUCTION AND ARTISTIC SETTINGS.

Star....Flits about in silks and ribbons and shakes her pretty blond head in a series of temperamental outbursts; makes an attractive "French Doll" and will please her admirers.

Cast....All considerably subordinate to star; includes Orville Caldwell, Rod La Rocque, Rose Dion, Paul Cazeneuve, Willard Louis, Bernard Randall, Lucien Littlefield.

Type of Story....Adaptation of stage play in which Irene Bordoni appeared; provides star with sort of material which affords her plenty of opportunities to do the sort of thing she seems to like to do; she prances around in great glee, wears scant but lavish gowns, puckers her lips prettily in close-ups and generally manages to have a good time as "The French Doll."

Whether or not all this will prove entertaining to most folks is a question. There is some good comedy business, to be sure, but it is too scant for the footage accorded the story. Deals with effort of French dealer in fake antiques, to marry his daughter off to a rich customer.

Box Office Angle....You had better find out whether or not they favor the star before you make a decision. Or if you know they like her pictures you can go to it. But it is mostly a matter of liking her and then liking her pictures. This one is occasionally quite amusing and always very good to look at. But Mae Murray still has to make another "Peacock Alley."

Exploitation....Getting your people in won't be difficult if you really want to interest them. You have a coaxing title, one that promises a peppy Parisian atmosphere, the sort that usually appeals to a big majority.

There is Mae Murray and her array of new and elaborate costumes plus a heavy of artistic settings and trimmings that all go to make up a picture always very good to look at. You can promise them pictorial appeal, safely. Use plenty of stills of the star in the lobby. Your women folks will be attracted by them.

In the lobby have a prettily dressed doll on a revolving pedestal and give each patron, or restrict it to children if you wish, a chance to win it.

Direction by....Robert Z. Leonard; has supplied attractive production; comedy business is handled nicely; used too much footage for the amount of story material.

Cameraman ..... Oliver Marsh

Photography ..... Excellent

"Red Lights"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole....FINE MYSTERY MELLER WITH GOOD COMIC RELIEF; HAS THRILLS AND CHILLS, OF A MECHANICAL VARIETY BUT CREATES TENSE ATMOSPHERE AND A GOOD DEAL OF SUSPENSE

Cast....Raymond Griffith handles comedy role of sleuth very well; there are lots of laughs in his work, Marie Prevost a pretty heroine and Johnny Walker a good hero; others in well balanced cast are Alice Lake, Dagmar Godowsky, William Worthington, Frank Elliot and Lionel Belmore.

Type of Story....From the stage play, "The Rear Car"; method of creating suspense is chiefly through mechanical contrivances with trap doors, sliding panels, close-ups of eye-balls, etc., all giving a chill or thrill. Holds interest very well and will prove ideal entertainment for those who don't mind being kept on the edge of the seat. They'll gasp and possibly scream so direct and sure are the wallops.

Deals with effort of detectives to locate rich man's daughter and the opposing efforts of reward grabbers to abduct her and claim the money. How a sleuth, treated as a joke, clears up the mystery offers most of the excitement.

Box Office Angle....Tell some folks you have a thrilling mystery meller and that's all they'll need to know. It will prove thoroughly satisfying for the right crowd, but you'll have to know that this is what they want before you give it to them. It may be a bit too strenuous for those with weak hearts.

Exploitation....There are a number of first rate stunts that readily suggest themselves for exploiting "Red Lights." The title itself will give you a fine start. Play it up every possible way you can. If you use illuminated billboard space arrange to have red lights playing upon the ad instead of white. Use red lights in your lobby and also for your marquee lights.

Stunt advertising can best be done at night. Have a mysterious character going about carrying a red lantern. Use this first as a teaser and follow it with the announcement of the title.

If you could arrange to have a powerful search light casting red lights over the city in advance of the showing you would undoubtedly arouse no little curiosity, and very likely land a good newspaper yarn, providing, of course they don't suspect a publicity stunt. Use this one before you start any other exploitation.

Use a trailer showing the threatened head-on collision that furnishes the climax thrill.

Direction by.....Clarence Badger; made a first rate entertainment that should be good box office attraction for many exhibitors.

reels, and the final shot which shows Mickey again being fed the hated oil, your folks will hardly get a chance to catch their breaths between laughs.

The kids have a football squad—which incidentally, could prove the basis for some good exploitation stunts for any house manager who desires to take advantage of the popularity of football at the season this will probably be released. Mickey is the captain of the squad and he, to their deep sorrow, is in the hospital. They all go to see him, and being overjoyed with the ice cream he is fed, plan to get back into the hospital by fair means or foul. Needless to say, they do, by taking the vaccination orders of some kids who are afraid to go. The rest of the action is one prolonged howl. Don't miss this by any means.

"Derby Day"—Aesop Fable—Pathe
Some Good Stuff

Type of production....1 reel cartoon
Several good laughs together with brightly presented subject matter make of "Derby Day" a really entertaining animated cartoon. The laughs are afforded by the manner in which the different animals get over the fence to see the famous Derby horse race, and by the race itself in which "a dark horse," which has been fed some sort of pep tonic, sails over the heads of all the rest of the entries only to drop dead before the judges stand. The moral of which is "The Straight Way is the Best Way."

"Round Figures"—Century—
Universal

Plenty of Girls and Slapstick

Type of production'....2 reel comedy
While there is nothing particularly new in this one which features Jack Cooper, it furnishes entertainment of the sort that pleases many audiences. There are plenty of girls, some attractive cabaret sets, and a fair amount of humor of the slapstick variety. There isn't much to the story—the heroine pretends she is a dog so she can get something to eat, is sold to a cabaret manager who gives her a job as a cigarette when he finds she isn't a dog—nobody with much sense would taken her for one anyway—and finally marries the man of her choice after being blown into the miniature parlor by a wind-machine.

"Bringing Up Buddy"—Century
Universal

Good Juvenile

Type of production....2 reel comedy
Although many of the gags in Century comedy starring Buddy the singer derive their laughs from getting messed up generally, either by squeezing eclairs, or having explode in their faces, there is a portion of genuine fun embodied in "Bringing Up Buddy." Buddy's family have recently become wealthy and feel called upon to entertain for the first time. "Murder will out," however, and the habits of years will be thrown off in a day. So Buddy handles her knife in danger fashion while his Pa insists on taking off his shoes. Buddy caps the climax by substituting fire crackers on cake for candles, and after that sends him away to school where he finally becomes friends with the girl after fighting and licking all of the Good for family audiences particularly.

"Almost Married"—Arrow Film Corp.

Not Novel But Still Amusing

Type of production....2 reel comedy
Eddie Lyons is the star, producer and director of this two reeler which despite the fact that its plot is taken from novel, consisting of an irascible father chasing his daughter and a would-be son-in-law in and out of hotel rooms, manages to be really entertaining almost all the time. This Lyons is helped to a large extent by a supporting cast that does very well indeed. The action is swift and the comedy should have no trouble in pleasing almost any audience. The cast includes James Donnelly, Virginia Warwick, Dorothy Walbert, Glen Cavendor and others.

Italy Improving

e. Correspondent Finds Pictures Better—"Il Guarany" Filmed There

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—"There is a marked improvement in the latest Italian productions," writes Kine's correspondent from Rome. "Much more attention is paid to the continuity of the scenarios, and also to all minor details. Scenarios are now being taken on account, and the producers are fast realizing that the stories and acting have to appeal to all countries, and not only to Italy."

He then goes on to describe some of the pictures he has seen recently: "Messalina," produced by Cav. Enrico Zucchi, the title role being played by Signora de Ligure. This is one of the finest productions on record, the crowd scenes are filmed in a most remarkable and masterly manner.

"Ora Terribile" ("Terrible Hour"), produced by Count B. Negroni (the producer of "Madame Tallien," and the "Figlio di nome San Gens"), is a strong story which features Hesperia, the leading artist, fine opportunities. She is really an artiste in the sense of the word. There is plenty of action, excellent photography and lighting.

"La Duchessa Mistero" (The Mysterious Duchess), also produced by Count Negroni, features Hesperia in the title role. This is also a first-class production, and deserves full credit for the acting, the plot and the photography.

"La Madre Folle" ("The Insane Mother") produced by Carmine Gallone, a good story told, with Soava Gallone playing a dual role.

"Il Guarany," produced by C. Aversano. The story is adapted from the famous romance by Jose de Alencar. Gino Soldarelli is a very fine portrayal of Pery, and he is ably supported by Signorine Faraboni and Savazzi. There are some very exciting dramatic passages in the action, and one never bored.

Several new productions are in the making, the most important being:

"In Maremma," the story being adapted from Ouida's novel by that name. This is mainly the largest work on hand, and acting to all reports, should be one of Italy's best productions. The producer is C. Aversano, and the leading artiste is de Ligure, who played the title role of Messalina.

"The Grand Hotel," a snappy and brilliant comedy, with Leda Gys, Italy's new leading comedy artiste playing lead.

"Corsaro," produced at the U. C. I. by Augusto Genina and Amleto Novelli and Edy Gys in the lead.

A new work has commenced on a big production dealing with the life of Garibaldi. Prime Minister, Benito Mussolini, expressing his appreciation for the initiative the story which will be of great help to Italian propaganda, has accepted the presidency of the committee, with the Ministers of War and Admiralty, General Diaz, and Admiral Thaon di Revel.

Bertini Films Formed

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Berlin—Francesca Bertini has just formed a new producing company under the name of Bertini Films.

Two Big Italian Theaters

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rome—A new open-air theater located in the Quirinal Garden has been opened. It has seating accommodation for nearly 2,000. In Naples a new open-air theater has been opened seating 2,500.

And From Berlin—This

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—The German correspondent of Kine. has forwarded the comment of "Lichtbilde Bühne" of Berlin on one of Frank Tilley's articles attacking American producing methods:

"The cinematograph importance of Hollywood has been very much exaggerated. This place has seemingly become a place of pilgrimage to all those who wish to acquire new knowledge in the art of the Kino. Frank A. Tilley, of the Kinematograph Weekly, one of the foremost Kino papers of the whole world, has just finished an inquiry there, of which we have spoken already. In spite of the efforts of the Americans to impose upon their influential guest, the writer of the remarkable article which we print farther down, was not to be deceived. In its objectivity, which may be a trifle exaggerated, the article in question contains the most vivid accusation and the most destructive criticism of the American film which has ever been given by a competent person."

And then this same gentleman, commenting on the German paper's comment, finds it in his heart to say that American pictures are not so bad. This is how he does it:

"This is about the literal sense of the summing up of the remarks of the Lichtbilde Bühne," but perhaps a different meaning can be read between the lines. In reality, the German film fulfils as little as the American the artistic ideal, which we have a right to expect already from the cinema, in the present state of technical perfection. If the American film is full of nonsense and unrealities, it has this advantage above the German one, that it is, technically speaking, cinematographic. The German film, on the contrary, is slow, full of needless details, heavy, and often of a morbid tendency and dragging."

In English Studios

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—The studios report: Walter Tennyson has been selected for a part in "Diana of the Islands." Martin Thornton is directing the film.

Almost immediately, Maurice Elvey will start work upon a new Stoll production, in which Henry Ainley will be featured. "The Royal Oak" is the title of the new film.

"Squibbs, M. P.," Betty Balfour's new Welsh-Pearson film, has been completed.

Carlyle Blackwell's production of "The Beloved Vagabond" is completed.

Stewart Rome and Mary Odette are starring in "The Shadow of the Mosque" which B. A. T. is producing in Berlin.

The latest production from the Walter West studios for Butcher's Film Service is entitled "High Stakes." Violet Hopson in the leading role.

Frank Crane has completed "Tons of Money."

"Spanish Passion" is the title of the new Graham Wilcox picture starring Betty Blythe. Many scenes were shot in the Austrian Tyrol.

Why Britain Fails

The true reason why the British producer cannot compete is because he has not got the large home market of the American in which to get back his high production cost. A secondary reason, but no less vital, is that even now he has not learnt how to make pictures which will sell successfully in the States. There is an occasional exception. But, on the whole, he has not studied the American market, and where he has his conclusions have been mainly wrong.—Kine., London.

The cost is said to be low.

Lieber on Prologues

Says American Film Men Disagree—Thinks Good Music Will Help Considerably

Robert Lieber is quoted in The Cinema of London on the question of prologues as follows:

"There are vast differences of opinion among American exhibitors as to the wisdom of prologues and similar adjuncts to presentation. My own view is that good pictures supplemented by good music should be the real aim of the modern picture. The picture is, after all, the main attraction. At one of our larger halls we have a superb orchestra of over 30 picked musicians; but we find that even with that attraction the quality of the picture determines the attendance. It is true that both the Capitol and the Chicago have built up their business upon incidentals and prologues; but they are in big centers, where they can be certain of support all the time.

"I believe that as cinemas grow larger in England exhibitors will—as we in America—have to experiment as to the class of entertainment which suits their district best; and out of those experiments will come knowledge as to the most appreciated methods of presentation. In smaller districts prologues and similar theatrical adjuncts are unwise—and an unnecessary expense. People come to expect them, and then their special value ceases. We do not appreciate dessert so much if we have it regularly as we do if it is served to us on special occasions only. Occasionally a great picture may justify special theatrical presentation, and the expense is then worth while; but it is not every picture that lends itself to a prologue."

Putting It Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Big Campaign For Premiere

Ottawa—G. de Grandcourt, Fox publicity director in Canada, and Oral Cloakley, manager of the Regent are responsible for the successful exploitation campaign launched for the premiere of "If Winter Comes." Following is part of the many stunts and tie-ups put over:

A bicycle "coasting contest," held in connection with Mark Sabre's love for his "bike." Parade of 17 coal wagons with banners advertising the picture and window displays in coal merchants windows with the title spelled out in letters of coal. Tie-up with mint products on wintergreen lifesavers, resulting in use of lifesaver car, 20 foot long with banner along entire length. Elaborate float, arranged by tie-up with Shirriff's Marmalade, and window displays of this product linked up with picture in grocery store windows.

Something new in billboard advertising; a "Talking 24 Sheet." The sheet was posted upside down, wires were then run from a radio store to the board, and an amplifier attached. The store broadcasted snappy news of the picture, and turned on the record of the song. This board was in one of the busiest sections of the city.

A tie-up with the Ottawa authorities was effected through the courtesy of the police and fire departments, resulting in a cordon of military police being stationed around the front of the theater at night, and the use of a big fire truck with three searchlights that played on the waiting crowds; this was used ostensibly to assist in taking motion pictures of the crowds, and to reassure the public when half minute flares were let off in the middle of the street. Traffic was tied up for fifteen minutes, and huge crowds congregated on the three corners facing the theater, one of the busiest street-car intersections in the city.

Drug Store Co-operates

Greeley, Colo.—A local drug store ran a contest in co-operation with the management of the Sterling as an exploitation stunt for "Tess of the Storm Country."

The drug store featured in its daily advertisements, the announcement that it would award passes to the theater to persons sending in the best answers to 14 questions, repeated in each day's ad. Only children were eligible in the contest.

The first prize consisted of a pass to the Sterling good for two months, valued at $15. Second prize was a pass for one month, valued at $7.80. Third to fourteenth prizes consisted of a ticket to see "Tess." Three prominent men of Greeley acted as judges.

The Day

what you call tough. Because you couldn't use the scene—which was in the play—without using the name of the undergarments. Of course Ben got nary a nickle for the stunt. It simply had to be used.

HARD LUCK

Eric Von Stroheim arrested out in California. For shooting wild ducks out of season. Gave as alibi that his company needed food being without meat six days. On location 87 miles from nowhere.

LEMON TREES

Frank Tilley, the editor of "Kine" who wrote a series of articles slambanging the American industry. Had his photo taken in California with Arch Reeves, Chaplin's manager, under some lemon trees.

Ah!

HOW THEY WANT 'EM?

When an exhibitor wants a picture sufficiently that he will go to court for it it must be a picture. That's what happened out in Urbana, Illinois. Where the owners of the Empire tried to stop Hearst from letting the Orpheum, a rival house, show "Enemies of Women." Court ruled Hearst had the right. Part of the mess which followed Hearst switching from Famous to Goldwyn.

TRIFLING DETAIL

KONSTANTINOPOLITANISCHERDUDELS
ACPEIFENMACHERGESELLENVERKEHR

Is a German word. Which lends Eddie Klein the right to comment: "No wonder the mark is down to thirty three million for a buck." Incidentally, he offers, gratis, the above word as a title. For a mystery drama.

RECOLLECTION

When Joe Plunkett saw "The White Sister," he recalled that about 15 years ago the stage play had in its cast Viola Allen, James O'Neill and Bill Farnum, the former Fox star.

Some recollection. Wonder what Farnum intends doing with pictures?

THE FOOL

Talking of Fox reminds that Harry Millarde is now busy working with Eddie Goulding getting the script in shape for "The Fool." Cast not determined as yet.

Pity Jim Kirkwood is so ill. He'd do mighty well in the title role in which he appeared on the stage.

PRAISE FOR SHORT'S

Every exhibitor owes it to himself to get a copy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, issue August 19, and see what W. Ward Marsh had to say about the Bruce scenics and "The Sea of Dreams." And then preach the idea to his local motion picture editor. Great stuff. Fine for boosting short stuff generally and especially for Educational.

GOLDWN Vs. GOLDWYN

The corporation fighting Samuel. As to who has the right to use the name Goldwyn regarding pictures. But no signs of an upheaval from the rest of the business while awaiting the decision.

SOME PICTURE

Marcus Loew commenting on "Scaramouche." Says Marcus: "I thought 'The Four Horsemen' was a great picture. A lot of people agreed with me. But compared with 'Scaramouche' 'The Four Horsemen' is only a program picture. What do you think of that?"

Business of passing the buck. You figure it out—after you see "Scaramouche."

A FEW SEATS

Figures reported by the License Commissioner of New York. Show that in the Greater City there are 578 picture houses with 428,926 seats. In other words approximately one seat to about every 11 or 12 citizens. A lot of seats; too many, in all probability.

THE STATE RIGHT FIELD

All upset. Over the controversy which developed, follow a statement relative to conditions in the Mid-West. To the fact that it was almost impossible to sell product to exchange men in that section. Commenting on it one of the Skirboll exhibitors in town Friday, said it wasn't healthy stuff to print—that exhibitors might decide to lay off buying from the "independent operators. And the comment from another well known state right man that the trouble was simply this: That at present scheduled prices unless you were able to sell a first run it wasn't worthwhile to buy product. Adding that in many instances before an exchangeman bought he showed the print to the first run operators, and if they didn't like it enough to buy it the deal with the producer was not consummated. That's true, and everybody in the field realizes it, except for the number two quality picture or poorer still, that never see, and don't expect to see, a first run

HERE FOR THE FIGHT

What a lot of film folk. Did a double feature stunt. Combined business with pleasure—if fighting your way to the fight was pleasure.

OUTLOOK

By DANNY

The first sign of a slowing up in business came last week, according to an important downtown banker whose institution handles but a limited amount of paper. "All along the line," he said, "we noticed a slowing up."

Apparently there is little going on, despite the Fall season being here and the cool weather locally of the past few weeks. Merchants are asking manufacturers to withhold shipments, or forward them under no dating. Others are cancelling. Meanwhile manufacturers have large stocks on hand and are keeping busy in their plants naturally anticipating the orders to carry them. But the general outlook makes bankers tighten up. Spain is all upset; business is not good; steel slow; crops, in this country, while huge, are being harvested without profit. The country depends for 25 per cent of its buying power on the mer, and when he goes slow, it doesn't buy, it is felt all along the line."

He inferred that the condition was far from serious, but indicated that it would be a good time for all to "watch their step."

"RUGGLES" A DELIGHT

Famous took a long time to make "Ruggles of Red Gap," but it's well worth waiting for. This is one of the delights of the season. The box office will prove it. True, it slows at times, but then you can't build high sequences every second, and besides it is far too long. Would be a better picture in less footage; but Famous probably figures it might be difficult to get the expected exhibition value out of it in much less footage. Some people still think the picture has a bearing on price. Even Chaplin, Lloyd and others have proven it long ago. But getting back to "Ruggles"—don't pass this unless the price asked staggers too much. Don't be a Firpo for Dempsey producer.

Britain Divided

Over Value of Percentage—C. E. A. Plans Meetings Shortly to Gauge Exhibitor Sentiment

By ERNEST W. FREDMAN
The Film Renter and M. P. News

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Percentage is very much before British exhibitors at the moment. "The Film Renter" is active in presenting the views of exhibitors on this question.

Many meetings are being arranged by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n for the next few weeks, and opinions appear to be fairly divided. Many of the leading exhibitors who have studied the matter are by no means averse to a percentage basis provided it is on fair and equitable terms to themselves, and inside of the next week or two this will undoubtedly be very much in the foreground.

Business continues to be fairly brisk in England just now. The Chaplin picture, "The Pilgrim," is doing excellent business. This production went very well in London and is repeating its success in the provinces.

Cadwallader With Goldwyn

Hamilton Leaves This Week

Lloyd Hamilton has finished work in "His Darker Self," at the Griffith studio, and expects to leave for the coast this week, accompanied by Hugh Fay and Lloyd Bacon, members of his technical staff, who came on from the coast to assist John Noble in the direction. "His Darker Self" is Hamilton's first five-reeler.

Music Deadlock in Cleveland

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—Ed Haug, business agent of the Musical Mutual Protective Ass'n, has refused the 7½% increase in the wage scale offered by the Cleveland M. P. Exhibitors Ass'n. The musicians are standing pat on their 20% increase demand. Cleveland neighborhood theaters have been operating without any music since July 1st.

Bayside Routes

Directions for reaching The Belleclair Golf and Country Club, Bayside, L. I., where the Fall Film Golf Tournament will occur tomorrow:

Motorists will cross the 59th St. Bridge and bear left, passing through Corona and Flushing, including Broadway, direct. At Bell Ave. (the main street in Bayside), turn right and almost immediately the entrance to the clubhouse comes in view. A traffic officer is always located at this crossing; the only traffic policeman found after passing Flushing.

Trains leave Pennsylvania station (Long Island level), at 7.43 A. M.; 7.59, 8.41, 9.11 and 9.41 daylight saving time. It takes about 30 minutes to reach Bayside, and the club is about 10 minutes walk from the station. There is a cheap taxi service which can be used by late comers.

Pray for good weather.

Last-Minute Applications Roll Up Large Total—Looks Like Holiday Tuesday

There won't be much film business transacted in New York on Tuesday. Why?

Because that's the day on which the Fall Film Golf Tournament occurs. Late applications received up to noon Saturday bring the total over 200. Those 200 film men are just wise, that's all, because they all know

Mid-West Meeting

May Be Held in French Lick—Illinois Invites Indiana to Attend—Taxes to Come Up

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—The Illinois exhibitor unit has extended an invitation to the Indiana unit to attend a joint meeting to be held probably the first week in October at French Lick Springs.

At this meeting, in addition to Indiana and Illinois, there will probably be representatives from North Carolina, the Theater Owners Chamber of Commerce of New York City, the New York State exhibitor unit, and everybody in general who cares to discuss the following topics:

The admission tax situation, a readjustment with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, equitable contracts and the advisability of establishing a service station in Chicago.

Several of the producers will be invited, it is understood, as well as Will H. Hays.

Indiana Exhibitors Meet

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—The Indiana exhibitor organization held a meeting here last week, at which the affairs of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. were discussed. It would come as no surprise to learn that the Indiana unit definitely opposes exhibitor-distribution.

It is understood that a representative of the organization has just returned from New York, where he looked into the T. O. D. C. plan. His report is said to have been against it.

Cummings To Produce

Irving Cummings will produce a series of productions for the state right market.

Thematic Cue Sheet Patented

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The U. S. Patent Office has granted a patent to M. J. Mintz of New York covering the thematic music cue sheet which Mintz has been publishing in conjunction with James C. Bradford.

The thematic cue sheet is used extensively by producers. A sufficient number of bars of music are given for the orchestra leader to get an idea of the theme that fits various portions of the film. If he hasn't that selection on hand, he can substitute another of similar vein.

In the Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—After being held in $800 bail before Magistrate O'Connor on a charge of assault and battery brought by S. E. Applegate, manager for United Artists, Solomon Greenstein, of the Penn theater, brought a counter action against Applegate on a similar charge, which was heard before Magistrate Scott. Applegate waived a hearing and was held in $800 bail for court.

These court actions are the result of an altercation which took place in the local office of United Artists when Solomon Greenstein and his son Leon were unable to effect an amicable adjustment with Applegate for a picture which they declared was in such poor condition that the exhibitors were unable to use it on the night booked.

Block Booking

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Dallas—Under the caption "Exhibition Values and Individual Selling," there appears in the current issue of the Motion Picture Journal, editorial, part of which follows:

"Some companies have followed presently in the past the policy of single picture selling, especially United Artists for the star productions, and other companies for comedies, etc."

"The block selling system has been a source of annoyance to exhibitors for a long while and many efforts have been made to change it. Adhering more strongly to the system in most companies have been Fox and Paramount with First National a close second."

"In this region First National has begun to break away from the system, and is now, within certain limits, allowing selection, although the system is not flexible enough to permit of individual booking. Growing out of the strength of the block selling system, this current season it was adopted more generally by other companies among whom are Goldwyn, Metro, Warners, Lichtman, of whom have been offering all or none, and just how much success only later in the season can tell."

"But now comes Paramount with its plan of testing box-office values."

"Being formerly the arch proponent of block booking, its material effect upon the market, and the resultant reaction will be closely watched by the whole trade."

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Wagon Used for "Covered Wagon"

Kansas City—When "The Covered Wagon" opened at the Shubert theater, it was given wide publicity through the use of a covered wagon, a fac-simile of a "Peter Schutter" rig, dating back over 80 years. The wagon was drawn through the city's streets and was bannered on both sides with an announcement of the opening.

Baby Peggy Resemblance Contests

The Amberg Doll Co., is responsible for the Baby Peggy Doll, now being carried by a number of department stores. In several cities resemblance contests have been run off, the exhibitor tying up with the department store when a Baby Peggy picture is the attraction.

Newspapers Exploit "Wise Fools"

Baltimore—In exploiting "Three Wise Fools," at the Century, Jack Pegler, Goldwyn exploiter, broke into the Inquiring Reporter column of the Evening News.

The question propounded to five bachelors was if they considered themselves "wise fools" for not having married. The following day the same question was propounded to spinsters. This attracted much attention inasmuch as the theater's advertisement was then running in all the newspapers.

Permission was obtained from the News and American to place posters for "Three Wise Fools" on the sides of their delivery wagons. The radio broadcasting station of the American and the News broadcasted a synopsis of the picture. Good window displays were obtained in a score of shops—candy, cigar and jewelry stores. The theater management sent out 5,000 letters to a selected mailing list. The billing consisted of 24-sheets, 3-sheets, 6-sheets, one hundred 1-sheets and 300 window cards.

Has Police Dept. Backing

The title, "The Drivin' Fool," has led Hodkinson to make arrangements with the Police department, Public Safety Commissions and Civic heads for co-operation in exploitation stunts. The picture will be tied up with "drivin' fools," by the exchanges in many cities.

Likly Luggage Display

Des Moines—Two angles were used for the showing of "The Spoilers" at the Des Moines, by Herbert Grove.

The first was a tie-up with the Likly Luggage shop which resulted in securing a striking window display. The idea conveyed by the display was the difference in one's traveling accoutrement to Alaska in the days of the gold rush and those used by travelers of today. One half of the window labeled "To Alaska Then," contained a painted backdrop showing a rude log cabin built among pine trees, with a ridge of mountains in the background. In front of this painting was the pack in which the gold diggers of the great rush to the Klondike carried their personal belongings. The other half of the window, "To Alaska Now," contained a painting of the same scene, but with a pleasant, fenced little cottage replacing the rude cabin. In front of this painting was placed a large Likly bag, a wardrobe trunk, a traveling case and a gun-case.

A special screening was arranged by Grove for the sporting writers on the local papers at which 14 were present. The showing netted three good stories on the sport pages, and "squared" the theater for a banner announcing the showing, at a boxing bout at the auditorium. 1,000 fight fans attended. They couldn't help but reading the banner which was directly above the ring.

GUARANTEE

By DANNY

It seems to be prevailing among distributors an idea of guaranteeing negative costs to a producer in a period of months after release date. An interesting question naturally arises: what does this guarantee consist of? And, what will the producer do if after nine months, he has failed to receive his share? Sue? Well, hardly. Probably.

There should be a more definite way of doing business: easy where an independent producer is facing the problem of financing his next picture.

Talking of Guarantees

Theater Owners Distributing Association, according to report, offering a months guarantee to producers. It is to be hoped, and sincerely so, that this "guarantee" will be permitted to such an extent that there is no question to its validity.

The exhibitors national organization is being tied in too closely with this distributor organization for anything unfortunate to happen. If anything should happen of an unsatisfactory nature national exhibitor organization would take a stand that would take years to overcome. And there should be a national organization of exhibitors.

STATEMENTS

The Hays organization is working to make it should be a mighty fine idea having the financial statements of the larger companies so arranged that there is a sort of uniformity in comparison thereof. This will help bankers understand so many of them are Chinese.

It is reported that French Lick meeting of exhibitors amounts to nothing, and the spirit reflected in Illinois and Indiana carried out by the other states, the T. O. D. C. have some problems to solve out. Some interesting items.

Vogel Back from Coast
Sam M. Vogel returned from Los Angeles yesterday where he met with Williams of Ritz Pictures.

Why the Meeting?

Three Cohen Units and Two Insurgents to Meet in Mid-West—New York Not Invited

Three state exhibitor units at present allied with the M. P. T. O.—the Cohen organization—and two insurgent bodies, both of them formerly affiliated with the M. P. T. O., may hold a joint meeting at French Lick Springs, Indiana, at an undetermined date but which will probably be in October.

Yesterday word was received from the M. P. T. O. of Indiana that that unit had extended invitations for a joint meeting to Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota but just what would be discussed was not mentioned. A special dispatch to THE FILM DAILY from Chicago declared yesterday that the Indiana unit had been invited by Illinois, but irrespective of from what source the invitation originated, the move is under way to get the conference started.

Hearing in Cleveland Today

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—The Federal Trade Commission will resume its hearing into the activities of Famous Players this morning. The Cleveland hearing will run through today and tomorrow.

Chase Here From Europe

Maurice A. Chase, who for the past year has been Carl Laemmle's special representative in Europe, has arrived in the States for a brief stay. He asserts that despite every possible effort made by foreign producers to take the lead from American-made films, pictures from this country continue to forge ahead in popularity.

Norma to Play Juliet

"Romeo and Juliet," it is definitely announced will be produced with Norma Talmadge as Juliet. Joseph Schildkraut, is a possible selection for Romeo.

In 1913, the first version of the Shakesperian romance was made in two reels by Pathe. In 1914 Biograph made a 500 foot picture of it. Two features were then released in 1916 one with the Bushman-Bayne combination and the other with Theda Bara. In 1917 Educational screened a "Romeo and Juliet;" in 1918 the Crystal turned out a two-reeler and in 1920 Universal offered a one-reel version.

Abe Warner Seriously Ill

Abe Warner was removed from his room at the Astor yesterday and taken to a private sanitarium in a grave condition. Warner has been suffering from what he believed was a cold for the past ten days and had administered medicines in the belief that his condition was not aggravated. On Friday his temperature rose rapidly and his doctor diagnosed the trouble as a malignant fever. His temperature is far above normal.

"Scaramouche" Premiere

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington — Local newspapers evidently go in for "write ups" rather than criticisms, and while "reviews" of "Scaramouche," which opened here Saturday are favorable, several reports contain a phrase indicating that "it is reported" that "Scaramouche" is bigger than "The Four Horsemen."

THE HERALD said: "Among the highlights of 'Scaramouche,' which cannot avoid classification as one of the big pictures of the year—Metro is releasing it—may be mentioned its photography, which at times takes on an exquisite, pastel beauty; Ingram's handling of the massive mob scenes that represent a triumph of mass-directing; the authenticity of the historical characterizations of Danton, Robespierre, Marat and other famous figures, and the brilliant enactments offered by Miss Terry, Mr. Novarro and Mr. Stone in the three central roles of the play.

THE STAR said: "This long-heralded and anxiously awaited dramatization of 'Scaramouche,' surpasses all expectation and hopes in the tremendous splendor of its production. Unbelievable perfection in settings, costumes and other infinite details of equipment amaze the beholder with every change of scene. * * * Ramon Novarro * * * with striking consistency and accuracy of action * * * makes the play a gripping reality. Lewis Stone also is excellent. * * * One of the most striking character types ever portrayed on stage or screen is that of George Seigmamm, as the immortal Georges Jacques Danton.

Outlook Better

Claude Cady and Phil Gleichman Return to Detroit More Optimistic over Non-Theatrical Situation

Claude Cady and Phil Gleichman of the Michigan exhibitor unit, left for Detroit yesterday, feeling decidedly more encouraged over the non-theatrical situation in Michigan. They came here last week, together with W. S. McLaren and H. M. Richey of the Michigan unit to secure relief of some kind through the Hays office.

The chief source of trouble seems to be centered in the fact that film salesmen in Michigan have done business with schools and other non-theatrical exhibitors in order to secure an outlet for their product where bookings with exhibitors may have prevented immediate play dates. Gleichman declared that the situation

Boost Prices Quietly

Broadway Theaters Raise Admissions Five Cents at Matinee Performances—Move is Successful

Without any undue mention, all of the Broadway theaters have increased their matinee admission prices five cents. The boost was put through very quietly.

The matinee scale at the big first runs is now as follows:

Orchestra, 55 cents.
Balcony, 35 cents.

At the Capitol the divans are $1.10 in the afternoon while the evening price has now been increased to $1.65. It is understood that the new scale has already met with the response expected by the theater managers.

The Loew circuit has also put through an increase averaging about five cents in all of its theaters. It is understood that, in some instances, the boost is somewhat more than that, but the general average is the figure above. This became effective Labor Day.

It is understood that the Fox circuit has also put through a slight increase.

crease in the neighborhood of five cents but this could not be confirmed yesterday. At the Moss offices, it was stated that with the exception of an increase covering certain box seats at the Flatbush, in Brooklyn, no changes had been made.

At the T. O. C. C., it was stated that members had not raised admissions, despite the fact that musicians and operators are now getting larger salaries than before. It is this wage increase that is held responsible for the action of the larger theaters and circuits.

Increase Admissions

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hackensack, N. J.—Following a conference of local theaters, announcement has been made that admissions will be increased 5 cents.

Capitol Prices Raised

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cincinnati—Ike Libson has increased admission prices at the Capitol theater from 25 and 40 cents to 30 and 50 cents. Afternoon prices will remain the same.

Six In Troy Charging Ten Cents

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Troy—Six local theaters are now charging 10 cent admissions and two others, the Lansing and Bijou are only charging 15 cents. Only the first-run houses are charging more. The six using the ten cent scale are: The Astor, Rose, Colonial, King, Palace and Alpine. The whole thing came about when one exhibitor dropped his admission price to ten cents.

Musicians Refuse 7½% Increase

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—Settlement between the musician's association and the exhibitors' organization now seems a long way off, inasmuch as late reports state that an offer of 7½% has been offered the musicians and refused. The old agreement ran out July 1. A new contract was not presented until the middle of August when the musicians asked for 20% more. The theater owners refused this.

St. Louis—Romaine Fielding has started work on his next production, "The Lover Power." Quality Motion Pictures, also controlled by Fielding's organization, General Film Mfg., has just finished a number of industrial films for local firms.

Musical Season May Oust Lloyd Run

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last," is now in its 15th week at Orchestra Hall. It is expected another theater will be taken over because Orchestra Hall will shortly revert to concerts. The Monroe has been talked of. Fox operates it.

Spoor Forms His Own Unit

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—To make pictures utilizing his new stereoscopic invention, a producing company has been formed by George K. Spoor. The process, completed by Spoor at the Essanay studio here, is declared to have cost him over $1,000,000.

The special film is much larger than the ordinary film, with each "frame" 50 per cent higher and twice as wide as the "frame" now employed. The new device is declared to eliminate distortion and to produce the illusion of depth.

Spoor, one of the pioneers of the industry, has devoted his time to perfecting his invention ever since production activity ceased at the Essanay plant. He will start work within five weeks on his first picture utilizing the new process.

Why the Meeting

It can be stated quite authoritatively that as outlined yesterday topics to come up will include mission taxes, the uniform of lower rentals and the music union. One exhibitor who is versant with the situation asks rather pertinent question of W. J. Diana, Illinois and Wisconsin ask two outside organizations one meeting to talk over matters are now in the hands of the national exhibitor headquarters.

Sydney S. Cohen was asked this yesterday, but ignored the question. He did state, however, that he had been advised of the proposition and that it was in accordance with the plan of the national director decided to establish a service in Chicago when they met in New York City recently.

It is noteworthy that New York State has not been asked to attend the meetings. Billy Brandt declined to discuss the question whether or not his unit would accept an invitation were extended. Speaking for New York, Brandt said:

"The New York unit has been separately trying to keep out of the politics on the tax question because it was afraid that some effort might be done that would hurt the efforts to secure such repeal than help. We have not issued a statement relative to tax repeal and likely have appeared inactive. The tire organization, however, is kept up to a high pitch and stands ready to join any movement that involves the entire industry. Whenever joint effort is made, no matter what direction, New York will be found in line."

was not so aggravating in the larger cities as it was in the small towns, where, in many cases, there was only one picture house.

The Michigan exhibitors are endeavoring to arrange some kind of a workable deal with national distributors that will ease matters for Mid-West exhibitors. Gleichman and Cady are both of the opinion that the non-theatrical situation existent in Michigan also prevails in a number of other states.

Newspaper Opinions

Newspaper opinions from out-of-town papers will only appear when the feature reviewed has its world's premiere in that city. New York newspaper opinions will also be published when the production reaches Broadway.

"The Eternal Three"
Gold.-Cosmopolitan

California, Los Angeles

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Consensus of newspaper opinions "The Eternal Three," at the California follows:

EXAMINER—"The Eternal Three" is one of those eternal plots. It never was new. And it never will be old. But the treatment—ah! the treatment; there's no end to the variety of the insulation that can be wound on this time-honored wire. Mickey Neilan opened a door, so to speak, and let the freshness of a very modern viewpoint blow the dust out of the corners of the walnut-framed old triangle.

EXPRESS—With much of the development of the play Neilan comes close to tempting the censor's shears, but the clever way he handles the delicate situations arouses admiration.

He puts new luster on a number of thread-bare situations as well. * * *

Acting honors go to Bessie Love, who puts such sincerity into the playing of a minor role that it becomes first in interest.

HERALD—And old theme with a new treatment; tense scenes and unique characterization, make of "The Eternal Three," now playing at the California theater, a film well worth seeing.

RECORD—But Neilan, despite the age of the plot, has succeeded in winding about it a new atmosphere, which makes it, to all intents, fresh and new.

For one thing, the new picture has practically done away with sub-titles. For this alone, it is greatly refreshing. * * * Sometimes the action is a little too frank.

TIMES—I can't grow very excited over the story. The intrigue is fairly fascinating at times, because of the acting, but somewhat cheap in its nastiness, and quite according to pattern. The finish seems to me offensive. * * * While Mr. Neilan has skated on thin ice in this feature, he has not done this quite as skillfully as usual. In fact, there is a degree of ennui in the production.

"The Marriage Maker"—F. P.-L.

Metropolitan, Los Angeles

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Consensus of newspaper opinions on "The Marriage Maker" at the Metropolitan follows:

EXAMINER—William De Mille has adapted * * * "The Faun," to the requirements of the screen—and the censors—with much finesse. He has delicately insinuated the Pan mood in considerably modulated vein for the theme of his picture, and really gets over with admirable subtlety the suggestions which a less adroit director would probably have seen hustled frantically to the censor's waste basket. * * *

There is a well managed electric storm, a fire scene in which the skill of technicians was rather lacking in evidence.

EXPRESS—Frankly, the play strikes about the medium level of interest, but Mr. deMille has tricked out the action with lavish

DAILY NEWS—* * * Should never have been spoiled by bringing it to the screen. It is simply an attraction that needs spoken dialogue. * * * You simply cannot squeeze it into the lens of a camera and make it register well. * * *

We will admit one thing frankly. No matter how boring the offering seemed to scenic investiture. Although the plot is not credible in every instance, and the fault-finder may perceive serious flaws; yet, even so, the photoplay merits commendation. be, it is, through William De Mille's effort, different than the average feature. It is wholesome. There isn't one suggestive moment. * * *

HERALD—A photoplay that is not easily forgotten. * * * How everything ends "just right" makes a story that is sure to please those who like to ponder over such weighty questions as marriage.

RECORD—* * * "The Marriage Maker" is entertainment above the average and, as always with Paramount pictures, is just about perfect in movie mechanics.

TIMES—Also, if you would see a delightful new idea in comedies, don't miss. "The Marriage Maker." * * *

Guido Orlando appears in "Back to Old Virginia," which Primrose is state righting.

RELEASES

By DANNY

Has anyone figured whether or not the mass of big pictures, now being shown here, will connect when shown throughout the country? If not, why not? Here the fortunes invested which, so far as indications go, may find themselves slam banging against each other indiscriminately, here, with a little consideration, a little foresight, each distributor, and producer, could easily pave the way for a far greater income.

Here is a problem the Hays organization might well step in upon. And regardless of whether the individual distributor desires the protection see if something could not be done to arrange a release date for all of the big ones which in itself would prove all the insurance needed.

Some Dates

"Why Worry," is a current release, and Lloyd's popularity will be a hard matter for the biggest of the big ones to offset. "If Winter Comes," is an August release, which means Fox has it out now. Famous has "Ruggles" scheduled for October and "The Gold Diggers" is out now. Goldwyn has tentatively placed "Little Old New York" for early November release. "Scaramouche" will be road-town, "The Hunchback" remains to be determined as to release date; it does "The White Sister." In respect releasing arrangements have not been concluded for the Gish picture as yet, and of course, "The Covered Wagon," as is well known, is being road shown.

Then there are other big ones coming. Doubtless these will be held for release after the holidays, although you never can tell when they are likely to be thrown forward, or held back. At times distributors have peculiar ideas.

VALUES

In these days of soaring values will some kind soul inform a distressed world of picture people: is there any picture now being made, or released, that hasn't an exhibition value of at least a million?

W. W. Hodkinson was awarded a handsome golf bag, donated by the New York American for the most meritorious act of the day. The Committee classed Mr. Hodkinson thusly for appearing at his first golf tournament.

Abe Warner was awarded a beautiful overnight bag, donated by the J. P. Muller Agency for the second most meritorious act since Warner was forced to stay away from the tournament due to illness.

There were duffer prizes in all 10 classes. Charles Abrams was awarded a hen and chicks in a coop for being the worst duffer. His score was 315 for 27 holes.

Chris. Diebel was entitled to the Motion Picture News Trophy as low gross runner-up, but he selected the Jules Mastbaum Trophy for lowest score by exhibitor players.

Half Million Profit

On Books of Famous Players Canadian Corp.—A $2 Dividend Declared on Preferred Stock
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto — The Famous Players Canadian Corp., Ltd., reports profits for 1922-1923 fiscal year have exceeded $500,000, as against preferred dividend requirements of $320,000. It is pointed out that a considerable increase was made in the number of theaters to the extensive chain operated by the company in the Dominion, and that this was done without an increase to the capital account. Earnings for the first six months of the fiscal year totalled $297,553, after providing for depreciation—excepting the provision for depreciation in wholly-owned theaters.

Notice has been given of the declaration of a dividend of $2. per share in the first preference stock for the quarter ending July 31 last, to shareholders of record on that date.

Warner's Condition Improves

Abe Warner's condition was reported more favorable yesterday. His chief regret was his inability to attend the golf tournament at Bayside.

Gov't Check-Up

Under Way in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois—Discrepancies in Admission Returns
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—The Internal Revenue office is actively pushing its investigation into the admission tax returns made by exhibitors in St. Louis and Eastern Missouri. The investigation to date is said to have revealed some interesting conditions, some of the mistakes in returns apparently not being entirely due to ignorance of the laws or clerical errors in making up reports.

One Eastern Missouri exhibitor is said to have been compelled to pay $400 in excess fees and penalties for failure to make proper returns. Others are said to have paid lesser sums. Another interesting angle developed is the fact that some exhibitors who played prominent pictures on a percentage basis made

Discuss Copyrights

And Means to Revise Them at Meeting in Hays Office Yesterday—Hearings Slated in Washington

The law committee of the M. P. Producers' and Distributors' Ass'n held a meeting yesterday at which plans to revise the present copyright laws as they effect motion pictures were discussed.

The Committee on Copyrights of the Senate is expected to hold a number of meetings shortly with a view to amending and revising the existing statutes covering such protection. It is part of the duties of the Hays committee to draw up whatever recommendations in their opinions will represent the desires of the motion picture industry on this question.

Griffith's Next, "America"

D. W. Griffith's next picture which deals with the Revolution will be known as "America," a title which was selected after a poll that included six universities, six grade schools, six clubs, and six sport clubs.

Zukor Entertains at Ritz

Adolph Zukor was host at a private dinner given to his various district managers at the Ritz last night by way of terminating a two day session at which sales plans were discussed. Hermann Wobber, in charge on the coast was presented with a loving cup by the other supervisors as a token of appreciation for his work in arranging the Paramount Week.

Reichenbach's Latest

Harry Reichenbach yesterday turned to excellent advantage the fact that striking pressmen had left the city without newspapers by engaging 20 town criers, all of them dressed as of yore with scrolls and bells. These same twenty took possession of prominent corners from Times Square to Columbus Circle and announced to the world that "Potash and Perlmutter" would open at the Strand on Sunday. If newspapers do not appear this morning Reichenbach intends continuing the stunt.

Carey Switches

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—It is reported that negotiations have been completed which will result in the next Harry Carey series of six being handled through W. W. Hodkinson Corp.

It was impossible to confirm this report in New York yesterday. Carey's last group of pictures was distributed by F. B. O.

The Golf Tournament

The Day of Days

Golf Tournament a Decided Success
—Everyone Votes It "One of Those Good Times"

This golf idea is getting to be institutional in the picture business. Over 200 film men attended yesterday's fun fest and without even attempting an individual canvass, there isn't a doubt in the world about the time everyone had.

The crowd arrived early and stayed late. There were nine holes played in the morning as a qualifying round and after lunch, every one of the players went 18 holes. Along about seven o'clock, the dinner was held at the clubhouse and, as in the past, it was there the fun began. The Committee dug up all kinds of unusual prizes to supplement the usual coterie of sweaters, clubs, balls, traveling kits and the like.

It was a real party as everyone of the following will testify. They were there and they know:

Drives and Puts

Guy Wonders, Rialto, Baltimore, was the first to appear at the Club shortly after seven o'clock. He regretted the absence of George Wilson, who has won several trophies in preceding tournaments but who, because of business affairs, could not attend.

Several members of the committee, who spent Monday night at Belleclaire, went through the rigors of an Arctic night. Chris Diebel, the Youngstown crack who incidentally runs theaters, finally went to bed with all of his clothes on and two extra sweaters, and then decided that he could not sleep as dressed, arose and removed his spiked shoes, replacing them with straight walking shoes, after which he snored blissfully. Not one of the committee removed even his necktie during the sleeping hours. There was a half-inch frost on the lawn when the committee was awakened for breakfast.

There was widespread regret expressed at the absence of Abe Warner, one of the originators of the tournament idea, who, as previously noted, is ill. Those who knew how anxious Abe was to play were more sympathetic than the others.

The collection of trophies met with widespread admiration. One of the features of these affairs has always been the trophies, but this event found more beautiful gifts than ever before.

Julius Henry Cohen, New York American, had no intention of playing until he saw the beautiful golf bag donated by his chief, John MacMahon, and then Julius Henry grabbed a flock of clubs and set out to win that bag.

Some business was done yesterday in New York film circles, the Belleclaire Club phone being kept busy all day.

There was great rivalry between John Spargo, New York representative for The Exhibitors' Herald and George Blaisdell, Editor of the Exhibitors' Trade Review. They waited until all the good players had started.

Chris Diebel had an important wager on his game—one bottle of whiskey that he would not repeat his 76 of Monday afternoon.

George Brown, famous little duffer from Universal, has improved his game at least 100% since last June. In the spring event he needed three shots to get off the first tee. Yesterday only two.

P. A. Powers was very late arriving, but proceeded to make up for it by organizing a foursome with Alfred Black, Dodo Gulick and Bruce Gallup of the committee. P. A. said he had all evil intentions of taking another leg on the big cup.

P. A. Morrissey and P. A. Powers were the only contenders for THE FILM DAILY trophy who had previously won a leg on this cup. Earl after reading these

The finest two-reel series I have ever run. Business increases on each showing. Have shown four rounds, and am more than satisfied. Will guarantee these to please. Max Drefke, Empress Theatre, Cherokee, Iowa.

This two-reeler hits a new spot in entertainment. It is different in every respect. Makes a wonderful Saturday picture in a short show, and all classes eat it up; even the ladies and younger girls ask for more of it. It is a clean, entertaining type of picture that helps the business. Ben L. Morris, Temple Theatre, Bellaire, Ohio.

A jim dandy picture that a Saturday audience fairly ate up. It's clean cut, convincing, probable, and has your sympathy every minute. More power to the man making them, as they are a relief from some of this heavy stuff. Ben L. Morris, Olympic Theatre, Bellaire, Ohio.

A regular series. I would buy this series if I were you, regardless of where you're located. Have always good attendance on these. E. E. Bair, State Theatre, Uhrichsville, Ohio.

Just finished playing round one, and I firmly believe they are going to go over fine. If so it will be a lot better than running a serial, as each chapter is more complete. H. M. Retz, Strand Theatre, Lamont, Iowa.

Just finished showing round five, and must say this is an exceptionally good series. The characters are fine, all of them. Notice this: The women like this series, and tell us they do, and naturally the men all like the boxing. Draws good. Chancellor Bros., Dreamland Theatre, Arcanum, Ohio.

Seemed to take immense. Played it with two-reel Dan Mason Plum Center comedy screen stars and Movie Chats. They sure enjoyed this six-reel program. Dr. F. M. Childs, Cozy Theatre, Villisca, Ia.

First chapter picture that ever held up for me. Just played the third round, and business increasing. Looks very much like a winner. Lots of comedy, lots of action, and a little love. George O'Hara has excellent support. Photography fine. J. C. Jenkins, Auditorium Theatre, Neligh, Nebr.

O'Hara does wonderful work. Now on ninth round. The best two-reel subject I ever saw when it comes to pleasing the masses. Used newspaper. Had good attendance. E. E. Bair, State Theatre, Uhrichsville, Ohio.

We are on the eighth round, and believe me they have held up well. Book them and boost them. Used lobby. O. W. Harris, St. Denis Theatre, Sapulpa, Okla.

A very good picture. Well played. Pleased good business. William Noble, Rialto Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

I saw four rounds of this series, and think them good entertainment. My patrons like them. Contain good bits of humor. Chas. H. Ryan, Garfield Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

Hammons, another leg-holder, is Europe and Rudy Cameron in Northwest Canada.

Nathan Hirsh, Aywon, wall nine holes with J. C. Barnstyn, who Joe Simmons and Maury Kra showed them how the game should be played. Hirsh said nine holes was enough to walk. He intended play pinochle in the afternoon. The poker championship started about eleven o'clock. Milton Cohen, Int Globe, was the organizer.

These tournaments are getting hard on the amateurs. Among those who played yesterday were Willy McFarlane, well known pro of Oak Ridge and Larry Goldman, who would be a pro if he didn't run an advertising agency. Both were the guests of Harry Goetz of Int bograph.

Heath Cobb of the Grand-Ashe organization, brought quite an outfit with him, including Ben Verschieser studio manager of the Int and Fred Katz.

Joe McCloskey could not play because of a bad ache in his side, but brought out a true golfer's seat which he planted at the waterhole green and watched the players come through.

RECEIPTS

By DANNY

Box office receipts are, after the sure-fire test of this business. You can put all the millions you have—or can borrow—in a picture. But what counts is what it takes in over the little old counter. And they you forget this the red flag and the sheriff's breath arrive the same moment.

Raising Admissions

A long time ago—months ago—Marcus Loew went on record that admission prices must be raised for exhibitors to meet the demands of distributors for the big pictures of the season. Many howled at his idea. Many exhibitors declared it could not be done—and reversed the English by declaring that distributors could be compelled to take less for their product, and no matter what else might be done, the one thing that could not be done was to raise admissions.

But Marcus went right on blithely. And raised prices. He made no noise about it, never blared a trumpet and put it over. One of the methods employed was arranging with exhibitors in the same section where he had a house, and putting through a raise for their houses as well. It was only a nickel in most cases. But how that has added to the revenue.

It Can be Done

In New York every downtown roadway house increased admissions five cents for matinees and none has kicked yet. "Roxy" grabs the admission bull by the financial horn and puts his loge seats to $1.65. If they want loges on crowded Saturdays and Sundays they'll pay for them) was evidently behind the sea. If it wasn't, it should have been.

You can do the same trick in your town. Talk to your competing exhibitor. Decide on putting through a five cent raise. Not only for matinee, but night as well. You'll be surprised how easy it is. And you don't have to yell about it, either.

Assures Protection

To Producer—W. C. J. Doolittle of Selznick Explains Guarantee Insurance Fund

W. C. J. Doolittle, president of Selznick Distributing Corp. read Danny's article headed "Guarantee" in Tuesday's issue. "Right off the bat, it gave me a jolt," he declared yesterday, to read that there seems to be prevailing among distributors an idea of guaranteeing negative costs back to a producer in a period of nine months after release date.

"The whereas of the jolt," he explained, "lies in the fact that this guaranteeing negative costs in nine months originated in this office and is the basis upon which we make our contracts with independent producers."

Warner Improving

Abe Warner's condition was reported satisfactory yesterday. He is still quite ill and must have absolute quiet.

Goldman in Town

William Goldman of the Kings' theater, St. Louis, is in New York conferring with James R. Grainger. Goldman's new house will be the St. Louis first-run for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan pictures.

Tully Will Film "Flowing Gold"

Richard Walton Tully has acquired screen rights to Rex Beach's "Flowing Gold." Upon completion of "Flowing Gold," Tully will film "The Bird of Paradise," which will be made in the Hawaiians.

More "Hunchback" Runs

Universal has arranged for the following out-of-town premieres on "The Hunchback of Notre Dame":

Pittsburgh, at the Pitt theater, beginning Monday. Philadelphia, at the Chestnut St. O. H., beginning Oct. 1. Baltimore, at the Academy of Music, beginning Oct. 22 and Washington, at the Belasco, beginning Nov. 18.

Says Market Prospers

Arthur Lee, president of Lee-Bradford Corp., in a letter to this publication relative to the varied opinions over the status of the state right market says:

"There is only one statement I would like to make, and that is that our cash receipts for the month of August were more than double what they were in August, 1922, which, to my mind, proves conclusively that the state right market is prospering."

Gov't Establishes F. P.-L.'s Interest In Loew's Cleveland Theaters

Fred Desberg Admits Original Interest Was 30% in 1917 But That It Had Shrunk to 13%—Figures Show Paramount Was Paid $100,491 in Rentals in 1922-23 Season With First National in Second Place

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—The connection between Famous Players and Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., was established here by the Federal Trade Commission when it was admitted by witnesses that the company owned stock in the Ohio theater unit but was not represented on the board of directors. The hearing was held in the Federal Post Office Building with Examiner E. S. Alvord and Gaylord Hawkins appearing for the Government, and Bruce Bromley, Ralph Kohn and C. F. Revis for Famous Players.

The entire investigation was taken up with questioning managers of local exchanges, and establishing the status of Famous Players in the Loew Ohio Company.

Edgar Hahn, of the law firm of Mooney, Hahn, Loeser &

Keough, and second assistant secretary of Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., was the first witness called. Hahn testified that Loew's Ohio Theaters, operating a chain of eight Cleveland theaters, is a Delaware corporation, having as its officers: Marcus Loew, of New York, president; Nicholas M. Schenck, New York, secretary; David Bernstein, New York, treasurer; Joseph Laronge, Cleveland, assistant treasurer; Leopold Friedman, New York, assistant secretary; Edgar Hahn, Cleveland, assistant secretary; Jesse Mills, New York, assistant secretary; David Loew and Arthur Loew, of New York, assistant treasurers. These officers, with E. P. Strong, Fred Desberg, Edw. Daoust

Field Force Out

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan's Entire Exploitation Service Dismissed, Effective This Saturday

All of the exploitation men of the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan organization have received wires of dismissal, signed by James R. Grainger and Eddie Bonns informing them of the discontinuance of the department effective this Saturday.

At Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, it was admitted that a reduction is being made but the fact that all of the force had been discharged was denied. It was stated that Grainger was now selecting certain of the men who would be kept on. It is probable that the country will be zoned and a fraction of the present group kept to work on special assignments.

F. P.-L. Owns Stock In Loew's Ohio Theaters

and E. Mandelbaum, of Cleveland, constitute the board of directors. Hahn testified that Famous Players owns stock in Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., but that it is not represented on the board of directors, that it has nothing to say about the purchase of any picture shown in any of the theaters operated by Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc.

Fred Desberg, general representative and manager of the company, was the second witness. Desberg submitted a list of all pictures of feature length or more, played during the season of 1922-23 at Loew's Ohio Theaters, with the amount paid each company during that period. This list is as follows:

Company	Amount	No. of Films
Famous Players	$100,491	69
First National	88,623	50
United Artists	44,915	6
Metro	39,683	27
Goldwyn	24,165	13
Skirboll (Goldseal)	5,960	4
Pathe	5,180	2
Preferred	4,790	4
American Releasing	4,000	1
Universal	3,150	4
Hodkinson	360	1

Desberg testified that he had played practically every picture he booked. Further questioning brought out the fact that Famous-Players became financially interested in the Cleveland theaters for the first time in 1917, when it took over 30 per cent of the stock of the Stillman Theater Co. Marcus Loew also took 30 per cent of the stock at the time. E. Mandelbaum, promoter of the Stillman theater, and president of the company, owned 25 per cent. The rest of the stock was divided between Aaron Jones of Chicago, and some people from Indianapolis. Some time later, Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., was formed and the Stillman Theater Co. was absorbed by it.

However, in the change, Famous-Players' interest shrank to 13 per cent of the entire stock, which it now owns; Marcus Loew's holdings were reduced to 18 per cent. The rest belongs to officers and directors of the company most of whom are Cleveland men.

Hahn presented a financial statement of Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., including a list of all theaters leased, operated and managed by the organization, stating that Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., owns no theaters, but owns stock in theaters operated by Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc. Similarly the implication lies that the Famous-Players corporation owns no theaters in Cleveland, but only has a small interest in the company which does operate the theaters. Other subsidiary companies in which Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., own an interest include Associated First National Pictures Co., of Ohio, and the Euclid East 17th St. Co. This latter company has the same officers as Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc. It owns leaseholds on property on which its theaters are built and other leaseholds in the city. Famous Players has subscribed for $100,000 worth of second mortgage bonds of this company, Hahn testified, and said that Famous Players owns no stock in any of the other subsidiary companies of Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., however, other than having an equitable interest in the Class A common stock of Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc. Bruce Bromley, attorney for Famous, brought out in cross examination that these second mortgage bonds owned by Famous, in the Euclid East 17th St. Co., were taken in payment for pictures bought by Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc.

The investigation further brought out the fact that the control of the Loew Theaters, is almost entirely in the hands of Cleveland people; that Famous Players has nothing at all to do with the theaters owned by Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., having no representation on the board of directors and that Famous Players has no voice in the buying of any pictures shown in any of the eight Cleveland theaters incorporated, as Loew's Ohio Theaters, Inc., which is entirely in the hands of its general manager, Fred Desberg.

C. L. Peavey, manager of the Cleveland exchange for Hodkinson, Maurice Safier, district manager for United Artists; J. E. Beck and the Vitagraph exchange manager were called to testify that the Stillman, Allen State and Park theaters, operated by Loew's Ohio Theaters, are the only first-class, first-run theaters in Cleveland. They declared they have always received courteous treatment from the local Loew representatives and that they have always been treated fairly in the matter of booking pictures.

The commission adjourned until 10 A. M., today, when it will resume its investigation in Philadelphia.

"Indians!"

The cry of horror passed from wagon to wagon down the long train of prairie schooners. Lullaby songs hushed on mothers' tongues. The terror of the long traverse was upon them.

"Form up! Form up! Right an' left! Cattle in th' center!"

The scout, riding shoulder hard against the lead horses of the landships, swung them about in a circle which narrowed as bull whackers and mule skinnners obeyed orders until wagon touched wagon, a defense wall against the redskins.

Night and terror; dawn and the battle; screeching Indians; wailing children; flaming arrow and fire!

Sunset. Triumphant warriors disappeared in the mountain passes. Out of the smoking debris walked a boy of four—alone!

Assures Protection

Naturally there is no law against distributors generally adopting this form of contract which, after all, seems to us to be fundamentally the soundest and fairest proposition yet to be offered.

"In your article you ask several questions chief among which is 'What will the producer do it, after nine months, he has failed to receive his costs? Sue? Wait? And it is to answer this question, at least, so far as the Selznick Distributing Corp. is concerned, and to clearly outline our policy on this point, that this letter is written.

"At the time we originated the nine month's guarantee clause and incorporated it in our contract with producers we foresaw the possibility of this same question arising, and, for our own protection, as well as that of our producers, we cast about for a satisfactory method to assure against either loss or temporary embarrassment, and finally decided upon a policy which we have designated as 'Guarantee Insurance.'

"Under this plan we have arranged to set aside in a separate fund a certain percentage of the gross on all our guaranteed productions. Wherever the producer's share of any production has failed to equal our guarantee, at the end of the nine months period, this insurance fund will be available to meet the deficit.

"Naturally we do not expect to be often confronted by failures to attain sufficient grosses to meet our guarantees and, in most instances, our returns on our productions at the end of nine months will be far in excess of these guarantees, so that at all times this insurance fund will greatly exceed the very occasional demands which will be made upon it.

"You say that 'there should be a more definite way of doing business; especially where an independent producer is facing the problem of financing his next picture.' I have indicated in the preceding paragraphs just how we propose to meet this requirement. We believe this plan to be most fair, and absolutely sure in operation. If you can shoot holes in it, we are always willing to learn and will be more than glad to so modify this feature of our policy that it will achieve the ends for which it was especially designed.

"In our guarantee insurance fund we feel that we have evolved a fitting companion policy to our producer's trust fund which was created to hold all receipts from individual pictures in trust funds, subject to withdrawal only with the mutual consent of producer and distributor."

Newspaper Opinions

"Duley"—1st Nat'l.

Strand

EVENING WORLD—Constance Talmadge is giving a remarkably enjoyable screen performance of the difficult celluloid role at the Strand this week. * * *

HERALD—The movie version of "Duley," * * * follows the play fairly closely, although there are necessarily a great many movie frills added. Oddly enough, it is in these trimmings that the picture reaches its highest level of entertainment.

Most of the wit in the celluloid "Duley" derives from the splendid performance of Constance Talmadge * * * is only moderately successful as a picture. * * * we must voice the opinion that it never should have been made into a movie in the first place. The material just simply isn't there.

MAIL—Miss Talmadge's interpretation is delightfully refreshing and is by far the finest acting she has done before the camera. It is worth while going to see her in this role.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It fails to score, however, when strained through the adapting fountain pen of Anita Loos and John Emerson. The photo-play revealed is a rather turgid, slow-moving comedy, lacking in tension and compactness. There are too many interruptions of what should have been a swift-flowing narrative, and too many lines that lead to nothing and nowhere * * * Constance Talmadge was an ideal selection for Duley.

TELEGRAM—If you want a delightful screen comedy with a good farcical quality, run up to the Strand * * *

After so fine a characterization of the title role, there should be no hesitancy about accepting Miss Constance as the leading comedienne of the screen.

TIMES—A splendid picture has been made of the stage's "Duley." * * * Constance Talmadge, as has been said, is most adorable.

"Six Days"—Gold-Cosmo.

Capitol

AMERICAN—* * * a throbbing, colorful picture that assuredly should keep spectators guessing from the introduction to the final fade-out

DAILY NEWS—The exceedingly well-known Mrs. Glyn has conceived another moving picture-ish manner of keeping a handsome young hero and an equally beautiful heroine away from the rest of the cruel world for a long enough period to make an unusual picture. Six minutes worth of "Six Days" was more than enough for us, but we sat it out—had to.

EVENING JOURNAL—"Six Days" is a stormily interesting picture.

EVENING WORLD—* * * is rather hectic; but not half so torrid as we expected.

MAIL—Brabin has made of this maudlin love story a work of photographic art. It is perfect in every technical detail. Through his interpretation the picture is lifted from the commonplace to something worthwhile.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—"Six Days." * * * is a film so tense in its drama that the agony of the characters is actually communicated to the audience, whose nervous laughter attends the destruction of each successive hope.

SUN—Photographically the picture is very high art, and it has been directed with unsurpassed discretion by Brabin, who has kept the customary Glyn love scenes well under control except in a couple of instances. * * * Corinne Griffith seems to have realized her first big chance in this picture splendidly. * * *

TELEGRAM—* * * one of the important contributions to the current season of photoplays.

TRIBUNE—Dirt, tons of it, and an Elinor Glyn plot are the characteristic things about "Six Days." * * * Corinne Griffith * * * more beautiful than ever, * * * "Six Days" will make money, plenty of it. It is worth recommending to one's friends, worth taking the children to also, if that means anything. Here is a production that is spectacular, but not a tear-gusher.

WORLD—Her "Six Days" at the Capitol is distinctly of the old-time dime show variety, with embellishment to catch the eye of the soul who is in search of a thrill. Undoubtedly it will be a success, for Charles Brabin has taken hold of it and pictured everything the author wrote in quite workmanlike and effective fashion.

"Zaza"—F. P.-L.

Rivoli

AMERICAN—Miss Swanson's temperament will hit you in the eye. Rarely has there been such a display. Every atom of Miss Swanson's lissome form acted every moment. * * * I preferred Miss Swanson in the softly emotional moments of her Zazafication. Then she was very good indeed, and the things that she did registered as excellent acting.

EVENING JOURNAL—The star expended a vast amount of physical energy, both in the romantic moments and in the frequent fisticuffs with a rival, and that, in short and simple words, she overacted. And the apparel she affects is as extreme as her gesticulations.

EVENING WORLD—* * * she is doing what we consider the best work so far in "Zaza."

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Miss Swanson gives a dashing and compelling performance as the temperamental actress of the Odeon. * * * There is in the offering a good deal of the author's original plot. * * * It is an interesting picture, and Miss Swanson's work is commendable.

SUN—Miss Swanson is so feverish in her backstage moments that, unkind as it may seem, one views her with some relief after she takes a header from the swing cut by a jealous rival and lies very still—for a moment. But she has one moment of very real acting when she tears up the photograph of her beloved—the best acting she has ever done, which atones for at least two reels of handwringing frenzy.

TELEGRAM—Zaza, * * * comes to life, more vividly than ever, as Gloria Swanson * * *

TRIBUNE—It is a vivid characterization Miss Swanson gives. She has all the vitality of a Lenore Ulric. The role is a rapid reverse of the languid and blase parts to which she is often assigned. "Zaza" is well directed, well edited and presented in an unexceptionable manner.

TIMES—It cannot be truthfully said that Miss Swanson makes a good, or even credible, Zaza.

Yesterday afternoon's audiences did not seem to take the picture seriously. Gloria's most glorious moments were met with sounding tee-hees, and so, after all, a good time was had by all.

Excellent work, despite the scenarist's titlers of the picture, was done by H. Warner, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Max Thurman.

WORLD—We never have seen this young woman in a more frantic effort to be temperamental. * * * No doubt the movie is fine stuff and Miss Swanson's behavior marvelous. For our own part, it seems largely a pretty ordinary attempt at character building, with the star shooting miles beyond her mark. * * *

We have seen no more frenzied crusades for tickets at the Rivoli in months than the last night. Miss Swanson must be better than we think she is.

Editor's Note—Newspaper opinions this week are published in curtailed form because of the non-appearance of New York dailies, due to a strike of pressmen.

INSURANCE

By DANNY

To producers. Guaranteed by Selznick organization. According to W. C. J. Doolittle; the president. As explained in yesterday's issue. By setting aside certain percentage of the loss on all our guaranteed productions." So that "wherever a producer's share fails to equal the guarantee this fund will be available to meet the deficit." and then adds: "Naturally we do not expect to be often contented by failures. * * *

Naturally neither Mr. Doolittle or any other distributor anticipates being confronted by failure—very often. But suppose he—or any other distributor with a like guarantee plan—is met by failure? Then what?

SHOOTING HOLES

Mr. Doolittle suggests also something about "shooting holes" in their plan. No one is interested in shooting holes through anything if it is right—or even a step in the right direction. But sometimes it's better to shoot holes in plans than have producers anxious to shoot holes in distributors. I happen to know one who lost pretty near all he had saved on one deal—something like $28,000 of his own money, through one of those guarantee things that were only paper guarantees. And if the distributor involved knew how he felt he'd buy himself a flock of armor.

If Doolittle, or anyone else, has solved the guarantee to producer situation, he will have the thanks of the whole of the community interested in making pictures. But giving a producer a piece of paper called a "guarantee," which he could not discount at any figure through any reputable bank is like offering poisoned pie to a hungry man.

Federal Trade Investigation of Famous To Be Resumed There Today

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—The opening session of the second hearing in this city of the Federal Trade Commission investigation of Famous Players was postponed until Friday, on account of the Jewish holiday. It is expected that the session here will last two days. After a brief recess the taking of testimony will be resumed in New York, probably early in October, and will require about a week.

This will conclude the taking of all testimony by the Government. Thirty days will be given the defense to prepare its papers and witnesses and hearings will again be resumed with the Famous Players counsel taking testimony from its own witness. Most of the cities in which the Government took evidence will again be visited with the probable exception of Dallas and New Orleans. Atlanta, the headquarters of the Southern Enterprises is expected to be the scene of another lively session.

Up to the present time the taking of testimony in the case has cost the Government between $6,000 and $7,000. This does not include the travel expenses nor salaries of the representatives of the commission who secured data on which the Government based its case. Total expenses for the prosecution will exceed $10,000. Famous is under a reported expenditure of over $1,500 a day.

THUNDERGATE

featuring Owen Moore, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall Virginia Brown Faire, Robert McKim

Story by Sidney Herschel Small ~ Scenario by Perry N. Vekroff
Directed by Joseph De Grasse ~ Cameraman Sam Landers

When Adventure and Romance get together in the same story; when the characters in this story are portrayed by such artistes as Owen Moore, Sylvia Breamer, Tully Marshall, Bob McKim and Virginia Faire Brown and the direction is in the hands of a man like Joseph De Grasse—you've got something!

And "THUNDERGATE" is that something. Great guns! what a jolt this production gives you. Never an idle moment from the time it leaves the main title and credits until The End card is flashed. The week "Thundergate" is played will be a pleasant one for the man who enjoys going to his bank and leaving a fat deposit to his credit.

In the Courts

John W. Mahan and the Norma Talmadge Film Corp. are co-defendants in a foreclosure suit for $27,500, brought by the Clausen-Flanagan Corp. The proceedings were filed by the latter to recover the sum mentioned above, which is due on a second mortgage on the property at 308 to 316 East 48th Street, the old Talmadge studios.

The papers state that Mahan gave a mortgage to Isaac and Alvin Untermyer, and Allen W. Evarts, for a loan of $35,000. The mortgage was assigned to the Trustees Corp., Ltd., and later to the Clausen-Flanagan people. Mahan later repaid $7,500.

The Norma Talmadge Film Corp. is mentioned in the title of the case, but not in the body of the complaint, which however, reads: "defendants herein claim to have some interest." Kleiner & Britwitz are attorneys for the plaintiff.

H. Harry Meyers has filed an action in the Supreme Court against Percy N. Furber, of 36 West 44th St., to recover $4,900, a balance alleged due from the defendants on the purchase of 7,432 shares of common stock of the Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen, Inc.

The stock was worth $9,900, of which Furber paid $5,000 at the time of the purchase, $4,900 remaining due, payable within 45 days. Meyers alleges that Furber now refuses to pay the balance. Schnitzer, Thorn & Dayton, are attorneys for the plaintiff.

The Claremont Laboratories, Inc., through Allan and Deutsch, has filed suit in the Supreme Court against the Instructive Film Society of America to recover $2,215. The plaintiff alleges that between March and June, 1923, it rendered services and furnished materials to the defendant to the value of $2,007 and that it also expended $208 in money.

Lord and Thomas, advertising agency, is the plaintiff in a Supreme Court action against the Sept Cinema Camera Distributors, Inc., in which the plaintiffs demand $6,762 for services rendered in advertising for the defendant and for newspaper advertisements inserted for the account of the defendants. Stanchfield and Levy represent the plaintiffs.

"'The White Sister' is not a movie; it is a work of art."—Sun & Globe.

And Other Critics Agree:

Sun and Globe: “At times Gloria Swanson in ‘Zaza’ suggests Sarah Bernhardt. Bound to be a great success. In fact, with the finished production which Dwan has given the piece, the evidence is that it will cause the box-office to crack under the strain. The best acting Miss Swanson has ever done. Settings are very good, a statement which includes the gowns Miss Swanson wears every time the scene shifts.”

Telegram: “‘Zaza’ comes to life more vividly than ever. A record for sustained emotionalism. Superb production.”

American: “If you want to see temperament, for goodness sake go and see the Zazafied Gloria Swanson at the Rivoli. Every atom of Miss Swanson’s lissome form acts every minute.”

Tribune: “It is a vivid characterization Miss Swanson gives. She has all the vitality of a Lenore Ulric. The role is a rapid reverse of the languid and blase parts to which she is often assigned. ‘Zaza’ is well directed, well edited.”

World: “‘Zaza’ is staged with great elaborateness in interior decoration and costumery.”

Viewpoints

Always interesting. Especially when they are fresh and new. And so it meant a lot to break bread with Walter Wanger. Over from London. Walter hasn't struck 30 yet. But has been around the theater and pictures for 10, these many years. Was with Famous in production a few years ago. Then went to London. Where, without any experience he became a well known showman. How good? Well, he probably got more money to manage a circuit there than any man who ever held the same job. That's all.

And so, when Wanger talks, it's always refreshing. And interesting. Get this thought. Which came right off the bat: "If the average producer-distributor who operates a big plant, with many high priced stars, and a tremendous overhead, would put as much brains into making pictures as he does into exploiting and selling them how much better off the whole industry would be."

You can put that in your little old clay bowl and puff as long as you please. It's the truth.

THE WORLD MARKET

"No picture," goes on Wanger, "means anything unless it's right for the whole world. Let every producer make his pictures so that they mean something after they pass the three mile run limit."

Kick Over Rentals

Prices in Some Cases Up 100% is Exhibitor Claim—33 1-3% Said to Be General Average

While it is understood that members of the Theater Owners Chamber of Commerce as a body have not raised admissions with the introduction of the fall season, there seems to be an inclination in certain quarters to look upon such increases with some degree of favor.

This situation faces local exhibitors: The wages of operators have been increased 22½%. More money is being paid for music. The theater man claims that in some instances, rentals have been boosted fully 100% although the general average is said to be 33 1-3%. Certainly, there is a pronounced kick over the price for film service.

"The Six Fifty"

Universal

As a Whole.... A RATHER GOOD AUDIENCE PICTURE; STORY IS MORE OR LESS OF A FORMULA BRAND BUT IT HAS BEEN CAPABLY HANDLED AND MAKES A PICTURE THAT WILL UNDOUBTEDLY PLEASE A MAJORITY.

Cast.... Rene Adoree gives a convincing and interesting performance; her work is well timed and she doesn't overdo the emotional bits; Orville Caldwell appears to better advantage in this than in many things he has done previously. Niles Welch has a fairly unimportant role as has Gertrude Astor. Bert Woodruff is typical old cut-up but the scenario didn't hold very much for him, either.

Type of Story.... One of those domestic dramas in which the wife tires of the farm and the routine, only to be disillusioned when she finally gets a taste of city life, and is glad to get back to her farmer husband. The outline of the plot doesn't do it justice in this instance, because the picture is really much more interesting than it sounds in short synopsis. There is good characterization and well sustained interest.

Box Office Angle.... "The Six Fifty" is a good average attraction that should satisfy most of your folks.

Exploitation.... Exhibitors in small towns can interest their patrons in this one even more appropriately than others since the story deals with small town life and will probably interest them particularly. Catchlines could read: "Wives Attention! Are you dissatisfied? If you are see 'The Six Fifty' and maybe you'll find out that you are not as badly off as you think."

If you have already shown Metro's "The Eternal Struggle," mention Renee Adoree's name particularly and tell them that she does more good work in this latest Universal.

A window display in your local dress shop should attract considerable attention. Have a figure elaborately dressed and another in just a plain house dress. A sign could read: "Which is the happier of the two?" The handsomely gowned woman or the one in the plain dress? Find the answer at the blank theater in "The Six Fifty."

Direction by... Nat Ross; did a good job on this one considering the trite story he had to work with; characterization and individual touches good.

Author ..... Kate McLaren
Scenario by..... Harvey Gates and Lenore Coffey

Cameraman ..... Ben Klein
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... A farm and New York
Length ..... 5,100 feet

"Desire"

Metro

As a Whole.... ONE OF THOSE STORIES WITH A MORAL BUT THEY DON'T GET THE MORAL OVER; TRAGIC ENDING DOESN'T MAKE FOR GOOD AUDIENCE APPEAL.

Cast.... To read the list of those in the cast would give you something to anticipate, but there is really very little acting in "Desire" that might be called good. Estelle Taylor's emotional work is poor, David Butler indicates agony more than anguish, while even the very capable Ralph Lewis strikes odd poses that make his performance very far behind anything he has done recently; Marguerite De La Motte is another overacting offender, while John Bowers does fairly well but nothing out of the ordinary.

Type of Story.... Aims to prove that true love comes by sharing the joys and sorrows together. The plot offers two pairs of lovers and reaches its moral in a continual comparison between the two couples. The material isn't strikingly new nor entertaining, and the tragic ending resulting in the death of one pair of lovers detracts considerably from audience appeal. It has not been skilfully directed.

Box Office Angle.... Better see this one and decide for yourself. It is not a cheerful theme, nor is the moral strong enough to get it over.

Exploitation.... The title is the selling point in this one. It can be adequately exploited, and no doubt it will bring them in if that's what you want to do. Whether or not they'll be satisfied depends almost entirely upon the class of patronage you cater to. If they are particular and demand the better offerings that the screen has, you may find it difficult to get this one over satisfactorily.

In view of the more or less definite sex appeal contained in it (it is only in occasional touches but it is there nevertheless), you might be more cautious, particularly if you cater to family trade.

There are names in the cast that can be used, although they are likely to be disappointed, especially with such performers as Ralph Lewis and Estelle Taylor.

Catchlines can read: "Desire is poison. If you don't believe it see the havoc it can wreck. Metro's latest release at the blank theater will show you."

Direction by..... Rowland V. Lee; hasn't done very well on this one; players have been very poorly handled.

Authors.. John B. Clymer and Henry R. Symonds.

Scenario by.... John B. Clymer and Henry R. Symonds.

Cameraman ..... George Barnes
Photography ..... All right
Locale ..... Mostly interiors
Length ..... 6,500 feet

Gloria Swanson in "Zaza"

Paramount

As a Whole.... ANOTHER CASE OF LIKING THE STAR AND LIKING THE PICTURE; GLORIA AS DAZZLING AS EVER AND WILL GO BIG WITH HER FOLLOWING; OTHERS MAY NOT BE ENTERTAINED BY HER SERIES OF TEMPERAMENTAL OUTBURSTS.

Star..... Runs Mae Murray a close second for honors in temperamental display and also for bizarre costumes. Wears one headdress in this that resembles a decorated Christmas tree; where she brings them in, they'll get a kick out of her portrayal of "Zaza." Where she doesn't and you show it anyhow, you'll get the kicks.

Cast.... H. B. Warner, star's leading man, hardly seems equal to the occasion on several of Gloria's violent love fits. Warner not well cast. Mary Thurman has to allow Gloria to give her a whipping that surely looks real.

Type of Story.... An introductory title announces that the picture is to be a "modern 'Zaza.'" It is all that and more. It's a jazzy "Zaza." But it has all been done over to fit Gloria Swanson and rather well done at that, at least, from the box office viewpoint. This is just the sort of picture that entertains the majority so it should do a good business.

Box Office Angle.... If it will make the money for you that's all you have to worry about. And "Zaza" probably will. Folks like these stage like pictures; they like the lavish display and the general atmosphere of the theater. It's audience appeal after all and that's what counts. There is a good comedy vein that director Dwan has gotten over nicely.

Exploitation.... Where you know you can get them in on the strength of the star's name, all you have to do is to post the town with announcements of her latest picture. Use slide announcements well in advance and a trailer of some of the more elaborate scenes, probably the one showing "Zaza" kicking off her slippers during the performance at the Odeon, in Paris.

You might work a teaser stunt by distributing cardboard letter Zs, with the line: "What does this stand for?"

Direction by..... Allan Dwan; supplied the right sort of production and handled star to good advantage; comedy is good also; picture runs too long for you to have much else on your program.

Author.... Pierre Berton and Charles Simon

Scenario ..... Albert Shelby LeVino
Cameraman ..... Hal Rosson
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... Paris
Length ..... 7,076 feet

"Six Days"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

As a Whole.... A GOOD ONE FOR THE BOX-OFFICE MADE DIRECTLY WITH THE PUBLIC IN MIND; IT'S WHAT THEY LIKE AND SHOULD GO VERY WELL.

Cast..... Corinne Griffith, former Vitagraph star, is a pretty hero the type that interests the "fan" crowd particularly; she gives satisfactory performance. Frank Mayo, from Universal stardom, a suitable hero who has a hard time of it living through to "clinch."

Type of Story.... Melodrama with usual ingredients that make audience appeal. The theme is a conventional, so-called "movie" variety, but it is the sort that proves thoroughly popular with majority, so why not give it them? There is action there and an interwoven love theme they'll like it all. There is a slight sex appeal noticeable.

Box Office Angle.... Undoubtedly profitable attraction for many exhibitors. If your folks are typical "fan" crowd, you can count on "Six Days" to please them. It has the qualities that make good audience appeal and should hold over. On the other hand, if they go out to look at it from a critic's viewpoint, they may find something to talk about.

Exploitation.... Use Elinor Glyn's name prominently. Through her fame gained by her works, "The Days" in particular, you should be able to interest them in "Six Days," not that the title itself is an especially good drawing card but due to its similarity to her well known novel, they may form a mental connection and decide to try to see "Six Days."

Regarding the story tell them about the sequence in which hero and heroine are trapped in an underground German dugout. Show them a trailer of some of the more exciting scenes such, for instance, that where hero, digging through for an exit, is hurled still further into space below.

A teaser ad campaign should arouse curiosity. In the space each day, in your local newspaper run ads reading: "This is the First Day." "This is the Second Day," and so on until the final insertion, reading: "Six Days from Elinor Glyn's novel will be shown at the blank theater (date)."

Direction by.... Charles Brabin; handled the story very well for most part and given the action a considerable pep; picture is long.

Author ..... Elinor Glyn
Scenario ..... Ouida Bergson
Cameraman ..... John Mesinger
Photography ..... Good
Locale ..... France
Length ..... 8,010 feet

Viola Dana in
"The Social Code"

Metro

As a Whole....ON A PAR WITH THE STAR'S PREVIOUS PICTURES; OFFERS AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT, HAS BEEN NICELY MADE AND ADEQUATELY DIRECTED.

Star.....Has the sort of role that she handles very well; will please her following and the general picture going public.

Cast...Star's sister, Edna Flugrath, appears in her support in role that she does satisfactorily; Malcolm McGregor a suitable hero; others Huntly Gordon and Cyril Chadwick.

Type of Story...From Rita Weiman's novel, "To Whom It May Concern." Hasn't many situations that are new to the screen, but suffice for an appropriate vehicle for the star; the society blackmail angle is quite well worn but it has been given a surprise twist that saves it somewhat. The romantic element is prominent as usual in Viola Dana productions.

When her lover is accused of murdering a blackmailer in order to retrieve certain letters written to him by a woman, Viola pretends she was the woman and tells a story that clears him, all the while believing she is protecting her married sister. How the misunderstanding clears up happily for all follows the complications.

Box Office Angle....."The Social Code" will probably rate a good average entertainment. Boost the star if she's popular with your folks and where they are usually satisfied with her features, they'll be pleased with her latest, also.

Exploitation...Stills, poster display, catchlines and the regulation advertising should take care of this adequately. There isn't anything in the story particularly applicable to stunt exploitation so trust to the printed word to get them interested. Play up the star's name prominently with the title and say that the story deals with the efforts of a society girl to save the man she loves from being convicted of a crime he did not commit, although she believes it is her sister he loves and not herself.

Use the title with catchlines such as: "What is 'The Social Code'?" Viola Dana will show you in her latest release at the blank theater." Or, "Would you endanger your own reputation to save your sister if you thought she was in love with the man whom you thought loved you? See how Viola Dana gets around the situation in 'The Social Code.'"

The fan crowd will be interested if you tell them that the star's sister, Edna Flugrath, appears in the picture.

Direction by.....Oscar Apfel; has handled story adequately and surrounded star with good supporting cast and good production.

Author ..... Rita Weiman
 Scenario ..... Rex Taylor
 Cameraman ..... John Arnold
 Photography ..... Good
 Locale...New York and Long Island
 Length .....About 5,000 feet

Herbert Rawlinson in
"The Clean-Up"

Universal

As a Whole...FAIRLY AMUSING SMALL TOWN COMEDY BUSINESS THAT OFFERS AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT; STORY IS A LITTLE BETTER THAN THOSE THEY HAVE BEEN GIVING STAR

Star.....Shows an improvement in his work inasmuch as he doesn't overact nearly as much as he usually does; has a rather good role that he handles satisfactorily.

Cast...Exaggerated types that represent small town folks but they are overdone probably intentionally for comedy purposes; Claire Adams opposite star.

Type of Story...Somewhat weak in original situations but it suffices for fairly good comedy business of the small town variety that usually manages to satisfy enough people to get it over. The idea of the "hicks" all coming in for sudden wealth and their wild spending offers some comedy angles that the director has made the most of.

Hero's uncle wills $50,000 to town except hero who decides to stay and reform the people who have gone "wild" with their sudden wealth. How he makes good and learns of the two million set aside for him, completes it.

Box Office Angle.....This is an in-between number that you will know best how to use. It isn't big and it isn't so poor that you can't give it some consideration. If they want to laugh, it will do nicely.

Exploitation...You'll have to resort chiefly to catch-lines to interest them in this latest Rawlinson offering unless the star is popular enough to bring them in through the use of his name and the announcement that you are showing his latest release. Universal has some attractive ad sheets and posters that should attract attention. Use the one headed: "Suppose Everyone in Your Town Were Rich—But You!" Let them know the story has to do with a man whose uncle left everyone in the town $50,000 but cut him off with $1. Also let them know there are some good laughs in the picture.

A street stunt might consist of a man in white uniform pushing a wheelbarrow about, loaded with stage money, with side signs reading: "He made a 'Clean-Up.' See Herbert Rawlinson's latest attraction at the blank theater and you'll know how it's done."

A parade stunt would be to have a number of men going about, each carrying a different type of cleaning device such as carpet sweeper, broom, vacuum cleaner, etc. The idea would attract a lot of attention.

Direction by...William Parke; got pretty good results out of material although small town atmosphere is occasionally a bit too exaggerated.

Author ..... H. H. Van Loan
 Scenario ..... Raymond L. Schrock, Eugene Lewis and Harvey Gates.
 Cameraman ..... Richard Fryer
 Photography ..... All right
 Locale... Small New England town
 Length ..... 5,051 feet

William Russell in
"Times Have Changed"

Fox

As a Whole...TIMES HAVE NOT CHANGED AS FAR AS WILLIAM RUSSELL IS CONCERNED; THEY'RE STILL GIVING HIM PRETTY POOR STORY MATERIAL. HIS LATEST MAY POSSIBLY SATISFY WHERE THEY AREN'T PARTICULAR.

Star.....Does all that the role requires of him satisfactorily but that isn't saying much. Doesn't have to work very strenuously in this.

Cast.....Several well picked types that play character parts nicely—that of crabby old relatives of the "ancestral" order. Mabel Julienne Scott, star's leading lady. Others Charles West, Martha Maddox, Edwin B. Tilton, Allene Ray, Jack Curtis.

Type of Story...A mixture that includes a little of everything. Starts off to be a domestic drama, gets into a small town travesty, takes a fling at theatrical atmosphere and eventually develops into crook complications with a lot of chasing and involved business that makes for chaos more than anything else.

Girl allows her relatives to run her home until she eventually learns that they are driving her husband from her. After many complications, they are happily established in a home by themselves.

Box Office Angle...It is mostly a matter of how hard or how easy it is to suit your patrons. If they aren't over critical and you know that as long as the story keeps moving they'll be satisfied, you may get this one by. Where they demand good, original entertainment, "Times Have Changed" will hardly do.

Exploitation.....If your crowd is right for it and you decide to let them see it, you may find enough ways to interest them. The title suggests stunts that should attract considerable attention.

Have two girls going about the streets, one attired in an old fashioned costume and the other in present day fashion. A page boy preceding them might carry a sign reading: "Yesterday and Today. 'Times Have Changed.' William Russell in his latest picture at the blank theater will show you why."

Where William Russell is popular, make special mention of his name and let them know Mabel Julienne Scott is his leading lady.

A crazy quilt plays a prominent part in the plot. You might work a stunt displaying a crazy quilt in the lobby with catchlines reading: "Come in and see why they all wanted this quilt."

Direction by...James Flood; direction is only fair; sequences have not been carefully dovetailed and action becomes too jerky.

Author ..... Elmer Davis
 Scenario ..... Jack Strumwasser
 Cameraman ..... Joseph Brotherton
 Photography ..... All right
 Locale...A small Jersey town and New York.

Constance Talmadge in
"Dulcy"

First National

As a Whole ADAPTATION STAGE PLAY NOT AT ALL SUITED TO STAR. MAKES DULL PICTURE, FAR BEHIND THE USUAL ORIGIN OF CONSTANCE TALMADGE'S RELEASES.

Star.....Struggles with the role, works hard to get you interested in her "Dulcy" but her efforts are not successful. Her admirers appreciate the attempt she makes to get it over but the material is at all suited to her. It lacks pep and the situations necessary to give her a chance to romp. Let her do it all right but it doesn't fit in. Is not well photographed times.

Cast.....Jack Mulhall a grin-husband but makes the best of his handicap; Claude Gillingwater suited; Andre de Beranger makes a monkey out of himself to provide a scenario writer, the only touch is the characterization is a trifle appropriate for the time.

Type of Story...Comedy of domesticity. Stage play dialogue could be transferred. The picture is a series of interviews between characters, with a few laughs each reel and intervening stretches.

Box Office Angle.....Very doubtful in spite of star's drawing power, doesn't look as though they can get very far with "Dulcy," unfortunately, considering the price of the rights. May stand a possible chance with star's admirers but can't rely on their loyalty after they've seen it. "Dulcy" is dull; there doesn't seem to be a possible remedy unless it can be greatly cut, to speed it up somewhat, with a new set of sub-titles. The present titles are good but they can't make up for the laughs the picture misses.

Exploitation.....It's a serious question just what you should do with "Dulcy." You had better see for yourself before making a decision. First of all it is way behind the star's standard of comic entertainment. They expect to enjoy a good laugh when they come in to see her. "Dulcy" doesn't give it to them.

Where it is a matter of bringing them in, the star's name will do. They may also be familiar with the title, since the stage play enjoyed measure of success, so that it probably prove attractive also.

Regarding the story say it deals with a dumbbell wife who spoils her husband's business career while she thought she was helping him.

Direction by...Sidney A. Frank; has padded and stretched and worked on the continuity evidently trying to get something out of it to little avail.

Authors...Adapted by C. Gardner Sullivan from the play by M. Connelly and Geo. S. Kaufman.

Short Subjects

"Roughest Africa"—Hal Roach—Pathe

A Really Funny Burlesque

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
"Roughest Africa" is the first of a series of Hal Roach two-reel comedies to be released by Pathe. Stars Stan Laurel and is far and away the funniest thing he has been in so far. As the title indicates, a travesty on the African Hunt series released during the past season. Real animals are used, but funny stunts that Roach has incorporated in the film are certain to bring peals of laughter from any audience. One bit in particular stands out from the rest. Laurel, in chasing a lion, follows the animal into a net. He comes tearing out immediately followed by not only the lion he was chasing, but all the lions the producers could get hold of, and continue to chase him at a gallop for an extremely funny bit of page.

Pathe Review No. 38

Pleasingly Varied Magazine

Type of production... 1 reel magazine
Some excellent shots showing iron furnaces in action are seen in this issue of Pathe's Review. The red tinting that has been employed in this subject heightens the effect considerably. The molten metal is seen pouring in streams of liquid from one huge vat to another. Another interesting subject is entitled "Table Manners at the Zoo," which shows the different animals at all times—kiddies especially, will enjoy this. The Pathecolor section shows scenes in Corsica at the Port Vecchio.

"Pepping Out"—Dippy Doo Dads"—Pathe

A Fine Novelty

Type of production... animal comedy
This is another of the clever comedies in which the principals and supporting cast are all animals—mostly dogs, chickens and monkeys. Infinite patience seems to have been exercised in the production for the things the animals do is little short of human. The simple plot consists of a lady duckling being courted by a monkey swains and in the end accepting neither. It is an entirely novel and extremely diverting single reel.

"The Limit"—Cameo—Educational

Some Good Laughs

Type of production... 1 reel comedy
Cliff Bowes and Virginia Vance are featured players in this Cameo comedy, which is built around the antics of duck hunters. The girl promises to marry the man who shoots the largest number of ducks and the resultant scramble for game is very funny. Some of the tricks employed by Director Fred Hibbard will bring the laughs in droves. He has gotten around the difficulty of making the fowl act in the manner he wishes them to in many ways. Sometimes real live ducks are used, again decoys are employed, and in the final scene where a flock of birds come showering down on the hunters, dead ducks were used. The cutting is extremely good.

"Why the Globe Trotter Trots"—Lyman Howe's Hodge Podge—Educational

Good Variety for Any Program

Type of production... 1 reel magazine
Snips of film, handled in novel and unexpected ways, afford the chief charm of Lyman Howe's Hodge Podge Reels. This one is no exception. It takes the observer on a ten-minute tour of the world, giving tiny but interesting glimpses at different lands and people. Sometimes the glimpse is in animated cartoon form, sometimes an actual shot, but always it is the attractive and novel manner of presentation that holds the spectators interest.

"Don't Play Hookey"—Sid Smith—Grand-Asher

Good Average Comedy

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
This first reel of "Don't Play Hookey," which stars Sid Smith, shows his troubles as a street photographer, who takes pictures and gives the customer the finished specimen immediately afterwards. Only the pictures, unfortunately, don't always resemble the person they're supposed to. The second reel is devoted to Smith's efforts to help a school-teacher—Duane Thompson—to get her truant scholars back to the classroom. The comedy is quick-moving and should prove satisfactory entertainment for the average audience.

"The Tailor"—Fox

Mediocre Slap-stick

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Al St. John won't send them into convulsions by what he has to do in "The Tailor," his latest comedy. The gags are nearly all very old and have been done time and again so that there isn't much possibility of getting them to laugh at them any more. The action business consists of the usual throwing and general rough house with everyone taking a beating but Al. It is helter skelter comedy and may get by where they don't tire of slap-stick even of the familiar variety.

A League Matter

Sam Harris Says International Circulation of Films Should Be Controlled at Geneva

Sam Harris, editor of "The Cinema" of London, editorially suggests the broad circulation of motion pictures throughout the world might be well dealt with by the League of Nations.

"It has been repeatedly pointed out in these columns," says Harris, "that all moving picture plays should be scrutinized very carefully, and from several angles, before they are accorded the right to circulate, without let or hindrance, throughout the vast extent of the British Empire. At present the censor apparently considers he discharges his whole duty if he eliminates with lynx-like vigilance everything that can by any possibility be construed into an attempt to condone 'immorality,' using the term in the narrowest modern, insular sense. * * *

"It is quite right, of course, that films should be kept what is termed 'clean,' but it is none the less certain that many a perfectly clean film may be the means of disseminating far more dangerous ideas, from an Imperial point of view, than could a film which would drive the whole Bench of Bishops into hysterics. This is especially the case in India, where a population of hundreds of millions is successfully governed by a mere handful of an alien race, greatly owing to the prestige surrounding each individual of the ruling caste. A very large proportion of the films sent into India and exhibited there, indiscriminately, tell the most sordid stories imaginable, in which half the characters, outwardly indistinguishable from 'sahibs' and 'mehsahibs,' hardly possess a single redeeming virtue. The vast majority of the spectators are naturally inclined to accept these pictures, made by the white men themselves, as accurate presentations of life, and thus their secular belief in the moral superiority of the sahib is gradually but surely undermined. This is a question that will have to be taken in hand and tackled seriously, before the mischief is irreparable. It forms part of an even larger question—the international circulation of films generally, which, it has long been suggested, might well be dealt with by the League of Nations."

London—"The Cinema" quotes Marcus Loew as follows:

"Marcus Loew, who was in Paris last week, has denied any intention of purchasing or 'controlling' any cinema theaters in France, as, in his opinion, none of the French picture houses are really worthy of the name.

"The inferiority of your French theaters is stupefying," Mr. Loew told an interviewer. ## German Sales Drop

Less Business in Raw Stock Shipments Abroad Reported—America Still the Biggest Customer

According to the "Lichtbilde Buhne" and the "Kinematographische Monatshefte," both of Berlin, Germany's raw stock exports for the first five months of 1923 have dropped 16% as compared with the same period of 1922.

In May, 1923, 10,860,000 meters were exported with America taking first place, receiving 6,735,000 meters. In 1922 on an average of 8,341,250 meters were exported, while in 1923 the average per month was 6,954,000 meters. The average export to America, the main customer, was 2,882,500 meters per month in 1922, as compared to 2,844,000 meters per month in 1923. While exports, compared to last year fell off 16%, exports to this country receded only 2%. Japan takes second place with 765,000 meters; then comes Denmark with 540,000. Sweden with 495,000; Spain, 435,000; Italy, 225,000 and England, 150,000.

Although raw stock exports dropped 16%, exports of exposed film gained 4%. During May, this figure reached 2,025,000 meters, the same amount as in May, 1922. During May, 1923, the main customer for exposed film was Austria, with 300,000 meters, then Lettland, with 285,000, and Netherlands with 240,000 meters.

For the first five months of 1923, Austria takes the first place, taking 1,785,000 meters of exposed film, Netherlands with 975,000 meters, France with 930,000 meters, and Italy and Lettland with 570,000 meters each.

The Berlin papers indicate that Germany as a market for American films is no longer attractive. No raw film was imported in May. Exposed film imports in May were only 4,500 meters compared to 16,500 meters in May, 1922. Unless there is an unexpected change, this year's import of exposed film will be behind last year's. From January to May, 76,500 meters of exposed film was imported as compared to 132,000 meters in 1922. While in 1922 the import was on the average 196,200 meters per month, this year, in May, it was only 13,300 per month—a drop of 93.2%.

And again, to distributors: "You are in the business to stay. You must retain good will. Why, then, force product that you don't want upon your buyer? In the end you only eliminate a good customer. If it's bad, tip them off; let them handle it as they can. 'Soaking' a buyer is dead and gone. It belongs to the era of 1910. Not today."

TIP TO EXPORTERS

Lys Wanger: "Don't forget that the British Empire knows a thing or two. So why step all over yourself. American films are the most popular and the best in the world. Because you have supremacy why abuse it?"

THE POTENTIALTY OF THE FILMS ARE BOUND UP BY THE POWERS OF TODAY NO MORE THAN THE PRE-ZUKORITES HINDERED ZUKOR. THEIR ERRORS MADE IT EASY FOR HIM. YOUR ERRORS TODAY WILL MAKE IT EASY FOR THE COMING LEADER—WHOEVER HE MAY BE.

NOTHING RIVALS MOTION PICTURES AS A CREATIVE WORLD FORCE. AND SUCH A FORCE CAN NEVER BE THE PROPERTY OF A TRUST.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

"The American film succeeds," is his belief, "because of its energy, youth, and imagination. It fails through misinformation, carelessness and ignorance. But these are the faults of the past and can easily be adjusted. If Americans will take time to do it."

KEEP FOREIGN FIELD ABREAST

"Simultaneous world distribution of films is as essential as simultaneous distribution of news. The main reason for the lagging of the growth of films in England is an attempt of American distributors to supply a 1923 intelligence with a 1919 duct."

"The film industry of the United States means more to this country in the next generation than its Diplomatic Corps."

Here again Wanger hits a nail squarely on the head. This thought has been in the minds of world leaders for a long time. And then this:

"The film has made the world love America and Americans."

DEVELOPMENT

Of writers Wanger has this to say: "The great films cannot arrive before the great screen-wrights, and the great screen-wrights cannot arrive before there has been time for a generation of writers to grow up in the studio, just as the playwright has grown in the theater. The theater has had the benefit of writers for several centuries—the screen for little more than a decade."

A PREDICTION

"Inside of ten years," he declared, "the performance of the spoken stage will be as much a luxury as opera is today. This will not mean the elimination of the spoken stage, for it will be all the more popular in the largest cities, but touring companies will be extinct. The real world entertainment will be the screen."

ANOTHER THOUGHT FOR PRODUCERS

"A successful screen play is more difficult to create than a successful play," is his opinion. "Why then," he asks, "does a director of films think he can create more successful films in a season than Belasco does plays? Three, at the most four pictures is all any real producer can handle intelligently. The more units he has the more problems. Sam Goldwyn has the right idea. If he sticks to it. The 'if' is important."

"Money means no more in this industry than in anything else. It is the endeavor and the ability which counts—nothing else."

"The film industry is a world movement—not a big business."

"People who knock films are descendants of those who condemned the printing press."

And here the arrival of toasted muffins and English breakfast tea broke up a most interesting line of comment.

TELEPHONE TELEGRAMS

That's what Joe Plunkett of the Strand terms those glowing messages. Which arrive via Western Union. And Postal. From all over the country. To distributors. Who flash them on Joe as he reaches his pet table at the Astor. "They're all alike," says Joe, "they tell of how 'Minnie's Smashed Nose,' or something just as good went over with a wow in Punxsatwney or some other spot. I wish they'd change the language just a little. Then I wouldn't figure them as telephoney telegrams."

Have you ever seen one of those wow's?

CLEVER STUNT

Just to prove that he's worth all the money he's paid—and more—Harry Reichenbach stepped out again. The strike of the pressmen came along in New York. And the big dailies managed to get out an eight page paper with little advertising and a little news. Harry's alert brain was on the job. He grabbed the opportunity like a hungry dog goes after a bone. In a few hours he had the old time "Town Crier's" out. Sixty men in uniform, scattered all over the city. Yelling the news of the day. And not overlooking that "Potash and Perlmutter" will be at the Strand Sunday. It sure was a clever stunt.

Putting It Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

A "White Rose" Boost

Cleveland—M. A. Malaney, publicity manager for Loew's Ohio Theaters, tied up with 40 White Rose gasoline stations to advertise "The White Rose," which played at the Stillman. All the blackboard philosophies connected the picture with the product. Here's one of them:

"As pictured at the Stillman, 'The White Rose' is something to 'Gas About.'"

The sayings were changed every day. And then, at the Stillman they ran a short cartoon, showing the White Rose gasoline advertising man compose the sayings. It was doubled edge publicity, and it traveled from one end of the city to the other.

Advance Stunt for "Dan McGrew"

As the opening gun in the advance exploitation for "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," the famous poem by Robert W. Service is being broadcasted in booklet form to every exhibitor. This booklet, which is 12 pages in size and printed in colors, incorporates, in addition to the stanzas of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew," photographs of Clarence Badger, director, Barbara La Marr, star; Robert W. Service, author; members of the cast and considerable information pertaining to the forthcoming production.

Every Metro exchange will be supplied with sufficient copies of the "McGrew" booklet to distribute a copy to each exhibitor in its respective territory.

Records Announce Showing

St. Louis—William Goldman, owner of the Kings, pulled a unique stunt to exploit the showing of "Enemies of Women" recently. In advance of the showing, he had the Cameo Record Co., make 25 special phonograph records which started out with a stirring military march which was quickly interrupted by a human voice announcing: "Just a moment, please. Don't fail to see 'Enemies of Women' at William Goldman's Kings theater, commencing Sept. 1." Then the band continued to play for a few minutes when the voice would cut in again.

Goldman had boys with small phonographs ride the street cars of the city giving concerts with the announcement record. He also used the phonographs on prominent downtown corners. In addition he equipped a large Reo truck with a loud speaker and a phonograph and two passenger automobiles.

Seek Repeal of Chicago Censorship

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Alderman George H. Maypole says he intends filing a bill to repeal the existing censorship act affecting pictures. Says the existing act is a farce. Hints at graft as well.

No Help From Zukor

reviewed by Attorney Fuller for the Federal Trade Commission, together with Comerford. A survey of competing theaters in those towns where Comerford had theaters showed that he practically monopolized the exhibiting field in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and in several smaller towns. Comerford testified that he also holds stock in five theaters in Binghamton, N. Y.

He declared that his sub-franchise in First National was surrendered on Jan. 1, 1923 but that he still plays that line of product. He further declared that he played practically all of the Paramount output. In denying that Zukor or Famous had helped him on finances, Comerford also took the occasion to add that neither was interested in the Concord Cox. Comerford denied being a stockholder in the Stanley Co. of America but admitted that Stanley owned stock in the Federal Theater Co. which has an interest in the Capitol and Metropolitan theaters in Wilkes-Barre and the Federal in Scranton in which Comerford is the chief stockholder. The Stanley Company, according to Comerford, has holdings in theaters in Sayre, Athens, and Warrena all in Pennsylvania and in New York City, to the extent of seven houses. The witness declared that he was interested and booked 65 theaters all told. In three of these theaters there is a working agreement with the Stanley Booking Corp. These houses are the Strand and Capitol in Scranton and the Roman in Pittston. Comerford declared that he had paid $157,563 in rentals to Famous Players and $511,333.71 to all companies in 1919, thus giving Famous Players about 27% of his total business. The next largest purchases were from First National, with Metro third and Fox, fourth.

Neufeld Second Witness

Oscar Neufeld of the De Luxe exchange was the second witness. He testified both as an individual exchanger and as president of the Philadelphia Film Board of Trade and declared that, there was no connection between the Stanley Company and De Luxe.

In the afternoon, Henry Nugent, booker of the Stanley Booking Corp.

was the chief witness and gave some interesting figures relative to the money paid out by Stanley for film rentals in 1922. He said the total amount was $1,330,016.39 for features and $284,028.32 for shorts. Of the money expended for features, Famous Players, First National and Metro secured 70% of the bulk business, divided as follows:

Famous Players .....	$481,608
First National .....	289,631
Metro .....	108,928

John McGuirk On Stand

John McGuirk, vice-president of the Stanley organization was the next witness. His testimony was to the effect that his company had acquired no new interest since the first session of the Commission in Philadelphia had been held. He did declare, however, that Stanley had gone into a new zone, that of North Philadelphia where a 1,900 seat house was being erected in time to open by Christmas.

Morris Wolf, secretary of the Stanley Company then took the stand and gave the names of the officers of Associated First National Pictures of Eastern Pennsylvania as follows: John McGuirk, president; William J. Heenan, vice-president; Louis Sablowsky, treasurer, and himself, secretary.

United Manager Fails To Appear

When Jack Belmar, general manager of the Stanley Booking Corp. took the stand, he at first declared that his company had entered upon no new booking arrangements with any theaters in the territory but later upon examination of Government counsel said that the North Eastern theater had been added to the list. S. E. Applegate, manager for United Artists here did not appear although subpoenaed. His testimony will be taken in New York when the hearing resumes there on Oct. 15.

Mr. Fuller for the Government declared that the Commission would require another week in New York to finish its case. Famous Players expect to consume another week there to cross-examine after which additional testimony will be sought in Atlanta.

Kick Over Rentals

As a matter of fact, what neighborhood theaters do in the way of increased admissions is largely dependent on the action of important theater circuits like Loew, Fox and Moss. If they do it, it seems safe to assume that the smaller houses will likewise do it.

An important sales manager stated quite definitely Friday that rentals had not gone up anything like 100 but that 15% or 20% would be close to it.

Syracuse Prices Jump

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Syracuse, N. Y.—The Eck Strand, Empire, Temple and Keith have increased admissions, with the possibility that other picture houses here will follow suit. At the Strand and Eckel, the orchestra seats will be 40 cents, and the balcony seats 25 cents during evening and Sunday holiday shows. Matinee prices will be 25 cents for the orchestra and 15 cents for the balcony.

THE CHECK

By DANNY

How did it get over?
Do they like the star?
Any fault to find with the operation of the house?
These are only a few questions that every manager; every exhibitor, wants to know of his patronage. How many are checking up their audiences to find an answer?

Joe Plunkett, of the Strand, New York, is. He cannot ask thousands who visit the Strand individually. But he checks them up through his employees. Every day he receives from the girl ushers, the doormen, the ticket-sellers, the porters—in fact, the entire working force—what the patrons have to say.

Here is the form he uses.

MARK STRAND

REPORTED BY

Invaluable

Plunkett declares this report system, in effect a long time, has proven invaluable. He receives upwards of 100 reports weekly. And he checks his employees the minute their answers seem to be in a rut. He checks the checkers.

The results of these reports have been, from time to time, forwarded to producers and exhibitors, to give them an idea of what Mr. and Mrs. Plunkett think of their efforts. And some of these directors aren't talking to Joe today. You know why.

The value of this sort of a check-up is undeniable. It helps keep the employees on the job; keeps the ex-

Warns About Europe

Sig Schlager Says Influences Are Setting Up Barriers Against America—Production There Better

Sig Schlager, general manager of Luxor Pictures, returned from Europe late last week with an interesting story of conditions in Europe. He stated that in certain quarters, he noted a tendency to set up a barrier of antagonism against American production methods. Despite this, he declares that the outlook for the coming season for greater revenue from markets abroad looks brighter than ever.

"There are certain pernicious influences which aim toward legislative restriction of American screen imports and these influences, set at work in the main by producer-distributor organizations disgruntled by their disappointments in the American market that should be dealt with. Among the observations I made abroad was that American producers and distributors, in their desire to secure 100% representation abroad, have been and are too prone to undersell their product to compete with other American product striving for a foothold in foreign markets. Why can we not have a league on the part of American distributors and producers for the profit of all in Europe and for the creation and maintenance of a better prestige for American pictures?"

"Production in Germany is active and is bound to be more so as everybody is willing to invest in anything which shows promise of returns other than marks—in other words, through sales in foreign countries—especially in England and America. Conditions in Germany are far worse in the big cities than in the country districts. I travelled considerably in Germany, by motor car, and saw every evidence of a greater harvest than Germany has ever known. Conditions are bad, therefore, for the city workers who have only marks to offer in exchange for commodities and are, therefore, unable to do business in the only possible profitable way in Germany today—by exchanging commodity for commodity.

To Dine Hays

British Industry Plans Function for Him—Percentage Still Absorbing Topic in England

By ERNEST W. FREDMAN

The Film Renter, London

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Will Hays, who arrived in this country on Saturday, is to be entertained at a big banquet in his honor given by the whole of the film industry here. Col. A. C. Bromhead, head of the K. M. A., Reginald Bromhead, head of the K. R. S., and Major Gale, president of the C. E. A., are combining to give Hays a fitting reception, and this is certainly likely to be the biggest public function in the film industry that has taken place this year.

Percentage continues the main topic of discussion in film circles, and many meetings are being held throughout the country to discuss the matter. At the moment it cannot be said to be particularly popular, but many leading exhibitors are veering round in its favor, recognizing that this is the only fair way of doing business in the future on big productions.

"If Winter Comes" has opened at the Palace and is scoring a success. The Palace was packed from floor to ceiling with a representative gathering of the trade, and opinions were emphatically in favor of the Fox production. Crowded houses have been the rule ever since.

"The Covered Wagon" is also doing big business at the London Pavilion, standing room only being the order of every night performance.

Allens Coming Back

Concentrating Their Canadian Activities Under Name of Dominion Films, Ltd.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Toronto—The Allen interests are continuing to make progress in re-establishing themselves in the Canadian theater field following the collapse of Allen Theaters, Ltd., last spring. The latest development has been the purchase of the Royal, at Peterboro, Ont., for $70,000. This purchase was made by Dominion Films, Ltd., which is the new company organized by the Allens. They have secured a number of houses in the Ottawa Valley as well as in Western Ontario.

Dominion Films, with its chain of exchange branches in six cities, is distributing both English and American film productions on an extensive scale. The brands handled include Preferred Pictures as well as 25 selected British releases. Considerable success was gained in the presentation of "Rob Roy" at Massey Hall, Toronto, during the two weeks of the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto. This was followed by "The Prodigal Son," in Massey Hall.

Here's an idea that every exhibitor of this country could use to advantage. One of the biggest operators in the South, after hearing of Plunkett's idea, declared he intended to put it into effect immediately.

Viola Dana is now at work on "In Search of a Thrill," under direction of O-scar Apfel.

Warns About Europe

"There is a great demand for American stars and directors abroad today to create values for this market. There is no possible doubt that product from England and Germany, at least, henceforth to be presented in this market is going to be worthy of the most careful and receptive consideration."
"Certainly production in England and Germany is making great strides forward in the right direction and I cannot help believing, from the evidences I have seen in these countries, that whatever prejudice may still exist in exhibitor minds toward product from abroad will be shattered by the merit of a great percentage of the pictures now being made in these countries and being planned for the future."
"We all know that producers abroad do not face the almost prohibitive costs of manufacture which constitute one of the great drawbacks in attracting investment in American product today and motion pictures which hold forth promise of returns in American dollars can with great facility find plenty of capital abroad."
"This situation, combined with the realization of producers that to properly exploit the American market they must have American 'box-office' names, is bound to increase the value of this product in America."

Producing companies abroad are making plans that will give them more than a mere foothold in the world's market, according to Schlager. He cited the instances of Stoll and Butcher's in England and the Orplid Film Co. of Berlin, and incidentally added that Luxor had made arrangements to handle the Butcher and Orplid product in this country.

STARS

By DANNY

And their values. To every exhibitor. Can easily be worked out. By using the idea that Joe Plunkett has in the Strand, New York. By checking up, through ushers, and other help, as noted yesterday. And then you have an idea of what your patronage feels about all of them. So if you think you're paying too much for any one star. And your crowd doesn't seem overly anxious about that star. You can easily lay off for the following season. And let the boy down the street bear the burden. Having the glory and the headaches as well.

Pride

Charley Burr should be proud of what some of these state right boys think of his methods. They surely went on record strong enough. According to what is said in "The Answer," just issued by the Burr organization. If Charley don't make good on the strength of that well—what's the use?

Standing up to big business. "The Hunchback" probably doing better than any of the other big ones now out on Broadway. And this, in the face of the strongest opposition any picture can have. "White Sister" also doing big business. Meanwhile "The Covered Wagon" continues to mop up. And the Capitol did close to $54,000 last week with "Six Days."

ISN'T THIS FINE BUSINESS?

The pressure is on. Every sales force in the business is feeling it. The millions that are in production must come back to the producer. And the distributing end is feeling the jam. This is only September. What will it be by February?

The Answer

Who knows it? Where will it be found? Will it mean productions of lower costs for the coming season?

F. B. O. officials declare that this season will be the most important in the company's history.

Business

U. S. Chamber of Commerce Sees Improvement—Bankers Divided Over Economic Conditions

Widely divergent views of business conditions are taken by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the American Bankers Ass'n. Their ideas will be found below:

Washington—Surveying the business situation, Archer Wall Douglas, Chairman of the Committee on Statistics of the United States Chamber of Commerce, states in a report that there will be a definite improvement soon after the present general cessation in manufacturing activity.

Atlantic City—Bankers from all parts of the country, assembled here for the 49th annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, fall into two groups regarding business conditions. The big city bankers are very optimistic, reporting considerable prosperity in their localities, while the men from the agricultural communities talk gloomily of widespread economic depression in the rural districts.

Two Openings Sunday

"The White Sister" moves from the 44th St. theater to the Ambassador on Sunday, while "Scaramouche," originally intended for the 44th St., beginning Oct 8th, opens at that theater on Sunday.

Abe Warner's Condition

The many friends of Abe Warner will be delighted to know that he is progressing as favorably as can be expected and that within the next few days he may be on the road to recovery.

Nebraska Meets Oct. 16-17

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Omaha—The dates for the annual convention of the state exhibitor organization has been set for Oct. 16-17. The meeting will be held in this city.

"Six Days" Grosses $53,917

Nolan on Rotating Committee

Harry T. Nolan, of Denver, is in New York serving on the First National rotating committee.

French Inventions

To Be Tried Out by Hugo Riesenfeld Here This Winter—One is "Radio Film"

Two new inventions will be tested by Hugo Riesenfeld at his New York theaters during the winter. Both are French importations, made by Charles Delacommune.

One is a modified "speak movie." It is a radio-film device making it possible to show a picture in a hundred theaters with an explanatory lecture coming through from a single transmitting station. It does not aim to reproduce what the characters on the screen are saying, but is designed to make intricate films, such as the Einstein theory, more understandable to the audience. Instead of screen titles, there is continuous vocal explanation through an amplifier. Electrical connections between the projection room and the receiving set insure perfect timing of lecture and picture.

Exchangemen East of Chicago to Meet Here in October—C. C. Pettijohn Back from Coast

The presidents of the F. I. L. M. Boards of Trade in all key cities east of Chicago, will be called into conference in New York in October to discuss a number of problems that have arisen through careful observation of the workings of the uniform contract.

This will make the third of such territorial meetings. The first was held in Chicago several weeks ago when exchangemen from points surrounding that city met. The second was held about ten days ago in Los Angeles, when 11 cities partook in the discussions. Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Hays' office, went West for that series of conferences and has just returned with an optimistic story of how successfully everything there worked out. He declared the three-day meeting resulted in a better understanding of certain problems that had presented themselves.

Following the contemplated New York meeting, as noted, there will be a national meeting here, at which the presidents of the 33 Boards of Trade will be called to New York, together with an exhibitor member from each board. Some changes in the uniform contract may result from this meeting.

Pathe News Claims Scoop

Advices from the West Coast received by Pathe tell of the showing of pictures of the Japanese earthquake and subsequent fires, secured by the Pathe cameraman, in the leading theaters of San Francisco on Monday. These showings it is claimed, constitute an undisputed "scoop" on the West Coast. Views of the disaster are being shot to all parts of the country in the current issue of Pathe News as fast as aeroplane and rail can rush them.

Claims Chicago Record

Jack Edwards, of the Hodkinson organization wired the following from Chicago yesterday:

"All records for a day and date showing were shattered here Sunday when 55 Chicago neighborhood theaters began a week's simultaneous presentation of 'Down to the Sea in Ships.' Reports received at the local Hodkinson office indicate that the picture was witnessed by at least 165,000 persons. A intensive advertising campaign which included full and half pages in the Chicago daily newspapers preceded the record breaking showing. The success of this unprecedented campaign is due largely to the efforts of W. F. Seymour, Eastern and Central Division sales manager for Hodkinson and Ralph Simmons, branch sales manager." Edwards also says he is entitled to some of it.

A CHANCE

By DANNY

They say Opportunity knocks once. But when the old man struck the door opening Dorothy Mackaill's home that young woman must have been standing on the edge of the easiest door waiting. And bounced to the door before the old woman could half get away. And then at Dorothy Mackaill did to the woman Opportunity is his. She knocked her for a while. That was some months ago. Eddie Carewe was made as Opportunity. And to his credit in making "Mighty Lak" a success Dorothy Mackaill can claim all the rest.

For a few days ago Dorothy Mackaill was given a chance by Famous to do a character, which, successfully handled, will make her one of the greatest women of the screen. She will have the lead in Kate Jorlan's splendid story "The Next Corner." You will have an idea of what a part it is when you know that Joe Schenck tried for nearly two years to get the story for Norma.

When you know that Famous has Conway Tearle and Lon Chaney cast for this one you may have an idea of its importance. And this is the chance that has come to Dorothy Mackaill. There are a hundred—yes, more—women in pictures, men trying to get in pictures and many well known stars who would give a lot for the opportunity that comes to this little girl—practically unknown to producers here a little more than a year ago. She has stepped rapidly since her first chance. She has just finished with Dick Barrows in "The Fighting Blade."

More absorbing news. That Lillian Gish is to do "Joan of Arc" for Inspiration. And the production is to be made in France. Who will direct? That's the next question. Henry King probably. That is if he completes his "Romola" in time. Otherwise some lucky director is also getting a great opportunity.

Controlling Sales

Tom Meighan to Have Representative Watching Contracts at Paramount—A New Idea

Tom Meighan is understood to have made a new arrangement with Famous Players which will permit him to name and to maintain his own representative in the department of distribution.

So far as is known, this proceeding is unusual with Paramount. At least, so far as an individual star is concerned. It is true that when William Randolph Hearst released through Famous Players, James R. Grainger exercised a sales control over contracts but to all intents and purposes, Cosmopolitan functioned as an outside producer releasing through Paramount.

Meighan's position with Paramount is somewhat unusual. He maintains his own producing organization and practically has the final word on everything pertaining to production. If a comparison might be at all drawn, it would not be amiss to state that Meighan really operated as an individual producer and that Paramount released the product.

No one at Famous Players yesterday cared to discuss the appointment of Meighan's sales representative.

Signs Dorothy Mackaill

Dorothy Mackaill, last with Richard Barthelmess in "Twenty-One," leaves next week for Hollywood, where she will appear in "The Next Corner," for Famous Players. This will be her first trip to the Coast.

Sam Wood will direct the picture in which Conway Tearle, Lon Chaney and a newcomer by the name of Ricardo Cortez will also appear.

F. P. Indianapolis Theater

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis — The long-dormant plans of Famous Players to build a $1,000,000 theater on the site of the old English Hotel have materialized. Arrangements have been made for the City Trust Co., to underwrite a bond issue that will finance the proposition. The structure will be five stories in height, and will contain a theater seating 2,800. The house will have two entrances, one on Market St. and the other from the Circle.

The English Hotel site in Indianapolis, has been held by Famous for several years. There have been constant reports of the plan to build there, but at last the project has crystallized definitely.

"Joan of Arc" Again

Inspiration to Star Lillian Gish in It — Production to Be Made in France

Inspiration Pictures, Inc., announced yesterday that Lillian Gish will be starred in "Joan of Arc," which will be made in France early next year. The picture will be placed in production immediately after the completion of "Romola," which is to be launched shortly in Italy under direction of Henry King.

The tentative production date for "Joan of Arc" is set for the spring. Inspiration declared yesterday that no director has as yet been selected.

The story of "Joan of Arc" has been done in pictures before under the release title of "Jean the Woman." It was produced in a lavish manner by Cecil B. De Mille with Geraldine Farrar starred and Theodore Roberts, Tully Marshall, Hobart Bosworth, Wallace Reid, Raymond Hatton, Charles Cary and others in the large cast. The De Mille version was marked by a number of impressive battle scenes, but the producer not only told the beautiful story of Joan as it is known throughout the world.

George Utassy, who has been acting as general manager of Cosmopolitan Prod., has been transferred to the newspaper end of the Hearst activities. His successor at the studio has not been appointed.

Paramount Gets 'Quake' Films

For the first time in its history, Paramount intends issuing a special release embodying about 2,500 feet of film, shot by Tom D. Cochrane and R. E. McIntyre, its Tokio managers, of the recent earthquake. The pictures were expected in New York last night by aeroplane and are designed to be shown at the Rialto and Rivoli theaters at the afternoon performances today.

Pathe News stated yesterday that its pictures would probably be sent out to first run accounts in the Greater New York territory not later than tomorrow. The Pathe material was shot by Ralph Earl, one of the first cameramen that Pathe had, who was travelling in Japan, at the time of the disaster and by a stroke of luck was on the spot when the shocks were levelling Tokio and Yokohama.

Fight Is On

T. O. C. C. Secures Temporary Injunction Against Goldwyn Tying Up Showing of "Enemies"

The long threatened break in the relations between the T. O. C. C. and Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan over contracts on "Little Old New York" and "Enemies of Women," occurred in the Special Term of the Supreme Court of New York yesterday when James J. Walker, counsel for the T. O. C. C. and acting on behalf of the Gotham Amusement Co. secured a temporary injunction against the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan Dist. Corp. and the Phoenix Amusement Co. thus preventing the showing of "Enemies of Women," at the Washington theater, today and tomorrow.

The action is returnable today before Justice McCook. The Gotham Amusement Co. operates the Gotham at Broadway and 138th St. and is a member of the T. O. C. C. It brought the proceedings because the Phoenix Amusement Co. operators of Fox's Washington at Amsterdam Avenue

"Scaramouche" opens at three different points Sunday night: at the 44th St. in New York; at Woods', Chicago and at Cox's theater, Cincinnati. Marcus Loew will leave for Chicago either today or tomorrow to attend the Mid-West premiere.

Ingram Sails Saturday

Rex Ingram sails for Europe on Saturday, a day before "Scaramouche" opens simultaneously in New York, Chicago and Cincinnati.

Ramon Novarro will not accompany Ingram, since he has returned to the coast to appear with Barbara La Marr in "Thy Name is Woman," Fred Niblo's next production for Metro.

Not After Quantity

So Declares Carl Anderson, Back from Coast—First Series to Be Made by J. J. Glavey

Carl Anderson of Anderson Pictures has returned to New York from a three weeks' trip to the coast where he addressed the M. P. T. O. of Southern California on the plans of the Theater Owners Dist. Corp. and secured from that body its endorsement of the exhibitor-distribution idea.

Saskatoon, Sask. — The city's amusement tax on theater tickets is expected to reduce the municipal tax rate by at least one mill during the first year of its operation. It has been estimated that the new tax will net the city approximately $30,000. Local exhibitors strongly opposed the civic tax, which is in addition to the provincial amusement tax, but the city was finally able to put over the extra levy.

Boosts National Organization
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Omaha—In the current issue of "The Movie Age," C. E. Williams, business manager of the Nebraska M. P. T. O. makes a rather lengthy statement relative to the merits of the national organization. He states, among other things, that, to every thinking exhibitor, a national organization is apparent, and that many problems arise that can only be handled by a national body.

but added to it a modern prologue and an epilogue.

It is also interesting to note that "Joan the Woman" is said to be the first picture to be roadshowed by Famous Players, the entire detail being handled by the company's own sales force.

Anderson stated yesterday that it was not his plan to annex a quantity output for his organization but that he was more anxious to secure pictures of merit. Eddie Gribbon will be started in the group which will consist of four pictures.

A second series, according to the Anderson office will be announced next week. This is expected to be Choice Productions.

and 149th St. had secured "Enemy" from Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan while the Gotham claims a perfectly good contract for the picture from Famous Players. The action is one that has been threatened by the T. O. C. unless Goldwyn observed the Famous Players contracts.

There was quite an array of legal talent in the Supreme Court yesterday. State Senator Walker appeared for the T. O. C. C. and the Gotham theater; Saul E. Rogers for Famous Nathan Burkan for William Randolph Hearst and Cosmopolitan and Gabriel Hess for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

American Tobacco Co. Co-Operates

In "Tea-With A Kick!" there is a scene in which Creighton Hale thwarts a crook by making a pack of cigarettes look like a pistol. He does it by keeping his hand behind a curtain through which a light is thrown. The butt of the gun is formed by the pack itself and the barrel is made by having several cigarettes extend out of the pack.

The pack of cigarettes used happened to be Lucky Strikes. The American Tobacco Co. saw a chance to tie-up with the picture and got in touch with Edward Halperin, with the result that an attractive pictorial window strip was produced. This shows Creighton Hale demonstrating the pose that he uses in the picture to produce the effect of the gun, and also carries two scenes of the picture, "Tea-With A Kick!" The wording reads: "See Creighton Hale get a 'kick' out of Lucky Strikes in Victor Hugo Halperin's 'Tea-With A Kick!'"

These strips, by arrangement with H. Seidner, manager of the window trimming department of the United Cigar Stores, were displayed in 460 United Cigar stores, the entire chain, throughout greater New York.

"Sparky" Makes His Debut

East St. Louis—As a box-office builder, Larry Richardson made use of a prologue for "The Hottentot," when that picture played his Lyric theater, recently.

Girl ushers and boy pages were all dressed as jockeys, carrying whips. Then, in newspaper advertisements, the Lyric announced the personal appearance of the well known "Barney Google and His Ever Faithful Steed, (Not Speed) Spark Plug."

The Lyric patrons were allowed to give "Sparky" the once over and gave him an A-1 physical O. K. Their attention was then turned towards the prologue which consisted of a monologue by Mr. Google, after which he put the animal through a few tricks.

Mercantile Houses Co-operate

A new angle of co-operative mercantile advertising recently developed by the Warners through efforts of Lon Young is expected to be a great exploitation medium for all exhibitors who have contracted for "The Printer's Devil," and "George Washington Jr." This campaign is being carried on with more detail and on a larger scale than ever before. Each manufacturer who has entered the tie-up is furnished with play dates in the different towns where his dealers are located. On the Barry series, the exhibitor has more than 100,000 window displays waiting for him to help exploit his picture.

These tie-ups call for appropriate photographs, life-sized cut-outs of the star and interesting lay-outs of Wesley Barry using or applying one of the selected kinds of merchandise arranged for. A tie-up with the Ingersoll Redipoint Pencil Co., calls for window displays with 22,000 dealers handling the Ingersoll merchandise, and in all displays, Wesley Barry is shown, either in a life-sized figure or else in a special lay-out display. The Ingersoll Company has also appropriated the sum of $100,000 to carry on this tie-up in advertisements in important publications.

Many other tie-ups have been arranged. Among these manufacturers are the Van Houton Cocoa Co., Ben Weiner Clothing Co., Walter Janvier Drug Co., U. S. Rubber Co. tying up with Keds, Pittsburg Water Heater Co., F. A. D. A. Radio Sets, Hohner Harmonicas, and the Westinghouse Electric Co.

An Original Idea

St. John's, N. B.—When "Mighty Lak' a Rose" was the attraction at the Opera House, R. McDonald, the manager, obtained the names of all Scotch people in the city, from the secretaries of the different Scotch clans. To these people, McDonald sent a personal letter and attached thereto, a rose, both tying-up with the picture.

Newspaper Opinions

"Potash and Perlmutter"—1st Nat'l—Strand

AMERICAN—... the same amount of helpless laughter as they did in the play. In fact, a very amusing and highly creditable story has been filmed, and the wonderful pantomimic work of Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr is word proof. It is the acid test.

EVENING WORLD—... a heart scream from start to finish. ... Abe and Mawruss ... have never been more whimsical or more pathetic, for that matter, than they are in celluloid form. ...

The picture is almost one long, continuous laugh. ...

MAIL—It is the funniest of the full length comedies that have come to the Broadway picture houses in many seasons and brings the screen three well known actors, Barney Bernard, Alexander Carr and Vera Gordon, whose performance are perfect. ... Barney Bernard's Abe Potash will always remain a classic screen characterization. His pantomime was exceedingly good, being responsible for most of the laughs.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—There is a fine mixture of comedy and pathos in "Potash and Perlmutter," two characters who can bring the tear as quickly as the smile, and can turn the laugh into a sob with amazing speed. ...

The titles are funny, although a bit plentiful, and the fine work of Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr supplies any number of hearty laughs throughout the film. ...

"Potash and Perlmutter" will be a successful picture, of that there is no doubt.

SUN—... Laughable and entertaining in movie form. ... Highly "salty," salubrious and successful show in cinema capsule form equally as much as in the original stage version.

TIMES—"Potash and Perlmutter," be it known, are as funny on the screen as they were on the stage, than which there is no higher praise. ... The picture has as many laughs as a Chaplin comedy.

WORLD—It had them holding to their seats almost from the opening scene. ... This production, which Samuel Goldwyn has made by himself, strikes us as being a motion picture which any cinema producer could own and still sleep nights.

"The Call of the Wild"—Pathe—Cameo

AMERICAN—The picture follows with commendable closeness the plot of Jack London's finest story.

EVENING JOURNAL—The animal is fairly intelligent but there is not the spontaneity about his actions that is observable in other dog players.

Yet this does not altogether detract from the real interest "The Call of the Wild" offers.

EVENING WORLD—It is an enjoyable picture, if one cares for snow-stuff and the "great open spaces where dogs are dogs."

MAIL—With the exception of several gross exaggerations "The Call of the Wild" is an excellent picture. It is entirely devoid of the ordinary love interest and despite this glaring lack is entertaining throughout. Indeed several scenes reach dramatic heights.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—... In no recent production has he (Hal Roach) been happier than in his results with the dog actor, "Buck," who is the star of the London story. ... Much credit should go to Fred Jackman, who directed the film and without whose clever handling of the dog "The Call of the Wild" would be entirely commonplace.

SUN—... Very effective picture version of Jack London's "The Call of the Wild." The settings are very well done, and the dog himself will probably be starred soon.

Newspaper opinions from out-of-town papers will only appear when the feature reviewed has its world's premiere in that city. New York newspaper opinions will also be published when the production reaches Broadway.

"The Eternal Struggle"—Metro Loew's State, Los Angeles (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Newspaper opinions on "The Eternal Struggle," at Loew's State follow:

EXAMINER—Reginald Barker has made a film of quickfire action, exquisite background and excellent histrionism in "The Eternal Struggle" ... Photographically, the picture is delightfully done by Percy Hilburn, who with clever changes of lighting adds materially to the climatic moments of the drama.

EXPRESS—... Rene Adoree bursts into stardom with a splendid characterization of a French-Canadian girl. ... To this reviewer it seemed impossible that a story of this type at this day could hold any interest. But Reginald Barker has turned the trick. ...

Evidently filmed in the Canadian Rockies, there are some magnificent views of jagged, snowy peaks, swift mountain streams and heavily timbered hills.

But it is in Miss Adoree that most of the interest centers.

HERALD—... one of the most dramatic motion picture plays of the Canadian northwest country that has ever been filmed. ... For motion picture entertainment that will hold you tense in your seats, see this photoplay by all means.

RECORD—The scenario writers, the director and the cameraman apparently did their best with plot 748-c, "North Mounted Policemen Track Down Who They Love," and they have indeed instilled a degree of humor which, coupled with the photography, is a saving grace for a trite fiction.

TIMES—"The Eternal Struggle," suggest trite formulae of movie-making to the mind, but I am really astonished much has been gotten out of the much exploited field of the Canadian North Mounted Police in this picture, even if I am also charmed and interested by its star. ... he has put live characters in his picture instead of dummies, and because he has offered a background of natural scenery that is a marvel of snowy grandeur. ... Miss Adoree ... has some marvelous scenes.

CHAINS

By DANNY

and how they operate against little fellow gives Joe Heim, Danville, Pa., a chance to tell story. Joe writes in that one of the chains took over Opera House in Danville, he getting his Paramount and Universal and Educational product without difficulty. Then Opera House went into the hands of Heim, he left him with his 650 seats minus the product he had been using a long time.

"We are not worrying about not getting enough service to run our house," he says, "but we have made the name of Paramount Pictures, Educational Comedies, Universal Jewels and Century Comedies known in this small town by spending our money on advertising, only to have the name put in an opposition house. Every patron we have will ask the question: 'How is it they are running the pictures in the Opera House that you have been running?'"

"It cannot be explained to the people who attend pictures."

Like Difficulties

the way Heim has his troubles right here on Broadway the problem exists at this minute. Mark has been playing Norma Talmadge for years at the Strand. Moe and Eschmann, of First National, cannot get together on "Geance," and "Doc" Reisenfeld has the biggest of all Talmadge pictures for opposition to the Strand.

So the little fellow isn't the only one who has troubles with product. The big ones have it; they always have, and probably always will. At least until existing distribution plans and ideas change.

Day and Date

that Chicago run of "Down to the Sea in Ships" with 55 houses playing and date must make the Hodkinson people feel pretty good.

Support for M. P. Day

M. P. T. O. Declares State Units Are in Line—November 19 the Date

According to officials of the M. P. T. O., the interest in Motion Picture Day, November 19, is gaining momentum daily. No movement furthered by the national organization, says the statement, has met with such a quick and enthusiastic response from the rank and file of exhibitors as this.

The statement says Indiana has taken hold. William Bender, Jr., treasurer of the M. P. T. O. and national chairman of the committee, has appointed sub-committees covering the entire state. Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, was in New York last week and declared that he is calling a mass meeting of the theater owners of Western Pennsylvania, to be held at Pittsburgh, to designate sub-committees and formulate definite plans of participation.

C. E. Whitehurst of Baltimore, likewise has announced a mass meeting to be held at Baltimore, to name committees and discussing ways and means. Martin Smith, president of the M. P. T. O., of Ohio, has divided his state into 40 districts with exhibitor leaders in each district to carry on the work. C. E. Williams, representing Nebraska, has named the chairmen for the various cities and counties of that state and is actively at work. A. B. Momand, secretary of the Theater Owners and Managers Ass'n, of Oklahoma, is laying plans to have his state up among the leaders. G. B. Sparrow, president

Badger on His Own

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Associated Pictures Corp. plans to give Clarence Badger his own producing unit, to make four pictures a year. Marcus Jacobowsky, president, has returned to Chicago.

1st Nat'l Sells Six

Associated First National has disposed of the following six productions to the Societa Anonima Stefano Pittaluga, off Torino, Italy, for Italy, Sardinia, Italian African Colonies, and the Italian African Protectorate: "Circus Days," "Within the Law," "The Voice from the Minaret," "Yes or No," "The Isle of Lost Ships," and "The Bright Shawl."

Settle Wrangle

T. O. C. C.-Goldwyn-Fox Spat Over "Enemies" Settled Out of Court—Action is Withdrawn

Apparently the difficulties between the Gotham Amusement Co. and the Phoenix Amusement Co. over the West Side showing of "Enemies of Women" were not so very much involved that a settlement could not be made. Following the legal tilt in the Special Term of the Supreme Court on Tuesday, State Senator James J. Walker, counsel for the Gotham Amusement Co., which operates the Gotham, and Saul E. Rogers, of Fox, representing the Phoenix Amusement Co., which runs the Washington on Amsterdam Ave., and 149th St., got together and decided to settle the matter out of court.

Notice of the settlement was sent to Justice McCook, before whom the argument was to be argued yesterday afternoon. On Tuesday Justice Whittaker granted a temporary injunction and later that afternoon decided to revoke it. It was the plan then of Walker to seek another injunction but instead the action was withdrawn.

The trouble started over the booking of "Enemies of Women," at the Washington, despite an existing contract with Famous Players claimed by the Gotham. While the T. O. C. C. did not appear officially in the matter, it was the opinion in film circles that the suit reflected the sentiment of the organization on the differences with Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan.

The Washington showed "Enemies" yesterday and will continue to do so today.

A News Scoop

Paramount Beats Regular News Reels by Getting Earthquake Films on Broadway First

Paramount succeeded in securing a scoop on the entire industry by rushing its Japanese earthquake pictures across country by aeroplane, and rushing them through the laboratory in time for the first shows at the Rialto and Rivoli last night.

The pictures arrived East yesterday afternoon about three o'clock by aeroplane with Eddie Stimson at the wheel. The fog was so thick that regular U. S. mail planes were forced to abandon regular schedules until weather conditions were more advantageous, but Stimson managed to get through.

The pictures are to be supplied to all of the Paramount theaters by fast

Davis With Hearst

Well Known Producer and Magazine Expert Joins Cosmopolitan—Has Had Interesting Career

H. O. Davis, one of the foremost efficiency experts identified with production will become general manager of Cosmopolitan Productions, replacing George Utassy.

Davis, who was with Triangle in the old days, and has since been actively interested in pictures until he resumed his former work in the magazine field, established a unique place for himself in the old days by declaring that wastage (beyond a certain point), was unnecessary in studios and proceeded to carry out his ideas with Triangle. This led to the claim of "factory methods" and had Triangle continued Davis' position might have been justified.

Rogers Joins Burr

Charles R. Rogers is now financially interested in Mastodon Films, Inc., as vice-president in charge of distribution. He will retain his interests as treasurer of Griffith Prod., president of Resolute Film Sales Corp., and vice-president of the Hunt Stromberg units.

Charles C. Burr, president of Mastodon, will devote his time to production.

55 Joint Runs in Chicago

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—"Down to the Sea in Ships" is playing at 55 local theaters, day and date this week. The local Hodkinson offices claim that this is the greatest number of simultaneous bookings of a feature picture ever put on. The bulk runs follow the four week's engagement of the picture at the Roosevelt. Ralph Simmons, local Hodkinson manager, is responsible for the feat.

While the Chicago showing for "Down to the Sea in Ships" is admittedly an extremely creditable one, it is not a record. In New York, the contracts for the Chaplin series provided for day and date runs with the result that "The Idle Class" was shown in about 120 Greater New York theaters simultaneously.

Clyde Eckhardt, of Fox, declared yesterday that "Over the Hill" had 50 day and date runs in Chicago, starting Sunday and ending the following Saturday, and that on a repeat engagement there were 75 day and date runs, each running four and five consecutive days.

'plane. It was admitted by the regular news reels organizations that Paramount had scooped them all. Pathe News, it is true, did show its pictures on the coast on Monday, and by yesterday had supplied the entire country as far East as Chicago, and including all important Mid-West points. Paramount, however, was the only company to reach New York screens as rapidly as it did.

Fox News declared its pictures were here but stated that they were not ready for the theaters. No one at Kinograms could be reached for a statement. At International, R. V. Anderson declared he expected to show his pictures locally by noon tomorrow. The negative was expected in last night at ten o'clock.

Tom Cochrane and R. E. McIntyre shot the pictures for Paramount, dispatched them by runner to Kobe, where it was discovered the first boat out for the States had left. A seaplane was hired and the steamer reached at sea. The pictures were then met by another 'plane at quarantine at Vancouver, and started East.

Reports indicate that theaters everywhere are preparing special programs and special presentations. Some theaters will show the advancement of the motion picture by comparing their establishments five or ten years ago with what they are today. Convention Dates Changed

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—The dates of the state M. P. T. O. convention have been changed from Sept. 25, 26 to Oct. 16, 17.

"Monna Vanna"—Fox Central

EVENING JOURNAL—The best feature of the picture is the huge assemblage of armed men. The terrible armies with banners seem to stretch for acres and the spears and halberds are thick as trees in a forest. * * * Paul Wegener, in the role of the doughty Gurlino, wins the dramatic honors.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * Richard Eichberg* * * is a most able maker of spectacles on a large scale, and the picture affords him an opportunity to line up with men like Lubitsch and Griffith and to prove himself their peer. The chief fault with the production is in the poor continuity and titles, both of which may be attributed to changes made in this country—or may possibly have been imported with it. * * * On the whole "Monna Vanna" is like the little lady in the fable, in that when it is good it is very, very good and when it is bad—it's just stupid.

TIMES—Castles, moats, drawbridges, winding staircases, men in armor, maids with flowing hair, priests, fools—these always make effective scenes, * * * The production suffers, too, from the slow pace of the first half of the story. * * *

The actors have been skillfully chosen for their roles. They all look like Italians of the period. Lee Parry as Monna Vanna is surely one of the most beautiful actresses in her branch of the profession. * * *

Says Fall Will Be "Best Yet"

G. H. Dumond, personal representative of the Warners, payed a visit recently to the Home office after looking over conditions in the territories. Dumond declared that the Fall season should be the most prosperous in recent years and that exhibitors in all sections are looking forward to a booming business.

"Exhibitors," he stated "have already had one of the best summers since the war, and the winter promises much for them. They realize that there is a wealth of production material on the market for the coming season and they are preparing to handle it as exploit it in a more elaborate way than they have ever before attempted.

"New theaters are being opened everywhere, and theaters that have been closed for a short time are being renovated and put into shape for the new season. Thousands of new houses are being built in Pittsburg, or in Cleveland and one in Lorraine, and suburban theaters are being built in all territories. About these suburban houses, it is interesting to note that they are being built larger and more commodious than ever before, with all the features included that characterize the big houses in the theater district.

IN THE JOB

By DANNY

What an outfit that Famous Players organization is! They are not a news weekly business, but an energy unequalled they out all the regular news organizations by getting Japanese earthquake pictures to Broadway a full day or more ahead of all others.

The real trick was pulled in getting their pictures off at Vancouver in the winter and then shooting an aerial through fog and storm ahead of the rest. But then enthusiasm and energy put behind this little trick only showed what they can do when they get in to do something.

"The Unknown Purple"

Produced by Abe Carlos with Roland S. the author as the director, and by B. Walthal in the lead. One of the best mystery plays ever produced, and the picture is as good, if not better than the play. Should be a safe office bet. Release to be determined. A mighty interesting picture well cast, well mounted.

Off to the Coast today. Just a bit interested to see what's in store for the forthcoming productions. A line now and then and a lot after looking things over. Meanwhile, patience.

Reports of rumors being circulated relative to probable changes in important companies. This is the gathering of the clouds before the breaking of the storm?

Philadelphia and Logan Open Jan. 1 (Special to THE FILM DAILY) Philadelphia—The Logan and Elmer the two Stanley houses now under construction, are expected to be around the holidays.

Arthur Levey Here

Arthur Levey is back in New York after spending two years in Europe, where he disposed of Associated Producers' pictures. He is here looking for a product for England on behalf of Pathe Freres Co., Ltd., of London, in which Lord Beaverbrook has a controlling interest. Levey has purchased the Dempsey-Firpo pictures for Great Britain and Ireland. He is at the Ansonia.

300 Prints Made

Paramount Sending Japanese Pictures All Over Country—Extra Shows Held on Broadway

The Japanese earthquake pictures, which Famous Players secured through Tom Cochrane and R. E. McIntyre in advance of any of the regular news reels, created such intense interest at the Rialto and Rivoli Wednesday night that special midnight shows were put on to accommodate the crowds.

Yesterday, rush orders for 300 prints were made, and the services of every available laboratory enlisted to get the unusual demand out on time. Sidney R. Kent received no less than 35 telephone inquiries from out-of-town points for the pictures.

E. V. Richards saw the business attracted by the pictures at the Broadway theaters on Wednesday night,

Jack Cohn Sailing

Jack Cohn of C. B. C. will sail next week on the Aquitania, for a six weeks' trip to Europe in the interest of his company.

Tully in from Coast

Richard Walton Tully arrived from Los Angeles yesterday to confer with Rex Beach on productions of "Flowing Gold." From here, Tully will go to Dallas, where some of the picture will be made.

Following this, Tully will make "The Bird of Paradise" in the Hawaiian Islands.

Laemmle Arrives Today

Carl Laemmle and Abe Stern are due in today from Europe. Universal has received a wireless from the boat in which Laemmle states that he and R. H. Cochrane had been invited to attend the Biltmore lunch, to be tendered to David Lloyd George on Saturday. Lloyd George is on the same boat.

Paramount Wins Oregon Action

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Portland, Ore. — Circuit Court Judge Evans has held that "The Trail of the Covered Wagon" was too near like the Paramount film, "The Covered Wagon," and upheld Famous Players, which alleged an infringement on the part of Jesse Sill and his partners, who were exhibiting a film of that name in Oregon. The plaintiffs claim they have already been damaged to the extent of $20,000, but the court withheld judgment on that portion of the complaint.

Plan Road Shows

Inspiration to Handle "The White Sister" as a Legitimate Attraction—Successful Here

Inspiration has decided to release "The White Sister" as a road show. The picture will therefore go out as an attraction similar to "The Covered Wagon," and in the same way as "The Ten Commandments" will be booked.

At present, there is only one run, at the 44th St. theater in New York, but on Sunday the picture will be transferred to the Ambassador for an indefinite run. The business enjoyed by the production here has been commented on a good deal in film circles. As a matter of the fact, the 44th St. run was scheduled for two weeks only with "Scaramouche" to follow, but the business held up so well that the Ingram picture was delayed for a time.

"Potash" Held Over

"Potash and Perlmutter" will be held over for a second week at the Strand.

Resignations at Preferred

Several resignations of minor officials and assistants in the offices of Preferred Pictures occurred yesterday. Al Lichtman said they were of no importance.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—B. P. Schulberg has left here for New York.

T. O. C. C. and "Enemies of Women"

In a lengthy statement issued yesterday relative to the court proceedings on "Enemies of Women" (as noted recently), the T. O. C. C. said in conclusion:

"Warning, however, is served upon the producer and distributor of the picture and on all theater owners in the territory of New York, whether members of the Chamber or not, that in the event of any theater attempting to show this picture in violation of any contract held by any member of the Theater Owners Chamber of Commerce, the Chamber will prosecute to the full extent of the law any remedies which they may be advised they possess."

That efforts will be made to adjust the difficulties existing seems probable, but just how this can be done seems uncertain at the moment.

Nathan Burkan denied yesterday that he had conceded anything on behalf of Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan and declared that contracts made by the company for "Enemies" will be carried out while these originally made by Famous Players will be cancelled.

Chaplin Here

Expects to Return to Coast Shortly to Start His Next Production—Will Have Representative Here

Anxious to see how New York takes to "A Woman of Paris," Charlie Chaplin arrived in town yesterday and put up at the Ritz. Within half an hour his suite was besieged with reporters, and Chaplin's ideas about pictures and other things will be all over the papers today and tomorrow.

He said he expects to remain here only a week—but this can be taken with discretion. He will return to the Coast direct and said he expects to start in on his next picture immediately. Whether it will be a straight Chaplin comedy or another special he would not say; but from his remarks it was inferred he would likely turn to pictures of his latest type rather than comedies in which he has built his reputation.

He will leave here Arthur W. Kelly as his personal representative. Kelly will have offices in the Candler Bldg. Chaplin was accompanied East by Eddie Sutherland, his assistant director. Chaplin said he would rather not discuss his latest picture, preferring to see what the public thinks of it prior to making any statement.

C. B. C. Foreign Deal

J. C. Barnstyn of the British & Continental Trading Co., has taken over the foreign sales of all C. B. C. product.

Cohen to Sail

Milton Cohen of Inter-Globe Export plans to sail next week on the Majestic for a brief visit to London where he will meet his partner Sidney "Cheerio" Garrett. He expects to return in about a month.

Putting It Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Parade for Daniel Boone

Herman Weingarten with his assistant, Max Klamfer, and the co-operation of Joe Weil, Universal exploiter, gave the "Daniel Boone" serial a send-off at its opening at the Parthenon, Brooklyn. The services of a local band made up of girl musicians were employed, and a Daniel Boone parade was formed. Big banners flaunted captions, "Join the Daniel Boone Club," and "Fall in line for 'In the Days of Daniel Boone.'"

Daniel Boone Club cards, prepared by Weil, were distributed in all the neighborhood stores. At the time of the parade, hundreds of kids fell in line. The parade wended its way through the busiest sections of Ridgewood, and came to a halt in front of the Parthenon. One thousand Daniel Boone Club buttons were distributed, as the children entered the theater, and became members of the Daniel Boone Club.

Makes Use of Exploitation Aid

Lawrence, Mass.—Frank Boschetti, of the Star, submits a new idea to help bring crowds to a theater on serial days and bring them back again on other days.

Boschetti laid in a supply of Indian war bonnets, issued by the Universal exploitation department in connection with "In the Days of Daniel Boone." He next had printed cards reading:

"The management of the star theater will present Name..... Address..... with a beautiful Indian War Bonnet when this ticket is punched upon the reverse side for fifteen (15) consecutive weeks, upon which will be shown the superb chapter-play 'In the Days of Daniel Boone,' in fifteen episodes."

The reverse side of the ticket had a border consisting of consecutive dates, Sundays excepted, from Aug. 27 to Nov. 7.

Richardson Used His Brains

East St. Louis, Ill.—Through the heavy traffic of a Saturday night, there wended a stage coach attended by two horsemen clad in chaparejos and mounted on ponies. On the box of the coach beside the driver rode "The Girl of the Golden West," for the odd sight was a ballyhoo for the picture coming to the Lyric.

To Manager Larry Richardson goes the credit for the exploitation campaign for there were no stage coaches in civilized East St. Louis. Richardson improvised his own coach from an antiquated carriage dug up in a wagon maker's shop. When it was finished, however, it had every appearance of a vehicle used by the 49ers except that it seemed too new for that decade.

Claim "Shadows" Was Pirated

Al Lichtman declares that prints of "Shadows" have been pirated and shown in Cuba. In this connection, he states that despite published advertisements of a competitive concern appearing in a Cuban trade paper relative to the picture, those rights are vested in the Cuban Medal Film Co. only.

and at once communicated with Paramount in order to secure the shots for the Saenger circuit in the South. A special messenger left for New Orleans yesterday with a print.

Eddie Stimson, who brought the print east, went through a number of varied experiences before he arrived in New York. After he left Cleveland, he ran into a heavy fog bank that caused him to descend several times. When a landing was found necessary in New Jersey, his mechanic, who had been with him for three years in all sorts of trying conditions, told Stimson he was crazy to endeavor to get through and so the aviator had to come on alone.

The pictures of all the news weeklies arrived at Vancouver on the same boat, but Paramount got ahead of the rest by arranging for an aeroplane to take them off at quarantine.

International's pictures were held up at Cleveland by the same fog that failed to daunt Stimson. They were put aboard a New York Central limited express and rushed East, arriving in New York yesterday morning. The prints were rushed through at once and released for the evening performances at theaters last night.

Kinograms will embody its pictures in its regular release out tomorrow. The Paramount pictures go out as a special, International's will be a full reel showing Tokio and Yokohama before the catastrophe and after.

Japanese Damage Great

Aboard the plane that brought the earthquake picture from Japan was a letter to E. E. Shauer of Famous Players from Tom Cochrane and R. E. McIntyre, who described the havoc caused by the disaster.

"All first-run theaters in Tokio are now ashes. The Universal office in Tokyo, burned to the ground. The United office and stock were saved.

"Everything—books, papers, records, film—in our office was totally destroyed by fire. Not a scrap left for us to go on. What film was out working outside of Tokio, we are locating as quickly as we can."

Pierson Here From Japan

H. Wayne Pierson, United Artists manager in Tokio, is in New York. He is probably the first film man to reach here from Japan since the disaster. He, together with his family arrived in Seattle on the President Jefferson from the Orient.

Pierson was preparing to return to the States for a vacation when the shocks came. He suffered an injury of the spine, while Mrs. Pierson met with severe bruises. Their baby escaped unscathed. Charles Dreher, and Mr. Westendorff and family also returned to Seattle with the Piersons but they have remained there for the time being.

Guarantees

"I agree with you that no distributor 'anticipates being confronted by failure very often,' and I believe that the policy which we have with producers comes as near obviating the possibility of failure as is humanly possible, (which doesn't, I instantly concede, entirely eliminate that possibility).

"Primarily we protect ourselves by dealing only with well known producers, all of whom have backgrounds of successful experience in the production of worth while pictures. In addition, our contract specifically provides that we be permitted to supervise the selection of cast, story and direction; and we supervise the entire production, at all times, and what is of equal importance, we supervise and O. K. the production expense budget, thus assuring ourselves that there is no inflation in the matter of negative costs.

"Our nine months guarantee covers only the actual certified negative which we approve and you may be certain that we will withhold this approval until we are thoroughly satisfied that these costs are actual and necessary.

"You cite the case of a producer who lost something like $28,000, although fortified by a so-called guarantee. I venture to state, without any actual knowledge of the case, that this guarantee was not protected by a plan such as ours, based on the commercially accepted law of averages.

"The principle of insurance is too thoroughly established and conceded to require any defense on my part and, what is more pertinent to our Guarantee Insurance policy, this same insurance principle is being applied today by many large businesses which arrange to set aside a certain percentage of their entire gross as insurance protection, believing it to be an economic saving to finance their own insurance.

"The percentage which they set aside invariably covers certain items which are absolutely safe against possible loss but they apply the law of averages over their entire product as a general protection against any possible weak factors.

Joe Weinstock is president of the Elsmere Theater Operating Co. which reopens the Elsmere, Crotona Parkway and Elsmere Place, the Bronx, tomorrow night.

Claude Ezell in New York

Claude Ezell, special sales executive for Selznick, is in New York from Dallas, for a conference with David Blythe.

"If the man who lost $28,000 had been distributing through an organization which was holding in trust a special fund withdrawn impartially from all of its product, his guarantee would have been more than a mere scrap of paper, because there would have been a fund immediately available to be applied to meet the deficit in this one production, which evidently must have been a weak sister, at least from a point of revenue. You can undoubtedly point out many pictures which, prior to their release, looked to be big winners but which failed to get over, but it is equally true that you can point out far many more pictures which have been financially successful.

"We are relying on two factors to assure us of a reasonable amount of success. First, the fact that we are not guaranteeing productions except where we are reasonably certain of their favorable reception by exhibitors generally. This should mean that our percentage on failures will be extremely low. Second, that the application of the law of averages applied on this basis makes it almost certain that the carefully calculated percentage of the gross of all guaranteed productions which we set aside will more than cover the few failures which may develop.

"You speak of giving the producer a guarantee in the shape of a piece of paper which he could not discount at any bank. I do not think that you seriously suggest that any distributor go to this extent in protecting the producer. After all, the producer should be willing to accept some portion of the gamble with the distributor, providing he has that reasonable degree of protection which our plan offers him.

"In closing I think you will agree with me that we have gone farther in this matter of protection of producers than any other distributing organization of record and I want to say that these plans which we have laid down are being backed with a sincerity of purpose which is certain to spell success."

- Cutting room force.
- St. John, Macloon's special publicity representative.
- Misses Meeker and Tevelan at the Cosmopolitan Players where they super-contract on the Cosmopolitan pictures released through Paramount.

Policy

The Fox organization is out with a letter. And in no uncertain tones tells Mr. Exhibitor how Fox pictures will be sold. Some of the phrases used in this lengthy communication are interesting. For instance, page nine includes the following: * * *

You will be permitted to review each picture but you will not be allowed to pick one or two and leave the rest. You may buy individually in lots of 2, 3, 4, 5, etc., or the entire 11 Specials, in the order in which they are released in your particular territory. Exhibitors may divide the specials amongst themselves. We must be assured, in contract form, that each of the 11 Specials have a first run exhibition before any part of the Specials are sold. You will agree with us that in allowing you this latitude we pave the road for quick sales and early play dates, so that your locality and box office will have an immediate showing and immediate revenue to help pay for your investment.

SECOND RUNS

"For all theaters that are classified as second runs, suburban runs or small towns, no contract will be accepted without play dates. Play dates will be an important consideration. We desire that the small town exhibitor have a chance to contract for our

Big Job for Brabin

Selected to Direct "Ben Hur" Which Will Be Made Abroad—Sails With Edward Bowes

Charles Brabin will direct "Ben Hur," according to an announcement made yesterday jointly by F. J. Godsol, of Goldwyn and A. L. Erlanger. Brabin's recent productions have been "Driven," which was made independently and taken over by Universal for distribution and "Six Days," made at the Goldwyn studio and now running at the Capitol, where it grossed $53,917 last week.

In making "Ben Hur," Brabin will work in the close association with June Mathis, who will assume the editorial directorship of the enterprise.

Edward Bowes, vice president of Goldwyn, and Brabin, will sail for Europe Saturday morning on the Leviathan. They will be followed shortly by Miss Mathis and a complete technical staff, which is due in New York from the studio in about a week.

After considerable speculation it was decided that the entire production of "Ben Hur" will be filmed abroad.

Davies' Run Ends Oct. 27

"Little Old New York" closes its run at the Cosmopolitan theater on Oct. 27 and on the next day, "Unseeing Eyes" opens there. The Davies picture goes into the Capitol Nov. 11. "Unseeing Eyes" was produced from "Snowblind." Katherine Newlin Burt's story of the Canadian Northwest. Lionel Barrymore heads the cast. E. H. Griffith directed.

Sees Evolution

Williams Expects 500 Houses to Play Two Shows a Day and Others Scaled to Different Prices

J. D. Williams of Ritz Carlton, just back from the coast, is certain that there will be a real evolution in the exhibition end of the industry within a year. It is his belief that within 12 months there will be at least 500 theaters playing two shows a day of high class pictures, and also that prices of theaters will be scaled to meet the various kinds of productions shown. That is to say just as there are prices for classes of both amusements and the commodities of life, so it will be in pictures.

When asked about the reports that Rodolph Valentino, under contract to Ritz, might appear as Romeo opposite the Juliet of Norma Talmadge, Williams scouted the idea.

Hollywood—Universal City is humming these days with many new productions scheduled to go into work besides those now being filmed.

Hobart Henley is working on "The Turmoil," in which George Hackathorne, Eleanor Boardman, Emmett Corrigan, Eileen Percy, Pauline Garon, Edward Hearn Bert Roach, Kenneth Gibson and Theodore Von Eltz appear. Edward Sedgwick just completed Hoot Gibson's "The Extra Man" and will start soon on "Hook and Ladder."

Detroit May Boost Admissions

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—Next week will probably see admissions of all Detroit theaters raised, due to increased wages being paid to operators. Theaters that formerly got 17 cents will most likely go to 20 while those getting 20 are expected to raise to 25 cents. The big downtown houses are also planning an increase of five cents.

Although no definite agreement has been reached with the musicians, it is almost certain that there will be no strike.

Protest New Theater

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Covington, Ky.—Permit to erect a theater at the corner of Gilbert Ave. and Beecher St. has been withheld by the building commissioner, because the site is so close to a hospital. The house, which is for negro people, was so vigorously protested by citizens that the permit was withheld, waiting for the city authorities to act.

He further declares that it has been translated into every modern language known and has appeared in practically every form of serialization and syndicated literature.

Rouged Lips

With Tom Moore

From the story
"UPSTAGE" by RITA WEIMAN
 Directed by
HAROLD SHAW

Motion Picture News

Rouged Lips (Metro—5150 Feet) (Reviewed by L. C. Moen)

PERHAPS no American writer today deals more intelligently with life backstage than Rita Weiman, and in "Rouged Lips," we have an adaptation of one of her best short stories, "Upstage." Naturally, short story has been filled out with other incidents, but the spirit of the original is fairly well kept, on the whole. As a picture of life backstage, it is rather better than most, mirroring the petty squabbles and jealousies of the "chorines" with considerable fidelity.

Primarily, of course, it is a Viola Dana vehicle, and she romps through it in typical Dana fashion, her breezy "clowning" ably seconded by the equally breezy Mr. Moore. It is a picture of chuckles and giggles, rather than roars of laughter, but it goes along on its merry way at a smooth rate and should register well with Dana fans. A well chosen supporting cast has been placed around the star, including the aforementioned Tom Moore as the wealthy young man who misunderstands the heroine, Nola Luxford as her chum, Burwell Hamrick as her chum's brother, Arline Pretty as a typical show-girl, and Francis Powers and Georgie Woodthorpe as the mother and father. As usual, the vivacious Miss Dana walks away with the picture, but the competency of the other members of the cast provides a balanced production.

The entertainment value of the production, as a whole, is high and the production is entirely adequate. One of the best things about the picture is the subtling, which is snappy, colloquial and at times sparkling. The best of the laughs, in fact, come from the titles.

THEME. Chorus girl's efforts to maintain a "front" and please wealthy suitor, leading to misunderstanding of her character.

PRODUCTION HIGHLIGHTS. The traffic scenes. The opening night of the revue. The comedy in the dentist's office. The work of the star. Tom Moore as leading man. The snappy subtitles. The interiors. The excellent photography.

DIRECTION. Backstage atmosphere has been very well maintained, on the whole. Dramatic values and characterization of the Rita Weiman story well preserved generally. Good sense of comedy values. Tempo good, considering padding that had to be resorted to to lengthen short story into full length feature.

EXPLOITATION ANGLES. In Viola Dana and Tom Moore you have two players whose names will probably mean something at your box-office, and they should be featured prominently in all your advertising. Also play up the story and author at your discretion. The picture offers an opportunity for many tie-ups. The most obvious of these, of course, is the cosmetic tie-up with drug stores, beauty parlors, etc., on the title. A good tie-up offers, too, with ready-to-wear shops, and the dressing room scenes should be good for a lingerie window hook-up. A discussion on the ethics of using rouge might also be stirred up. Teaser possibilities to suggest themselves.

DRAWING POWER. Should do well almost anywhere. SUMMARY. Excellent vehicle for the star's comedy gifts, having high entertainment value and wide audience appeal. Not uproarious, but consistently amusing.

"Vivacious and cute."
N. Y. Morning Telegraph.

"A novelty pap is delight."
 Viola Dana never looked prettier or played a role with more convincing charm and allurements. Many never bits of acting."
Exhibitor's Trade Review.

"Art titles are catchier than anything we've seen in a long time. Viola Dana latest comedy cause for laughs and giggles."
N. Y. Daily News.

"Viola Dana is very alluring. Titles are laugh provoking. Miss Dana is convincing. The clothes she wears are well thought out and are intrusive in their good taste."
Variety.

"Rises head and shoulders above the welter of program pictures we've been saddled with lately. Gives everybody a chance to exercise the laughter muscles. Funniest sub-titles since Hector was adolescent canine. Warm, human, pulsating and funny. The last named above all others. Viola Dana and Tom Moore make a dandy light-comedy team."
Washington Times.

"The best Dana picture a long time. Filled with stage atmosphere and compelling. Darn good entertainment. Viola Dana is an eyeful as the little chorus girl."
Washington News.

"Has deft touch. Directed with rare spirit. One of the few that depicts back-stage life with reality. Chorus rehearsing and mannerisms and attire of girls very good."

The Meanest Man in the World

Producer: Principal Pictures
Distributor: First Nat'l
As a Whole.....NOT BIG BUT INTERESTING. NOT HEAVY BUT ENJOYABLE. NICE ENTERTAINMENT; WELL CAST WITH SUFFICIENT PRODUCTION VALUES TO GET OVER WHERE THEY DON'T EXPECT SOMETHING NORMOUS.

.....Some good names to work with. Bryant Washburn good; Bert Lytell satisfactory and Blanche Sweet charming. Ward Crane does another heavy in his usual way. Forrest Robinson gives the best performance in a small bit. Type of Story.....A bit unusual for pictures. Shows how a young lawyer, practically a failure because of his generosity and kindness, declares he will be the meanest man in the world to be successful. But at the end discovers that kindness pays, fails to become what he started out to be and by being himself, a big hearted, good natured person, achieves a fortune and a wife. George M. Cohan, who knows his American public probably better than any other stage producer of the day, wrote this and the picturization has, if anything, helped. There are good touches all the way, the climax working out very well. The picture needs tightening up for the first few reels, but otherwise is satisfactory for entertainment purposes. Not big, but good.

Box Office Angle.....You cannot go out and make a big fuss over this one, but you can promise your people a mighty good entertainment with a story that is bound to please, and a cast that fits very well. The title offers a few opportunities for catchlines, such as "What does a man have to be to be 'The Meanest Man in the World'?" Come to the blank theater and find out."

Exploitation.....You can tell your people this is a Georgie Cohan play and it will be hard to find a community where his name doesn't stand for a lot. You have some good box office bets in the cast, notably Blanche Sweet and Bert Lytell. You must not overlook Bryant Washburn, who is also well known. Where the girls like handsome villains you can use the name of Ward Crane. You might get a trailer of the oil well gushing and may bring them back.

Direction by.....Edward F. Cline does very well usually, although the story doesn't give him much opportunity to step out as he can. Too many titles.

Author.....George M. Cohan
Scenario by... Augustin MacHugh
Camera man..... Arthur Martinelli
Photography..... Average
Locale..... Chiefly small town
Length.....6,500 feet, but will be cut

"The Bright Lights of Broadway"

Producer: B. F. Zeidman
Distributor: Principal Pictures
State Rights

As a Whole...A CONVENTIONAL PLOT ALTHOUGH GOOD PRODUCTION, CAST AND ATMOSPHERE THAT CONTAINS SURE-FIRE AUDIENCE APPEAL FOR MANY, WILL UNDOUBTEDLY MAKE IT GOOD BOX OFFICE NUMBER FOR CERTAIN EXHIBITORS.

Cast.....Lowell Sherman can certainly be said to live the part of the theatrical-producer villain. He looks and acts the part and never fails to make himself convincing, perhaps a little too much so at times for those of more conservative tastes. This is not disputing, however, but that Sherman is a good actor. Doris Kenyon gives a satisfactory performance as the girl lured by the bright lights. Her dramatic moments are well handled. Harrison Ford is her unhappy, country suitor. Claire Dolores is well cast as Sherman's ex-favorite. Her make-up is poor.

Type of Story.....Doesn't vary materially from the usual cut-and-dried plot of the popular conception of how they attain stardom. Naturally, there is also the usual sex appeal that may make the number unfitted for family clientele although, for the most part, director Campbell has gotten around the situations delicately enough. There are one or two bits of pretty offensive suggestion that should come out—one—a close-up of the list of girl's telephone numbers within reach of the theatrical producer's bed.

Box Office Angle....Atmosphere of the stage, rise of a country girl to stardom on Broadway, cabaret scenes, lavish display, pretty gowns, a good cast, etc.—all audience appeal if your crowd is right for it.

Exploitation.....Shouldn't be at all difficult if you want to bring them in. Title has drawing power. Display it prominently in lights on your marquee. Show them a trailer, using some of the shots of Broadway at night, the auto-train race and wreck, the third degree, etc.

The title should be sufficient to let them know what the story is about and catchlines will explain it in more detail if you wish. A fashion show might be appropriate.

Direction by....Webster Campbell; has supplied first rate production and handled material rather well except for occasional extreme or pointed detail.

Author.....Gerald C. Duffy
Scenario.....Edmund Goulding
Camera man..... Not credited
Photography...Very good; lightings—sometimes too bright.

"The Knock on the Door"

Eddie Polo in
Producer: Johnny Walker
Distributor: Capital Films—State Rights

As a Whole...PLEASING AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT. ROMANCE WILL APPEAL PARTICULARLY TO WOMEN FOLKS. PRODUCTION IS GOOD AND THERE IS SOME ACTION.

Star.....Dream sequence furnishes him with opportunities for action. There are some good fights and a sort of suspense that will go well where they like a little variation from straight romance. Polo's make-up a bit careless.

Cast...Kathleen Myers a pretty addition to the picture. It is to be wondered at that she isn't seen more often. She screens very well and helps make the picture "good to look at." Others Glen White and Mathilde Brundage.

Type of Story...Practically straight romantic theme but dream sequence supplies fair action and suspense; it is of a rather improbable variety but the surprise ending excuses it. It is a good thing they made a dream of it otherwise they'd be wondering how on earth the heroine ever gets to the mountain lodge first, when she plods up the hill on foot while the robbers go up in an auto. Inconsistencies of this nature matter little though since the denouement covers them up. The theme is not especially weighty but it makes a rather interesting little picture that will probably please enough people to get it over.

Hero dreams he falls in love with a girl at first sight and after saving her life marries her. He awakes to find an introduction to her and the ending leaves you to imagine that he will fulfill his dream.

Box Office Angle..... Suitable for a regular one time showing. May not draw big enough to warrant any special fuss, but it is a satisfying number that most of your folks should like.

Exploitation...Ad sheets picturing a door, and a hand in the act of knocking upon it, would furnish good teaser advertising, provided you kept from using the title on the ad. Catchlines for your program could read: "Have you heard 'The Knock on the Door.' Better plan to be on at the blank theater on (date) and find out what it's all about."

Direction by...Wm. Hughes Curran; secured especially effective locations for shooting the picture and had a good working cast. Allows Polo a little too much prominence at times even though he is starred.

Author.....Melville Brown
Scenario..... Not credited
Camera man..... Phillip Tannura
Photography..... All right
Locale....In and around a mountain lodge.
Length..... About 5,000 feet

"The Call of the Wild"

Producer: Hal Roach
Distributor: Pathe

As a Whole....A LOVABLE ST. BERNARD DOG HOLDS THE CENTER OF THE STAGE; STORY HASN'T VERY MUCH ACTION BUT IS STRONG IN HUMAN INTEREST AND PICTORIAL APPEAL.

Cast.....Buck, an affectionate and intelligent dog, the star performer. While Buck does not show off to as good advantage as Rin Tin Tin, already famous for his screen exploits, he will gather in many admirers for his kindly face and protective characteristics. Very likely Buck hasn't been long enough in the "movie" harness to realize the responsibilities. The dog will find many friends especially among dog lovers.

Jack Mulhall and Walter Long have the principal acting roles and furnish a genuinely exciting fight toward the finish. The only trouble is that there should have been more such encounters.

Type of Story...Deals with the life of a St. Bernard dog, first a pet of children, stolen and brought North to draw sleds over the frozen snow. His various encounters with the man who gave him his first beating offer a series of events that portray the alertness and memory of the animal. His better nature, his great loyalty, is the keynote of the story and splendidly brought out through the animal's devotion to the man who eventually befriended him and whose death he avenged by killing his long hated enemy. The subsequent answer to "The Call of the Wild" shows Buck enjoying "home life" surrounded by the Mrs. and several pups.

Box Office Angle....A fine human interest entertainment that will please the majority. It may strike them as a trifle slow moving but if they appreciate the human interest element that predominates, they shouldn't mind the lack of action.

Exploitation.....If your folks have seen any of the recent pictures in which Rin Tin Tin, the famous police dog, appeared, contrast might be an effective means of interesting them. Tell them Rin Tin Tin has a competitor for screen honors in Buck, the St. Bernard, featured in Hal Roach's "The Call of the Wild." Show them pictures of Buck.

A St. Bernard dog, with dog-sled harness, going about the streets, would likely prove a good stunt to get them in. If there is a kennel near, you might secure a train of dogs and attract still more attention. The picture should please.

Direction by....Fred Jackman; did very nicely in most every respect.
Author..... Jack London
Scenario..... Fred Jackman Camera man..... Floyd Jackman
Photography..... Very good
Locale..... Northwest
Length..... 6,772 feet

Policy

pictures after he knows all about the exhibition value of the 11 Specials.

"With reference to the balance of the Giant Special Productions which have been announced for release during the 1923-24 season, you will be notified at a later date with reference to the sales policy and with reference to their release. Remember, there are 14 more Giant Special productions which Fox will have available for your theater during the 1923-24 season. Keep your time open for these entertainments."

TELLING IT WITHOUT FLOWERS

Then comes this stuff in plain English:

"We want it definitely and clearly understood that any exhibitor who did not in the past properly carry out his contract by reason of his failure to pay his bills or provide play dates will not receive any consideration nor will we solicit his contract for the coming season. We want to do everything in our power to take care of our friend exhibitors who have lived up to their obligations and carried out their contracts. We want nothing to do with a man who has proved by past experience that he is not reliable. We do not want to clog our wheels of progress with contracts from men who do not keep faith."

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Those familiar with sales conditions throughout the country find no puzzle in the above. There are those who say that a lot of exhibitors had contracts—some with play dates—with Fox, and refused to make good because of the prices contracted for plus what they heard of the picture contracted for. In other words, they laid down. Since then Fox hasn't been able to do business with these exhibitors, and the amount of unplayed business contracted for is said to be extremely heavy, running into big figures.

SOB STUFF OUT

Then the letter continues:

"The negative cost is greater this year; the quality of the pictures is higher. We have eliminated mother tales, sob stories and other type of entertainment not wanted by the public," * * * and goes on to say:

"It has been definitely agreed upon and we will insist upon having a Fox News contract included in every proposition for Specials, Star Series and Comedies for the coming year.

"With all the product we have for sale and release this year, particularly the increased number of special pictures, it is of the utmost importance that we pay special attention to the question of play dates. Play dates must be secured and set on every picture at the time when the contract is closed. A play date arrangement of the Star Series should also be made at the time the contract is closed and definite starting dates of the first pictures of each unit decided upon before the salesman submits the proposition."

AMBITION

Louie Auerbach at Export and Import is worried. Extremely worried. He doesn't know what to do about the following letter just received:

Bainbridge, Ga.
Sept. 18, 1923.

Export and Import Film Corp.

Dear Sirs:

As you are in the picture producing business I have five or six picture I would like to have produced. They are Western Pictures. One is a chapter picture containing 15 chapters. I have a partner in with me. His name is Hiram Hunt. We wish to sell these pictures to you, but we want to go an act them our self. Now if you want these great wild western pictures just send us our R. R. tickets from Bainbridge, Ga., to New York an write us how much you will pay us for our pictures.

Yours resp.

John A. Pollock.
Bainbridge, Ga.

The question is whether Export is missing a bet in not signing these comers.

TRANSPARENT SLIDE

Used in Worcester, Mass. By Nate Gordon. So postcard Walter Eberhardt, First National. The slide is used in the lobby and informs the passer-by just what is on the stage at the moment—the feature, comedy, overture, etc. And Walter says it's good.

PERCENTAGE

Writes Walter Lisman of F. B. O.—the golf playing distributors:

"If Mr. Metro and Mr. Paramount are really anxious to sell their pictures on a percentage basis, they should put their own productions in the theaters they control on a percentage basis, and publish daily box office reports for the benefit of other exhibitors to whom they intend to sell. As every type of house is represented among the theaters controlled by Mr. Metro and Mr. Paramount, an exhibitor can judge how the picture in question would go in his house comparing it with some houses on the aforesaid circuits.

"Now, the picture business, like all other businesses, is not an altruistic organization, and the producer, as well as the selling organization, if they happen to get a poor picture, wants to get back the money invested. This would not be possible on the percentage arrangement, as no exhibitor would book a picture that he knew was not remunerative. But, under the present arrangement, an exhibitor can often be sold a bad picture by a salesman who has the gift of gab. * * *"

"Thundering Dawn"

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole.....LIKELY TO PROVE A GOOD BOX OFFICE BET ON ACCOUNT OF ACTION, INTRIGUE, A GREAT STORM, AND A GOOD CAST.

Cast....A first rate cast required to do some very outlandish things. J. Warren Kerrigan, a gallant son of a proud Boston family who runs away from home to save the family name when the family lawyer, played by Charles Clary, misuses funds entrusted to hero's father. Anna Q. Nilsson adequate as the faithful fiancée of Kerrigan. Tom Santachi, the unscrupulous one, and Winifred Bryson, a white vamp in a tropical setting.

Type of Story.....Affords reason enough for an attractive tropical atmosphere and an excellently staged typhoon that makes for a thoroughly exciting climax, but otherwise there is little depth to this highly fictitious, illogical theme. The development is arrived at through a series of weak links in which there is little conviction. Hero assumes the blame for the disappearance of certain moneys. Just why the guilty lawyer could not be exposed then and there, as well as later, is not explained. Why hero should be the victim of the villain's wrath, even before the appearance of his pretty fiancée offers a reason, is not discussed. Nor is it apparent why a girl of her wealth and position would be permitted to travel, unaccompanied, to such a place. The development is full of such incongruities.

Box Office Angle....There is still a good majority of picture goers who will be perfectly willing to forego such qualities as original story, probable situations, and realism, as long as you can offer them a picture that gives them excitement, action and thrills. These will enjoy "Thundering Dawn."

Exploitation....The climax sequence presenting a typhoon that Director Garson has taken quite a little pains to present realistically, is your biggest talking point. Link up the thrill with the recent Japanese disaster. Tell them they'll see the horrors of a typhoon in "Thundering Dawn."

In your exploitation tell your people about the stage play "Rain," which is enjoying a long run in New York, and to which "Thundering Dawn" bears close resemblance.

Direction by....Harry Garson; production is very good and players well handled; might have trimmed the rough edges off the story a little better.

Author .....John Blackwood
Scenario....Lenore Coffey and John Goodrich.

Cameramen.....Chas. Richardson, Louis Physioc and Elmer Ellsworth.

Photography .....Very good
Locale .....Boston and Java
Length .....6,600 feet

"The Unknown Purple"

Carlos Prod.—Truart

Here's a mystery play that should provide plenty of excitement, and also get over most satisfactorily. The mystery theme, built around the discovery of a purple ray of light which makes a person in it invisible, is very nicely developed. After a short introduction to set the characters, the story moves along at a rapid pace, with many exciting highlights.

Henry Walthall proves himself again a fine dramatic artist, and Helen Ferguson also stands out amidst a good cast.

Box Office Angle—High class audiences will undoubtedly be pleased with this one on account of the scientific problem presented, in addition to the story itself. Audiences universally will like it on account of the mystery angle development. If you can get them in for the first shows and get them talking, the picture should hit most satisfactorily.

"The Eternal Three"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

Taking a general theme that has been done many times, Marshall Neilan gives it his typical handling, and turns out a decidedly interesting audience picture.

As the title suggests, the story is the old love triangle—busy business man—beautiful young wife—and the irresponsible love-making youth.

Hobart Bosworth and Claire Windsor put over their roles very well, but Raymond Griffith gives a characterization that shows him a coming favorite with the public.

Box Office Angle—You will find this a picture that will please every type of audience. You have the exploitation angle of the theme to work on; also the fact that it is a typical Neilan production, which guarantees audience satisfaction.

Short Subjects*"Columbus"—Chronicles of America
Pathe*Well Presented Educational*

Type of production

4 reel historical picture

A timely subject for this season of the year is being released by Pathe. It is an interesting presentation of the story of the discovery of America by Columbus, and is one of a group of educational historical films produced in co-operation with Yale University Press. It deals with the life of Columbus from the time he is first denied a hearing at the court of Portugal until, with his little cavalcade he lands on the shores of an island in the West Indies—believing he had found, not a new continent, but a shorter route to India. The film has been well mounted, and the spirit of the story caught to a good extent.

"No Pets"—Hal Roach—PatheAmusing Slapstick*

Type of production....1 reel comedy

A satisfying amount of laughter should result from this Paul Parrott comedy which although frankly slapstick, moves along at a sprightly pace and has some good stuff in it. A mule that eats everything it can reach in a hotel where no pets are allowed comes in for its share of the fun. Paul has smuggled the animal into his room but when the hotel-keeper finds that the ceiling in the room below is coming down he starts on a tour of investigation. The mule then, draped in a sheet, breaks up a spiritual seance among other things.

"A Regular Boy"—Century—
Universal*Should Please Average Crowd*

Type of production....2 reel comedy

"A Regular Boy" gives Buddy Messenger one of the best comedy opportunities he has had for some time. In it he is a young brother with an inventive turn of mind. All sorts of trick apparatus, electrical and otherwise, is distributed throughout the house, from exploding peanuts to a bed with a revolving mattress. The other members of the cast are very well suited although no names are given. Some exceedingly ludicrous by-play being held between two very ugly but laughable individuals. This should give good satisfaction.

"Cracked Wedding Bells"—UniversalA Good Idea*

Type of production....1 reel comedy

"Cracked Wedding Bells," starring Chuck Reisner, succeeds in being mildly entertaining all the way as far as it goes, but it might easily have been carried to a more satisfactory conclusion. The idea of the plot is good—a reporter sent to cover a colored wedding makes up as a coon, and is forced to become the bridegroom—and the comedy is well-developed, leading one to expect more of a finish than is given when the minister and guests as well as the bride leave the ceremony unfinished to re-capture some escaped chickens. Chuck Reisner wrote the story and directed.

"The Eagle's Feather"

Metro

As a Whole.....STORY IS UNUSUAL AND FURNISHES GOOD SCREEN MATERIAL. HAS BEEN VERY WELL DIRECTED AND ACTED BY CAPABLE PLAYERS

Cast....James Kirkwood gives very good performance in role that requires some fighting; his make-up in early reels very careless; Mary Alden excellent as "the biggest man in the valley"; her characterization is different and very effective at all times.

Type of Story....Western drama that is well out of the ordinary and very interesting; development is never allowed to become obvious with a resultant well sustained interest; they aren't likely to figure this one out ahead of time. Has several strong dramatic moments, notably the stampede. This sequence is remarkably well done both as to direction and photography. The only bad bit is the cut-out used when Kirkwood is supposed to rescue Mary Alden from being trampled to death. It is obviously "doctored."

Box Office Angle....Many of your patrons will find this a pleasant variation from the usual cut-and-dried plot. It is a good deal out of the ordinary and offers, besides a good action story, splendid pictorial appeal, and fine acting, a characterization that of itself is thoroughly interesting—that of the woman ranger known as the "biggest man in the valley."

Exploitation.....The point of story in this case, that will be to play up is the idea of the woman ranger. Give them an idea of what it is about through catchlines such as: "In 'The Eagle's Feather' you will see how a woman manages a cattle ranch and a lot of cowboys. No wonder they called her 'the biggest man in the valley.'"

Use a trailer showing them some of the gorgeous shots of the ranch country. They are very beautiful and the photography splendid. Also show them shots of the stampede.

To advertise the showing extensively, have a woman, in attire of a ranch woman, gallop about on horseback. You can elaborate on this by having her accompanied by several cowboys on horseback with signs reading "She's their boss. In 'The Eagle's Feather' at the blank theater you will see how she manages them."

Direction by....Edward Sloman directed this one satisfactorily, and picked very appropriate production and handled players to good advantage.

Action has been suspended pending the arrival of international officers of the union.

The dispute arose over working conditions in Pantages theaters in Seattle and Vancouver. One of the principal points of controversy is that one additional stage hand be employed at each of these houses.

The injunction was issued again the Musicians' Assn., Theatrical Employees Local 154, and the Building Service Employees Union. Judge Smith ruled that the three organizations, being voluntary associations, cannot be restrained or sued. Danz also asked $10,000 damages.

Danz has been engaged in legal controversies with his former employees for many months. He claims pickets have damaged him to the extent of $10,000.

Goldman Returns to St. Louis

The new house will be the St. Louis first run for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan productions, which has consented to purchase a substantial block of the building bonds in return for the first run contract.

New Device for Science

Dr. Charles F. Herm, formerly with the American Museum of Natural History, is the inventor of a new camera device, which it is said, will prove valuable to the scientific world. The camera, driven automatically by a time clock, snaps pictures every ten minutes. The device will be of great use in recording processes, which heretofore had been impossible and a strain on the eyes. Such things as the incubation of an egg, the process of wound healing, the way cancer works, etc., are possibilities.

Fight Starts in Kansas City

"Shattered Reputations"

Capital Film Co.—State Rights

URISH ATTEMPT AND NSIDERABLY BELOW
E AVERAGE PRESENT
AY OFFERING; PICTURE
OKS AS THOUGH IT HAD EN MADE SOME TIME
A.O.

...Johnny Walker would even amused himself to see this one.
Certainly it was made before he became popular. Neither his acting appearance have much resemblance to the Johnny Walker of recent releases.

...Includes no familiar faces and players wear clothes, the style which is one indication that the film is not of current make.

...of Story.....A very conventional, rather poorly constructed plot in which a girl tries to shield a ward brother and keep the knowledge that he is a convict from her father who loves him. The self-sacrifice angle in which she contemplates giving herself to a blackmailer to keep the secret hidden, gains practically no sympathy from the heroine. The love interest is also quite weak. The material is not being skilfully handled nor is it as good advantage as it might have been in spite of its interest.

Office Angle...Offers only the usual alternatives, either for transient trade, double feature programs or in conjunction with a first rate short reel program. Folks are likely to recognize the film as not being of recent manufacture, especially where they have seen Johnny Walker in "The Third Alarm,"
"In the Name of the Law" or others in which he had the principal role.

Exploitation...You have very little in this one to base your exploitation upon. If it is just a matter of bringing them in and you don't have to listen to complaints regarding the pictures you give them, you can advertise this as "a girl's attempt to save her father from a broken heart by keeping from him the fact that his favorite child is an escaped convict." To those with a keen taste for the more lurid or sensational subjects, this will undoubtedly bring them in.

The title will also prove fairly attractive and can be used in conjunction with stills and other display that will advertise it sufficiently. The offering will not do for a particular clientele. It is well below the average.

"Seeing Double"—Arrow Film Corp.
Good Lively Comedy

Type of production...2 reel comedy
"Seeing Double," another comedy produced and directed by the star, Eddie Lyons, should prove to be excellent amusement for a large majority of houses. Lyons plays a dual role, that of a tough newsboy and of an English Prince, and does them both very well indeed. The photography throughout is excellent, including some good double exposure scenes, and the fun runs high almost all the way through. There could have been a bit less repetition of the chase through the house and the catching time after time of the culprit. It would have heightened the fun to have had less of this chase as it loses somewhat with constant repetition. However, the comedy as a whole is enjoyable.

"Handy-Andy"—Tuxedo Comedies

A Thoroughly Entertaining Number
Type of production...2 reel comedy

This Educational comedy brings
"Poodles" Hannaford to motion picture audiences. "Poodles" it will be remembered has been the clown at the New York Hippodrome for about ten years. His tumbling, as seen in "Handy-Andy," is among the best ever brought to the screen. His comedy, too, gets over. And gets over well. There isn't anyone starred in this, but it's a very good comedy and will bring the laughs. The rest of the cast is also very good—the characterization being extremely well-done for this type of picture, although no names are given. You can bank on it. Don't let it pass.

Snohomish, Sultan and Monroe.
Beardsley hasn't the time to spend over details, so put the work in competent hands. The site selected was

Philadelphia—"The Exhibitor," says editorially:

"Where, oh where, are the critics of yesterday who were lamenting the decline of the movies and predicting the day when they would lose their appeal with the millions of movie fans. Not only the professional reform elements but the newspapers and magazines of the nation who were so liberal with the space they devoted to the widespread campaign of abuse are silent today in the face of extraordinary quality of the current and forthcoming productions.
Here and there a daily has come out with a grudging editorial admission of the improvement in motion picture production, but those journals that were foremost in attacking the scheme in the past two years are silent today in face of the perfect avalanche of wonderful pictures."

has received a powerful ally in the National Association of Book Pub-in the campaign to exploit it. Not only will this organization, composed of practically all the representative book publishers of the country, carry

Cartier's, Mark Cross, Help

During the run "The Gold Diggers," at the Rialto, window tie-ups were made with many exclusive Fifth Avenue shops and other stores that have been regarded as unapproachable for exploitation purposes.
Among them:

Cartier's, internationally known jewelers, placed photographs of Hope Hampton wearing $150,000 worth of jewels that she displays in a scene of the picture, in prominent positions in their windows. Other artistic scenes from the film also appeared.

Mark Cross, well known leather goods firm also displayed prominently, portraits of Miss Hampton and scenes from "The Gold Diggers" that lent distinction to their windows. The Gotham Hosiery Shop, contributed to the tie-up by doing the same, as well as I. Miller, the shoe dealer.

Two Birds With One Stone

Beverly, Mass.—Two pictures
"Gimme" and The Strangers' Ban-

Mrs. J. M. Whitney wife of the manager, and by the Goldwyn exploitation man in Boston.

Two thousand "How to Save Your Gas and Electricity," heralds were mailed and distributed; 1,000 regular heralds were distributed by the Lar-com & Howard Grocery Co., a herald being placed in every package sent out; 200 regular and 100 special cards were placed on "The Strangers' Banquet" campaign; cut-out heads of the 24-sheets of both productions were hung in the lobby. Two cut-outs were also used there, one showing Helene Chadwick with hand extended and uttering the word
"gimme" and another of Eleanor Boardman in "The Strangers' Banquet," with a champagne glass held aloft. One thousand heralds and 1,000 "Strangers' Banquet" toast books were distributed in stores and

Among the Stars and Director

Doug "Spreading"

Making "Thief of Bagdad" on Very Lavish Scale—4,000 in Big Mass Scenes

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—Douglas Fairbanks is going the limit on "The Thief of Bagdad." It is expected that there remain about 10 weeks more of actual shooting, six to be devoted to outdoor scenes and the remainder to sequences, in which Fairbanks figures directly.

The filming of the climax is the next event on the calendar of production. Preparations are under way for the major sequence, and when the work is at its height it is anticipated that 4,000 people will be on the settings for the feature.

The episodes that will be shot shortly, include the love scenes, the festival, the entry of the principal character into Bagdad, the battle in which the Chinese Prince's army captures the city, and the culmination showing the regenerated thief and the Princess, whose love he finally wins, sailing over Bagdad on the magic rug.

"The Thief of Bagdad" is by far the most ambitious feature that Doug has ever planned.

Chagrined at Tivoli Opening
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)
 London—"The Film Renter" ex- perience a disappointment over the opening of the Tivoli, which had "Where the Pavement Ends" for the feature. "Tatler" says:

"I never remember attending such a badly- managed opening of a new theater during the whole time I have been connected with this industry. During the showing of this picture the lights went up in the auditorium quite half-a-dozen times—the effects intro- duced evoked titters of laughter from the audience, and at various intervals one could hear the shouting of the conductor to his players. The picture, under any circum- stances, cannot be considered as a really great attraction for the opening of an important house like the Tivoli, and proved exceedingly disappointing to a great majority of the audience present.

"The effects were stupid in the extreme, and the noises introduced when the water- fall scenes came on the screen were really so laughable that the whole of the audience were tittering with mirth, and it was thought desirable a little later to eliminate this effect from the performance."

Paramount Films Honored
 E. E. Shauer has just received word that pictures produced by Para- mount's German subsidiary, E. F. A.-Paramount Film Vertriev, have been awarded the three highest prizes at the International Cinematograph Ex- position at Turin, Italy. The first prize was awarded to "Peter the Great," the second prize to "Mont- martre," and third to "In the Ante- room of Matrimony." The latter two have not been exhibited in this country yet.

 The personnel of the cast has not been finally decided upon. Principal players will not be called upon until December. Meanwhile tests are being made at the Goldwyn studio.

Walsh for Role?
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)
 Los Angeles—In many quarters, it is assumed that George Walsh will have the title part in "Ben Hur." The Goldwyn studio is silent on the matter.

Brabin's Career
 Charles Brabin has been assigned production of one of the most im- portant pieces of theatrical property that has ever been annexed by a film company. The original plan called for the filming of "Ben Hur" in this country at a cost of from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. In view of the fact that the picture will be made abroad, the cost will probably be somewhat low- er. It is probable that the Unione

England Likes England
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)
 London—"The Cinema's" New York correspondent writes to his paper:

"I dropped in at the Rivoli today. Ordinary programme—one feature, one re- issued comedy, and a conglomeration of news reels and an organ accompaniment the whole time. The programme goes on without a break; the lights are kept lowered, one film follows another without a second's pause. I don't call this 'good showmanship.'
 "They seem to be crazy about organs here. The organist apparently goes about it just as he likes, without much regard for 'playing to the picture.' All he appears to trouble about is that some sort of noise has to be made while the picture is showing."

To which is added by the editorial pen here:
 From this impression it does not appear that British exhibitors have a great deal to envy. Indeed, it would seem that so far as showmanship is concerned, America is not able to teach the old country a great deal."

Pathe May Build Near London

"Koenigsmark" Completed
 (Special to THE FILM DAILY)
 Paris—Leonce Perret has com- pleted "Koenigsmark" on which he has been working for some time in various European countries. ## THOUGHTS

By DANNY

Chicago—Out in the Windy City, en route to Hollywood, where they make them. Going to look them over. Trying to figure out what the schedule will be after Jan. 1. And for next season. Because something must happen. Or these faded film rolls must be replenished at a rate that will spell ruination some—perhaps to more than one be healthy.

Wangerism's

Who should be in Chicago but Walter Wanger. Remember some of Wanger's ideas—as printed last week? Well, Walter has a few more up his sleeve made coat sleeve. And here are:

"Too many producers are making pictures for the theaters that are being demolished instead of the theaters that are being constructed. Rentals will never come down—the only thing coming down is the 'nickelodion'."

ADJUSTMENT

"The business must adjust itself to the a la carte service or the exhibitors that have wasted Universal's 'Hunchback', Paramount's 'Covered Wagon'. They will never be satisfied with their table d'hôte gain."

Fears Politics

Laemmle Says Europe Wants Pictures But Warns of Effect of National Upheavals

Carl Laemmle returned from Europe late Friday night. The first thing he did on Saturday was to walk down Broadway, to the Astor theater and witness a performance of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

The Universal president tempered his observations of European film conditions with a certain restraint in view of political conditions on the other side. These conditions, he found, do not keep people out of the theaters but, contrary, Laemmle declares they are seeking more and more amusement. It is only the possible outcome of political upheavals with national disorders in the background that the film industry has to fear, in his contention.

Laemmle returned with his two children, Rosabelle and Julius; Abe Stern, Mrs. Stern, Harry Zehner, Laemmle's secretary and Estelle Cohen, a friend of Miss Laemmle's were also in the party. He was more inclined to talk about Universal than about conditions abroad. He said his organization had made rapid progress in Europe and ventured the opinion that Universal was second to none in the foreign field.

Competition

In Revolutionary Pictures Seen—Cosmopolitan to Have One—Griffith at Work—Harry Cohn, Too

Keen competition in Revolutionary War pictures is looked for in some quarters by late Winter or early Spring. It would appear now that there will be at least three pictures dealing with the highlights of that period of American history.

The one that has been widely talked about is "America," on which D. W. Griffith is now busy. He is at present shooting outdoor scenes for it in the hills of Putnam County making Somers, N. Y., his headquarters. For this portion of the story he is using about 1,000 extras.

While nothing has been said at Cosmopolitan, it is understood some tests have been made of possible actors for "Janice Meredith," a Revolutionary story, written by Robert W. Chambers, who incidentally is assisting Griffith on "America." No one at Cosmopolitan cared to talk about "Janice Meredith" yesterday, but it would not prove surprising to learn that Marion Davies had been cast for it, following completion of "Yolanda," her present vehicle.

If Cosmopolitan places the Cham-

Borzage Directing Norma? (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—It is reported that Frank Borzage will direct Norma Talmadge in "Secrets" and that Eugene O'Brien will play the leading male role.

Frank Borzage has been directing his own productions for First National. It was impossible to secure any information relative to the coast report on Saturday from either First National or the Schenck office.

In Another Goulding Story

Edmund Goulding has sold an original story, "The Beautiful City," to Inspiration for Richard Barthelmess, who had previously appeared in several other Goulding stories, including "Tol'able David" and "Fury." Goulding has also been engaged by Fox to adapt "The Fool."

Credit for the adaptation of "The Bright Lights of Broadway" has been given to Goulding, but it should go to Gerald Duffy.

Grainger Returns

James R. Grainger returned from a Mid-West sales trip on Saturday.

Rowland Warns

Sees a Crash Coming Unless Producers Rearrange Their Ideas About the Gross of Pictures

Richard A. Rowland issued a somewhat startling statement on Saturday—startling in that, contrary to the usual observations emanating from important film executives this one told some truths and told them plainly. Mr. Rowland has just returned from the coast where he watched the various units producing for First National release.

What he says is important. There is nothing that is in it that is particularly new to close observers of the trend in production in the past six months. Rowland warns and warns very strongly against what will happen in the event that producers do not change their ideas concerning the potential gross of their various pictures.

This is what he states: and in issuing his remarks, Rowland declares that he has made no pretense at disguising the real situation with a cloak of flimsy optimism:

"I gathered from my recent visit on the coast that there was an erroneous opinion amongst directors and producers about the gross business their pictures do. They will tell you sums of money that I know from a practical standpoint are impossible, and whether they are kidding themselves on these figures or really believe them, I am firmly of the opinion that these figures they have in mind—which are never done—have a tendency to materially increase the costs of pictures because in laying out production costs, they have these bogus figures of gross in their minds.

"Unless the distributors of motion pictures sit down and discuss with the directors and producers the real truth as to what the possibility of gross on pictures is, sooner or later directors, producers and distributors are apt to be sitting down with the sheriff trying to figure out what has happened. Intelligent enlightenment on this subject is very essential.

Los Angeles—Sam Jaffe has been made general manager for the Preferred. Fred Leahy has been made studio manager, Al Freudenmann, art director; Harry Strite, construction superintendent and Sid Street, purchasing agent.

Rowland Warns

"The trouble is that a few big pictures have gone to the heads of producers and directors and blinded them to the sober facts of the balance sheet. They are planning and working in terms of mythical grosses when the actual figures are about one half. Where are they going to get a return on this money?"

"Here is the situation: Motion Picture men have talked big figures until they have come to be accepted as facts, when in reality most of them are fiction. As a result pictures are being made at an excessive and unreasonable negative cost. The production bubble is going to be pricked by the bookkeeper's pen.

"Figure it out for yourself. During the past year, how many productions have actually grossed over $500,000? A few, but not many. Most assuredly they are the exception, not the rule. And it will be the same this season.

"We may divide pictures into three general classes, eliminating the big stars. There is the lowest grade, including productions that vary from poor to fair and may gross from $75,000 to $100,000; next, the high class average photoplay which comprises the great bulk of the yearly supply for the leading theaters and may be expected to gross from $300,000 to $400,000 top; and finally the unusual super-production which may pass the million mark.

"It is not difficult to foresee what will happen when producers with pictures that belong in the first or second class permit a negative cost warranted only by inclusion in the third class.

"During the past year the cost of making pictures has increased about twenty-five per cent, which is all the more reason why a sane policy such as that adopted by First National is essential. One important factor in this increase in production cost is the centralization of production in a comparatively small community where there is a limited number of directors and actors to draw upon. If there was more production in the East, thereby utilizing players who cannot be taken to the coast, greater variety in casting roles would ensue and salaries would equalize.

Baggott Starts "Blackmail"

bers story in production, it seems to be the opinion that this production and the Griffith picture will appear on the market at the same time.

Recently Harry Cohn announced in Los Angeles that he planned to film "The Life of George Washington," and that the important battle sequences would be shot in the East.

Deal Involves Over $1,000,000

"Just See 'Maytime'"

Preferred Pictures have a good stunt for "Maytime," a personal letter being used. Upon opening the letter an engagement ring falls out. The contents of the letter speaks for itself:

"Dearest:

"I am returning your ring and we must never see each other again.

"My eyes are filled with tears, and I am trying so hard to tell you why it is best we must part forever—but I can't. The words won't come.

"All I can say is that you will understand all if you will just (this finished the first page, it has created interest, and the reader certainly will turn over, finding this—) see that wonderful picture, 'Maytime.'

"It tells, oh so well, just what is in my heart. The love story of Harrison Ford, Ethel Shannon and Clara Bow is just like my own.

"It is a wonderful picture. See it and you will understand why. Though my heart is breaking, I am still your Sweetheart."

Miniature Stage An Attention-Getter

For the second week's showing of "The Spoilers," at the Capitol, the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan exploitation force used a window cut-out to attract attention.

The display was made by painting, on beaver board, the characters from the picture, shown in one of the fight stills. The figures were hand painted on the board and then cut out and mounted within the frame of an old oil painting. It showed the fight between Milton Sills and Noah Beery, with Robert Edeson holding the door against all comers. The display was lighted by a globe concealed behind the door, which reflected its light on those standing in the doorway; and by another light concealed behind the proscenium on the left, illuminating the figures of Sills and Beery. Painted curtains were shown at each end of the frame picture, giving it the appearance of a stage. This display was first used in a store window near the Capitol, and after the showing taken to the New York Exchange.

CHAPLIN

By DANNY

Chicago—The great comedian has taken himself seriously. He has produced "A Woman of Paris," which, lacking many of the touches which have made his name known all the world over as a great comedian, might easily be classified as "a good picture" with some unusual touches.

Chaplin's Name an Asset

Of course the name of Chaplin appearing on any picture is insurance for the theater which shows it. The crowd will want to see anything in which he is interested. But they will certainly expect comedy. And they will see very little of the comedy they expect in his latest production. That they will come in—yes, that they will like it when they come—that's a question.

Different? But—

That it is different from many pictures—yes. Undeniably. Very few producers would dare tackle the subject that Chaplin has, and treat it as he has done. If the women sympathize with the heroine it will be surprising. Men will understand it; if not there is no question. But what remains to be seen. There is a duel over the heroine from the very start. You almost get the impression that she is the "wrong kind" of girl. Then she is seen as the mistress of a wealthy Parisian. Incidentally Adolphe Menjou gives a performance as the man. There is a former lover finds himself kills himself because of her relations with Menjou. Over his dead body she is seen with his mother, and in the end is seen playing with children, indicating that she has reformed; although there is nothing shown to definitely register this.

Chaplin's Name

insures this distribution, and probably big receipts. Just how this will fare as a straight release with his name attached is an interesting question. But, regardless of this,

Abrams Carries On

Still United Artists Head Despite Reports Naming J. D. Williams—Fairbanks Talks

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The Examiner prints a report from New York to the effect that Hiram Abrams has resigned as president of United Artists and that J. D. Williams has succeeded him. This is what Douglas Fairbanks has to say regarding it:

"The story to the effect that J. D. Williams is to replace Hiram Abrams as president of United Artists is absolutely untrue. Mr. Abrams has not resigned and we have never even considered employment of Mr. Williams in any capacity. Not only has Mr. Abrams been a most successful executive, but there is a most close personal friendship between him and all other members of the United Artists."

When THE FILM DAILY called Abrams on the telephone yesterday, he at once said:

"I know. You are going to tell me that I have resigned. It's not so. I don't know where these rumors start from but there's nothing to it."

Abrams received a telegraphic report of the Examiner statement which declared that with Williams as head of United Artists, Rudolph Valentino would automatically become a United Artists star.

When Williams was reached yesterday, he declared there was absolutely no foundation for the report, that he had never even broached the matter; that no offer had been made to him and that he was busy enough carrying out the Valentino contract.

Distributors Admit Inflation

Exists In Exhibition Values

Zukor, Abrams, Pearson, Hodgkinson, Kane, Doolittle and Aronson Agree With R. A. Rowland—Williams and Morris Take Exception—Unusual Interest Aroused Over First National Executive's Outspoken Ideas About Pictures and Their Grosses

There was little effort made in New York yesterday to conceal the fact that inflation in exhibition values existed in the motion picture business. Following Richard A. Rowland's plain unvarnished statement that, unless distributors sit down and discuss with directors and producers the real truth as to what the possibility of gross on pictures is, these same folks may later find it necessary to talk things over with the sheriff, THE FILM DAILY sought statements from important distributors on what their opinions might be.

August Picks Up

Admission Taxes $420,000 Greater Than in July—Month's Total $5,560,748

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington — Taxes aggregating $5,560,748 were collected from admissions to theaters, concerts, etc., during the month of August, according to returns just made public by the Treasury Department. This was an increase of $420,000, as compared with July, when $5,140,506 was collected, and $850,000 as compared with August of last year, when collections totaled $4,710,470.

Collections from the seating tax on theaters and other places of amusement during August amounted to $420,344, an increase of $14,000 over those of August of last year, when $389,145 was collected.

Fredman Coming to America

Ernest W. Fredman, editor of "The Film Renter," one of the most important trade journals in England, sails for a short visit to America on the Adriatic, Oct. 13th. Fredman will observe the exhibition conditions in New York and make a tour of the principal cities of the country.

Harry Reichenbach is gathering together a committee to arrange a welcome-to-America luncheon in Fredman's honor upon his arrival.

Statements were secured from nine distributors and one exhibitor. Of the distributors, in the main, seven of them declared Rowland was right and many of them praised him for his courage in stating the facts as they are: J. D. Williams of Ritz Carlton and Sam Morris, of Warner Bros., took exception to the Rowland statement. The tenth emanated from Billy Brandt, of the M. P. T. O., of New York, who very decidedly stated Rowland was right. Universal and Fox were silent and Sydney S. Cohen promised to talk later on.

A mass of interesting ideas resulted from the inquiries. Those in complete sympathy with Rowland are:

Adolph Zukor, for Famous Players. Hiram Abrams, for United Artists. Elmer Pearson, for Pathe. Billy Brandt for the M. P. T. O., of N. Y. Arthur S. Kane for Associated Exhibitors. W. C. J. Doolittle, for Selznick. A. S. Aronson, for Truart Prod.

Their statements, in detail, will be found below:

Adolph Zukor said:

"When Mr. Rowland says that directors and producers have been misled by distributors as to the possible profits in pictures, he speaks the absolute truth and is to be congratulated for his frankness. I might add that the picture business is also to be congratulated on having again in its ranks a man of Mr. Rowland's frankness, honesty and square dealing.

the crowd of fans attracted by his name are in for a disappointment. They will expect a laugh; perhaps a lot of laughs. They will not get them, and they will be disappointed.

Stick to Your Last

Chaplin has said in interviews recently that he intended deserting his former place as a great comedian and taking up this new line of endeavor. There is a well worn expression with reference to "shoemaker, stick to your last." This might well be told to this great comedian. The world wants to laugh with him. Not at him.

First Come — First Served

No. 352, Straight-from-the-Shoulder-Talks by Carl Laemmle, President, Universal Pictures Corporation

ARE YOU HOLDING OFF YOUR BOOKINGS, HOPING RENTAL prices will come down?

THEY WON'T!

AT LEAST, UNIVERSAL PRICES WON'T COME DOWN. THIS year, as in every previous year, we have fixed them on the fairest basis we know of. We have fixed them on a basis that will yield us a fair profit but will not rob you nor squeeze you. We have fixed them on a live-and-let-live basis, and you can't beat that if you search fifty ways from the middle.

IF YOU ARE HOLDING OFF BECAUSE YOU THINK YOU CAN DO better later, don't include Universal in that reckoning. Book every Universal you can use and book it immediately. Take my word for it that the man who holds off will be worse off than you are, for he not only will not save a cent but he will lose the best money-making pictures of the year.

FIRST COME, FIRST SERVED. WE CAN'T AVOID GIVING CONTRACTS to your competitor if he is on the job before you are. When we invest huge sums of money to make the best possible pictures, we've got to work fast to get it back again. Competition is too keen. Other producers can't afford to stand gallantly aside and say to Universal, "You first, my dear Alphonse."

WE GIVE YOU THE BEST PROTECTION WE CAN. WE MAKE THE best pictures we know how to make, we fix fair and decent prices on them and that's all you can expect. You can't ask us to wait. We can't afford to. We've got to get these pictures booked and that's why the first to come is the first to get service.

CONTRACTS ARE POURING IN LIKE MAD, BUT STILL OUR salesmen report that some of you are inclined to hold off because you think the keen competition this year will force us to come down. You never made a bigger mistake in your life.

WE CAN'T COME DOWN. WE NEVER FIX A PRICE FOR THE purpose of cutting it down later. Our cards are always on the table. We can't come down until costs come down. They are terrific now and have been for a long time. We are trying to control them, but we can't do it alone. We've got to pay through the nose every time we turn around.

BUT WITH ALL THE HIGH COSTS, WE'VE GOT OUR MONEY'S worth because Universal has the pictures! The whole trade knows it and the whole trade knows that our prices are fair.

DON'T HOLD OFF ON UNIVERSAL! WE'VE GOT THE GOODS. We're going to sell them to someone. We're going to sell them at the prices already fixed. You've got nothing to gain by waiting. But if you lose the pictures at the prices we've fixed, YOU'VE LOST SOMETHING, BELIEVE ME!

—from Current Issue "Universal Weekly."

"The Acquittal" Powerful Mystery Drama, Soon Ready

"Thundering Dawn," One of Most Spectacular Thrillers of Years Also Soon Released

ONE of the most sensational mystery plays ever staged has been transferred by Universal into a fascinating, intriguing drama of the silversheet—a tense and thrilling mystery, the solution of which will defy the most clever among the fans of the screen. This is "THE ACQUITTAL," the Universal Super-Jewel in which Claire Windsor, Norman Kerry, Barbara Bedford and Richard Travers appear under the direction of Clarence Brown.

This production was adapted from the Cohan and Harris production of Rita Weiman's sensational play, and in its screen version is even more sensational than in its stage form. It will reach exhibitors as one of the really big productions of the year—a picture concerning which showmen can make big promises and live up to them.

Another great Super-Jewel included in Universal's Big Ten, and from which exhibitors all over the country expect big things, is "THUNDERING DAWN," a spectacular, thrilling, exciting melodrama of thrills and love. A cast headed by J. Warren Kerrigan, Anna Q. Nilsson, Tom Santschi and other screen notables under the direction of Harry Garson, have succeeded in producing one of the year's most spectacularly thrilling melodramas.

These two great productions, with "MERRY GO ROUND" and "A LADY OF QUALITY," a Hobart Henley Production, starring Virginia Valli, with Milton Sills and a great cast, comprise the four Super-Jewels which are included in the Big Ten, the group of pictures which for this year has overshadowed any other group in the industry.

Exhibitors were quick to appreciate this group, both on merits as box office material, and because of the tremendous amount of national advertising and publicity back of it. It is well known that the public demand for the Universal product this year is larger than ever before in history.

Universal One Reelers Popular

INCREASED bookings and pleased patronage has been the result of increased production plans for Universal One Reel Comedies, according to reports from all sections of the country. These sparkling comedies, featuring such popular stars as Neely Edwards, Bert Roach and Chuck Reisner, have proved to be among the most popular on the screen today.

Century Comedies Still Head the Field

Universal's announcement for coming Century Comedies indicates that in this field of amusement it is in a position to offer exhibitors a bigger, more varied, more popular program than ever before.

Baby Peggy, "the most talented child actress on the screen," popular Buddy Messinger, "Pal," the wonderful dog, Jack Earle and Roscoe Karns, famous fun-makers of the screen, as well as The Follies Girls, comprise Universal's remarkable Century Comedy line-up for 1923-24. As in the past they are the most consistent two-reel comedies on the market.

Concede Values Are Too High

Serious Situation

"It appears to me that the situation which Mr. Rowland describes can be summed up in the phrase 'chickens come home to roost.' It is a situation which for years has been known to all of us in the motion picture business—and it was brought about simply and solely by the tactics of unscrupulous distributors who sought to lure stars and leading directors away from their old associations by golden promises built upon misinformation as to the money that could be obtained from their pictures.

"Bewailing the fact won't do anybody any good at this late day. The thing that should concern us now is the remedy. This remedy rests entirely in the hands of the leaders of this business. It consists simply of honesty and fair dealing toward one's competitors—a policy which does not admit of giving false promises and misleading information to stars and directors with the view toward causing them to break their existing contracts.

"As I say, I agree with Mr. Rowland absolutely, but he has stated something which has been true since the first distributor, armed with lies and false promises, raided his competitor's studio for stars and directors."

Hiram Abrams:

"Mr. Rowland's statement is the best thing I have read in THE FILM DAILY for over a year. There is nothing I can add to it. He has spoken the truth and in a direct straight-from-the-shoulder manner. Mr. Rowland has spoken in a concise, clear manner and every word of it is so. It is not often in the motion picture business that we get such outspoken language."

J. D. Williams of Ritz-Carlton Pictures:

"I have just returned from the coast and I make the unqualified statement that I have never known so large a number of producers so satisfied with things in general as I found in California. The attitude seems to be that if they don't get their money back, they will have learned a lesson. If a legitimate producer sinks $100,000 in a show and it doesn't go, he merely discards it and throws it into the warehouse.

"There are $130,000,000. collected in rentals in this country yearly. I venture to say that 'Robin Hood' has already grossed $2,500,000. That's only one picture and it takes in as much as probably 15 pictures did in the old days. There is a radical change bound to occur.

"Let me say that no experience is a experience unless it is paid for. Producers are making big pictures, which are just beginning to reach the market. They will continue to do so."

Pointing Out the Danger

As far back as last Spring, Danny pointed out the danger that faced the industry in soaring production costs. He has emphasized the point more than ever of late. Only recently, in the issue of Sept. 6, appeared this:

"Production costs that have soared. Exhibition values that are sky-high. Exhibitors who refuse to advance prices. And consequently claim they cannot run the big pictures and make any money. (They don't tell how they can make money with little ones. Can they?) With sales organizations facing chaos. With producers clamoring for more rentals through distributing agencies.

"Is this the beginning of the storm? Is the prophecy of six months ago in sight?"

"Gentlemen, it's something to think about."

And on Sept. 9 this:

"It's easy enough to talk of million dollar pictures. But it's tough going to get it in. Ask any distributor. And here—as well as any other time—you might as well accept this: many pictures scheduled to get that million won't make the grade. No matter how fine; how big. True they cost enough to demand that return (some won't make a penny profit when that million arrives). But to get it is a question."

Close on the heels of that, he remarked on Sept. 13:

"Others (pictures) because of their splendor, sets, or whatnot, will get a certain quota. But not the quota set by the distributor.

"All quotas for the big pictures of the season are too high. This, while a broad statement, will be verified six or nine months from now."

And as recently as last Tuesday, this:

"The pressure is on. Every sales force in the business is feeling it. The millions that are in production must come back to the producer. And the distributing end is feeling the jam. This is only September. What will it be by February?"

"Who knows it? Where will it be found? Will it mean productions of lower costs for the coming season? Or will the standard set be continued—or improved—if such is possible.

"Last March—writing from the Coast—the expression was: 'Gentlemen; it's something to think about.'

"That question might again be asked—not impertinently—just seriously."

Elmer R. Pearson, of Pathe, said:

"Mr. Rowland is probably one of the very few men representing the distributors who has the courage to tell the producers the truth of the situation. The average representative of distributors in talking to producers fails to tell what may be really expected in the way of returns, because he is afraid the producer will feel there is a lack of efficiency or a lack of optimism.

"Some distributors' agents, or quondam distributors' agents, or those who may some day hope to be distributors, disseminate a good deal of information that they know can't be possibly true. It is too bad there are not more practical men in this business like Rowland. I have the greatest admiration for his courage.

"There is no question in the world but that what he says is the truth. Distributors are setting their figures much too high with the result that the returns on almost all pictures are disappointing.

"I wish there were more in this business who would have the courage to tell of their convictions as they know them to exist."

W. W. Hodkinson said:

"Of course, I have recognized the situation. I see no great value in merely acknowledging that such a condition exists. It is, perhaps, more important to suggest ways and means of relieving the situation.

"Such matters exist, perhaps, because there is no co-operation in the various elements of the business. We find the exhibitors pulling in one direction and the distributors in another, with the latter chiefly interested in unloading everything they can on the exhibitor."

Billy Brandt, president of the M. P. T. O. of New York State said:

"I congratulate Dick Rowland. At last the real truth in this business. It is indeed refreshing.

"It is about time that someone took the water out of production and exhibitors got pictures nearer their cost. Mr. Rowland declares that 'The trouble is that a few big pictures have gone to the heads of producers and directors and blinded them to the sober facts of the balance sheet.' True enough and when producers do think they have big pictures, whether they are or not, they insist on Broadway showings for them. The result is that, this year especially, exhibitors were forced to open their fall season with mediocre pictures and in some cases, reissues instead of with specials and a big smash.

All the big pictures are one way and many of them are being or have run at no profit class, I would place 'The Goddess,' 'Ashes of Vengeance,' and 'If Winter Comes.' The exhibitors would have been They would have started it with a rush."

Arthur S. Kane, president associated Exhibitors, said:

"This condition has been about by the fact that, with ceptions, the highest grossing have been those of high 'The Birth of a Nation,' at set a record cost for its day, lowed with the most ph earnings ever known. And been down through the 'Four mens,' the 'Robin Hoods,' 'Ered Wagons.'

"The conclusion from th easily reached that all that sary to secure high grosses is money. This does not necessarily mean that the market today understands calls for high cost pictures, except in the cases of three or four of the greatest stars and directors in the world, it seems to me the market now is in making pictures at cost much more than $100,000, with such other elements available, which cost much more than $100,000.

In other words, the safest investment in pictures today seems to me to be one that cost from $100,000 to $200,000. Such pictures, if the money is expended for the elements of popularity which commercially successful pictures must have, stand a chance to gross from $500,000 to $700,000 or $800,000, except possibly those made by a few stars and directors who can be capitalized for higher prices. Morris, speaking for Warner Bros. decided objection to what was stated. He said:

and has no right disseminating information to the public because a wrong impression is bound to be created about the picture business. It also places a decided club on the hands of both exhibitors and distributors and the Lord knows, the industry has enough alibis now to explain why he isn't coming through with the business expected of him.

Great pictures can gross large figures if the returns are good. I can't see the industry hollering 'wolf' until you're

J. Doolittle, president of the National Distributing said:

A full analysis of the warning issued by Richard A. Rowland through the columns of THE FILM DAILY is in almost complete agreement with the points which he has made. We, too, are of the opinion that the picture business is all together too much of a mirage in this matter of estimating possible grosses on pictures to be produced and distributed, and that too sanguine estimates have a direct bearing on production costs.

"In the past, excessive and unreasonable negative, costs have been the rule rather than the exception and, as Mr. Rowland so aptly puts it, 'the production bubble is going to be pricked by the bookkeeper's pen.'

"As I wrote you last week, we are governing our activities so as to correct these two destructive features of the business. In guaranteeing negative costs to our producers, we first make a detailed analysis of these costs so that we are certain that the amount of money to be expended on our production is justifiable and necessary. Our estimates on probable grosses are in the hands of our Department of Sales and Distribution and are based on a comprehensive knowledge of picture values, backed by the experience of years in estimating what is procurable in the way of revenue for any given type of pictures."

A. A. Aronson of Truart said:

"The surprising thing about Mr. Rowland's statement in today's issue is that it was not made a year or more ago, because it could have been said then equally as well as now.

"To my way of thinking the distributor is more to blame than the producer—in the distributor's anxiety to release worthwhile product, he has often stressed the ability of his organization, thereby giving the producer an erroneous conception of the possible gross.

"Great pictures will always get big returns, but they are few and far between and when a picture actually grosses upwards of $500,000.00, it is a great picture."

An effort to secure a statement from Fox failed, since both Mr. Fox and Winfield R. Sheehan insisted on adhering to their well-known policy of silence on matters of this kind.

Sydney S. Cohen said that he had in preparation a statement along the lines touched on by Rowland, but that it was not yet ready for publication. He promised it later.

At Universal, it was declared that it was felt Rowland's remarks did not apply in that quarter and that therefore there would be no statement."

"The Extra Girl"—Asso. Exhibitors—Mission, Los Angeles

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Consensus of newspaper opinions on "The Extra Girl," Mabel Normand's first picture for Associated Exhibitors at the Mission, follows:

EXPRESS—* * * It did seem that the case of the movie-struck girl had been exhausted. But in "The Extra Girl," Mr. Sennett has given her story from the comedy lot angle, in novel and entertaining manner.

The story is interestingly mixed of a generous portion of melodrama, an even larger quantity of comedy and a pinch of pathos. These are well stirred and done to a nicety, with Mabel Normand served as sauce. She is at her comedic best, with here and there a tear shining in her roguish eyes.

EXAMINER—You'll find Mabel Normand at her old time best in "The Extra Girl." * * * In this newest Mack Sennett production the notable little comedienne devotes herself almost entirely to making you laugh. The whole play is built for entertainment, and it's made up of comedy episodes and those tender little touches which show the vibrant Mabel in her most rib-tick-ling mood, as Sennett only has ever been able to present her on the silver sheet.

HERALD—If you like Mabel Normand—nearly everyone does, even the movie folk, who are said to be hard to arouse—then you are going to thrill over her in her latest picture, "The Extra Girl," Mack Sennett's tender story of the little girl who tried to become a film star—but failed. * * *

Just passing on the picture briefly, I might say that it is one of Mabel's greatest efforts in one of the greatest stories which Mack Sennett has written for her.

TIMES—There were lots of laughs, no end of chuckles and giggles, and a warm hand-clapping for the principals. * * *

I don't say that "The Extra Girl" is a true sketching of motion-picture life. It offers its share of hokum. Even the old comedy gags are thrown in for good measure, and there's some of the plot that wouldn't hold molasses, let alone water. Some of the picture needs pruning, and the title isn't exactly justified, because the heroine never appears to become even a full-fledged extra. * * * Mabel is as her very best.

RECORD—And Mabel, with the eyes of a Madonna and the mouth of a mischievous she-devil, can do things with your emotions that Mary Pickford nor Mae Marsh nor Lillian Gish could do better. * * *

Anyhow "The Extra Girl" is the best thing Mabel or Jones or Sennett has done collectively or individually.

Novel Hunt at Astor Theater

Marc Lachman, exploiting "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at the Astor conceived a novel idea in the display that adorns the Theater front. Under the heading of "Everybody's Talking about The Hunchback of Notre Dame" photographic reproductions of all critics on the New York Dailies are in evidence with clippings of their review opposite the picture of the critic. This idea is causing talk in and out of the trade.

S. J. Vogel, Western Division manager for Hodkinson who came from San Francisco for conference is now en route home. He is now in the Far West picture business in the Far West wonderful and is optimistic outlook for the fall and winter.

He declares crops were better along the Pacific coast this season, although existing prices considerably below what they were a year or so ago. Raisins are selling at four cents a pound as compared to eight and nine, and in some instances as high as 11 cents. Apples are selling at $30 a ton, a high mark of $130 per ton ago. Grapes today are selling about $35 a ton as compared to $100.

"The West, especially California," says Vogel, "is experiencing a boom of building activity, which does not, however, include much in the way of theater construction. As a matter of fact the coast region is at present over-seated and a period of adjustment is under way."

During his stay in New York, Vogel completed arrangements for the home office for the opening of new branch exchanges in Portland, Ore., and Butte, Mont.

H. L. Burnham will be in charge of the Butte office and Claude Vogel will be in charge of the Portland office.

DEVELOP

By DANNY

Chicago—Help this business develop, says Aaron Jones. And Aaron Jones knows whereof he speaks. He is one of the men who, by long experience, knows this business. And the fortune accumulated by his partners and himself proves this. Incidentally shares with Sam Katz the glory of being one of the biggest exhibitors in the second largest city of this country.

You cannot expect this business to develop, is his idea, unless admission prices advance with the bigger and better pictures.

Times Have Changed

Too much, he declares, not to have the whole industry understand it. "There was a day," he says, "when it was easy to charge 10 cents and see money with the kind of pictures released. But that day has passed long ago. And it will never come back. Every other line of business has increased prices as the product developed. It was only a few years ago when you could buy a good pair of shoes for $3.50. Try to do it today. That applies to pictures just the same. There was a time when you could produce a picture so that when the exhibitor paid it for a dime he, as well as the producer, made money. That is true today.

"The exhibitor who refuses to see the need of advancing his admissions belongs to the old school. There is no place for him in this business. It is moving too fast." That is Aaron Jones' thought.

And it is worth thinking a lot about.

Rowland's Remedy

Carefully Planned Production, But Not Stint in Cost Will Reduce Overhead, He Declares

"Sixty-five per cent of any production is in the preparation and that is the place to save the money," declared Richard A. Rowland of First National yesterday when he was asked what his organization was doing to bring down exhibition values to a semblance of normalcy.

"It is, of course, the wrong thing to do to attempt to save money in production when the subject is a big one. That is not the idea. The trick is to spend what a story is worth, $500,000 if necessary. On the coast, the First National units are working on a methodical system. There is no wild waste of money. The picture is carefully planned before the camera crank is turned. The actual number of shooting days is figured out as nearly possible. It is in the time consumed to shoot the picture with an expensive cast on hand that eats up money in production.

Mid-West Exhibitors May Form New Body, Aside From M. P. T. O.

Dissatisfaction Over Cohen's Handling of Legislative Matters the Reason—French Lick the Meeting Place, but Date is Undecided—Eastern Leaders to Be Invited, According to Present Indications

Advices from the Middle West indicate that a new territorial organization of exhibitors is planned to embrace Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota. It is for this reason, it is believed, that Illinois has sponsored the meeting to be held at French Lick at a date as yet undetermined.

Chicago reports received yesterday declared that, while Illinois had taken no definite action on withdrawing from the M. P. T. O., such a move would not be at all unexpected. If this occurs, that organization would, of course, find itself free to amalgamate with any new body that may be created.

Weiss a Producer

Arranges Series Abroad—Plans to Release Ten Annually—Sees Good Year Ahead

Alfred Weiss, president of Artclass Pictures Corp., who returned from Europe last week, arranged for the production of a limited number of features abroad. He will handle the American distribution. Weiss plans to release 10 a year and expects to have the first in this country in about two weeks. It is being made in Austria.

In speaking of conditions abroad, he said that, despite reports to the contrary, Europe is not demoralized and added:

"One impression struck me forcibly and is still clearly retained in my mind—the attitude of the people in Europe. There is such a seriousness to rehabilitate, and an indefatigable striving for bettering one's conditions, an avid desire to 'do business' that one is amazed at such heroism at such a time, when internal discord and the fluctuation of currency exists. But

Loew Still in Chicago

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Marcus Loew who came on from New York to attend the premier of "Scaramouche," is still here. He expects to return East in a few days.

The scheme, as the details reached New York, call for a body outside of the Cohen association and one that will confine itself to activities in that section of the country only. It would come as no surprise to find such men as Billy Brandt of New York, Jake Wells of Virginia, H. B. Varner of North Carolina and C. C. Griffin of California at the meeting when it convenes.

There was considerable conjecture at the time the call was issued concerning the reason for such a conference. Many of the problems to be taken up at French Lick were in the hands of the national organization and in some quarters queries were raised as to why similar discussions should be undertaken by a group, part of which at least was identified with the national M. P. T. O.

Sydney S. Cohen was asked about this yesterday. In answer he turned over to THE FILM DAILY a letter sent to him by Ludwig Siegel, secretary of the Illinois M. P. T. O. in which Ludwig said:

"At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Illinois M. P. T. O.

this attitude contains a current of optimistic faith, assurance of ultimate content and a gradual improvement stabilized, lots of money is being made.

"All this indicates a good year for the picture business. At such a pace one must seek recourse to some sort of distraction and the cinema offers an inexpensive inducement to the normal pleasure seeker.

"Production there is not at its height owing to insufficient capital, nevertheless there is some activity. I was amazed at the innovations I saw at some studios and were space illimitable, I could cite very interesting examples. Thus their domestic production languishing somewhat, the tendency is towards an increasing demand for American pictures.

"Serious attempts are being made by ambitious picture impressarios to impress upon the people the importance and artistry of the present status of cinema and despite the dearth of picture theaters, owing to wartime restrictions (all building of theaters having been prohibited) whatever theaters were available have been converted to the exhibition of pictures of merit and appeal."

Plan Large Chicago House

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Plans have been drawn and work is announced to start within two months on a 2,300 seat theater, store, and office building at the southwest corner of Robey and Archer, to cost $500,000 and to be owned and operated by H. Schoenstadt & Sons as the Archer. The site fronts 250 feet on Archer and 125 on Robey.

The new playhouse will supplant the present 800 seat Archer Theater, which may be remodeled into a garage. There are now five Schoenstadt theaters in Chicago, the Archer, Atlantic, Boulevard, Halfield, and the Brighton Park.

O., it was suggested that a joint meeting of the officers and directors of the Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota and Illinois theater owners, at a place convenient to all, be arranged in the near future for the purpose of a closer cooperation between these state units.

"It is not our purpose to tear down, but to stand together to accomplish things of so vital importance to all of us, such as eliminating the road-showing of features, admission taxes, and other evils we have to contend with.

"We are under the impression that much could be accomplished by the united efforts of these various state organizations without antagonizing the national organization."

Cohen also declared that it was his understanding that the Mid-West conference was framed without any intention of electing officers or in any way forming an association separate from the M. P. T. O.

Question Goes to Arbitrator

An outside arbitrator will be selected by the T. O. C. C. and the operators' union to settle a question which has arisen over the wage increase for operators in Brooklyn theaters where were employed men belonging to a union, formerly independent but now part of Local No. 306. The wage scale in Brooklyn was lower than in New York and now that the T. O. C. C. has submitted to increases ranging from 7 1/2% to 15%, Local 306 officials declare the increases as they affect Brooklyn will be from 17 to 33%.

Rowland's Remedy

Experience has shown that production can be commercialized. Of course, there is art in it and that is it should be, but certainly business methods can be introduced and schedules so arranged that money is not worn away carelessly".

Arthur S. Friend of Distinctive yesterday joined the ranks of important executives who expressed a sympathy for Rowland's ideas. This is what he had to say:

Rowland's statement in Monday's FILM DAILY is interesting, as most of his statements are. 'Mythical losses' were invented for the sole purpose of weaning directors and producers away from production organizations, and if anybody has been fooled by them, it should not have been the producers who are regularly engaged in the motion picture business. Of course, if the elimination of the 'mythical gross' will affect a reduction in the cost of production, every effort should be made to eliminate it. However, one would think that now the legitimate producer knows that the cost of production has no bearing on the value of a picture, and can make a big picture out of a big subject, and whether you are going to make money out of it will depend upon how wisely and with how much sane economy you produce. The public is not one which is interested in how much the picture costs, it is interested only in whether the picture is or is not good entertainment. Obviously then, you cannot make a big picture out of a small, unimportant, uninteresting subject. Using mobs doesn't help; using massive sets doesn't help; and paying the cast and technical force more than they are worth doesn't help.

Just as soon as those who waste cause waste in production are realized by being made to suffer a proportion of the losses you will see an end of extravagance in production. Some day perhaps we will see universal percentage booking, then when a picture really returns to the producer what the public deems it to be worth, and the producer, be he star, director or corporation, takes the profit or the loss out aid from the distributor, there will be a complete elimination of extravagance and waste on the production side. Meantime there are important things that can be done, and the least of these is Rowland's suggestion to decentralize production. Incidentally too, the producers help the situation by a careful avoidance of the use of cost figures. Telling the world that any given picture cost any given sum of money to produce, does not help in the effort to keep the directors within reasonable bounds in their current productions.

Al Lichtman said:—

"I agree absolutely with Mr. Rowland. He has stated a fact that has been known a long time in the industry, by most distributors. However, one of the big perplexing problems of distributors is to get producers to realize that every picture cannot be a million dollar picture but at the same time to keep up the producer's enthusiasm during the course of production so that he will put into it every ounce of producing knowledge that he has. Every producer when he starts to make a picture believes that this one is going to break into the million dollar class.

"The big thing is to impress on producers the fact that the mere expenditure of money doesn't make a picture of big box-office value. Production costs must be consistent with the advance estimate of the box-office value of each particular subject. One hundred thousand dollars is the danger line for the average good picture unless the subject matter or star has selling value justifying the high cost.

"Mr. Rowland has clearly and honestly brought to the notice of the trade a subject that a good many have thought about but that no one heretofore has expressed so definitely. He deserves the thanks of all."

Alfred Weiss, former vice-president of Goldwyn and now head of Artclass Pictures declared that Rowland was absolutely right in gauging the present tendency to inflate exhibition values:

"How many pictures", he asked, "have grossed the $1,000,000 quotas their sponsors talk about? The pressure begins at the home office and then extends from the distributors down the line to the branch managers. The branch manager will send in a contract for $500 for a certain picture for a certain territory and promptly the home office will return it with a notation to get $750 for it because the high valuation set on that particular production must be met.

"It is merely a quotation of overselling all along the line. The distributor paints a too rosy picture for the producer and then endeavors to draw the impossible in rentals from the exhibitor."

Goldburg Leaves for Coast

Joseph J. Goldburg, president of Independent Pictures Corp., has left for Los Angeles, to supervise the making of his first two releases. He intends to remain there for about three months.

In his way west he will visit all the exchange centers between here and the west coast north of Kansas and on his return east he will visit in the exchanges operating in the south.

Miami, Fla.—Wray Physioc has started work on "The Dreamers" at the Miami studios at Hialeah.

Macloon a Stage Producer

Louis O. Macloon, who has resigned as director of advertising and publicity for Cosmopolitan, will enter the production end of the legitimate field. His first show will be "Regular People."

At Broadway Theaters

Capitol

"Marche Slav" is the overture. Next comes "Nut-cracker Suite," a musical dance number in five units; namely, (a) "Valse des Fleurs," (b) "Danse Chinoise," (c) "Danse Arabe," (d) "Danse des Mirlitons," and (e) "Danse Russe-Trepack," in which the entire Capitol Ballet Corps participates. "Gems of American Scenery," a Hodge Podge; "Miserere," from "Il Trovatore," sung by Madame Elsa Stralia and William Robyn, and the usual Magazine Reel, follow. "In Our Broadcasting Studio," in which is presented some of the artists who broadcast over the radio for the Capitol theater, is staged just before the feature appears, Marshall Neilan's, "The Eternal Three." An organ solo is last.

Forty-Fourth Street

"Scaramouche," is the featured. An overture selection is the only other number on the bill.

Lyric

Charles Chaplin's "A Woman of Paris," featuring Edna Purviance, is the feature at this house.

Rivoli

Film numbers include, Buster Keaton in his first feature-length comedy, "Three Ages," the Rivoli Pictorial, "Pictorial Potpourri," a novel screen number consisting of "The Chase of Reynard, the Killer," and "Felix Gets Broadcasted," a Pat Sullivan cartoon. The musical units are two: "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," the overture, and Riesenfeld's Classical Jazz. "Blue Danube Waltz," by the Serova Dancers, and a living tableau of the famous painting, "Beethoven's Sonata," complete the program.

At Other Houses

"The White Sister" has moved from the Forty-Fourth Street theater to the Ambassador to continue indefinitely there. "Ashes of Vengeance" is now playing the Rialto. "Potash and Perlmutter" remains at the Strand, while "The Call of the Wild" is in its second week at the Cameo. The regular long runs remain practically the same, i. e., "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Astor; "Monna Vanna," at the Central; "Little Old New York," at the Cosmopolitan; "The Covered Wagon," at the Criterion, and The Times Square with "If Winter Comes."

Branch Managers Meet

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Atlanta—Branch managers and exploiters of the Paramount offices in six states met here Monday to discuss the new policy of test-runs and formulate a plan to foster closer cooperation between exchanges and exhibitors. Those who attended were:

J. B. Dugger, Dallas; C. E. Peppiat, Charlotte; Scotty Chestnutt, Jacksonville; C. M. Peacock, Oklahoma City; Harold Wilkes, New Orleans; Dave Prince, Atlanta; Ernest Dawson, of the district office and the following exploiters; C. L. Winston, Harry Swift and H. W. "King" Fisher.

Thieves Busy in St. Louis

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—Local theaters were hard hit by safe-blowers last week. Three cracksmen invaded William Goldman's Kings theater, blew open the safe, securing $700 in cash and $700 in negotiable interest coupons. The force of the explosion jammed the door of an extra compartment of the safe which contained $9,000, the greater part of the receipts for Saturday and Sunday.

On Thursday burglars broke into the National Film Publicity Studios, and secured $350 in cash, but left behind $10,000 worth of cameras and lenses and $40,000 in negatives. On Friday the combination of the safe of the Cinderella was knocked off and $60 taken from the strong-box.

Jackson Meeting Soon

Many Important Discussions to Take Place, Among Them The Non-Theatrical Situation

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—The annual convention of the Michigan M. P. T. O., to be held at Jackson, Oct. 16 and 17, promises to be a red letter event. Two outstanding features of the meeting will be a solution of the non-theatrical situation and adjustment of the music tax.

The non-theatrical invasion is so serious in this territory, that exhibitors want the affair settled once and for all, although they do not mean to eliminate it entirely.

J. C. Rosenthal, head of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, will be present to discuss the music tax situation. It is expected that the committee representing the publishers and those who will act for the exhibitors will work out a solution, and until then, no suits will be filed by the publishers.

Programs as Fan Journals

A program that is also a fan magazine is the latest innovation that Hugo Riesenfeld has introduced at his theaters. Issued as the "Rialto Times" and "Rivoli Times," these miniature publications aim to keep the audiences informed on what is happening. The demand for these novelty programs is such that the circulation has exceeded 90,000 weekly during the six weeks they have been published, says Riesenfeld.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

"Mothers'-in-Law" Day

Among the early entries for the Al Lichtman prize offer of $100 and $50 to exhibitors who put over the best campaign on "Mothers-in-Law," are Haring and Blumenthal, who played the picture at their Lincoln theater. Gerald Gallagher, advertising manager for Haring and Blumenthal, inaugurated a local "Mothers-in-Law Day" for the occasion, by proclamations in the program, lobby and newspapers.

The Hudson Dispatch solicited local merchants, with the result that a co-operative full page of ads was obtained. Furniture, automobile, electric, clothing, and specialty dealers, and jewelers, restaurants and others came in on the full page, with the suggestion that everybody should buy something for his mother-in-law. Part of the page was devoted to an ad from the picture, and for this Gallagher used the regular four column newspaper ad from the Preferred press book. The advertising all carried the announcement that all mothers-in-law would be admitted free if accompanied by their son-in-law or daughter-in-law. The papers co-operated liberally with publicity on the picture and on the "Mothers-in-law" Day idea.

"Presenting" a Photoplay

That there is room for improvement and advancement in overtures, and that this improvement and advancement is appreciated by patrons and works out beneficially for the box office, is the belief of Eddie L. Hyman, of the Brooklyn Mark Strand.

When "Dulcy," was the feature. Hyman used Tschaiikowsky's "1812" as the overture, to contrast with the nature of the picture. For this impressive number, special scenic and lighting effects were used, which lifted it out of the "overture" class as generally known and placed it in the "presentation" class. Its effectiveness was improved greatly.

As the overture opened, the new llama cloth curtains at the proscenium arch were closed, and on them were thrown four floods (two from projection booth and two from the dome) the colors of which were orange, rose, pink, deep blue and ember, making a rich color blend on the brilliant cloth, with the audience looking through at the faintly visible orchestra.

At the battle theme in the overture these floods dimmed out, the curtains were opened and a scenic effect of the city of Moscow was shown on the presentation stage, bursting into flames at the climax. As the music lulled, the silver cloth curtains were drawn over the presentation stage, and upon them were thrown light pink Mestrum floods from the dome, augmented by light green and orange floods from the booth.

Uses K. K. K. Angle

Nashville, Tenn.—An effective exploitation campaign was conducted recently for "Three Ages," when that picture played Loew's Vendome.

The campaign was arranged by C. D. Haug, Metro, and was based on the K. K. K. stunt mentioned in the Metro press book.

In addition to posters, window displays, and newspaper advertising, the most effective element was the mail campaign. This was conducted in the following manner:

Fully a week before the opening of the picture, Nashvillities were curiously aroused one morning to find in their mail a letter with the following written in bold red letters over the entire page:

"Prepare. K. K. K. Is Coming!"

The following day they received another inscription of the same sort. This time it read:

"Nashville Will Soon Know The Power of K. K. K."

By this time curiosity had turned to the keenest anticipation not unmixed with a little anxiety, just enough however, to make K. K. K. the talk of the entire city, wherever two people got together the conversation immediately turned to the K. K. K. warnings found in the morning mail. A few days elapsed to permit the K. K. K. slogan to take root. The newspapers were now appearing with teaser ads, white letters on black background, with the same legend. Another teaser letter, printed as the others in beg red letters was sent out. This one announced the place and the date where K. K. K. was coming. There was still no hint anywhere of what the letters represented. Then on the next day the secret was let out, by a letter reading:

"Keaton's Kolossal Komedy. Buster Keaton's First 6 Reel Laughter Riot: 'Three Ages,' Loew's Vendome—Week of Sept. 10th."

This was followed up with another letter on the day of the opening, announcing that K. K. K., Buster Keaton's Kolossal Komedy, "Three Ages" was now playing at Loew's Vendome.

One of the rules on the blank reads: that there shall be no initiation fee and that all dues shall be 25, 35 and 50 cents, payable at the box-office of the Regent. Twenty-five, thirty-five and fifty cents represent the Regent's admission scale.

To Sue Lloyd

Owen Davis Alleges Plagiarism in "Why Worry?"—Comedian Denies All Allegations

Brien, Malevinsky and Driscoll, attorneys for Owen Davis, the playwright, are preparing to institute a suit for an accounting of the earnings of "Why Worry?" against Harold Lloyd. Davis will allege that "Why Worry?" was plagiarized from "The Nervous Wreck," a new Davis play, which is scheduled to open in New York next week.

Recently, John C. Ragland, Eastern representative for Harold Lloyd, was called into a conference in the office of Sam Harris, at which were present Owen Davis, Bob Davis, of the Muncie publications, who interested Owen Davis in dramatizing the short story from which "The Nervous Wreck" eventually came into being Hal Roach. According to Ragland, at that meeting, Davis said "Why Worry?" was an infringement of his play and declared that notwithstanding a withdrawal of the picture would prove acceptable. The manuscript of the play was turned over to Ragland for perusal and comparison with the picture. "The Nervous Wreck" was first produced in New York on the coast where Roach witnessed the performance. Ragland declares that Roach made an offer for the picture rights, but that he was unable to get them as they were not available.

It was agreed at the meeting that a decision of some sort would be reached by October 1st. Ragland communicated with the Lloyd interests on the coast and as a result, (Continued on Page 2)

Engineers Meeting in Ottawa

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Ottawa—The Society of Motion Picture Engineers is now holding its annual convention at the Chateau Laurier. One of the outstanding figures at the conference is C. Francis Jenkins of Washington, an inventor and father of the Society. Jenkins is fighting with him tangible evidence of the progress which he is making in the transmission of still photographs by radio, a number of actual pictures being exhibited as an indication of the work that has been accomplished. Announcement was also made that Jenkins has been at work for a considerable period on the plan of transmitting motion pictures by wireless. The broadening of moving pictures can be accomplished, in the opinion of this author.

Combination Shows

Planned By Pyramid—Each Picture to Carry Sketch With Same Players in It

Arthur N. Smallwood, of Pyramid Pictures, Inc., stated yesterday his company will enter at once upon a combination production policy whereby each motion picture will be supplemented by a dramatic sketch, played in person by the featured players in the film and depicting one of the highlights from the picture or by a musical and dancing act concocted from the picture.

This combination show will be booked only in the principal key centers and will be given intensive local exploitation before and during its showing. Subsequent runs will be booked as a straight picture attraction.

Pyramid will confine its negative costs to $150,000. There will be six pictures produced during the present season, the first a melodrama somewhat similar to the "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," to be directed by Ray Smallwood. This will be exploited in conjunction with a high grade musical and dancing act. The company will book its combination attractions direct to first run accounts in principal cities and will hold up the release of the picture in each territory until after the first run exploitation has been played.

Inspiration Signs May McAvoy

Inspiration yesterday announced May McAvoy had been placed under contract to appear in "The Enchanted Cottage," opposite Richard Barthelmess and that the contract also covered an option on her future services.

As noted earlier in the week, Miss McAvoy may be later starred by this organization.

Reisman Slated for Promotion

It is understood that Phil Reisman, at present district manager for Famous Players in Minneapolis, is slated for a promotion in that organization. No one at Famous cared to discuss the matter yesterday.

Clark Leaves First National

Ralph H. Clark, for six years associated with First National, as New York Exchange manager, and recently as Eastern District manager, has tendered his resignation to that organization, effective Oct. 7. Clark plans to return to his native state, California.

Washington—The formation of a new exhibitor organization to be free of politics with a membership of twenty-six, provided by representation of each exchange territory by one man, was the principal topic of discussion at a meeting of the M. The proposal was made by Jake Wells, of Richmond, who outlined his plan briefly, the intention being to hold another meeting, at which time details would be gone into. He explained, delegates incurred in attending meetings in the Washington office would be defrayed from a fund contributed by the various constituent organizations. Similarly the expenses of the Washington executive and such clerical assistant as he might require would be paid.

R. W. Carrington, attorney for the Virginia association, reported to the meeting the status of the music tax cases, and a motion was adopted leaving the matter in the hands of the executive committee to provide a means for satisfactorily compromising the matter. It developed that there are some exhibitor members who are not in accord with the proposal to compromise, but a recommendation will be made to them later that they join in the compromise that may be entered into as between the executive committee and the legal representatives of the authors' and composers' association.

The Richmond attorney also expressed himself in favor of the censorship, which is exercised by the State of Virginia over films shown in its theaters. He said that there was a moral obligation upon the exhibitors of Virginia which should rise above any desire to get rich from the business, or to obtain enough extra money with which to buy a new automobile. He added that a considerable proportion of the theater patrons are men and women with impressionable minds. Carrington added that inasmuch as the theater patrons looked to the exhibitors to furnish motion pictures of a certain standard, these exhibitors have an advantage in being able to sidestep responsibility for the pictures they show.

Harry M. Crandall, who operates a number of theaters in the District of Columbia, Maryland and West Virginia, explained the workings of the grievance committee, to which both the exhibitors and the exchange managers may take such differences as arise between them which cannot be otherwise amicably settled. He declared that the committee had been very successful in its work.

Those present at the meeting included Elmer D. Heins, Rialto, American and Park, Roanoke; E. T. Craal, Rialto, Imperial and Strand, Newport News; I. Weinberg, the New Lexington, Va.; Harry Bernstein, Colonial, Bijou, Isis and Odeon, Richmond; Jake Wells, Norva, Wells, Strand and American Theaters, Norfolk; Ben Pitts, Leader Theater and the Opera House, Fredericksburg; F. ## To Sue Lloyd a letter signed by W. R. Fraser, general manager of the Harold Corp. was forwarded to Davis attorneys, in which it was declared Lloyd would take legal action. Davis carried out his alleged intention of announcing at the production of the show that "Why Worry?" a plagiarism of "The Nervous Wreck."

At the office of O'Brien, Macksky and Driscoll, it was stated yesterday that Davis had not threatened to denounce "Why Worry?" in fashion outlined, but that he intended announcing from the production that "The Nervous Wreck" was produced in stock before "Why Worry?" entered in production and that purpose was merely to insure a unfavorable comment from the paper critics. It was also stated the manuscript was turned over Lloyd's representatives and instead of a declaration of intention letter from Fraser resulted.

It is the contention of the interests that there was no plagiarism. It is their contention further that the gag of building a stage production around a man who thinks he is suffering from all sorts of ailments is new; that it has been used before many shows and that, if Davis claims it is his idea, it might be a pertinent question to ask him from whom he got the thought.

The Lloyd interests point that Roach has received a letter from Charles E. Blaney, who, after seeing the picture, had stated that the likeness in it was similar to that embodied in "The Boy Plunger," produced by Blaney some time ago and turned into scenario form. Blaney stated yesterday it was not his intention to take action but that he wanted to find out who the author of the picture was.

Efforts to reach Owen Davis for statement yesterday failed.

"A Woman of Paris"—United Artists
Lyric

AMERICAN—* * * now all the world of the motion picture may raise its hat to Charles S. Chaplin master artist of the screen! * * * This picture, which he conceived, wrote, and directed, is rare in its natural realism, unconventional in the originality of technique, and forceful in every effect. There is not a close-up, nor a flash-back in the eight reels of it. The sub-titles are so few as to be negligible, and those few are brief, concise, and devoid of flowery phrases.

DAILY NEWS—Without a moment's hesitation we declare "A Woman of Paris" the finest piece of filmery of the year. There probably won't be another like it for a long while, either, unless Charles Chaplin—just as he promised—will get to work on drama once more. If we could have Chaplin comedies and Chaplin dramas forever and ever everything would be peaches and cream.

EVENING WORLD—* * * Chaplin has given us in "The Woman of Paris," something to be cinematically thankful for; for he has told a big, gripping story of Fate in simple words of a first reader. * * * "A Woman of Paris" grips without using a lariat; it holds without resorting to spectacular sets or the mobilization of an army of extras.

MAIL—A more conventional theme could not have been chosen. In the hands of many directors such a story would have resulted in scene after scene of gorgeous revelry. * * * We question Chaplin's choice in respect to the subject matter of his first serious film. * * * Nevertheless, this venture, we are certain, will have a powerful influence for good on the motion picture industry.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is a page from life * * * There are no forced situations, no unnecessary titles, no puppets indulging in fancy acting, but just a straightforward story told in the simplest language by a real human being.

SUN—* * * presentation of a dramatic story in simple condensed form that achieves artistry and authenticity in the exquisite casualness of its touch. * * * As Chaplin had hoped, his first serious picture (in which he has no acting part at all) seems to set something of a new standard for the cinema.

TELEGRAM—After ransacking our vocabulary, however, and delving through the files in an effort to steal a commendation used for some other picture, we find the best is none too good for "A Woman of Paris."

TIMES—As a film director Chaplin reveals himself as a bold, resourceful, imaginative, ingenious, careful, studious and daring artist. * * * The story is not an unusual one, but the handling of it gives it a marvelous depth of charm, for in this film, which runs for about two hours, Chaplin, the director, has not permitted a scene to be made in a hasty or thoughtless manner.

TRIBUNE—Mr. Chaplin has made the perfect motion picture, or if it is not that, at least it is our idea of the perfect motion picture. It is the sort of thing we have always wondered why some one did not do. * * * We can only say that the story is fascinating, that it is more humanly done than anything we ever have seen on the screen and that that no one should miss it.

WORLD—The theme of "A Woman of Paris" is surprisingly conventional movie stuff, yet the execution of the story is quite the sanest business we have seen in films this year. Mr. Chaplin is a far better director than writer of this type of play. * * *

It is a most interesting motion picture because in its method it seems to point the way to something real and vital and living on the silver screen.

Los Angeles—Consensus of newspaper opinions on "A Woman of Paris," which had its first public showing at the Criterion last week follows:

EXAMINER—While Chaplin's success as an author may or may not be unquestioned, his success in eliminating from the screen many old time traditional aggravations is undoubted.

The film will present Chaplin to his admirers in a new light and promises to register with enormous effect.

EXPRESS—It is told cinematically in delightfully direct fashion and free from the customary camera rulings. Photographically it is exceptionally clear and artistically presented, yet without any evidence of straining at unusual effects. * * *

Apparently Chaplin has found his place among the directorial geniuses, far in advance of the acting ranks.

HERALD—"A Woman of Paris" will have a tremendous vogue. First, it is a most worthy photodrama, a veritable typhoon of artistry, and, second, because it represents the genius of the screen's greatest comedian and, I might add, artist.

RECORD—At one stride Charles Chaplin leaves acting behind and becomes a great realist director. * * *

The first half of "A Woman of Paris" is a masterpiece; the second half a movie. * * *

The direction—or rather the indirection—of Chaplin is delightful. In his first picture he achieves a subtlety, a sly method of exhibiting the most searching frankness. * * *

TIMES—It is the sophisticated film drama of the year. It is so full of novelty and subtlety that it will perhaps open a new epoch for the photoplay technician, and intrigue and mayhap delight the taste jaded by too much routine. * * * The really tremendous thing about Chaplin's picture—for it has a tremendousness of a kind—is its simplicity and directness.

"Three Ages"—Metro
Rialto

AMERICAN—There is enough to keep the most sophisticated audience smiling steadily while the hero adventuring through the centuries preserves his own imperturbability, although he loses nearly everything else.

EVENING WORLD—* * * "Three Ages," should be set down in the record book as being one of his funniest. And that is the highest praise we can think of to pile upon the rather athletic young shoulders of Buster. * * * It's a whale of a laugh.

MAIL—The entrance of the most serious comedian on the screen into more ambitious fields is not very auspicious. The laughs are few and far between, with several periods of slow moving action.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * the picture skips and jumps from the stone age, through the Roman age, up to the present day with such rapidity that you sometimes wonder what it is all about. * * * Buster Keaton is extremely funny as the luckless suitor.

POST—Buster Keaton has made a comedy that ranks with the best of them on the screen, and it is surely the cleverest he has ever produced.

SUN—Many of those who enjoy Keaton's antics in three reel doses may tire of him when he is scrambling through six reels. The picture, on the whole, is simply a series of slapstick stunts—very cleverly done, and at times howlingly funny, but there is no interpretative value to them, as in a Chaplin classic, and Keaton continues to wear the same face as ever.

TRIBUNE—It is most amusing.

"The Eternal Three"—Gold.-Cosmo.
Capitol

AMERICAN—There are hectic dinner parties, good acting, lovely gowns, shiny medical instruments and interesting situations—but the sequence jumps around the picture as if trying to follow the hero.

DAILY NEWS—But every bit of the picture ends as it should and the conclusion is most attractive—the best part of the film, in fact.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * a domestic drama that is not only unusual in its elements, but which is also coherent and clear-cut.

EVENING WORLD—* * * a typical Marshall Neilan production. What more could one ask of motion picture? * * * he seems to have put more real heart into "The Eternal Three" than we have seen throbbing in any picture of recent weeks. The picture certainly reached right out, grasped this reviewer and held him right from start to finish.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It is typically moving picture fare from beginning to end. * * * Neilan has treated this story sympa-thetically, and has embellished it with those little touches of humor which are characteristic of his work. It is very well cast. * * *

MAIL—The film is more evident that all hokum is not dead and the more strikingly so because of the large number of excellent films now showing. Scenes of debauchery are its selling point. If moving picture producers are right about the mental age of their patrons, this picture should prove an enormous box office success.

POST—Marshall Neilan is considered one of the leading directors, but his newest film, "The Eternal Three," can hardly be called anything but fair, which is liberal.

SUN—* * * is a typical Neilan picture—full of original sidelights on life, ably directed in many respects, with almost a fierce sting in its climax—and then a good sprinkling of dress all through.

TIMES—If Marshall Neilan had stuck to the idea of showing clearly and sincerely in a running story the great devotion of surgeons and physicians to their duty and profession he might have had a film that would have been the talk of the country. But * * * Neilan has strayed from his narrative and reached out for hokum. * * * There are some interesting sets in this picture, and the photography is faultless, with original thoughts in cafe scenes. Still it is a strange concoction.

TRIBUNE—Yet in spite of the fact that the picture seemed to us scrappy, confusing and unreal we have an idea that if we could have seen in it ten reels or whatever its original condition was, we should have been much pleased with it.

WORLD—Photography, sets and actors fit snugly into their appointed niches. Occasionally the sagacious Neilan derives suspense and humor from narrative material meriting no such penetrating treatment.

Leaves for Coast

Dorothy Mackaill, who has been engaged by Famous to play the lead in "The Next Corner," left for Hollywood yesterday.

Honduras Unprofitable
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Alexander K. Sic consul at La Ceiba, in a report published in "Commerce Reports" sa-

"The market for motion pictures in Honduras is not nearly as large in many other countries of equal population. This is attributed partly to the lack of cities and partly to the low standard of living of most of the inhabitants. In La Ceiba there are two motion-picture theaters, Tivoli, owned and operated by Se Lorenzo, Castillo, and the Rex, owned and operated by Dr. R. H. Wils. These theaters show films chiefly of the wild west and serial variety.

Public Watches Griffith Work

The Griffith organization has arranged production of the battle scenes in "America," which are being shown at Somers in Putnam County, so that the general public can see how the sequences are taken. This is being done, according to the Griffith office, to dissipate the idea that there is faking. It is said the privilege of being abused by pirate photographers who are taking the action with secret cameras, with a view to selling the film to other producers. Last Saturday State police confiscated seven cameras.

Chaplin Talks Over Radio

Burr had completed one Binney feature, "Clipped Wings" for Associated and one Sale picture, then called "Lovers Leap," but now known as "The Young Idea." He plans to give a showing for the Sale film at the Ritz in a few weeks.

The Federal Trade Commission will resume its hearings into the operations of Famous Players and allied organizations on Oct. 22, in the Engineer Societies' Bldg., where the first sessions were held. Robert Swain, of counsel for Famous Players, has asked for a thirty-day intermission, following the adjournment in New York. During that time, Famous will probably gather important testimony in Philadelphia and Atlanta for presentation here.

After the evidence has been gathered completely, the counsel for both the Government and the respondent will prepare briefs and the whole matter set before the Commissioners of the Federal Trade Commission in Washington for review and final determination.

Schenck Approached

To Produce Propaganda Film For French Government With Norma Talmadge Starred

The French Government has entered upon negotiations with Joseph M. Schenck to produce an elaborate propaganda film designed to offset the onus cast on French history by such German pictures as "Passion." The subject matter will be the life of Marie Antoinette.

The French Government not only favors Schenck as the producer, but desires Norma Talmadge to appear in the title role. The picture would be made in France and would enter actual production with the full cooperation of the Government there. How important this would be can be gleaned from the fact that the entire contents of the Louvre, and all of the Government archives together with the garden and palaces at Versailles would be placed at Schenck's disposal.

At the present moment, it is understood that the French Government has a representative here in this country in the person of Hugo Rumbold, brother of Sir Horace Rumbold, who figured largely in arranging the Lausanne treaty between Greece and Turkey, expressly for the purpose of making the necessary arrangements. Schenck is not in New York now but is expected here about the 15th of the month.

The dramatic story will be prepared, so it is understood, by M. Noanhc, president of the French Academy of Immortals. It would appear that the propaganda film will go into production in the near future. Miss Talmadge's current picture "Ashes of Vengeance," is now getting into general distribution throughout the country. She is at work on "Dust of Desire," which is far advanced and had made preparations to film "Secrets." Present indications point toward a postponement of "Romeo and Juliet" for the present.

Shinn With Cosmopolitan

Everett Shinn, nationally known as an illustrator has joined Cosmopolitan as an art director. He will do special work in connection with "Janice Meredith," the Revolutionary War story which will be Marion Davies next picture. Wiard Ihn, technical man has also gone up to Cosmopolitan.

Shinn's recent work has been on "The Bright Shawl," "The Fighting Blade" and "Twenty-One" for Inspiration.

Roach Didn't Bid For Rights

It was erroneously stated in yesterday's issue that Hal Roach had made a bid for the rights to "The Nervous Wreck," the Owen Davis play which Davis charges was plagiarized by Harold Lloyd and used in "Why Worry?" The statement was attributed to John C. Ragland. What did occur was this: Roach merely asked what had been done about the picture rights at the time he saw the play on the coast and was then told that nothing would be done until the New York premiere. He did not however, bid for them.

Newspaper Opinions

"Scaramouche"—Metro.

44th Street Theater

DAILY NEWS—"Scaramouche" as artistry can easily compare with Mr. Ingram's "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." * * * But if scenes, settings and characters, including the 10,000 in the mob scene, are interestingly artistic, Mr. Ingram does not forsake the finale of his picture. If you're strong on the French Revolution (you ought to know all about it by now) and if you'd like to see the master director's excellent cast at their best, witness the picture, to be sure.

EVENING JOURNAL—Notable chiefly for its vigorous treatment of the frenzied citizens of Paris bursting the bonds of tyranny. * * * Ingram is in his happiest medium when he discloses the National Assembly in debate. * * * On the whole the fine fire that characterized Mr. Ingram's "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" is lacking in "Scaramouche." There was an epic quality to the Ibanez story that is not so evident in his new picture, which, while interesting, is less human.

EVENING WORLD—It "stands out" in a dozen ways. It is beautifully pictured and excellently acted. * * * In our way of thought this, picture is Scaramouche, and not only that, but a wonderfully gripping, thrilling and beautiful Scaramouche.

HERALD—The main thing in "Scaramouche" is not Rex Ingram's creditable direction or Sabatini's vigorous narrative, but the presence of Ramon Novarro in the title role. * * * He is better looking than Valentino, more versatile, more plastic, more animated and a more accomplished actor. "Scaramouche" gives him a marvelous opportunity for scintillation and he makes the most of it. The only perceptible sag in the picture's interest comes when Novarro fades temporarily from the scene. * * * It is well above the average costume pictures and has a great deal of legitimate thrill, it moves fast and it is consistently beautiful to behold.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The two men—director and writer—are a fine combination, just as Ingram and Ibanez were in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," and not since "The Four Horsemen" has the young Irish director made such a picture. * * * Young Novarro gives a fine performance as young Moreau. * * * Young Moreau is sent away for a long time to get help for the cause of liberty, and while he is away from the screen, one realizes what he is to the picture. His colorful personality and his fine acting contribute so largely, one misses him.

POST—Take a good story, a great director and fine actors; add to this excellent photography, an even tempo of action with the artist's perception that a moving picture is just what it's name implies and the result is "Scaramouche."

SUN—* * * given superb direction by Rex Ingram. * * * Ingram has done a marvelous job with practically every scene, but it seemed to us that a number of them had slight bearing on the main thread of the story. Somehow the story didn't seem to hang together after the rabble had been introduced waving their scythes and bent on making French history. Miss Terry is lovely. Novarro is very handsome and Lewis Stone does some splendid acting.

TIMES—With Mr. Ingram's deft, artistic touch and a most competent cast "Scaramouche" is an engrossing and harming film. * * * Lewis Stone plays this part admirably. * * * As Andre Louis Moreau, Ramon Novarro proves himself an accomplished actor. * * * Alice Terry is exceedingly beautiful. * * * Although the production has not the pathos of "The Orphans of the Storm," it is a stronger and more plausible narrative and another feather in Ingram's well-decorated cap.

WORLD—Really, here is the finest thing in French revolutions ever brought to the screen. Indeed, we can go even further than that and report that "Scaramouche" * * * is one of the most deftly made historical screen romances we have ever seen. It is even likely that it is the very best of them all.

TRIBUNE—Nobody in the world could have made us like "Scaramouche" as a picture except Rex Ingram. * * * "Scaramouche" is undoubtedly Rex Ingram's greatest picture. * * *

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cincinnati—Newspaper opinions on "Scaramouche," which opened at the Cox theater simultaneously with the New York and Chicago premieres, follow:

TIMES-STAR—Judged solely on its merits as a motion picture production, Rex Ingram's latest effort, "Scaramouche," is entitled to unqualified praise. It is not as big of theme or tense in treatment as his memorable picturization of "The Four Horsemen." * * * From the standpoint of photoplay mechanics, however, "Scaramouche," which opened its local engagement at the Cox theater Sunday night, is a worthy successor to the noted director's other distinguished achievements.

ENQUIRER—It is on such a large scale that, to be properly appreciated, it must be seen more than once. And yet, with all its hugeness, it is anything but unwieldy. So carefully all the factors going into the making of the picture have been co-ordinated that an almost perfect symmetry and balance have been obtained. * * * The settings of the production are as varied and artistic as they are huge.

POST—As for the picture, it decidedly is worth seeing. * * * Golden opportunities for a director lay in these circumstances and Rex Ingram apparently recognized and shook hands with each opportunity as it came along.

COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—As a motion picture attraction "Scaramouche" ranks with the best of the big screen specials. It is broad in its dramatic scope, the cast is generally excellent, and it has been given a striking production. Rex Ingram, who is responsible for "Scaramouche," can he relied on to give us something of true worth, and, while we confess at least one other of his offerings impressed us more, he has, nevertheless, given us a representative production of his directorial skill.

"Enchanted Cottage" Next

Inspiration has purchased "The Enchanted Cottage" for Richard Barthelmess' next picture. John S. Robertson will direct.

"Dup" Fight Film in "Chicago"
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)
Chicago—Pictures of the Der Gibbons' fight film are being shown at the Rose. Showing the film is illegal, but authorities are not interfering with the Rose showing because the print was made from the original and does not violate the International Commerce Act. A fine was imposed for bringing the original into the city but a fine cannot be levied on the Rose for showing for the above reason. The original print was seized by the local authorities.

Plaza Increases Prices

The Plaza theater, on 57th Street near the Plaza Hotel has put up a slight increase in prices. Orchestra and first balcony seats are now 50 cents at night.

Have just screened 'Richard, the Lion-Hearted' for two hundred Ottawa prominent citizens and am pleased to advise same was received with great enthusiasm. Mayor Plant was so impressed he has forwarded me letter of endorsation and the Rev. Wesley Megaw, pastor of Stewarton Presbyterian Church is delivering sermon on picture. Personally I think it ranks with the biggest pictures that have been produced to date from stand-point of production and interest. The cast is hand-picked and Wallace Beery does best work of his career. The little touches of comedy relief throughout the picture make it 100 per cent entertainment and I am pleased to have the opportunity of presenting 'Richard, the Lion-Hearted' for its world premier showing in Ottawa, and I feel confident it will become an overnight sensation.

John M. Stahl picked another good one here. A picture whose theme hits everyone of us. We are all WANTERS. We want automobiles if we don't own one and we want a better one if we do; we want more and better clothes, we want jewels; we want to see the world,—we want everything that we have not got. This picture tells of such people and of their wants. His "Dangerous Age" was a big success because, like "The Wanters," it depicts a problem of life as we all know it. With such a title and cast and story every exhibitor should be able to put this one over with a bang.

The Public

Becomes a real partner in motion pictures!

PARAMOUNT has become the biggest motion picture organization only through its ability to please the public consistently over a period of years.

In the past, pictures bearing the name Paramount have been booked and shown with confidence by thousands of theatres. Nor was that confidence misplaced, as both you and the theatres know, and the records show.

The fine support given by the public to Paramount Pictures today makes it possible for us to go even further in justifying public confidence in our organization.

If you were making motion pictures how would you check up what the public wanted? You would eagerly read box-office records, theatre-managers' reports, critics' reviews, searching always for that all-important thing—public opinion.

Paramount has done this for years, but it is not enough!

Now Paramount intends to make the public a real partner!

Under its new policy Paramount has arranged with some of the finest theatres in the country to act as demonstration theatres to test out its productions, beginning October 15.

With this plan Paramount will secure in advance a thoroughly representative public verdict on every Paramount Picture put out. Here, then, is a real, a tremendous incentive for bigger and better pictures. Here is a real guide along the path toward the production of photoplays the public truly wants in the months to come.

You who buy your entertainment, you who pay for your motion picture going, are entitled to know and to choose in advance exactly what pictures you want to see!

The result of such a plan means that Paramount Pictures in future will be patterned along lines of known public approval, and that it will be practically impossible for pictures to reach the screen that do not have that public approval.

Paramount asks you to watch your local newspapers closely for the announcement of the demonstration theatre in which productions will be proven out in your city. We want a frank expression of opinion through your theatre manager as to their merits.

The new pictures which we have ready for you, namely: "THE SPANISH DANCER," "HIS CHILDREN'S CHILDREN," "STEPHEN STEPS OUT," "THE LIGHT THAT FAILED" and others to be announced in this publication next week will be offered under this new plan.

We hope to receive from you, the buyers of entertainment, comments and suggestions that will be of untold value in planning your entertainment for the future.

Letting the Public Know

The above advertisement appears in the Saturday Evening Post October 27. It will be followed the next week by a two-page spread in color. In addition, Paramount will announce to the public in big newspaper ads in every demonstration center the facts concerning the demonstration policy and its importance to the public.

can Society and M.P.T.O. Re-negotiations Then—E. C.
Mills Reports Progress

According to E. C. Mills, of the Publishers' Protective Ass'n special advisor to the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the negotiations between the organizations and the M. P. T. O. will be resumed in New York on October 10.

As the result of several meetings, it was recently agreed that the society will not introduce any more legal actions against members of the M.
P. T. O. until a definite settlement has been reached. Mills is just back from a trip during which he perfected a satisfactory pact with the M.
P. T. O. of the Northwest covering Idaho, Northern Wisconsin and North Dakota.

The society has been invited to attend the Jackson meeting of the National state unit to advance a similar proposition, while similar meetings will be held in North Carolina and possibly Virginia in the near future. The society has of late expressed a willingness to change its license fees as a result of the claims made by exhibitors that they are unfair. A new schedule has been prepared by Mills awaiting the approval of the society. The old scale levied a tax of ten cents per seat per year but the new scale takes into consideration admission prices, size of number of shows per week and other factors. Mills has followed the policy of adopting a minimum rate only

Not For $200,000

Carl Laemmle Won't Relinquish Randolph, Chicago Lease—Has It for Four More Years

Carl Laemmle admitted yesterday that Aaron Jones, of Jones, Linick and Schaefer had made him an offer of $100,000 to relinquish the lease held on the Randolph, Chicago by Universal, as reported in the Times Square Daily.

"It is true," said Laemmle. "And you can say for me that I won't give up the Randolph for $200,000."

Universal originally leased the Chicago house for a period of five years. The lease has four years to go.

Chicago Group Here

Eight cities have been decided upon

First Nat'l Confab

Scheduled for French Lick Springs
Oct. 16—Original Franchise
Holders to Attend

The regular fall meeting of the original franchise holders of Associated First National will be held at French Lick Springs, Ind., beginning
Oct. 16 and running for about one week.

It will be recalled that at the Atlantic City meeting earlier in the year, that it was decided that the various First National exchanges would abandon the handling of outside product. The time limit set was Jan. 1, 1924 and on that date, some disposition must be made of those pictures. In some instances, this has already been done. The usual procedure has been for the exchanges to form separate companies with distinct sales forces. This question will again come up at the Indiana meeting.

Various other matters are scheduled for discussion. One in particular, will deal with the internal arrangement covering the control of the exchanges by the home office.

for theaters and even this, he explained yesterday, is subject to revision when it is felt that it imposes too great a burden on the theater. The new scale has been submitted by Cohen and his group of commitmen including Mike Comerford and Harry Davis of Pennsylvania and probably be discussed at the meeting next week.

The schedule as now drawn provides a minimum of $25 on theaters with admissions are under 20 cents; for theaters charging between 20 and 50 cents; $75 for theaters charging between 45 and 75 cents and up to $100 for theaters charging 75 cents and up.

Mills is of the opinion that general music license situation is proving all along the line.

Putting It Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor put his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Goldman a Live Wire

St. Louis—Bill Goldman, owner-manager of the Kings, is an optimist and opportunist. When three burglar gentlemen blew the Kings safe and kicked off some $9,000 in cash because they bungled the job, Bill seized this opening to get some valuable publicity for "Three Wise Fools," which opened a week's run at the Kings on Saturday.

Bill very cleverly called attention to the fact that the burglar gentlemen were "Three Wise Fools," because they failed to do their job properly. St. Louis quickly got the point and Bill got some fine publicity through the safe robbery.

He also worked a nice-tie-up with the Chalmers Motor Car Company on "Six Days," which opened at the Kings the previous week. In this instance he had a Chalmers machine make a Six Days Non-Stop test on the streets of St. Louis, the banners on the car calling attention to the showing of "Six Days" at the Kings. St. Louis hasn't yet forgotten how Goldman tied up the City and Federal Government, the Army, Navy and Marine Corps to exploit the showing of "Human Wreckage."

"The Fair Cheat"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole..... SHOULD PROVE SATISFACTORY ENTERTAIN-MENT FOR AVERAGE AUDI-ENCE FOR DESPITE ITS WEAK PLOT IT IS A WELL
CAST AND NICELY HAND-LED COMEDY-DRAMA.

Cast... Very good indeed, especially Dorothy Mackaill, who adds to her dramatic talent the ability to handle a comedy role in fine shape.
Edmund Breese and Wilfred Lytell also give good performances in roles that are difficult to handle because of the stupid way the characters are made to act. Others include Marie White, William Robyns, Harold Fashay.

Type of Story.... Deals with romance between millionaire's daughter and one of her father's employees. Her father proposes to agree to the marriage if she can support herself for one year without using her own name. She gets a job in the Follies on her resemblance to "one of the society buds," meets her sweetheart who fails to recognize her but becomes interested in her because of her resemblance to his society love, and who finally desires to marry her, though still ignorant of her identity. News of her father's death discloses her masquerade and after many complications, peace is restored. It holds the interest and is thoroughly entertaining in spite of its many improbabilities.

Box Office Angle..... Should easily please average crowd. Dorothy Mackaill's work in "Mighty Lak a Rose" should bring those who saw it back again. Society angle and theatrical atmosphere usually please many.

Exploitation .. The title of this lends itself easily to exploitation. You might have throwaways printed in the form of newspapers with large type headlines reading "Society de-butante joins ranks of Follies girls," and then, below, or on the inside of the sheet, "If you want to see who she is come to the blank theater on ..... and see "The Fair Cheat." Play up the theatrical angle. Tell your folks if they want to see the way girls are "picked" for the chorus to see "The Fair Cheat."

Direction by..... Burton King; considering the improbable angles of the plot he has done very well indeed. Maintains the interest always.

Author ..... William B. Laub
Scenario ..... Not credited
Cameraman ..... Alfred Ortlieb
Photography ..... Satisfactory
Locale..... New York, millionaire's home and theater.

"The Bad Man"

Producer: Edwin Carewe
Distributor: First National

As a Whole..... CAREWE'S PIC-TURIZATION OF STAGE PLAY MAKES VERY ENJOY-ABLE PICTURE; SURE-FIRE AUDIENCE APPEAL AND GREAT CHARACTERIZATION
BY BLINN.

Cast..... Holbrook Blinn repeats his excellent stage performance and even in spite of the missing dialogue his characterization is fully as interesting, with the sub-titles written in dialect, making up surprisingly well for the lack of the spoken word. Blinn knows the art of pantomime and every gesture registers definitely. He'll undoubtedly gather in a good following among picture fans for his work in this. Jack Mulhall and Walter McGrail good as hero and heavy respectively. Mulhall poses too much in close-ups. Enid Bennett well suited heroine. Charles A.
Sellon and Harry Myers both splendid in comedy roles.

Type of story..... Comedy-drama of the first order. There is a steady succession of surprises in "The Bad Man". If it isn't a dramatic twist, it's a laugh and the development is spontaneous, rapid and sure-fire, well rounded in situations that make for genuine audience appeal. The characterization of the bad man is rather new to picture patrons and they'll welcome something out of the ordinary. Blinn's cool procedure and calm manner will certainly strike them as uncommonly amusing. The comedy of Uncle Henry will also send them into chuckles. Story deals with the escapades of the bandit Lopez who furnishes a series of laughs and thrills in attempt to make happy the man who once saved his life.

Box Office Angle..... Good for all houses. If they enjoy a good comedy-drama, strong in both elements, here's your bet.

Exploitation..... Boost the title and tell them about the stage play. Be sure to say that Holbrook Blinn, who originated the role, plays the part in the picture. They're also going to see Blinn in "Rosita".
The very best means of acquainting them with the picture, is a trailer showing a portion of the sequence in which Blinn scores his biggest hit,—his effort to straighten things out to the satisfaction of his friend.
Stunt advertising will be appropriate. A man representing Blinn going about should attract attention.
Do your best to interest them.

Direction by..... Edwin Carewe; did a very good job on this one; first reel or so needs tightening up to give Blinn an earlier entrance.
Author..... Porter Emerson Brown
Scenario..... John Lynch and Finis Fox
Cameraman ..... Sol Polito
Photography ..... Very good
Locale ..... Arizona
Length ..... 6,600 feet.

"A Woman of Paris"

Producer: Charles Chaplin
Distributor: United Artists

As a Whole.... CHAPLIN'S NAME WILL SURELY GET THEM
IN. BUT THEY WILL EX-PECT A LOT OF COMEDY AND WILL NOT GET IT.
MAY PROVE VERY DISAP-POINTING WITH RESULT-ANT KICK BACK.

Cast... Adolphe Menjou easily steals the honors from Edna Purviance, not because she doesn't work well
—she does—but Menjou's part is at least sincere. Women will hardly sympathize with Edna's role. It is a man's picture. Men of a certain type will like it a lot. Few others in the cast amounting to anything. Lydia Knott good as the mother.

Type of Story.... Girl, disappointed in her lover not taking her to Paris to marry her as promised, becomes the mistress of a rich man.
The lover eventually kills himself because of her relations and apparently she reforms in the end.
If anyone but Chaplin had made this kind of a story it is a question who would have wanted to take the chance releasing it. Of course Chaplin has injected some of those touches that have made his name famous the world over. There is a rather daring studio scene that the censors may object to—at least in part. You never see the nude woman, but the effect is cleverly handled and may get by. Very few real comedy touches in the picture. Nothing like enough to satisfy those who come expecting to see a Chaplin comedy. This class of patrons will surely be disappointed.

Box Office Angle.... Hard to figure on this. Of course Chaplin's name will get them in. He is too immense a favorite for the fans to let anything go by which bears his name. But just how they are going to feel about it when the picture is over is a question. Might be a good idea to get an old Chaplin, like "Shoulder Arms" or any of his more recent comedies and put it on at the same time, telling your people this is a Chaplin week.
This may ease it off if they expect a lot of comedy.

Exploitation.... Put everything back of Chaplin's name, but be careful of your promises. You might tell them he doesn't appear in the picture, but that he took almost a year to direct and produce it. Tell all about his great success as the director of "The Kid." Better see this before you put it on.

Direction by..... Charles Chaplin—splendid at times. Some fine touches.
Story by ..... Chaplin
Scenario by ..... Chaplin Cameramen... Roland Titheroh and Jack Wilson
Photography..... As a rule excellent Locale..... Paris and a small town
Length ..... About 7,500 feet

"The Marriage Maker"

Paramount

As a Whole....ADAPTATION OF STAGE PLAY, MAY PROVE INTERESTING TO THOSE WHO LIKE SOMETHING UNUSUAL; BUT TO THE MAJORITY THIS SATIRE IS ALMOST CERTAIN TO MISS FIRE. NOT A GENERALLY GOOD AUDIENCE PICTURE.

Cast....Charles De Roche tries very hard, in fact too obviously so, to put over a bit of pantomime that is far beyond his reach. His performance consists in a series of leaps and bounds in which he covers all of the set in typical "monkey" fashion. A difficult role to make attractive, to be sure, and his tiger skin raiment is another distraction. Those with highly fantastic notions may concede De Roche something for his efforts but with the majority he's more than likely to be classed as a poor comedian. Jack Holt and Agnes Ayres also suffer from a very poor vehicle.

Type of Story.....Edward Knoblock's play might easily have served to satisfy a certain class of patrons of the stage and it may have been considered a thoroughly interesting and unusual fantasy. But the material was far too slight and vague to make a good screen play. It lacks audience appeal, and while it may go well enough with a few, it won't reach the average audience. It may be possible that the piece will strike them as fairly good humorous entertainment, that is assuming they misunderstand the characterization handled by De Roche.

Box Office Angle.....Better make your own decision in this case. You know best what your folks want and what they'll stand for. Highbrow clientele may give you less worry.

Exploitation....Followers of Agnes Ayres and Jack Holt are likely to get a shock when they see them in "The Marriage Maker." The title will be the first thing to set them off the track. They'll never expect anything like this from the title. The theme doesn't lend itself readily to stunt exploitation so you'll have to resort to the usual methods to let them know about the picture.

Mention the stage play from which it was adapted and the fact that William Faversham starred in it. Say the theme deals with the attempt of an imaginary match-maker who thrusts himself upon society folks bent on making them marry happily.

Use DeMille's name. There are picture goers who pick their entertainments through directors whose previous productions have pleased them.

Direction by....William de Mille; a fair attempt but story was too weak to make the effort more than ordinarily successful.

Author.....Edward Knoblock
Scenario.....Clara Beranger
Cameraman.....Guy Wilky
Photography.....Good
Locale.....Country estate

Gladys Walton in
"The Wild Party"

Universal

As a Whole.....AVERAGE ENTERTAINMENT, OF THE USUAL WALTON VARIETY ALTHOUGH STORY ISN'T AS GOOD AS SOME THEY HAVE BEEN GIVING HER. WILL PLEASE STAR'S ADMIRERS.

Star....Cavorts about in her own style and manages to inject plenty of pep into her part; has had better roles than this but she will probably be liked by her following.

Cast...Robert Ellis has a fairly silly part to handle. It doesn't ask very much of him, nor do the remainder of the parts for that matter. Others are Freeman Wood, Doria Revier, Sidney De Grey, Lewis Sargent, Esther Ralston, Kater Lester, Jos. Girard, Sydney Bracey and Wm. Robert Daly—a big cast but nothing very much for any of them to do.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama that is not strong in either element. Comedy is rather slight and dramatic situations are weak and not well founded. Story isn't strong in any particular sense, but director Blanche has managed to keep it moving along most of the time even though he resorts to a lot of in and out stuff and considerable repetition to keep it going. A mysterious bootlegger, played by Sydney Bracey, is shown popping in and out of a hiding place at regular intervals for about two reels.

Deals with the efforts of girl reporter to land a big story and her subsequent job to untangle the complications she causes by mixing names. Of course it all straightens out satisfactorily and she wins a rich husband.

Box Office Angle....For the average audience, and on a one time showing basis, you can probably satisfy them with "The Wild Party." It will get by nicely where the star has a following and the title will very likely draw a good business where they are attracted by titles that promise something sensational. "The Wild Party," surely gives promise of that although actually, there is nothing unwholesome about the story.

Exploitation.....Title and star's name have the most drawing power. If you want to bring them in the on the strength of the title, give it the most prominence. On the other hand, if you cater to family trade and fear that it might keep them away, you could explain that there is nothing offensive in the picture.

Tell them Gladys Walton plays the part of a girl reporter who gets her first story all bawled up, loses her job, but wins a husband.

Direction by.....Herbert Blache; satisfactory on the whole.

Author.....Martin Orth
Scenario.....Hugh Hoffman
Cameraman.....Clyde De Vinna
Photography.....All right
Locale.....Any city in U. S.
Length.....5,035 feet

"The Huntress"

First National

As a Whole.....PLEASING ROMANCE TOUCHED OFF WITH COMEDY AND DRAMA; STORY IS A LITTLE OUT OF THE ORDINARY AND ATMOSPHERE HAS GOOD DEAL OF PICTORIAL APPEAL.

Cast.....Colleen Moore featured in role of Bela, a girl reared by Indian tribe, who eventually discovers she is white. Miss Moore gives a thoroughly delightful performance as the scrappy little squaw. Lloyd Hughes a suitable hero. Walter Long always a convincing villain. Snitz Edwards does a very good bit of character work as old Indian. Others Wilfrid North, Russell Simpson, C. E. Anderson.

Type of Story....Combines romances with comedy drama in interesting fashion. Story moves along at good pace and furnishes a satisfying entertainment, one that should appeal to the majority. There haven't been many Indian stories abroad lately so perhaps the atmosphere will prove a pleasant variation. You can certainly count on the pictorial appeal pleasing them. The picture contains many especially beautiful shots and locations that are unusually picturesque. Story deals with girl who runs away from tribe that reared her when she discovers she is white, her subsequent meeting with white man she decides she wants for a husband, her danger at the hands of the villain and her happiness with the white man who finally falls in love with her.

Box Office Angle....A good attraction that should prove a worth while booking for most exhibitors. Your folks will like Colleen Moore for what she does in this. The story is a good mixture of laughs, comedy and drama,—all good points for audience appeal.

Exploitation.....You have a good cast headed by Colleen Moore. Talk about it. You have a story that has audience value. Let them know there are laughs, action, romance in it. Your women folks will be particularly interested in the love story angle of it. Catchlines can read: "Girls, Attention! When you spot your man, don't chase him. It doesn't pay to play 'The Huntress'." See Colleen Moore in First National's latest release and you'll know why." Anything in the way of Indian atmosphere or decoration will be good exploitation. Have your ushers dressed as squaws and a girl in Indian attire, going about the streets, advertising the showing, will also bring them in. Show them stills in the lobby that will indicate the picture's pictorial value.

Direction by.....Lynn Reynolds; provided very good production and distributed the action and comedy bits evenly and in good judgment; handled cast very well also.

Author.....Hulbert Footner
Scenario.....Percy Heath
Cameraman.....James V. Van Trees
Photography.....Very good
Locale.....Indian reservation
Length.....6,236 feet

"Monna Vanna"

Fox

As a Whole.....SPECTACLE OF A BIG SCALE; PRODUCTION SURELY A BIG UNDERTAKING AND SUCCESSFUL IN SOME RESPECTS ALTHOUGH PICTURE MAY NOT RANK AS A BOX OFFICE NUMBER.

Cast.....Paul Wegener, remember for his work in "The Golem", especially forceful dramatic actor who makes a mighty Gurlino this. Lee Parry capable and times beautiful although she suffers frequently from being poorly photographed. Lydia Salmons very unattractive and the remainder of the cast hardly boasts beauties but several very good performances are contributed by players unknown to American audiences.

Type of story.....A drama of a period of the Italian Renaissance. Splendidly staged and notable chiefly for its extensive and lavishly handled. The combats are done on a very large scale and the seems to be no end to the number of people used in these scenes. In this respect direct Richard Eichberg compares favorably with European contemporaries. The picture suffers, however, from a poor continuity and too many sub-titles. It is far too long for the average exhibitor to use it satisfactorily and the theme is one that will appeal to individuals rather than masses.

Story deals with the fight between the Florentines and Pisas with the victories and defeats of each side spectacularly pictured and the great sacrifice and love of Monna Vanna a prominent part of the plot.

Box Office Angle.....You know best what you can do with this type of production. If you folks like the big spectacles, and you should know whether they do or not, you have played any of the previous foreign spectacle pictures.

Exploitation.....Play it up as the picture of the Italian Renaissance. Play of the Italian Renaissance. Tell them Mary Garden created the title role in grand opera, that Bertha Kalich is called the American Monna Vanna, and mention Georgette LeBlanc, the author's wife, for whom the story was written and who created the role in Paris. Then tell them about Lee Parry, the Monna Vanna of the screen. Stills of the four women can also be used. Mention Paul Wegener and recall his portrait in "The Golem". A trailer will give a sufficient idea of the magnitude of the production.

Direction by.....Richard Eichberg has made a great spectacle if a great entertainment.

Author.....Maurice Maeterlinck
Scenario.....Not credited
Cameraman.....Not credited
Photography.....Sometimes good, sometimes poor; lightings usually too bright
Length.....About 9,000 feet

Mixed Reception for "Chu"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—The Graham Wilcox "Chu Chin Chow," has received a mixed reception. The Film says:

Ever opinions there may be as to the merits of this British picture, and it undoubtedly requires drastic cutting, there can be no denying the fact that Herbert Wilcox has achieved an extraordinary success in the production of this very successful picture. * * * "Chu-Chin Chow," as produced and directed by Herbert Wilcox, is a spectacle, full of beauty and with dramatic moments. It has wonderful scenery, superb architecture, and above all a romantic atmosphere that is convincing throughout the entire length of the picture. In every scene, whether depicting Chu-Chin or imploring him to return her, she (Betty Blythe), is magnificent in this picture, if it is a triumph for Wilcox as a production, it is equally a triumph for Miss Blythe for her fine says:

... of indifferent photography, woodwork, acting, and a failure to render the scene the imaginative beauty of the play or its spectacular grandeur. The elements of popular appeal in this picture, with drastic cutting and a revision of sub-titles, could make a success. * * * As the film stands, the action is inadequate, and, while many faults could be removed by cutting, it is difficult to see how they could be completely swept away. * * * Some of the sets are occasionally magnificent, but the camera has succeeded in recording their qualities. Several incidents which ought to have had a full share of achieving dramatic effect are less exciting than many of the marriage occasions of the present

Bioscope said:

A well-balanced Zahrat of Betty Blythe is the merit of uniformity in regard to the playfully feminine nature of her appeal. The difficult role of schemer and slave, which she does not reveal herself here as a beautiful actress, we are certainly made to believe she is a beautiful woman.

Outstanding feature of the production is the artistry in general are artistically conceived and executed, and, in particular, the use of space and distance in the scenes are convincingly conveyed. It is much to admire and to enjoy in this picture, even though it may not be as good as it has fulfilled the promise of the picture. * * *

A number of the well-known ingredients of spectacular film success are present in this picture—story, beauty of setting, and composition of photography—yet, somehow or other, the picture "Chu Chin Chow" as a whole does not give the greatness one would have expected for it.

Short Subjects

"Jus' Passin' Through"—Hal Roach—Pathe

Will Rogers Without His Rope

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Will Rogers' name usually brings to mind the flash of a lasso swung deftly. However, although Mill is the star of this Hal Roach comedy, there is nary the sign of a rope. This does not detract in any way from the enjoyment of the film, nevertheless and it does bring out strongly the fact that Rogers is a first-rate comedian. He is seen as a "gentleman of the road," who is "jus' passin' through" a town where no hoboes are permitted, and deals with his really very funny efforts to get something to eat on Thanksgiving Day. He even gets himself arrested because he hears that the prisoners are going to be fed. But he's just "out of luck" because each time, just as he is about to eat, something happens. Don't miss this one. It has real entertainment value.

"Don't Scream"—Century—Universal

Pal Proves a Clever Pup

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
The first reel of "Don't Scream" which stars "Pal," a very clever English bull pup, is devoted mainly to showing him off. He does everything from scrub his master's back to get him a full-dress suit, and does it with spirit and enthusiasm. One funny bit shows Pal suffering from the effects of too much candy. His master goes to a masquerade ball given at his sweetheart's home. Several thieves make the house their headquarters and pop out at unexpected times, making the party a lively one indeed. Should afford good amusement.

"Down to the Sea in Shoes"—Mack Sennett—Pathe

A Novel Idea

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
The chief charm of this Mack Sennett comedy is the novelty of seeing the players literally walk on the sea with the aid of some sort of pneumatic shoes, that when punctured let the wearer down into the water without warning. The stunts employed by Sennett to get this idea over are typical of his type of comedy and will surely be enjoyed by audiences to whom a novel idea appeals. The manner in which the players are enabled to walk on the surface of the water will mystify as well as amuse. The comedy is diverting.

"No Tenderfoot"—Universal

Thoroughly interesting western

Type of production... 2 reel western
"No Tenderfoot" has in its cast Edmund Cobb, Lillian Hackett, Jay Morley and a group of boys who know how to ride. There is some good broncho riding, etc., in some shots showing a local rodeo in addition to a pleasant little love-story. There is no reason why this one shouldn't please the majority of audiences. R. N. Bradbury directed. Tom Windon returns to his father's and like each other. Jane visits the Atwater ranch at Milton, Arizona. Tom Windon returns to his father's ranch some little distance away. At the yearly rodeo, Tom Atwater is discovered to have planted some steers in the Windon herd to keep them from entering the rodeo. He is captured by Tom who also captures the lady's heart.

"Heavy Seas"—Hal Roach—Pathe

A Real Comedy

Type of production... 2 reel comedy
Get this one. Don't let the other fellow have it—or for that matter, any of "The Spat Family" series—if they're all as good as the first two, "Let's Build" and "Heavy Seas." The same characters appear in each—a married couple and the wife's "smart Alec" brother. The husband is a fastidious Englishman and a more discordant trio it would be hard to find. But funny! This time, having won a yacht in a raffle, they attempt a cruise. Everything that is possible to happen, happens. Laugh after laugh ensues. The titling is fine. All told, one of the most enjoyable comedies seen in many a day.

Hollywood—"Subtitles are superfluous in motion pictures," so says Elinor Glyn. "The subtitle is the weak point in a photoplay," she declares. Deal With Grauman Not Completed—Under Way for Some Time

Long-pending deal between Famous Players and Sid Grauman, by which Famous will assume co-ownership of three Grauman theaters in Los Angeles, has not been completely closed, all published reports to the contrary.

It is true that the deal will, in all probability, go through as planned. As a matter of fact, so near consummation is the deal that last week Ralph Schenck, assistant treasurer of Famous Players, filed an application with the New York Stock Exchange to issue additional shares of common stock, all of which will revert to Famous for his 50 per cent share in the theaters.

Schenck will leave for the coast in a few days to arrange the final details. He is being held here because the Federal Trade Commission resumes its investigations into the affairs of Famous in New York, on Oct. 22. Schenck wants to be on hand to assist Famous's counsel. After the hearing, which may run for a week, it is probably not longer, Kohn will be released.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The status of the deal between Famous Players-Grauman theater is understood here is this: The actual transfer in ownership of the theaters will occur in about a month. The deal covers Grauman's Rialto, Grauman's Metropolitan and Grauman's Dollar Theater. One extremely important proviso is that the deal will not be completed until the theaters are sold.

Action in Denver

Company of Virginia Wants Colorado Injunction to Change Its Name—Gets Temporary Injunction

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Denver—The Arrow Film Corp., of Virginia, with offices in New York, has obtained a temporary restraining order in the Federal District Court against the Arrow Film Corp., of Colorado, when a petition for damages and an injunction was filed by Federal Judge J. Fosberg.

The restraining order will prohibit the company of Colorado from using the name of Arrow in such a manner as to deceive or cause doubt and confusion in the minds of exhibitors. The date for the hearing on a permanent injunction has not yet been set by Judge Symes.

Deal Now Pending

Joe Schenck Admits Receiving Offer to Make "Antoinette"—Coming East to Settle It

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Joseph M. Schenck yesterday admitted to a representative of THE FILM DAILY that it was true he had been made an offer by the French Government to produce "Marie Antoinette," to offset German propaganda. That's as far as he would go.

Schenck, Constance Talmadge, Mrs. Talmadge and Buster Keaton are due in New York from the coast the end of this week. Constance has just finished "The Dangerous Maid," a costume story of old England and Buster, "Hospitality," his second full length comedy for Metro. Norma will not come on because she is still at work on "Dust of Desire."

It is understood that Hugo Ruben, who is said to represent the French Government in the negotiations with Schenck, has been at the local Schenck office on several occasions in this connection.

It seems quite likely that the deal will be settled one way or another when Schenck arrives here, with the chances considerably in his favor.

Leaves Pathe to Represent Producer in the East—First Plans Visit to Coast

W. B. Frank, recently promoted to the post of feature sales manager at Pathe, has resigned to become Eastern representative for Hal E. Roach. Frank expects to leave Pathe in about two weeks, after which he will go to the coast for a short stay.

Upon his return to New York, he will open an office and exercise a general managership of Roach's interests, this probably to include a supervision of contracts received by Pathe.

Frank has been with Pathe in various capacities for seven years. He recently made several trips with Roach to Mid-West points where the producer met local exhibitors and secured from them their ideas on short subjects. It was during one of those trips that Roach made his offer.

Frank's successor has not been appointed.

Lichtman Out?

May Withdraw From Preferred—Company Says He Leaves on "Indefinite Absence"

Al Lichtman may retire as president of Preferred Pictures, turning the management over to his present partners, B. P. Schulberg and J. G. Bachmann.

All that Preferred will say about it is that Lichtman is going away on an "indefinite absence" while "Mr. Schulberg and Mr. Bachmann, assisted by Henry Ginsberg, sales manager of Preferred, will direct the distribution activities of Preferred." One official of the company maintained that there was nothing to it; that Lichtman was ill and that he needed a rest which he was determined to secure. An effort to communicate with Messrs. Lichtman, Schulberg and Bachmann along about noon Saturday, failed.

This is the statement, however, issued by Preferred:

"B. P. Schulberg, producer of Preferred Pictures, who came from Los Angeles to New York last week to discuss distribution plans with Al Lichtman and J. G. Bachmann, his partners in Preferred Pictures Corporation, will return to the Schulberg Studios in Los Angeles next week to begin work on new Preferred Pictures."

"Al Lichtman, after a strenuous summer and fall, has decided to take a long vacation and will go into the mountains far from telephones and telegraph offices to take a much-needed rest."

"Mr. Schulberg and Mr. Bachmann, assisted by Henry Ginsberg, sales manager of Preferred, will direct the distribution activities of Preferred in Mr. Lichtman's indefinite absence."

Arrangements have been made for the photographing of what is termed the largest cattle herd in existence, numbering 50,000. Jack Dillon will

Action in Denver

The Virginia corporation contended that the Colorado corporation came into existence on March 9, 1923; that the local concern adopted the name of the Arrow Film Corp. of Colorado after taking over the business of the Arrow Photo Plays Co. Incorporators of the Colorado concern named as defendants are Joseph J. Goodstein, Barney M. Shooker, Charles Zagrains and Edgar P. Sparks.

Sparks in an answer filed a short time before the hearing started, denied that the Colorado corporation had any connection with the Arrow Photo Plays Co. The local concern has not transacted any business as the Arrow Film Corp. of Colorado for some time, he said, and the offices at 2040 Broadway have been closed.

W. Ray Johnston, of Arrow, stated Saturday that this is the second action brought in Denver courts, the other being a suit against Arrow Photo Plays Co., to recover prints of "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" on the ground that the company has not made its payments. Johnston stated his organization had won and that a court order had been issued for the return of the prints. He asserted that Arrow, of Colorado, had been formed to succeed Arrow Photo Plays Co. and that the similarity in names had made it difficult for the Virginia corporation to operate there. W. E. Shallenberger arrived here Saturday, having stopped off at Denver inbound from Los Angeles to press the action.

It was stated on Saturday that a number of producers have been anxious to secure similar scenes and that a special corps of officers will patrol the ranch to prevent pirating on behalf of other companies.

The production high lights will include the stampede; the fording of a river and the loss of cattle swept over the falls by a torrent of water; a prairie fire which chokes the Colorado River with the cattle trying to escape the flames and the burning of the cattlemen's settlement.

In the Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Charles Chaplin's long pending action against Charles Amador and Western Feature Prod., to restrain them from imitating Chaplin's style of dress is now up in the Supreme Court. Chaplin claims his clothes are an inseparable part of his work and that they form a sort of trademark peculiar to his person. Amador claims that Chaplin is only an imitator of the old time jester.

Judge Learned Hand, in the U. S. District Court has decided that it is not necessary for J. C. Boss, who is suing Famous Players for $529,575 damages alleging conspiracy and unfair competition to change or eliminate any of his allegations as filed in the original papers. Boss claims he was forced to give up his theater at McAlester, Okla., when Famous Players took over a competitive house there.

Charles O. Baumann, by a court order will have to show cause in the Supreme Court today why he should not be permanently enjoined from advertising that he has House Peters under contract, pending the trial of the action brought by Peters against Baumann, alleging a breach of contract.

Chicago on "Scaramouche"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—"Scaramouche" opened at the Woods' on Sunday simultaneously with the New York and Cincinnati premieres. Here's how the Chicago critics received it:

EVENING AMERICAN—For sheer magnificence alone this production will quarrel with the best of them. It cost in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 to make—a big sum even in these days of super-super features.

The mob scenes constitute one of the outstanding features of the film, showing Rex Ingram's ability, more mature than formerly, to fine advantage. * * *

"Scaramouche" is certainly a big production. If any producer was thinking of making another movie of the French Revolution, he may as well change his mind. This one would rob him of all his thunder.

HERALD—I don't think any reputations will be builded or demolished by this photodrama, which is large, beautiful, intelligent, but nowhere taking hold of you as a work of genius. "Scaramouche" is a good but not a great picture. And perhaps that's rather comforting, too. I've often felt that I could enjoy Griffith's pictures more if they weren't, nearly all of them, so deliberately great.

JOURNAL—It quickly arrested interest, firmly sustained it, and in the end fully satisfied it. First of all its good points is its story-telling value; it says, in animate photography, all it sets out to say. * * *

Ingram has built up with fine success the sympathetic element, and never has permitted stretches of scenery, seething crowds nor spectacle in any guise to smother the story. * * *

This is an excellent narrative and pseudo-historical film, carefully cast, skillfully directed, alive with movement, often delicate in its shading. Quality is Ingram's watchword.

POST—Again the director of "The Four Horsemen" proves his skill in handling whirlwind action and building up a thrilling climax without letting the spectacular features swamp the human appeal. * * *

But it is in the second half that the real power of the picture lies. The growing menace of the aroused public becomes the howling terror of the mob and in these scenes of rioting are actually terrifying in their vividness. * * *

The picture is well worth anyone's time and money to see. It is a credit to its producers and it is a credit to the screen, for in many respects it is the kind of story the screen tells more effectively than any other medium.

TRIBUNE—"Scaramouche" is a story of the French revolution. The book had power and subtlety. The film resolves itself into a gigantic effort to call attention to itself. It would have been so much better had it been made more simply. * * *

The photography, costumes, and mob scenes are splendid. Perhaps—who knows—the entire picture may thrill you as no other has done. With all my heart I hope so! Most certainly a lot of money has been spent on "Scaramouche." My best wishes go with you as you witness the film—and with the film as you witness it.

Lichtman Out?

"Work will begin in a few days at the Schulberg Studios on George Agnew Chamberlain's novel, 'White Man,' in which Kenneth Harlan is to be starred. Louis Gasnier, Preferred director, who has been taking a vacation in New York following the completion of 'Maytime,' will return to Los Angeles to start work on 'Poisoned Paradise,' the Robert W. Service story of Paris and Monte Carlo."

New Projection Device

A new invention in the projection field is being given a tryout at the Capitol. The appliance is called the Marten Biocular Projection Attachment and is the invention of Thomas Henry Marten, a Canadian. The outstanding features of the attachment are said to be the reduction of eye strain to a minimum; the production of an appearance of depth and the illusion of a third dimension; and the creating of special atmosphere to offset the flat tone of the screen.

Harry Myers has replaced Monte Blue in the cast of "Daddies."

The company plans to make the new Davies picture on a really large scale. At any rate, this is what H. O. Davis, the new general manager de- clares. Revived reports of the sale of the important chain of theaters operated by Jensen and Von Herberg in the Pacific Northwest have been current in New York in the past few days. The reports credited both West Coast Theaters, Inc., the Lesser-Ramish-Gore chain—and Famous Players as being purchasers.

Investigation brought forth this: J. H. Von Herberg, who is at the Ritz, en route to Europe, declared yesterday for the theater circuit:

"I regret to report that there is nothing to it."

Irving M. Lesser, vice-president of West Coast Theaters, Inc., added to this:

New "Enemies" Suit

T. O. C. C. Member Again in Tilt with Goldwyn and Hearst on Picture—This Time in Bronx

Haring and Blumenthal, members of the T. O. C. C., and operators of the Belmont theater, Belmont and Tremont Aves., the Bronx, have filed complaint against the Elmsere The- ater Operating Co., Inc., which con- ducts the Elmsere theater, Crotona Parkway and Elmsere Place the Bronx. They will seek an injunction to restrain the latter from showing "Enemies of Women" beginning Thursday. Mentioned in the papers are International Film Service Co., Inc., Cosmopolitan Prod., Inc., and the Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan Dist. Corp. Justice Mahoney in Part I, Special Term of the Supreme Court, has ordered the defendants to show cause why the injunction should not be granted, the papers being return- able this morning when the argu- ments will be heard before Justice Wagner. Back of the individual ac- tion by Haring and Blumenthal is seen the hand of the T. O. C. C., which is fighting William Randolph Hearst and Goldwyn on the picture for which many theater owners hold contracts made by Famous Players. The Belmont alleges it is entitled to "Enemies" by virtue of a deal with Paramount. The Elmsere booked the picture from Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan.

In court today Nathan Burkan will represent Hearst; State Senator James J. Walker, who returns from ### Enthusiasm !!!

Sidney R. Kent saw "The Ten Commandments" on the coast with Jesse L. Lasky and thought so much of it that he sent a 600 word night letter to Adolph Zukor in which he used all sorts of adjectives and then some. Said he, in part:

"You wouldn't take a check for five million today and give up this pic- ture. * * * If the 'Ten Command- ments' doesn't gross ten million dollars or more it will be because the world is helpless and because the majority of human beings are bad and not good. * * * I would rather be associ- ated with the company that has made 'The Ten Commandments', irrespec- tive of the future, than to enjoy any other personal accomplishment that I could mention."

From which it can be gather- ed that Mr. Kent feels Mr. De Mille has made a picture.

Chicago today, for Haring and Blumenthal and Gabriel Hess for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. T. O. C. C. members declare that the fact no decision was rendered in the recent action of the Gotham theater against Fox's Washington on the West Side is sufficient for them to try out another case in an effort to secure a legal interpretation of their rights. The Gotham-Washington action was settled out of court. It is claimed by the exhibitor interests the Gotham case was lost because the operating company was a Delaware company and such had never obtained the right to transact business in New York State.

Case Put Off to 16th

The action of House Peters against Charles O. Baumann was postponed to the 16th by Justice Wagner in the Supreme Court yesterday. Peters wants the court to enjoin Baumann from advertising that he has Peters under contract, alleging that Baumann breached his contract when he failed to deposit $75,000 in a Los Angeles bank in accordance with an agreement entered upon by both parties.

No Deal in N. W.

"There is absolutely nothing to it." Shortly after West Coast Theaters, Inc., annexed the Turner and Dahukken chain of houses in and around San Francisco, there came reports from the coast that a further deal would either include the purchase of the J. and V. H. string or a booking arrangement covering the entire Pacific Slope from Seattle to Los Angeles. Then came rumblings of a possible deal between J. and V. H. and Famous Players.

Jensen and Von Herberg expect to leave for Europe today on a short trip.

Big Campaign on Coast

Los Angeles—An invasion of the sky, and the Ambassador and Alexandria hotels supplemented the usual advertising campaign in putting over "Red Lights," when the picture was the attraction at the California.

A tie-up was effected with the Ambassador, a "Red Lights" night being arranged in the Coconut Grove. A cup was provided by the theater, to be presented by June Mathis, head of the Goldwyn editorial staff, to the prize dancers of the evening. Ina Anson, who dances in the picture appeared. Fifteen-hundred placards announcing the special event, were put at the plate of each guest at the hotel. Pastel paintings of the stars of the picture, with announcements of the night, were also used in the lobbies of the two hotels. Six hundred special menus, with the front page announcing the picture's engagement boosted the event some more.

Another feature of the campaign was an airplane which flew over Los Angeles. The first flight was made on the Wednesday preceding the Sunday opening, red flares being burned on the wing tips. As the flight was made at night, nothing was visible other than the flaming red flares. The Examiner ran a story the following morning to the effect that the theater, fearful that the picture would not be delivered in time from New York, had engaged a plane to fly to Reno, Neb., meet the train and bring the picture, the red flares being the signal to the theater that the print had been transferred to the air machine and was being delivered as per schedule. On Friday and Saturday nights the plane made nocturnal flights, burning the red flares and throwing out 10,000 small throw-aways announcing the opening.

A Five-Foot Shelf

An exploitation stunt which proved to be attractive, and at the same time very inexpensive, proved to be a good business getter for "A Chapter in Her Life," at the Parthenon in Brooklyn.

Murray Weiser is the enterprising showman in charge of this popular Ridgewood house.

Weiser figured his neighborhood wanted something "strong" to wake them up for "A Chapter in Her Life." "Tickle the people with a 'kick,'" he told Joe Weil, "U" Exploiteer, "and you get them coming." Weil prepared the "kick" in the form of a Five Foot Shelf of "Looks." Two banners were painted. The first read: "Do you recognize a Chapter in Her Life?" Below this, Weiser placed his shelf. On it were articles which represented chapters in a woman's life: a nursing bottle, a rag doll, school books, powder puff, high-heeled slippers and silk stockings, cigarettes, hootch and cocktail glass,

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"—
Asso. Exhibitors—Grauman's Million Dollar Theater, Los Angeles

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Consensus of newspaper opinion on "The Courtship of Myles Standish," Charles Ray's first picture for Associated Exhibitors now at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater follows:

EXAMINER—Scenically the picture is magnificently complete. * * * You will like Ray in his new characterization. His dramatic power becomes the more vivid and convincing as he turns from the mocking mood of the early reels to the tender moments. * * *

Frederic Sullivan directed the picture with a subtle appreciation of contrasts. His vigorous action is played with broad and almost brutal shadings, while in the gentler scenes he makes his theme fairly sing with lyric gesture and spirit.

HERALD—"The Courtship of Myles Standish" is perhaps the most beautiful thing Ray has ever attempted. Scenically, dramatically and photographically, it is beautiful. The story, however, has not that appeal—for Ray—that other vehicles have given the star.

Words are inadequate to express the distinctive beauty of the atmospheric charm of this cinema masterpiece.

RECORD—Charles Ray's most ambitious screen endeavor is marked by an absorbing picture of life aboard the Mayflower in its early portions. The animating spirit that brought these people to a new continent is stirring felt. * * *

But alas! The artificiality of painted scenery inflicts itself in the midst of many an otherwise stirring incident, emphasizes that this is Charles Ray, not John Alden; a movie set, not the Plymouth settlement. * * *

"The Courtship of Myles Standish" may be Ray's most elaborate, most expensive picture. But "A Girl I Loved" still stands as his masterpiece. The Myles Standish film will be most successful in its appeal to school children, and in helping them visualize their primary history.

TIMES—The most enjoyment will be derived by the audiences, I believe, from those episodes which relate to the life aboard the Mayflower. Truly, this was a remarkable setting. * * *

That Mr. Ray has exhausted the possibilities of the theme and the story in the picture, as a whole, I cannot feel. I find certain artistic drawbacks to this complete realization. There is uncertainty in the way the feature has been cut (which I believe can be remedied) and there is something lacking of the steady epic quality that it should possess. Too much prominence is also occasionally given to the star. * * * Mr. Ray himself presents in Alden a character that is entirely difficult from anything he has previously done. It is not an obviously interesting personage either, but the flashes of heroism that he discloses lend picturesqueness to his otherwise quiet demeanor. Ray shows a wider range and variety in this interpretation, even though he is testing new ground, of which one is conscious at times.

Five pictures are finished. These are "The Broken Wing," "Mothers-in-Law," "The Virginian," "April Showers" and "Maytime."

Two pictures are in production. These are "White Man" and "Poisoned Paradise."

Reliance M. P. Corp. and Its Properties to Be Disposed of by Triangle—Bids Invited

The Reliance M. P. Corp., one of the old units which, together with the New M. P. Corp. and Fine Arts, was included in the Triangle Film Corp., will be dissolved and the rights to about 450 negatives and stories thrown on the market for purchase by producers.

The subjects vary from one reel to four reels in length and have appearing in them such people as the two Gish girls, Jack Pickford, Henry B. Walthall, Elmo Lincoln, Sam De Grasse, Seena Owen and Mae Marsh. The pictures were originally released through the old Mutual organization. Reliance intends disposing of the negatives either in part or in their entirety. Bids are being sought.

Seymour Honored

Members of the Hodkinson, New York Exchange gave a testimonial lunch on Saturday, to W. F. Seymour, Eastern and Central Division Manager, to celebrate his first anniversary in that post. Geo. M. Dillon, was master of ceremonies and presented Seymour with a Swiss watch.

"Common Law" at Strand

"The Common Law" has been booked into the Strand for the week of Oct. 28th.

Pathe Winners Announced

Winners of the Pearson Pennant Race have been announced by Pathe. Awards total $8,000 in cash. The race extended from April 22 to Sept. 8th, based on business done during the period from April 22 to June 16. The 34 Pathe exchanges were divided into five leagues, the Champion League, National League, American League, Capitol League and the Minor League. Following are the winners:

Champion League, Philadelphia, Charles Henschel; National League, Portland L. A. Samuelson; American League, Memphis, Cecil C. Vaughan; Capitol League, R. S. Ballantyne; Minor League, Salt Lake City, W. G. Seib.

Shauer Turns Musician

Mel Shauer is in charge of the accessory department at Famous Players. He is also a musician of considerable capabilities. Yesterday he received an extremely complimentary telegram from Pola Negri in which she thanked him for dedicating a new song called "The Spanish Dancer" to her. The song is being used all over the country as part of the exploitation for the picture.

Jetta Goudal Signs

Jetta Goudal, whose work in "The Green Goddess," attracted some attention has been signed by Distinctive under a long term contract. It is reported Distinctive will resume production shortly.

Insist Chicago Runs Are Record

The Hodkinson office insists that the recent day and date showings of "Down to the Sea in Ships," in Chicago, when 55 theaters ran the picture for one week, represents a record for that city and maintains that the claim advanced by Clyde Eckhardt of Fox that "Over the Hill," was shown in 49 theaters there day and date is exaggerated. Eckhardt told THE FILM DAILY recently that his picture had played 49 theaters but when told that, according to the Fox advertising inserted when the picture played there were only 42 theaters listed, he admitted that his first figure had been given off hand and that the other was probably right.

Eckhardt, however, insisted that no one has ever touched his record on "Over the Hill," for subsequent runs when 73 theaters in the Windy City played the picture day and date for four and five day runs. He also states that when the first deal on "Over the Hill," was made, it also included "A Connecticut Yankee" and "The Queen of Sheba," for the same number of bookings, thus giving Fox a three-fold bulk booking in the one city.

F. Seymour, district sales manager for Hodkinson and Jack Edwards, publicity chief who handled the Chicago stunt are jealous of their record and declare by simple mathematics that the difference between the 43 "Over the Hill" runs and the 55 "Down to the Sea" runs is an even dozen.

Many Local Mergers

cover the merger of six theaters, the Williamsburgh section of Brooklyn. The houses include the Summit, the State and Kismet, operated by Strasberg, Blendes and Cohen; the Republic, operated by William Smith, who will be president of the new company and the Marcy and Williamsburgh, controlled by Jack Hamilton. This combine is understood to be figuring on three or four more theaters before it rounds out its growth. It is estimated the theaters at present included are worth $2,000,000.

Naturally, there has been a good deal of speculation about the reason for all this. From the exhibitor's angle, the reason is to save money in film rentals. Many of the theaters now merged in the one company have been active competitors for some time. This has rebounded to the advantage of the exchanges which have been receiving prices out of all reason for their pictures, so exhibitors maintain. With a pooling of resources, this cut-throat bidding will be largely eliminated and, it is expected, a good deal of money saved on the general operating overhead.

31 Boards Active

With Dallas Functioning, National Arbitration System is Working— Texas Board the Last

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Dallas—Dallas at last has its F. I. L. M. Board of Trade functioning with Don C. Douglas in charge. This city is the last to swing into line.

The 31 F. I. L. M. Boards of Trade designed to operate under the uni- form contract and arbitration system as drawn up by the Hays office are now a reality. All have been active for some time with the exception of Dallas where a peculiar twist of cir- cumstances held up the organization of that particular body.

In Texas, there is a statute which makes the formation of credit organi- zations illegal. In June, the impres- sion existed in Dallas film circles that the F. I. L. M. Board of Trade would never be sanctioned by the Attorney- General of Texas because of that law. Attorneys, however, conferred at Austin and later a legal interpretation of the arbitration system as seen by former United States Attorney General Wickersham was sent down from New York for the state attorney's perusal.

At the hotel, someone in the Chaplin suite declared that the com- edian was feeling better and that he expected to be up today.

"Some of our wild-eyed producers had better beware", is the manner in which Joseph I. Schnitzer of F. B. O. sums up some interesting re- marks anent Richard A. Rowland's ideas on exhibition values. Schnitzer agrees with Rowland in no uncertain terms. This is what he says:

"Mr. Rowland is certainly not talk- ing through his hat. He has hit the nail squarely on the head. In my judgment, this business is never going to be able to return to the producers the tremendous sums of money which they are now investing in motion picture productions. Speaking on be-

Bids $180,000

For English Rights to "Potash and Perlmutter"—Wanger Makes Of- fer—Exporters Interested

First National declared yesterday that Walter Wanger had made an offer to purchase "Potash and Perlmutter," for England for $180,000 or about £40,000. The statement quotes Wanger as stating that if he is suc- cessful in securing the picture he will roadshow it throughout Britain.

First National describes the offer as the biggest "ever made for a motion picture production rights in England" and then goes on to say that "while no statement has been made by Bruce Johnson, head of First National's for- eign department, as to whether the offer is to be accepted, at least it is under consideration."

Inquiries among exporters revealed the fact that if Wanger's offer is bona fide, he has really approached a rec- ord. Some doubt was expressed about the outcome of such a buy. It was pointed out that the original pur- chase price, plus import duty, the manufacture of prints in London and the cost of roadshowing would in- volve a considerable amount of money. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion that "Potash and Perlmutter" is a picture that will be

Move for Repeal

T. O. C. C. to Raise Funds for Tax Fight—May Get Together with M. P. T. O.

The T. O. C. C. is in active line for the repeal of the admission tax. A resolution was passed at yesterday's meeting which didn't break up until about 6:15 o'clock to set aside 25% of the receipts of a given day's busi- ness and establish a war chest which will be used to secure the much sought after legislative relief. After the money is raised, a meeting will be held at which various exhibitor fac- tions will be represented, including the M. P. T. O. of which the T. O. C. C. is not a member. At that con- ference, steps will be taken to carry the matter further.

The resolution occasioned consid- erable debate at the meeting which was a lengthy one. Sydney S. Cohen, who is an honorary member of the Chamber made one of his infrequent appearances ostensibly for the pur- pose of securing the Chamber's en- dorsement of Motion Picture Day, which falls on Nov. 19. While the T. O. C. C., technically speaking, did not endorse Motion Picture Day, as such, its decision to raise a war chest, in effect, sponsors the Cohen move- ment. The money gathered by the various state treasuries on that day, it is understood, will be used by the Endeavors to secure data on what business important pictures have done in England proved difficult because of the varied information obtained. One conservative estimate, however, placed total business to date on "Way Down East," at £100,000 or about $450,000; that of "The Four Horsemen" at about £85,000 or $380,000; on "Robin Hood" at about £75,000 or $300,000 and on "Orphans of the Storm" at about £80,000 or $360,000.

The Texas law in particular related to price fixing. It was thought in New York at the time that Dallas film men were under the impression that the plan was similar to the one used by the Hoy Reporting Service which has since been abandoned.

May Call Off Eastern Confab

There seems to exist some doubt about the proposed Eastern conference of F. I. L. M. Clubs, similar to these held in Chicago and in Los Angeles recently.

It was planned to hold the Eastern meeting in New York this month and there is still a possibility that the original plan will be adhered to.

Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the M. P. P. D. A. has been visiting various local boards in recent weeks. A few days ago he returned from a trip to Albany, Buffalo and New Haven and the fact that he has been on the ground personally, may influence the suggestion to cancel the Eastern zone meeting. This, however, will have no effect on the national meeting to be held, as noted, this winter in New York. At that time, all of the F. I. L. M. Boards of Trade will be represented at meetings which may end in some changes in the present form of the uniform contract.

Erdmann recently elected vice-president of the Cleveland board was also present.

Pettijohn has been visiting different exchange centers, in the East.

With the Exception— of the Universal!"

A Straight-from-the-Shoulder-Talk by Carl Laemmle, President, Universal Pictures Corp.

Once more the Universal delivers the goods while others are delivering raises.

With all the big publicity promises about "new sales plans" and "giving exhibitor a new deal," it looks to me as though the only big hits the exhibitor can get while they're hot are the Universal's.

Did you read the editorial in the Moving Picture World, in which the editor published a letter he had received from "a small town exhibitor"? The exhibitor wrote:

"We fellows in the small towns have not been able to get the season started. I made a little jaunt to five of the neighboring towns recently and without exception THEY HAD NOT BOUGHT NOR WERE THEY ABLE TO BUY a single new picture of the so-called big features. Such is the case with us at the present time WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE UNIVERSAL'S JEWELS."

I hope you will let that fact sink deep into the old bean. I hope you will read it carefully enough to get the full significance of it.

For one thing it means that nobody is keeping promises and living up to promises EXCEPT THE UNIVERSAL.

For another thing it means that right now when the exhibitor needs the big hits while they are piping hot, he cannot get them EXCEPT FROM THE UNIVERSAL.

And for another thing it means that the exhibitors are sore at all prices EXCEPT THE UNIVERSAL'S.

Except Universal—always and forever except Universal! You hear it everywhere—throughout the United States and Canada and England and all America and the whole wide world. The Universal is always on the job, ready to do a clean-cut business with any and every clean-cut exhibitor.

This good will is the greatest stuff on earth. It is better than cash, because cash can dwindle away. It is better than stocks and bonds, because stocks and bonds are cold blooded things even though it is nice to have them. It is the thing that warms the cockles of the heart and makes the game worth playing.

The Universal has less trouble with exhibitors than any concern in the business. It is the EXCEPTION. Exhibitors damn producers right and left but they always EXCEPT the Universal.

Thousands of exhibitors this very minute are just as glad as I am that the Universal has the pictures. They take a personal pride in the fact. To my very day I will glory in the knowledge that OUR CUSTOMERS ARE OUR FRIENDS.

Schnitzer in Accord

half of F. B. O., I want to point out that no such condition exists with us.

"Our pictures are being made at a very nominal cost, and particular effort is being made to select the kinds of stories that lend themselves to exploitation and advertising. We sometimes spend as much (or more) money for our advertising and exploitation campaigns as the negative itself cost, but when we do so it is because the production itself merits this, and there is more than a reasonable possibility of the returns to the exhibitor warranting the kind of a campaign that we put behind the pictures.

"We are making and exploiting pictures on the basis of a cost that will enable the exhibitor to pay us a fair rental for the picture and enable him to make a fair profit after he has shown it. In my judgment, the necessity for spending as much as three, four and five hundred thousand dollars on motion picture productions is all rot. Most of it is represented in waste and is never seen on the screen.

"I should like, some time, to have a director show me where the difference between a production that cost $100,000 and one that cost $150,000 lies. The only explanation he can offer is wasted time. Just because some producer spends a half million dollars on a picture is no reason why it is worth that much, to himself or to the exhibitor. If the distributing agency doesn't gross enough money to allow him the cost of his negative back and a fair margin of profit, the distributor gets all the blame. The producer never stops to think that he never had any earthly right to stick that kind of money into a production.

"This business is founded on its ability to provide entertainment to the masses, at a price that will permit the masses to buy such entertainment. Once in a while a picture can be put out that the public will pay a $2 price to see, but it's the exception and not the general rule.

"As far as F. B. O. is concerned, it is going to provide the best kind of motion pictures at moderate costs. Good entertainment, good values, and at prices that will let the producer, distributor and exhibitor make a fair margin of profit on the money invested.

"I repeat that Mr. Rowland knows what he's talking about, and some of our wild-eyed producers had better beware. A day of reckoning is coming."

Hirsh Closes for New England

Nathan Hirsh of Aywon has closed a deal with Independent Films of Boston, Mass. for a series of five reels featuring "Big Boy" Williams and the following features: "White Hell," "Dawn of Revenge," "Rum Runners," "Girl From The West," "Master of Beasts," "Lure of the Orient," "With Wings Outspread" and "Fidelity" for New England.

Eliminate "Kidding", Says Richey

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—R. A. Rowland's ideas on inflated exhibition values find sympathy—and lots of it—at the hands of H. M. Richey, general manager of the Michigan exhibitor organization, who says:

"Mr. Rowland's statement, for which he is deserving of the congratulations of the entire industry, is particularly opportune at this time of the year.

"Daily, exhibitors who are attempting to buy fall product are asking the question, How can I pay fifty to one hundred per cent increased rentals when my business does not show ten or fifteen per cent increase?"

"If there is one thing that will get this business down nearer a business basis than anything else, it will be the elimination of the kidding relative to prices, and that certainly applies to the director, producer and in many cases the theater owner. If the gross mentioned so many times for a picture, isn't in the country, the producer is not going to get it.

"And, if the exhibitor cannot get the gross out of his community, he either must not try to buy on that basis or if he does receive a visit from that self same sheriff Mr. Rowland mentions."

Sign Ad Contracts

signatures. Up-state, Continental has had a number of salesman at work securing contracts. The company pays to the exhibitor treasury a lump sum obtained, of course from the advertiser whose product is boosted on the screen.

The contract is to run for two years and under it, the exhibitor agrees to show either the slide or the film, as the case may be at each performance. The agreement is made binding on the new owner, in the event that the theater changes hands.

The contract with Brandt is similar to those now in operation with state exhibitor bodies throughout the country. Those connected with Continental declare that similar agreements are now in effect in the following states: Missouri, Kansas, California, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Idaho, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Virginia, Iowa and Nebraska. Some of these organizations have been using the service for some time and only recent renewals were made with Kansas, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

Charles J. Morton, former publicity man for the local Fox exchange has joined Continental as manager. The company has about 25 salesmen on the road and a large local staff. Contracts are made directly with exhibitors in some cases.

Introduces New Stage Effect

"Potash and Perlmutter," is the feature at the Brooklyn Strand this week, and for the production, Manager Edward L. national organization for the purpose which is identical with that of the T. O. C. C.

The Chamber also discussed the "Enemies of Women" situation and it was decided to fight Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan to the last ditch and on every contract, if such far-flung action should be deemed necessary. It was gathered that several exhibitors who had made contracts for the picture with Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan would cancel them in deference to the Chamber's wishes and so that a united front might be presented. A special executive committee meeting has been called for tomorrow to discuss the situation.

A Demonstrated Hit!

"The Spanish Dancer," the first picture to be demonstrated under Paramount's new sales plan, is having its first demonstration showings at the Rivoli, New York, and Grauman's Rialto, Los Angeles, this week. Other points will follow.

On the opening day (Sunday) at the Rivoli, 9,033 people flocked to "The Spanish Dancer." (8,939 saw "Manslaughter" at its opening at the Rivoli. And you know what a success "Manslaughter" has been!) Business has held steadily at capacity.

Tremendous crowds are jamming Grauman's Rialto at every performance.

This is the first demonstrated evidence that "The Spanish Dancer" is a big hit. Watch for more!

And the Critics Say:

"As the gypsy dancer who fascinated the King of Spain, Pola Negri returns happily to the mood of her superb 'Carmen.' Miss Negri is far better than she has been in either of her previous American productions."

—New York Herald.

"At last Pola Negri has returned to the picturesque costumes in which she made her first success. A long and enthusiastic ovation was accorded her by the audience. A distinct popular triumph."

—Los Angeles Times.

"In 'The Spanish Dancer' one finds the old, flaming, glorious, gorgeous Pola Negri, and one finds a great deal more. Will doubtless make millions of dollars."

—New York Tribune.

"The Pola of some of her first pictures comes back to us in 'The Spanish Dancer.' The picture is lavish with beautiful settings and costumes. In their roles every player does splendid work."

—Los Angeles Examiner.

"1,000 per cent better than 'Bella Donna' and 'The Cheat.'"

—N. Y. Evening World.

"Pola is more lustrous than ever as the gypsy dancer in the gallant days of early Spain. It is a picture replete with gorgeous costumes and picturesque incidents—the very thing, in fact, that grownups, as well as children, cry for."

—New York Sun-Globe.

"Gorgeous in the very strictest sense of the word. From first to last, vibrant with life. It is a long picture but never dull."

—New York Telegraph.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Spanish Dancer"—F. P. L.—Rivoli

AMERICAN—Situations are interesting, the settings are castles in Spain, and Antonio Moreno, as Don Caesar, is a delight in well-groomed satins and laces and plumes.

EVENING WORLD—We will say that it is our opinion that Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer" is not nearly so good as she was in her old pre-American days, and that she is 1,000 per cent better than she was in "Bella Donna" and "The Cheat."

In our estimation, "The Spanish Dancer" is by far the best of the trio Miss Negri has made since she went to Hollywood, became a regular screen actress and bobbed her hair.

HERALD—Miss Negri is far better than she has been in either of her previous American productions, and although hers was a losing fight with the rampagous projection machine yesterday, she has indicated in this picture that she is returning to her old dominance.

Herbert Brenon's production of "The Spanish Dancer" is many degrees below "Rosita" in pictorial beauty.

MAIL—This one happens to be better than her last, if not the best since her advent in Hollywood. She has always excelled in what might be called the costume picture, and this one gives her several opportunities of which she makes the best.

"The Spanish Dancer" is a big production and might well hold its own with others which have been given dignity by their appearance in houses heretofore devoted to the drama. It is skillfully directed by Herbert Brenon and beautifully and sumptuously staged.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—From the very first foot of the first reel to the last foot of the last, in short, every step of the way, the picture is vibrant with life. It is a long picture, too, but it is never dull. Herbert Brenon, who directed it, deserves a large part of the credit.

POST—She is given more opportunity to act than in any of the preceding American productions. Where is the old Pola? the naivete of action, the abandon of passion, the lack of clothes consciousness—they have gone; so perhaps once again transatlantic has meant artistic death.

SUN—Pola is more lustrous than ever as the gypsy dancer. It is a picture replete with gorgeous costumes and picturesque incidents.

TELEGRAM—One of the most celebrated melodramas of yesteryear, "Don Cesar de Bazan," has been turned into a fascinating film success.

TIMES—"The Spanish Dancer" is not nearly so good a production as "Rosita," and actually there is more dash and spark to Mary Pickford's acting than there is to the famed Polish star's efforts.

The secret is that Ernst Lubitsch, Pola Negri's director in her German productions was the master mind in Mary Pickford's picture. Pola Negri appears to suffer from an overdose of direction. This picture proves that Mary Pickford still is an accomplished screen actress and Lubitsch a masterful director.

TRIBUNE—In "The Spanish Dancer" one finds the old, flaming, glorious, gorgeous Pola Negri, a gypsy girl, almost as untamed as Carmen, and one finds, also, a great deal more, but nothing that was exactly to our liking, with the exception of the cast.

After saying that "The Spanish Dancer" will doubtless make millions of dollars for the producers we may with a clear conscience announce that it seems to us a wholly artificial, rather tedious picture.

WORLD—There seems to be more of the dash of the old European Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer" than in any cinema she has made since Hollywood got hold of her. Miss Pickford's exhibit was a sweeter and a more dramatic one, while Miss Negri's is a more colorful, more vigorous, more dazzling and gaudier one. Miss Pickford would tell you that in her production one would find art, while the Famous Players are content to have made what they consider to be an entertaining movie.

"The Bad Man"—1st Nat'l Strand

EVENING JOURNAL—Hollbrook Blinn plays the role with an almost Gallic humor and so much charm that many young men will like to visualize himself as the death-dealing, knife-eating Pancho Lopez of his interpretation.

Altogether the picture has that whimsy about it that a play by Brown has. It is a new note entirely.

EVENING WORLD—In this, his first starring picture, Blinn has proved that he is as good, if not better, before the camera than he was behind the footlights. His technique, as far as we can see, is well nigh perfect.

And we'll wager that when the film critics of the country make their selections of the "ten best pictures of the year," the "Bad Man" will be in the money.

MAIL—Edwin Carewe, the director, deserves much praise for his part in the making of the film. He realized the possibilities and limits of the story and at no time introduced any scenes which detracted from the interest. The result is a simple, straightforward film excellently photographed and effectively portrayed.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Hollbrook Blinn is an amusing screen actor. He can express more in the flick of an ash from his cigarette than most actors can by running what is commonly referred to as "the whole gamut of emotions."

All in all, "The Bad Man," although not quite as good a picture as it was a play, is entertaining and is the medium of giving a very fine actor a part on the screen in which he excels.

POST—Surely one cannot hope for anything much better than Mr. Blinn as the bandit chieftain. His performance alone is sufficient to make this film most entertaining, but the entire cast measures up well, so the result is most satisfactory. It is a safe bet that every one will enjoy the picture.

SUN—We can recommend "The Bad Man" as an entertaining picture, but we refuse pointblank to say it is better than the play. It isn't as good.

TELEGRAM—Just as absorbing as the play. Edwin Carewe has made a good job of the film production of "The Bad Man." He directed it as well as Hollbrook Blinn acts the role.

TIMES—"The Bad Man" provokes a constant chuckle. None of the whimsical humor with which Porter Emerson Browne, author of the play, surrounded the chief character has been lost. Blinn seems to take the same keen enjoyment in playing the part for the screen as he did before the footlights.

TRIBUNE—It is not so good a Bad Man as the play, but it is good enough. Probably those who never saw the play will be delighted with it and even those who did see it will not be disappointed in the picture. It follows the play so closely, scene for scene, that the most ardent addict could find nothing to resent in the translation.

Hollbrook Blinn is seen in his original role, Pancho Lopez, which would go a long way toward making the picture a success.

WORLD—"The Bad Man" in pictures is one of the best examples of sane transference of a stage play to the screen which we have seen, and the picture is distinctly worthy of the large patronage which it apparently is going to enjoy.

"Strangers of the Night"—Metro Capitol

AMERICAN—Anyone who tells a wildly improbable story of hazard and gold and love, and tells it with exciting effectiveness, is bound to put that story across, and that's what they've done with "Strangers of the Night."

DAILY NEWS—The action, while a trifle boring in the beginning, captures a true spark of life toward the middle, which burns straight through to the conclusion.

EVENING WORLD—The film version is just as rollicking, just as finely acted and far more entertaining, to us, than was the stage version.

MAIL—A rollicking good film it is. Fred Niblo has succeeded in turning out a film far above the average run. He caught the romantic spirit of the play and the spectators enjoyed it.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—It makes a very good picture, and although it is too long, it can easily be cut.

Fred Niblo has directed this offering in fine style. The lighting is effective and the photography is excellent. The sets, too, are convincing, and in good taste.

POST—All in all, it is one of the most enjoyable lighter "movies" ever filmed. Then, too, the photography and captions are excellent allies in upholding a high artistic standard.

SUN—Fred Niblo has made an excellent translation to the screen of Walter Hackett's "Captain Applejack," preserving all the rollicking quality of the stage original as well as adding a few blithe touches and knife flourishes of his own. The most agreeable point, actually, is that Matt Moore at last comes into his own as a screen comedian, giving a delightful, subdued, yet none the less twinkling, impersonation of the timorous Britisher.

TELEGRAM—"Strangers of the Night" is one of the most alluring films, with its quaint mingling of present day life on shore and the rollicking life on sea.

TIMES—It makes an excellent photoplay, which was to be supposed, as the story is one which lends itself well to picturization. Niblo picked a competent cast, the selection of Matt Moore being a very happy one. It is a film which will undoubtedly prove a great drawing card at the Capitol this week.

TRIBUNE—He has managed to transfer to the screen nearly all of the delightful little subtleties which made the play such a success.

WORLD—The acting will hardly bear minute inspection. Particularly in the playing of Matt Moore and Edie Bennett does the adjective "negative" seem applicable. Yet in the smartly twisted plot there is sufficient activity to entertain above the average.

GORGEOUS

By DANNY

That's the word. It describes the "ship" scenes in the picture "The Courtship of Es Standish." Nothing shown any of the great big pictures this season outdoes this stuff. It holds you every minute by its tremendous charm and beauty, as well as the action of the Bible-land Pilgrims. In contrast to the rough neck crew. The cinematography also is unusually good. This portion of the picture stands out for years.

When they cut and trim the best of it so that it keeps pace with the "ship" material Ray will have a great box office attraction. But it must be cut. And cut a lot.

Mabel's Hit

Mabel Normand gives a mighty performance in "The Extra Girl." She doesn't look so good and she looks a little heavy. But she still winks and smiles, has a lot of hokum in her work, and puts the picture over in a way that's breaking house records at the Mission. Of course, in any picture is somewhat along the lines of "Hollywood" and "Souls for Sale" but it's just enough different to stand out. They have one more chance of Mabel leading a real lion through the studio—thinking it's a leaded up dog—that's a riot. Dickson deserves a lot of credit for the picture. Because the story is just a trifle trite. Still he's got a lot out of it.

Beginning in Sunday's issue you'll find some mighty interesting ideas of what producers think about next year—and the product coming. Joe Schenck starts the discussion.

Motion Denied

Justice Wagner yesterday denied application of Haring and Blumenthal for a temporary injunction to restrain the Elsmere theater in the Bronx from showing "Enemies of Women" the last half of the week, beginning today. The injunction was sought by Haring and Blumenthal on behalf of their Belmont theater. This is the second set-back that the C. C. members have met with.

Harmony Move Under Way To Bring Insurgents Back Into M.P.T.O.

Repeal of Admission Tax Is the Common Motive—Cohen, Brandt, O'Reilly Not So Far Apart As Appears on Surface—Jimmy Walker Yet to Be Reconciled—Other State Units to Be Invited to Conference

A common objective: the repeal of the admission tax, which is burdening exhibitors all over the country, may be the instrument through which the differences, long standing between the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America and various insurgent units, will be forgotten and a nationally effective exhibitor body formed.

For weeks there has been a maze of reports circulated in New York about the M. P. T. O., the T. O. C. C. and the M. P. T. O. of New York, of which Billy Brandt is president. It is no secret that various important exhibitor leaders, particularly in the T. O. C. C. and the Brandt unit, have hoped that politics might be forgotten and a basis of understanding reached that would wipe out the grievances which both sides, more or less, claim.

The soothing syrup will be the fight for the admission tax repeal. Brandt is on record, on behalf of the New York unit, as favoring joint exhibitor action, no matter who the leader might be. When Sydney S. Cohen appeared at the meeting of the T. O. C. C. on Tuesday, the impression was at once created that there was something in the wind.

The picture will be transferred from the Rivoli to the Rialto for another week and in the near future will open at Nate Robbins' theater, Utica Blumenthal had some interesting information to impart about conditions in general in Europe. He said the business in Russia is opening up and that, despite the Government monopolies said to exist there, large shipments of film are getting into the country regularly through Berlin. He was of the impression that the Russian field will prove a lucrative one.

F. P. Wins Action

Famous Players stated yesterday that a temporary injunction granted against Jesse Sill, J. C. Cook and James C. McClellan, owners and distributors of "The Trail of the Covered Wagon" had been made permanent and that Judge Rossman of the Circuit Court of Multnomah County, Oregon had ordered out the words "The Covered Wagon" from the title of that picture. Famous alleged the title deceived the public into believing that the other production was their "The Covered Wagon".

As noted, a temporary injunction was obtained recently.

and at Mike Glynn's Patchogue theater, Patchogue, Long Island, the demonstration runs in those zones. There will be further showings in Poughkeepsie and the other points decided upon for this territory and on the basis of what the picture does, it will have its valuation fixed. Just what that value will be is problematical but Paramount officials are understood to hold the impression that the picture will gross over $1,000,000.

The complete list of demonstration theaters is now being rounded out in what will be its final form. More applications were received by the Paramount sales department than can possibly be taken care of. The theaters do not necessarily have to be confined to exchange centers or big cities. Some of them will probably be located in small towns.

Announce Winners Next Week

The winners of the Carl Laemmle Scholarship and Scenario Contest will be announced next week by Universal. The number of scenarios submitted precluded naming the winners by Sept. 15. College students were eligible.

A survey of the scripts submitted to Universal showed that the subject matter varied in the following order: romance, business, politics, sociology, war and adventure. Most of the stories deal with small town life and the majority ended happily.

Burr, Rogers in New Unit

Sure of a Record

Harry Reichenbach of the Sam Goldwyn offices declared yesterday that "Potash and Perlmutter", for which Walter Wanger is reported to have offered $180,000 for England, would gross more money than any film in the history of features in England if road showed.

There are a lot of film men who disagree with Harry.

Clubs to Talk Films

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Hollywood—"Buck" Jones, having finished work on "Big Dan" for Fox, has started work on his next, "Mike McGee's Chorus Girl".

Harmony Move Under Way

That was decidedly so. Cohen, Brandt and Charles O'Reilly, president of the T. O. C. C., did everything but kiss at the meeting and certainly, a mighty long step was taken to heal the breach. Cohen specifically sought the support of the T. O. C. C. on behalf of M. P. Day which, according to local comment, is purely designed to raise funds with which to carry on a legislative fight. When the T. O. C. C. meets next Tuesday, it is expected the resolution passed this week will be approved by the entire organization. November 19 has been set aside by the T. O. C. C., and on that day, 25% of the receipts will be turned over to the T. O. C. C. treasury in the nature of a war chest to secure the repeal of the tax.

It is expected that Cohen will call a meeting, national in scope, to draw up the necessary plans. Invitations will be extended to the insurgent units out of New York to participate in the discussions. Present indications point to an acceptance of the Cohen invitation rather than a refusal. The units which have withdrawn from the M. P. T. O. are: Michigan, Northern California, Minnesota and North Carolina. Efforts will be made to bring the Illinois unit, which is at present not as friendly toward the national organization as it might be, into line.

200 Replies From Congressmen

Cohen stated at the T. O. C. C. meeting Tuesday, that he has received 200 favorable replies from Congressmen all over the country on the tax question.

There is one angle that might present some trouble, and that is the reconciliation of State Senator James J. Walker, who said a number of unkind things about Sydney Cohen, when the latter proceeded to engage another attorney for the national organization. Those who are hoping—and working—for a general house-cleaning and the smoothening of ruffled feelings, maintain that the job must be complete, and that all those individuals who split in the beginning must be brought back into the fold.

Those parties most directly concerned in this matter may not admit that the signs point toward the harmony idea but, nevertheless, it can be stated that the signs are right. The attitude of many exhibitors may be gleaned from the remarks made by a certain man, who is prominent in local circles:

"If the admission tax is repealed, I will save about $50,000 a year. Now what difference does it make, who heads the united exhibitor bodies, so long as we get the infernal tax repealed. That's all that counts. Let the glory be divided later on, after the battle is won".

Arkansas In Line

The M. P. T. O. of Arkansas at a meeting held at Little Rock, according to national headquarters, endorsed National M. P. Day. The following officers were elected: President, Eli Whitney Collins, Jonesboro; vice-president, H. D. Wharton, Warren, and Secretary and Treasurer, O. C. Hauber, Pine Bluff.

The following state units are supporting the plan: Southern California, Indiana, Connecticut, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey, Western Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, and Oklahoma.

Discuss Music Tax

"Potash and Perlmutter" is demonstrating that it is, just what we have always claimed it to be, one of the outstanding money makers of the year and the greatest comedy drama that has ever been offered to exhibitors.

Wherever this production plays the condition is always the same at the box-office—CROWDS!

At the Mark-Strand, New York, where it ran for two weeks to big business they had 16,000 admissions on the opening day. In Baltimore, Chicago and other cities the condition has been the same—CROWDS!

A picture to make money for you must be a good one. A picture to pull them the way "Potash and Perlmutter" is pulling them has got to be a world beater and That's Just What This One Is.

In the Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Trenton, N. J.—An application filed to prevent Fatty Arbuckle pictures during a vaudeville performance at the Moose Auditorium, has been refused by Director of Public Safety George B. La Barre. In turning down the request, the city official said that he would revoke the license of any theater in Trenton displaying a film in which Arbuckle appeared. He also declared that he would not allow the personal appearance of Arbuckle in Trenton.

It was made plain by the commissioner that his decision was not to be construed as an expression of views as to the guilt or innocence of the former star, but that he did not feel that the entire case should be revived in Trenton by permitting Arbuckle to appear.

Washington—The liability of the Knickerbocker Theater Co., for the collapse of the roof of the Knickerbocker theater on Jan. 28, 1922, which resulted in the death and injury of nearly 200 persons, will be one of the first cases to be taken up by the District Grand Jury, which has just convened. The second, third and fourth cases on the docket are those arising from the deaths of persons in the disaster. These cases, however, involve only the corporation and do not cover the personal liability of the various parties connected with the construction and operation of the theater.

Moline, Ill.—H. B. Paul is being held by the Federal Government for failure to make returns on admission taxes for a theater he formerly operated in Idaho.

Star, Author, Film Together

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—A coincidence somewhat unusual for Cleveland occurred this week when Bert Lytell, opened in headline position in "The Valiant" at Keith's Palace and right next door at Loew's State, "The Meanest Man in the World," in which Lytell stars began its engagement. To the right of Loew's State George M. Cohan opened the same day in "The Song and Dance Man." This brought the star of the picture the picture, and the author together in three houses separate, but adjoining each other.

Action on Fight Films Near

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Federal authorities say they have nearly completed their investigation into the circumstances surrounding the shipment here of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight pictures and that prosecution will shortly be started.

Newspaper Opinions

"Going Up"—Asso. Exhib. Cameo

AMERICAN—The film clings close to the stage play, as far as the stage play goes, but the picture is at its best when the airplane leaves the ground and the stage and strikes out for itself. * * *

EVENING WORLD—They have a nice little picture in "Going Up." * * * For those of us who like and enjoy the work of Douglas MacLean, there are scores of hearty laughs in the screen version of the stage success. It will serve well to while away an hour or so. It is enjoyable, but frothy.

HERALD—Good farce comedy is extremely rare on the screen, and the opportunity to see it is not often presented. Therefore one should not miss Douglas MacLean's new picture "Going Up." * * *

MacLean is one of the few adroit farceurs of the silent drama. * * * He is suave, graceful and well finished in his methods; he can get along comfortably without the aid of obvious gags.

"Going Up" is by far the best picture he has done since the memorable "23½ Hours Leave."

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * It contrives to be very amusing in its celluloid form yesterday. Many a hearty laugh greeted the tale of the young man ambitious to prove he could be an aviator. The situations, though worked out after a stereotyped fashion, are often very funny. * * *

POST—It clings closely to the play and makes a most interesting picture. * * *

SUN—* * * in a clever film version of "Going Up." * * *

We enjoyed the picture yesterday afternoon as much as the musical comedy. It is full of humor and humorous turns in the plot. In addition, the cast is thoroughly adequate.

TELEGRAM—While the picture is very humorous it also is very thrilling. * * *

TIMES—It is really very funny; the photographer has been kept on the alert with trick photography in the airplane exploits of Robert Street, which part is played effectively by Douglas MacLean. Hence the Cameo, * * * is a merry theater this week, and the laughter almost drowns the work of the musicians. * * * This is a film which will appeal to everybody who wants a really good laugh.

TRIBUNE—"Going Up" is a better picture than it ever was a play or musical comedy, and it had a big amount of popularity in both of its previous incarnations. * * *

Yesterday at the Cameo we laughed more loudly than we care to do in one of those intimate theaters. "Going Up" is one of the funniest things we ever have seen on the screen and, as a rule, comedies—not comedy—bore us to extinction.

Newspaper opinions from out-of-town papers will only appear when the feature reviewed has its world's premiere in that city. New York newspaper opinions will also be published when the production reaches Broadway.

"Going Up"—Asso. Exhib.—Granada San Francisco

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

San Francisco—Consensus of newspaper opinions on "Going Up," Doug MacLean's new picture for Associated Exhibitors which had its premiere at the Granada follows:

BULLETIN—The manner in which Douglas MacLean seemingly manipulates an airship * * * is not only thrilling, but one of the funniest situations ever brought to the screen. * * *

There is a romantic side to this comedy in which Marjorie Daw has a large part, but the love interest is almost submerged in the fun-provoking incidents. It is a picture which gives MacLean a vehicle in which he equals his accomplishment in "The Hottentot."

CALL—The comical situations in "Going Up" come in such rapid succession that one is in constant laughter. * * * The rest of the cast is well selected to bring out all the laughs there are possible in any audience.

CHRONICLE—"Going Up," the picture, proved to be a lively comedy. * * * Douglas MacLean's dry humor gets over very well. * * *

EXAMINER—"Going Up," is a delicious comedy * * * MacLean has never done any better work than in "Going Up"; the only film of his to compare with it is "The Hottentot." The air scenes are screams of hilarity.

NEWS—"Going Up" is convulsively, uproariously funny and its comedy entertainment of the first water. Equally amusing is the calf-love romance of the young author.

"The Broken Wing"—Preferred—Rialto

AMERICAN—In film form, it is fuller of incident than in the spoken version.

DAILY NEWS—You won't be sorry for seeing "The Broken Wing." It's good entertainment.

EVENING WORLD—"The Broken Wing" is much more thrilling on the Rialto screen than it was on the speaking stage. And that is surely saying a great deal for it. * * * It is well worth the seeing and we're glad we went.

MAIL—An excellent screen adaptation has been made of * * * "The Broken Wing." * * *

We have seen better pictures in this category. Its saving grace is the comic opera seriousness of Walter Long. * * *

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * has two outstanding claims in its favor—the sets are uniformly designed with exceptional taste and the photography is certainly superior in every respect. * * *

Slight as the narrative is there is an underlying comic element which, if it had been sufficiently elaborated, would have transformed the picture from a rather frivolous attempt at mechanistic romance of the modern fashion into a completely diverting satire on exotic dress. As it stands the most hilarious episode depicts a Mexican soldier, who prefers death to the ordeal of taking a bath.

POST—That thrilling airplane crash in the first act of "The Broken Wing" still lingers in the memory of those who saw the play, but this incident is even more exciting in the film. On the whole, the motion picture at the Rialto compares very favorably with the play. * * *

SUN—It is an agreeable entertainment. * * *

TELEGRAM—The subsequent crash when the wing breaks and his mechanician falls, furnishes a thrilling moment.

TIMES—* * * causing plenty of laughter. Here again, although this photoplay is directed by Tom Forman, one appreciates that the spoken titles taken from the play have a great share in its success. * * *

There is quite a good story attached to so-called farcical-melodrama, and the story is, of course, pleasing to the spectator to Inez. "The Broken Wing," which is to the airplane, is a splendid show, with much merit as the play.

However, it is an interesting picture which does not demand too much. * * *

“THE SPANISH DANCER” at the Rivoli is doing extraordinary business, afternoon and night.

It's the biggest picture-theatre success on Broadway in a week of 5 supposed-to-be big pictures.

Variety's daily box-office scout says this:

“— — and — — held about half a house each on the lower floor for the final show last night. It was off all along the line with the exception of the Rivoli, where Pola Negri in ‘The Spanish Dancer’ was getting the best play of any of the four features in the regular houses.”

And this:

“Last night at the — — did not show anything extraordinary in the way of business, but then the Rivoli on a check-up seems to be doing the business of the street this week with ‘The Spanish Dancer.’”

“The Spanish Dancer” is a Herbert Brenon production by Adolphe D'Ennery and P. S. P. Dumanoir. It was written for the screen by June Mathis and Beulah Marie Dix. Antonio Moreno is featured as “Don Caesar” and the supporting cast includes Wallace Beery, Kathlyn Williams, Robert Agnew, Gareth Hughes and Adolphe Menjou.

“The Spanish Dancer” is Paramount's first demonstrated picture.

New York City business proves it is big!

Watch for the others!

Loew Quits T. O. C. C.

Resignation to Directors Accepted—Fox and Moss Actions Pending

Loew presented his resignation to the board of directors of T. O. C. C. on Thursday. It was accepted.

Loew was summoned to appear before the board on one occasion to explain why his circuit had settled controversy with the operators' despite the decision of the T. O. C. C. members to act in the matter. When the meeting occurred, Loew was out of town.

While no comment was made on his resignation, it is known that Loew feels the T. O. C. C. has been interfering in his affairs and that the financial interference has proved too heavy to be borne.

William Fox and B. S. Moss are expected to be held accountable by the T. O. C. C. on a similar charge. Both are expected to be called before the board of directors. The Loew case had been discussed previously.

Series for Standard Cinema

"The Future"

(As seen by Joseph M. Schenck)

Hollywood—"The bigger and better picture has come to stay. The people want the bigger picture; the finer production. They have said so, and are saying so at the box office. This is being demonstrated day after day with Norma Talmadge's latest production, 'Ashes of Vengeance.' To me 'Ashes' is not as good a story as some of Norma's other recent releases. But the big sets; the splendid cast, the presentation is bringing in a greater volume at the box office than any of her pictures. This proves my point. I don't believe in producers dragging in big sets where they aren't necessary. I don't believe in building a big set just to show a big set, or a lot of people where they aren't necessary. But where they fit in and belong I think it helps a picture immensely. That is what we did in Ashes and the business sense of this is being proven every day.

WHAT IS COMING

"The run of this picture at the Roosevelt, Chicago, demonstrated to me what I have long believed to be true—that a big, fine picture should be played in a long run house in the big cities until the public tires of it. That is what this business must come to—long runs, real runs, for fine pictures. The idea of showing

Hammons Arranges to Handle English Company's Product in Canada—Found Conditions Better

When Earl W. Hammons was in England, he closed a deal with Ideal Films, Ltd., one of the most progressive of English producing and distributing companies whereby Canadian Educational Films, Ltd. will handle Canadian release of whatever important features Ideal may make.

While Educational in this country handles short reels only, this is not true of the Canadian subsidiary through which, at the present moment several American distributors are sending their product.

Hammons found conditions improving in England. He declared producers there are breaking away from the program picture in favor of the special production which involves a greater negative cost. To this end, he found British producers anxious to secure American players.

and Receptive Ear to Jake Wells' Plan

Michigan Seeks Data Declares Any Co-Ordinating Worth Attention—Griffin With Reservations

Michigan and Northern California interested in Jake Wells' maintain a council of 26 exchange centers in Washington to act as a clearing house on behalf of all the exchange centers in the country. H. M. Richey, manager of the Michigan M. P. T. O. in discussing the Wells plan stated that, if it is found to be practical, Michigan will be glad to join.

Griffin of the Allied Amusement Industries of California and the Pacific Coast States, in which is now the M. P. T. O. of Northern California, in response to a telegraphic communication says he is interested in the Wells plan for exhibitor representation in Washington "provided all exhibitors concur and help in the financial Wells suggestion, made at the exhibitor meeting in Washington last week is this:

Exchange centers would be maintained in Washington with an executive in an office that would serve as a clearing house for discussion of matters relating to exhibitor affairs and for the conduct of such campaigns into which they might enter. This organization would in no way interfere with the present state organizations. The expenses of the delegates attending meetings in the exchange office would be defrayed and contributed by the various independent organizations. Similar expenses of the Washington office and such clerical assistance as might be required would be on behalf of the Michigan M. P. T. O. is to say:

The plan that will co-ordinate the activities of theater owners is worthy

Griffin Likes Plan, in Principle

C. C. Griffin, of the Allied Amusement Industries of California and the Pacific Coast States, has this to say about the Wells' plan for exhibitor representation in Washington:

"It is hard to express an opinion without a fuller knowledge of the details, but I fully believe that exhibitors should be well represented in Washington provided all exhibitor bodies concur and help finance.

"Nothing should be attempted which would conflict with the work already done and plans already laid by various exhibitor bodies. Whatever is done should have the full backing of the entire industry. Petty differences should be forgotten and all pull together.

"If this can be accomplished, I say go to it."

of serious consideration. Mr. Wells should be commended for having the courage to spend time and thought on such a problem, the need of which becomes more and more apparent all the time.

"Michigan had a plan for national organization that it was sold on only because the plan had worked out so successfully in Michigan. But, I have no doubt that if the plan suggested by Mr. Wells looks plausible, this state realizing the vital necessity of an efficient national body, once convinced that it could be carried out, would gladly adopt it. What matters the plan? If the theater owners of the country set their heads to work out a national organization, it will be done, whether this or some other plan is adopted.

"It seems to me that the most important cog in the whole wheel is the successful state units, but I also appreciate the vital necessity of states who are functioning assisting other states to get on their feet, and if Mr. Wells' plan will do this, it certainly is worthy of serious consideration.

"Probably one of the most important factors in the plan as suggested would be the selection of one man from each exchange center who would be satisfactory to all of the theater owners in that section, and who would be so conversant with all situations in that vicinity as to be able to satisfactorily represent them. It will require a great deal of his time, but if such men can be secured, there is no reason why 26 cannot accomplish more than a large crowd, less conversant with the true situation. Personally, I should like to hear more details relative to the constructive suggestion made by Mr. Wells."

Advices from Washington indicate that Wells plans to call another meeting soon to discuss the matter further. No date, however, has been set for it.

No Date For Mid-West Meet

No word has come from the Middle West relative to the date for the proposed meeting at French Lick Springs. The impression was created that it would be held in October but with the month about half gone, word is still awaited from Indiana whence the invitations originated.

From Minneapolis comes word that W. A. Steffes of the Minnesota unit is following the cautious policy of not committing himself or his organization until a definite program for the meeting is defined. He is quoted in "Greater Amusements," as stating that Minnesota is not "interested" until a concrete program is outlined.

Nebraska Meets Tuesday

Omaha—The M. P. T. O. of Nebraska will hold a two day meeting here beginning Tuesday.

Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the Hays office may attend the Jackson exhibitor meeting, enroute to Minneapolis where, together with Col. Jason Joy of the Hays office, he will attend a conference of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Pettijohn will be gone for ten days.

Berman Going Up State

Sam I. Berman, executive secretary of the M. P. T. O. of New York—the Brandt unit—will shortly start up-state on behalf of the organization. He has been held up because of illness.

To Fight Sp'c'l Tax

Saskatchewan Cities Face 10% Levy on Admissions—Aid of M. P. T. O. Sought

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Regina—Exhibitors here are faced with the prospect of a municipally imposed tax on amusement tickets of 10%, a bylaw providing for this assessment on theater admissions having been favorably received by the Regina City Council. This action on the part of the Regina authorities follows closely the move made by two cities of the Province for the collection of a 10% tax on theater tickets, these being Moose Jaw and Saskatoon. At Moose Jaw, the revenue derived by the city through this tax during its first year will amount to $40,000, all of which is coming out of the pockets of theatergoers. Saskatoon does not yet know how much it will collect.

The law which empowers the cities of the Province to levy a tax on theater tickets has been on the statute books of Saskatchewan for the past two years but the cities have been slow to take advantage of the legislation until recently. The exhibitors of Regina, some of whom declare that they will have to close shop if the tax is collected, are appealing to the newly formed Canadian branch of the M. P. T. O. for assistance.

Reviews of the Newest Features

Hoot Gibson in "The Ramblin' Kid"

Universal

Whole... ANOTHER GOOD SON ENTERTAINMENT; TRY IS FAIRLY ORIGINAL SUFFICES VERY WELL VEHICLE FOR STAR; LET HIM GOOD ROLE AND KIND OF OPPORTUNES.

Will please his following; them what they want usually offers plenty of excitement for approval; fortunate in getting uniformly good stories.

Laura La Plante a pretty and capable too. Harold Good has quite a bit to do and does the part satisfactorily except that he is inclined to overdo his expressions. G. Raymond a good villain. Others Wil Welsh, W. T. Culley, Chas. K. Chas. Carol Hollaway.

Story... Typical western but with a few new twists turns that make it rather original and good entertainment of this kind. With the average western "fan", it will probably be called "great." Has several good sequences that are properly distributed and offer some first rate thrills. The rescue of the girl from the sand, the rodeo meet, the race, Hoot's capture of the wild animal, help to keep things going. Deals with a very much misunderstood hero who nearly loses the girl he loves because she thought he was drunk at the time of the big fight when in reality his boss' men had drugged him. Happy ending of course.

Box Office Angle... Good for the age crowd. Especially good admirers of westerns and A-1 number for Hoot Gibson "fans." Introduction of one character with referring to his owning the best in the county need not necessarily have boosted a Pierce Arrow Exploitation... Rely on star's names and his past attractions to get them. Recall his "Blinky" and "Out Luck." Any stunt exploitation in way of cowboys riding about, the staging of a miniature rodeo, will be good advertising for the picture.

A man wearing an elaborate cowboy outfit and riding an attractive horse might distribute throw-aways reading: "I'm the Ramblin' Kid." Just rambled into town. Available around to the blank theater take a look at me. Show a trailer of the race.

Direction by... Edward Sedgwick; very good use of material on whole. Might have speeded up first reel or two a little more, though cutting can still do it.

Authors... Earl Wayland Bowman
 Scenario... E. Richard Schayer
 Cameraman... Virgil Miller
 Photography... Good
 Locale... The West
 Length... 6,395 feet

Douglas MacLean in "Going Up"

Associated Exhibitors

As a Whole... MAC LEAN'S BEST SINCE "THE HOTTENTOT." THOROUGHLY PLEASING COMEDY ENTERTAINMENT THAT IS BRIM FULL OF HUMOROUS SITUATIONS AND HAS A GREAT COMEDY-THRILL CLIMAX.

Star... Does fine work in role of author who is forced to keep up the public's supposition that he is a great aviator. They're going to get a heap of laughs from the expressions on MacLean's face when he unintentionally "goes up" up an aeroplane and doesn't know how to bring it down. Star's work all the way through is first rate.

Cast... MacLean ably supported by Hallam Cooley, who also makes good use of comedy opportunities; Hughie Mack, an instructor in aviation who never flies himself; Francis McDonald, the French challenger, who forces MacLean to a contest flight; Wade Boteler and others, Marjorie Daw plays opposite the star, and Edna Murphy has a minor part.

Type of Story... From the musical comedy of the same name. Story rather scant for screen purposes but it has been surprisingly well adapted and skilfully handled, with its comedy value used to the best advantage. The picture starts off a little slow but it gradually gains in speed until it ends in a comedy-thrill climax that compares favorably with the great climax of MacLean's "The Hottentot." It's a succession of laughs with no let-ups until they flash "The End." "Going Up," is very good comedy at all times, and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

Box Office Angle... All your patrons enjoy a good laugh. If they don't you shouldn't be in business. Here's a chance to make them happy. You can't get a much better, cleaner, comedy number.

Exploitation... Should be especially easy. Play up the star's name and tell them he's got another that they'll enjoy as much as "The Hottentot." Boost the title and exploit it with stunts. Give out toy parachutes which, incidentally are the rage with youngsters right now.

A man togged out as an aviator, distributing them about the prominent thoroughfares, should advertise the picture nicely. Use the music from the show for your score.

Direction by... Lloyd Ingraham; did a nice job on this one; deserves special mention for splendid handling of comedy climax. Aeroplane stuff is great.

Authors... Otto Harbach and Louis A. Hirsch
 Scenario... Raymond Griffith
 Cameraman... Ross Fisher
 Photography... Good
 Locale... Berkshires
 Length... 6,053 feet

Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer"

Paramount

As a Whole... POLA NEGRI BETTER THAN SHE WAS IN FIRST TWO AMERICAN PRODUCTIONS BUT NOT THE POLA OF "PASSION." LUBITSCH DIRECTION SHOULD RESTORE HER. WHY NOT USE THE OLD COMBINATION?

Star... Appears to better advantage here than she did in either "Bella Donna" or "The Cheat" principally because the atmosphere is more suited to her and the role appropriate for her talents but Pola is still not doing the big things that she did under Lubitsch's direction. As the gypsy dancer in this she works well at times but seems to be caught off her guard on several occasions.

Cast... Antonio Moreno a successfully romantic Don Caesar. Wallace Beery, a good no-account King and Adolphe Menjou convincing as the wily courtier. Others Kathlyn Williams, who wears most unbecoming wigs, Gareth Hughes, Edward Kipling, little Dawn O'Day, Chas. Stevenson.

Type of Story... From the play "Don Caesar de Bazan," from which Mary Pickford's recent "Rosita" was also adapted. Pleasing romance with historical setting and very colorful atmosphere. Splendidly produced and with no evidence of stint in production cost. Whether or not the returns will prove that it warranted the expenditure is doubtful. The sets are big and at times magnificent, as well as notable for their depth. Against them, however, is a lot of hectic action, made doubly so by poor cutting. This is particularly noticeable in the Feast of the Madonna carnival sequence when the scenes are short and jerky.

Box Office Angle... Will please those who favor colorful, romantic pictures and will go nicely with star's following. May not fit snugly as a box office number. Depends largely upon class you cater to.

Exploitation... Star's name linked with the title should indicate the type of picture to expect: romance, pleasing atmosphere, pictorial appeal, love interest, big sets, spectacular effects. At any rate play up these features of the production. Mention that the story also served for Mary Pickford's latest venture. They should be interested enough to want to make comparisons.

Direction by... Herbert Brenon; an artistic production and nicely staged story; picture runs too long.

Authors... Adolphe D'Ennery and P. S. T. Dumanoir
 Scenario... June Mathis and Beulah Marie Dix
 Cameraman... James Howe
 Photography... Splendid Locale... Spain
 Length... 8,434 feet

"Scaramouche"

Producer: Rex Ingram

Distributor: Metro
 As a Whole... AN ENTERTAINMENT GEM, A BEAUTIFUL PRODUCTION, A SPLENDID CAST, GORGEOUS PHOTOGRAPHY, A DELIGHTFUL STORY. NEEDS A LOT OF ADJECTIVES TO DESCRIBE REX INGRAM'S LATEST.

Cast... Ramon Novarro, Alice Terry and Lewis Stone an ideal romantic trio. Novarro better than ever before. He never loses his grip on the part. Stone, capable as always. Alice Terry as beautiful as ever and gorgeously photographed. Her quaint costumes charming except for their being generally too décolleté. It was too bad to kill off Otto Matiesen so early in the story. He promised an interesting performance. George Siegmann, a perfect Danton.

Type of Story... Romance of the French Revolution. An adaptation of Rafael Sabatini's popular novel, which Willis Goldbeck, scenario writer, and Ingram, have given a most worthy presentation. The novel has been kept practically intact. It is told with all the spirit the author intended, all the romance and atmosphere of the original, and the thrills are not omitted. There is a far-reaching appeal in this historical spectacle,—another achievement for Ingram, another treat for the public, another "box office."

Box Office Angle... You know what you did with "The Four Horsemen." Answer: "You should know what you can do with "Scaramouche". It's another of the year's biggest and best. The picture runs long, probably too long for you to use anything else, but you don't need anything else.

Exploitation... Broadcast Rex Ingram's name. Post it everywhere you can find room for it. Tell your folks that the man who gave them "The Four Horsemen," now gives them his great picturization of Rafael Sabatini's delightful novel of the French Revolution. Play the story up from whatever angle you know appeals to your crowd the most—romance, spectacle, thrills, pictorial appeal, players, etc. Show them plenty of stills of Alice Terry. Promise more good work from Ramon Novarro and Lewis Stone. Get busy on "Scaramouche" now.

Direction by... Rex Ingram; did a big job in a big way; nothing misses; the mob scenes are splendid; the settings beautiful, detail interesting; it's all good. Picture needs a little cutting in the first half to tighten it up a bit.

Author... Rafael Sabatini
 Scenario... Willis Goldbeck
 Cameraman... John F. Seitz
 Photography... Superb; Seitz a master photographer.
 Locale... France of the Revolution.
 Length... 10,164 feet

"The Valley of Lost Souls"

Producer: Iroquois Pictures
Distributor: Independent Films
State Rights

As a Whole.....STORY IS FAR TOO SLIGHT FOR FEATURE PURPOSES; TAKES TOO LONG TO GET INTO THE ACTION AND WHEN IT IS ARRIVED AT, THE PICTURE IS ABOUT THROUGH.

Cast.....Victor Sutherland a good hero once he gets going; gives villain Luis Alberni a good fight. There are no well known players nor especially good performances. The cast includes Edward Harrison, Muriel Kingston, Anne Hamilton, Stanley Walpole.

Type of Story.....Drama that has only one situation and that one not big enough to build up a picture of feature strength. Result is a slow-moving, tedious picture that never seems to get anywhere. Numerous sub-titles help to fill in the gaps but they also slacken the interest. Development contains some illogical twists that the keen observer will find fault with.

Director has not developed the mystery angle sufficiently. There is an alleged ghost purported to kill men who enter a certain valley. This might have been used as the basis of a first rate mystery meller but there is no effort toward suspense nor building toward a climax, so that when the denouement is arrived at, and the real "ghost" exposed, there is no punch, nor surprise for the spectator.

Box Office Angle....May do for the average crowd, on a one time showing schedule. Played with a good supporting feature, you may use it satisfactorily on a double feature day program, or in conjunction with a good variety of short subjects. The offering is hardly strong enough to stand alone.

Exploitation....You will not be able to make particular promises for this one. The only talking point is the action in the last reel which may send them out satisfied if they don't mind waiting for it. The title is a good one and will probably bring them in of its own accord. There are no well known players so you'll have to use the regulation announcements, stills in the lobby, or trailer. If you think they're acquainted with Victor Sutherland use his name, but the title will likely prove more attractive.

Catchlines: "Who was the mysterious killer in 'The Valley of Lost Souls?' Find the answer in the picture at the blank theater."

Direction by.....Caryl Fleming; could have improved the story a great deal, several noticeable flaws in direction such as girl wearing different dress in scenes immediately following each other, and without lapse of time.

Author .....J. Seton Drummond
Scenario .....George Proctor
Cameraman .....Frank Purugini
Photography .....Fair
Locale .....Mountain Camp
Length .....4,817 feet

Guy Bates Post in
"Gold Madness"

Principal Pictures—State Rights

As a Whole....GOOD CAST AND PRODUCTION FAIL TO MAKE TRITE PLOT ENTERTAINING; DEVELOPMENT IS ALWAYS OBVIOUS WITH RESULTANT POORLY SUSTAINED INTEREST.

Star....Prominent and capable but not well suited to particular role; is too stiff in his carriage and manner of playing. Improves considerably as the picture progresses both in his work and screening. Photographs poorly in early sequences.

Cast ....Mitchell Lewis good as the stock panhandler with Cleo Madison and Grace Darmond the only others of any prominence in the story. Miss Madison and Miss Darmond might have switched roles to advantage.

Type of Story...Adapted from James Oliver Curwood's "The Man From Ten Strike." Another of those dramas of the Northwest in which the hero returns from the gold mines to find his wife has gone off with another. The plot becomes involved in an elaborate scheme whereby hero, now a millionaire mounted police officer, is sent to bring in the man who stole his wife. But of course there is a counterplot in which hero is nearly trapped except for the efforts of his new found love. The development is obvious from the start and the story is pieced together in illogical fashion in more than one instance. Shrewd fakers become such boobs in the hands of scenario writers, that it must annoy those of this "profession."

Box Office Angle....Guy Bates Post's name, the title, a good production, and other names in the cast,—all good talking points to bring them in. They may like it. They may not. It depends upon how easy or how hard they are to please. There are many beautiful shots of the North country to appeal to them.

Exploitation.....Play up the star's name and recall his appearance in "The Masquerader." His name will be known to them for his success on the legitimate. Or if you think you won't attract them with names, stick to the title and exploit it with stunts to attract their attention.

Distribute small imitation money bags with tags attached reading: "Money isn't everything. See 'Gold Madness' at the blank theater and you'll know why." Or, "Can happiness be bought? 'Gold Madness' answers the question." You can say the picture is good to look at but your promises will have to end there. Use stills in the lobby.

Direction by....Robt. T. Thornby; fair.

Dustin Farnum in
"The Man Who Won"

Fox

As a Whole.....AN AVERAGE WESTERN WITH HUMAN INTEREST ANGLE THAT GAINS FAIRLY SINCERE SYMPATHY FOR CHARACTERS; DUSTIN FARNUM IS STARRED BUT NOT IN STELLAR ROLE.

Star.....Has the hero part but it is not the real acting piece of the story, Farnum's role is unimportant in comparison with that of Ralph Cloninger. The story doesn't really provide him with an especially appropriate vehicle.

Cast ....Ralph Cloninger has the real stellar acting part and handles it very well Lloyd Whitlock a fair villain; he seldom seems capable of shrewd, villainous characterization; Muriel McCormack and Mickey McBan two clever and pleasing youngsters; others Jacqueline Gadsden, Mary Warren, Pee Wee Holmes, Harvey Clark.

Type of Story....Drama of the West in which the human interest angle is uppermost. There are occasional bits of action but too few and far between to satisfy those who may come in expecting a rousing good action-western. Is essentially a sympathetic tale in which the eternal triangle serves as the usual foundation, with two neglected youngsters, children of the faithless wife, added touches of pathos through sub-titles in which they call for their "mummy" and the distracted faithful husband, tries to pacify them. Not a strong theme, by any means, but may get by where they aren't fussy.

Box Office Angle....Your women folks will like this one much better than the men. The latter are not likely to accord the faithful husband much sympathy since there is a good deal too much tolerance in his make-up. But the women will call him "grand" and they'll hate the foolish wife, in fact they'll probably take the sorrowful theme very much to heart and feel thoroughly satisfied with themselves for having been "touched" by the pathos.

Exploitation.....Best to appeal to your women folks on the grounds indicated in the above paragraph. Tell them you have a human interest story in which a husband takes back his erring wife after another has laid down his life to bring about their reunion for the sake of the children. Don't bring them in on promises of its being a western. They'll expect action and won't get it. Dustin Farnum admirers may also be disappointed. He hasn't the prominence that they'll expect a star should have. In fact Farnum has only one or two real opportunities in the entire picture.

Direction by....William Wellman; makes fairly good use of material.

Scenario .....Ewart Adamson
Cameraman .....Joe August
Photography .....All right

Length .....5,500 feet

Luxor Picture Corp. presents
"Shifting Sands"

Hodkinson

As a Whole....GOOD PRODUCTION AND A LOT OF ATTRACTIVE DESERT LOCATIONS HELP TO COVER SHORTCOMINGS OF ETERNAL TRIANGLE.

Cast.....Peggy Hyland returns to screen after long absence. Satisfying and gives a satisfying performance. No other names may mean anything to you, but the entire cast is well suited and capable. Peggy Willoughby an alert hero Richard Atwood a good villain when he is once aroused. C. Mlle. Valia, Gibson Gowland, Melford and Douglas Webster.

Type of Story.....An introductory title advises you that the thing happens "under the lights in a drawing room can occur on the sands or the desert," or something to that effect, so the story proceeds to unfold the conventional eternal triangle, only with a desert atmosphere for variation. The plot itself holds little that is new, in fact or theory but a good production and numerous fine touches that lend considerable to the play, help in no small degree to cover up a weak story. Continuity is inclined to be erratic having practically three distinct sequences, but through some or other, director Granville has succeeded in sustaining the interest rather well.

Theme has to do with the love of a girl for a man married to a woman who is faithless to him. His disappearance and the death of the wife, followed by the return of the two years later.

Box Office Angle....Show some trailers of a sandstorm on the desert, tribes of Arabs scampering over the blowing sands, a man abducted by a desert chieftain, that's all you'll need to bring them back when you show the picture. The desert sequences of "Shifting Sands," are really very attractive and worth seeing.

Tell your folks that the picture was made in Northern California. Boost the pictorial appeal. Make your best talking point. Let them know that Peggy Hyland is on the screen after a long absence. They should remember her as a Fox star.

A man dressed in Arab costume riding about on a camel, should be a good stunt exploitation.

Direction by....Fred Leroy; provided excellent production and handled desert sequences especially well.

Harry Houdini in Haldane of the Secret Service

Film Booking Offices

Whole.....MYSTERY MELO-
RAMA WITH PLOT INVOLVING COUNTERFEITERS AND WILY ORIENTALS; LOCALE JUMPS FROM THIS COUNTRY TO EUROPE, ADDING INTEREST; REGULATION MOVIE STUFF BUT CONTAINS EXCITEMENT AND SOME STUNTS.

.....By far the best member of the cast, but is always the regulation "movie" detective rounding up a band of desperate criminals. Gets over one or two sensational stunts.

.....Includes Gladys Leslie, William Humphrey, Richard Carle, Edward Boulden and others. There is not much time in the hectic plot for any of the characters to seem real, with the possible exception of Gladys Leslie.

.....of story.....Mystery melodrama that is more meller than mystery. Made more impressive than it could otherwise have been by the spots taken in London and Paris. There is plenty of helter-skelter action but little or no character development. Hero, a member of the secret service, is after international counterfeiters who have killed his father, also a member of the Service. He falls in love with the innocent ward of the chief of the criminals. She is unaware of the workings of the gang and after many adventures he rounds them up and carries the girl.

Office Angle.....Where your crowd likes hectic action in preference to character development, or where Houdini's name is a drawing card this should get by. The title will attract those who favor detective stories.

Exploitation.....This shouldn't be difficult to exploit if you want to pay the picture. If you know your crowd likes excitement of the nature that is contained in this one and think they will be satisfied with the old-school "movie" stuff it embodies you can let them know what to expect by a good display of the title and the star's name in your lobby. Catchlines such as "See Harry Houdini, the Handcuff King, see himself from a moving mill-wheel in Haldane of the Secret Service" could be used. A display of different types of handcuffs in your lobby would be attractive if you can obtain them, and a trailer showing any of the European shots, the bit where Houdini is tied to the revolving mill-wheel should bring them back.

Concentrate on Houdini's name and get your local paper to devote space telling of some of his famous stunts in freeing himself from straight-jackets, etc.

Section by....Harry Houdini; Fair. Scenario .....Not credited. Program .....Not credited. Photography.....All right on exteriors; interiors sometimes too dark. Sale .....New York and Europe. Length .....5,908 feet

"Stage Fright"—Our Gang—Pathe Another Riot

Type of production 2 reel kid comedy
Little Farina and her brother Sammy are hired by a would-be missionary as a sample of the wild cannibals living in the region he is trying to raise funds for. Their performance is so realistic that the audience is moved to suggest amateur theatricals as a means to raise funds for them. The rest of the film is devoted to the doings of the gang, who for the first time are trying to "act." Nero, Marcus Antonius, a captive maiden and numerous others are chased around the stage in the funniest way imaginable. To add to the fun, one persistent mother insists that her little girl recite. This is without doubt one of the most enjoyable of this wonderfully entertaining series.

"Gentlemen of the West"—Universal Average Entertainment

Type of production....2 reel western
"Gentlemen of the West" gets away from the usual cattle-rustling western plot formula and gives us a heroine who is the editor of a small but snappy newspaper. She gets on the trail of a couple of real estate thieves and makes things hot for them, but the cowboy hero appears on the scene and champions her cause. There is a bit of humor, and quite a nice degree of entertainment in this one.

"The Life of Reilly"—Hodkinson Not Easy To Laugh At

Type of production....1 reel cartoon
Reilly's wife loved dogs and Reilly didn't, so "The Life of Reilly," a C. C. Burr comedy released by Hodkinson, resolves itself into a series of attempts on the part of Charlie Murray, as Reilly, to do away with the fuzzy-haired pup. Whether or not the S. P. C. A. will stand for the abuse that the dog is supposed to receive, is a question. And some real dog fanciers may not take kindly to killing off of a pup, as comedy. "The Life of Reilly," is very mediocre comedy and not always refined comedy at that, even though there is nothing decidedly offensive. A fair number if they laugh easily.

"Done in Oil"—Christie—Educational Action, Thrills and Comedy

Type of production....2 reel comedy
Activity, and there is plenty, in the oil fields of California form the plot of this excellent Christie Comedy.

Jimmie Adams is the star, and the good supporting cast includes Charlotte Merriam, Babe London and others. There is, to be sure, quite a bit of slapstick, but the thrills that exist in "Done in Oil" are extremely good. Adams climbs us to the top of the frame structure of a well, and when he gets up there a nest full of live hornets makes things a bit too lively for him. Your folks will gasp and thrill as well as laugh at this one.

"People of Many Climes"—Hodge Podge—Educational Novel and Diverting

Type of production....1 reel novelty
A composite of short flashes of different interesting scenes and people presented in unusual ways, clever cartoons, good titles and novel handling make this number of Lyman H. Howe's "Hodge Podge" entirely up to the standard set by preceding reels of the series. One subject in particular shows some exceedingly beautiful shots of "reflections" cast by different objects. Some are mountains seen in the waters of a lake others are folks faces seen in distorting mirrors, all are interesting. This is a short reel that's sure to be liked.

"Winner Take All"—Hal Roach— Pathe A Pretty Good Comedy

Type of production....1 reel comedy
Tournament day at a Country Club provides an opportunity for Paul Parrot to do a lot of comedy acrobatic stuff that includes some good diving. A pogo race, a diving contest and a golf tournament are all burlesque. A laugh comes at the very finish when, after having won the girl and the cup, Parrot spies his wife and several kiddies, and is carried off to wheel the baby carriage.

"Aged in the Wood"—Aesop Fable— Pathe Very Entertaining Cartoon

Type of production...1 reel animated cartoon
Henry Cat is a bootlegger of the worst type in this one-reel cartoon. The kick that his liquor has is stronger than a mule. He gives some to a parrot, who is promptly knocked out and so Henry tries some himself, with surprising results. The animation in this is particularly good, and some novel effects have been introduced. It's one of the best of this excellent series.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Using the Prologue For Effect

St. Louis—Following the overture recently, at the Lyric theater, East St. Louis when "The Isle of Lost Ships," was the feature a prologue was staged that later brought much comment from the patrons.

When the overture ended, the pages, standing at attention slightly to the rear of the fountain in the fore of the stage, pulled aside the hangings, hiding a striking set of "The Isle" on which were two castaways hopelessly tinkering with a wireless key. A short dialogue preceded the pair singing "The Stormy Sea," and, as song ended, the picture appeared. "Well done," said many.

Ray Leason Scores

Ray H. Leason, Metro, effected a choice tie-up when he got himself elected a member of the advisory committee of the Buffalo Community Players who are to offer as their opening bill next week. "Captain Applejack." A few days later Metro's version of the play, "Strangers of the Night" is to open at Shea's Hippodrome.

Leason pledged himself to do all in his power to put over the play for the Community Players and they in turn have pledged themselves to do all they can for "Strangers of the Night." The Buffalo newspapers, who are heartily supporting the players, have expressed their willingness to publicize both attractions.

The Community Players are sponsored by Buffalo society and business men. Because of this Leason is effecting many window displays and other tie-ups.

Associated Launches Essay Contest

A $3,000 prize essay contest, country-wide, open to pupils of all schools, has been announced by Associated Exhibitors, in connection with the distribution of "David Copperfield."

There will be 350 awards to students for the best compositions, the three schools having the most winners will also receive a large cash award to be applied to the school library or whatever the school authorities select.

The pupils' prizes will be awarded to two groups—to students 12 years of age or under, and to those 13 and over. The younger children writing on the subject, "The Characters I Like Best in 'David Copperfield,' And Why," and the older contestants discussing the question, "In A 5-Reel Motion Picture of 'David Copperfield,' Which Scenes And Characters Should Be Included?"

To each group 165 cash prizes are to be given, a first prize of $100, four prizes of $25 each, and 160 of $5 each, a total of $2,000 to be distributed among 330 contestants. Three additional prizes aggregating $1,000, $500, $300 and $200, will be awarded to the schools with the greatest number of prize-winners. The contest closes March 31, 1924. The judges consist of:

Olive M. Jones, president of the National Education Ass'n; Gertrude Lane, editor of Woman's Home Companion; James K. West, president of the Boy Scouts of America, and William A. Johnson, editor of the Motion Picture News.

School authorities would readily lend their support to the exhibitor in selling this picture, since it is a version of one of Charles Dickens' works.

Laundry Company Co-operates

Cincinnati—"Enemies of Women," went over at Ike Libson's Strand recently, due to the co-operation of the Model Laundry Co., which operates seven large plants throughout the city.

The nature of the tie-up with the laundry establishment was along these lines. For the entire week of the showing, in every bundle of laundry that went out of the seven plants there appeared the herald made up by Goldwyn stating "Wash Days Are Enemies of Women." The laundry company also used the copy from this herald in special display ads inserted every day during the showing in three papers. Besides the combined circulation of the papers, over 50,000 people knew of the showing through the laundry inserts.

Credit This To Ben Apple

Troy, N. Y.—A few days before the opening of "Don't Marry For Money," at the American Ben Apple, manager, started a teaser campaign with a series of teaser ads, set two inches deep, double column, and carrying no date. The first read:

"A woman sells herself for money! The world calls her—? A woman sells herself for luxury! Using a clergyman as a broker, and the world calls her—clever! But is there really any difference? 'Don't Marry For Money.'"

Another read: "Are you one of those who believe 'there's nothing I want that money can't buy?' 'Don't Marry For Money.'"

Then followed: "She had six charms! (Face—eyes—smile—lips—figure—?) He had six charms! (Six million dollars.) Yet their marriage wasn't happy! 'Don't Marry For Money.'"

Then he ran this warning: "He was rich! She was poor! He gave her everything! Yet she had nothing! 'Don't Marry For Money.'"

The last teaser gave a hint at what was to follow: "When Rubye De Remer married House Peters to please her uncle, everyone knew it wouldn't last. 'Don't Marry For Money.'"

The Future

a big costly picture in a large city for a week, or even two weeks is all wrong. In the first place if it is the kind of a picture the people want to see they will be stimulated by the word of mouth advertising which fails in its actual opportunities by a short run. These long runs should not be planned at a ridiculously high price. I should say that the Roosevelt prices of 55 cents should be enough, and this for the finest of pictures. There are only one or two cities in this country where we can get $1 or more for pictures, no matter how fine they may be, barring of course, the exceptional outstanding pictures which comes only too occasionally. At a 55 cent price a big picture can remain four weeks or more and take in a lot of money for the producer as well as the exhibitor. Then it is ready for the second runs, etc., and still will get a lot of money.

LONG RUN HOUSES

"I expect to see long run first run houses established in every city of importance within the next year or so. I expect to see these houses play on percentage—a percentage which will not prove a burden, but a natural, healthy figure where the exhibitor after taking out his nut, and the producer his share of negative cost based on the size of the town, will then split fifty-fifty, or perhaps on some other equitable terms, whatever they should be. Obviously some of these pictures will get a break better than fifty-fifty; some may go as strong as seventy-five, twenty-five, the exhibitor taking the smaller amount.

THE COMBINE AND CLOSED TOWN SITUATION

"Will not bother or annoy the producer of a big picture long. It may force him to stay out, or go into that territory, whether a big or little town, either as a road show, in the biggest hall he can find, or if necessary the important stars can protect themselves with a theater of their own. This business must work out on a basis of equity to all, and the minute that equity is abused then either side will protect himself to the utmost of his ability."

THE DIVISION

In Schenck's opinion the important long run showings will naturally develop theaters for such runs, and consequently the productions not good enough for such showings will automatically find their place in the houses either running short run first-runs, or others. It is his belief that this system will develop for the coming season. The result of the extended run in the largest cities will be reflected in the smaller cities, is his belief, in that when the large picture reaches these neighborhoods that they will have even longer runs than heretofore; for instance instead the smaller theater changings three times weekly, or daily, the case may be the larger pictures will get an extra few days. In other words longer runs throughout the business for the serving pictures.

PAYING FOR DISTRIBUTION

An interesting point made by Schenck in his discussion is that the distributing companies do not operate advantageously to the star, or stars and that these stars help pay for the distribution of less valuable product.

Let us figure, "he said, "that a certain star, whose pictures are being released by any good distributor, will average a million gross for his pictures. For this distribution he pays 30 per cent. Suppose he makes three pictures a year. The distributor gets $900,000 a year for distributing this product. Also the distributor has other pictures in his machine which may gross on an average $200,000. He gets $60,000 for each of such pictures. But there is no question that it is through releasing the star's product that the machine carries on. It might have grave difficulty in existing by distributing only the product of the $200,000 producer. This producer has the benefits of the star's distributing machine and because of the cheaper distribution of this secondary product this producer is able to compete for players, even stars, direct including the best, and, in fact, everything that goes into picture making. In other words, through this existing distributing method the second rate producer becomes a definite competitor to the very star whose distributing arrangements allow the second rate man to be in business. It is true, of course, that if he attempted to distribute his own pictures the cost of such distribution would be so high that he could not exist. But it should happen, and what, I believe, will, is that the distribution of the star product will not be allowed to take 30 per cent of gross for the distribution of the star's product, but a more equitable arrangement will be made for handling his pictures through the distributors' machine. All of these problems will work out as the business grows older. But they are not that serious that we should become upset over the future of the picture business. There is no cause nor occasion for worry. This system is proving just what a magnificent business we have—the pictures are fine, splendid. I am most optimistic over the outlook."

BUSINESS?

By DANNY

Hollywood—The business of a concern which has on program for this season, one of the greatest lineups of attractions. This concern is of outstanding importance. The production schedule calls for an expenditure running into millions, many millions.

These millions were invested in business they would be sold, under natural banking conditions, to draw at least six per cent, the risk of doing business in the industry barred.

In the picture business it has been assumed that because of the risk involved that a fair return would be from 25 to 40 per cent on productions. Some estimates given out by flight producers will tell you a good picture should make a minimum of 100 per cent for producer and distributor.

But this distributor has not asked for 40 per cent return for production schedule for this season, nor 25. Not even for ten, or six. He hasn't asked for a return of three per cent.

He has not asked for a penny profit on the investment of millions. He has asked his salesmen to get back only the many millions involved.

WHY?

Because production costs are so heavy that if exhibitors were asked to meet the prices naturally for such productions he exhibitors would be unable to pay them and yet maintain their theaters at a profit.

Is this the first indication of a wrong heavy expenditures on the pictures of this season. Will it continue?

More Suits Planned

T. O. C. C. Seek Clear-Cut Decision on "Enemies" Case—Balked Technically, Is Claim

Additional litigation may be expected from the T. O. C. C. ranks against William Randolph Hearst and Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, over the local bookings on "Enemies of Women." The claim is advanced in exhibitor circles that as yet there has been no decisive decision from the courts which would define the rights of exhibitors in the matter.

It is declared that the Gotham vs. Washington suit was thrown out of court by a technicality in that the Gotham Theater Co. was a foreign corporation which had never secured the necessary permission from the Secretary of State in Albany to transact business here. It is also asserted that the Belmont vs. Elsmere suit was thrown out because the plaintiff failed to sue the rightful owners of the picture. In this connection, it is

Seek to List 14,228 Shares

The application of Famous Players before the Stock Exchange asks that the company be permitted to list 14,228 additional shares of common stock, no par value. As noted, 11,000 will probably be turned to Sid Grauman for his 50% interest in the Million Dollar, Metropolitan and Rialto theaters in Los Angeles. The remaining shares would cover other corporate purposes.

Larry Semon Here

Larry Semon is in town from the coast.

Borzage Through

Contract with First Nat'l for Two Pictures—To Direct Norma Talmadge

Frank Borzage has completed two pictures for First National, thereby completing his contract with the releasing company. The pictures are "Children of Dust" and "Dust in the Doorway" which were directed by Borzage for Arthur H. Jacobs who is the producer. Borzage has been engaged to direct Norma Talmadge in "Secrets," her next picture.

Jacobs has been in town for the past week or so. He owns the rights to "Bread," the new Norris novel which has been scenarioized by Lenore Coffee, since returned to the coast. It is understood that Jacobs will make the picture in the East.

Interested

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Richmond, Va.—Jake Wells says:

"I have read your account of the Virginia exhibitor gathering at Washington and note the manner in which you presented the twenty-six zone idea. There will be another meeting on the 30th, of the exhibitors of what would constitute the Washington zone for the purpose of going more seriously into this plan.

"I have received telegrams and letters from exhibitors from various parts of the country who have read THE FILM DAILY article, so, evidently, quite some interest has been created on the lines suggested."

An Austrian Deal

Alfred Weiss To Handle Films of Vita of Vienna—See Field for Foreign Pictures Here

Alfred Weiss, of Artclass, has arranged to distribute the entire product of the Vita Co., of Vienna in this country. This is the unit with which, as noted, he closed a deal while in Europe this summer.

Weiss recently returned from a three months' trip abroad, part of which was spent in Vienna. He says he was amazed at what he saw there in the way of production, and adds that he thinks the foreign picture has at last "arrived." Efficient studio methods are cited by Weiss as a strong reason why pictures there can be made at a relatively low negative cost as compared with American product.

Product Partly Split

Some First Nat'l Members Now Operating Own Exchanges for Outside Pictures

Several of the First National franchise holders have already carried out the decision made at the Atlantic City convention last spring, and have formed separate exchanges to handle whatever product aside from the First National output, they may be handling in their respective territories.

This question is certain to come again at the French Lick meeting this week. Those franchise holders who have separated the independent releases from the First National output include:

Harry Crandall, Washington, who operates the Exhibitors' Film Exchange; Skouras Bros., St. Louis, who operate the St. Louis Film Exchange; Finkelstein and Ruben, Minneapolis, who operate the F. and R. Film Co.; Rowland and Clark, Pittsburgh, who operate the Columbia Film Service; Col. Fred Levy, Louisville, who operates Big Feature Rights Corp.; and John H. Kunsky, Detroit, who recently formed an exchange of his own.

claimed that Cosmopolitan Prod. was sued when the International Film Service Co., Inc., should have been made the defendant.

The Cosmopolitan stand is that Famous Players were selected merely as the agent to secure contracts for the picture and that, when the producer of the picture discovered that his first agent was not doing satisfactory work, he discharged him and secured a new one, in this case, Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. The exhibitor stand is that if this attitude is to be followed, when can a contract be construed as a contract in the picture business? They advance the argument that, with this order of things, they can never be certain that the agreements they enter upon will be lived up by the distributor.

Says Films "Distort" U. S.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Secretary Hughes, in a statement describing the amicable relations existing between this country and South America republics says this about films:—

"I wish indeed that the important educational instrument, the moving picture, was not so frequently used in foreign countries to give forth impressions of American life. It is most discouraging to reflect upon the extent to which the best efforts of educators and the men of public affairs are thwarted by the subtle influence of a pernicious distortion among other peoples with respect to the way in which our people live and the prevalence here of vice and crime."

REASONS

By DANNY

Hollywood—Why are sales down? Why the hold up on new pictures? Is it that the exhibitor is waiting that through waiting he can't get his big pictures at a lower price? Or is it the attempt to "break" the market? It is one of the big questions of the moment. And has something to do with the problem of the entire industry.

Exhibitors wanted fewer and better pictures. They are getting them. They are here. But they don't seem inclined to pay for them. Exhibitors might well be asked: If you don't expect to pay for big pictures; good pictures; fine pictures, what do you expect to get for what you will pay?

Isn't altogether the fault of the exhibitor who is holding back. In many instances they are being asked to pay more for the product than they can take in. That's true. But in any other instances they won't because they believe they will be able to book what they want when they want it at a price below what distributors are now asking.

The Producer

Producers don't have money in to keep on with their program making. His rule must go through. Must be maintained. Otherwise production costs become even higher. How can they operate without returns from the exhibitor? The day of "O. P. M."—other people's money—is pretty well over in this business. It is being more and more a straight business problem, or the equivalent of it. "Easy money" isn't to be had—excepting in sporadic instances. And so the producer is laying out his plans for the next year. Some refused to even think about it. They say they still have a lot of time.

They have practically no money. Production plans for 1924-25 must be set, generally speaking, by Jan. 15 next. And how far is that away? Just around the corner—that's all.

A World Factor

That's How Will H. Hays Regards Films—Back from Europe Much Rested from Vacation

Will H. Hays returned from Europe yesterday on the Leviathan, following a short vacation spent as the guest of Ambassador George Harvey in London. Mr. Hays declared he felt much rested.

The only comment that he would make as a result of his trip was a short statement in which he commented on the importance of the motion picture in international affairs. The statement declared:

"It is interesting to know that the investigation that I caused carefully to be made by English agents showed that ninety per cent of the motion pictures exhibited in England are American-made. It is obvious that the efforts of the industry in America continually to improve itself are of as much interest there as here.

"This means very much for the industry and is a further indication of the importance of our efforts to develop the fullest usefulness of the picture as an instrument of international amity.

"With the better understanding by the peoples each of the other we will move furthest in the direction of a world peace".

Russia Opening

Sol Lesser Sees Big Field There—Found American Pictures Leading the Field

Sol Lesser returned yesterday on the same ship that brought Will H. Hays back to New York. Lesser left a few weeks ago to look over the foreign literary field and investigate First National's British distributing organization.

Russia offers a wonderful field for trade of all kinds, according to Lesser. In Paris, he met a number of Russian film men from whom he secured his information about conditions in that country. American pictures lead the field, Lesser added, and contradicted all reports about a dearth in business. (Continued on Page 2)

Up-State Drive

Sam Berman To Urge Tax Repeal Through Influence of Exhibitors Upon Congressmen

Sam I. Berman, secretary of the M. P. T. O., of New York, leaves on a tour up-state shortly to get active work started on the admission tax repeal.

The aid of Congressmen will be sought, of course, but it is the idea of Billy Brandt, state president, to go about this in a manner that is a little bit different. Brandt plans to secure the co-operation of the legislators through the local exhibitors. He makes the point that an appeal issued by exhibitors of a particular town will have more influence on the Congressman coming from that town, than will pressure brought to bear from headquarters maintained in New York.

Berman will cover the up-state territory thoroughly.

Tax Committee of 15

The T. O. C. C. has appointed a committee of 15 to handle the campaign by which funds will be raised to fight for the admission tax repeal. The first meeting was held yesterday in the nature of a lunch at the Astor.

Rapf Checks Up

Asks Exhibitors to Fill Out Questionnaire and Report How His Pictures Take With Public

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Harry Rapf has prepared a questionnaire which is being sent to all exchanges handling the Warner product and which is designed to get the public reaction toward Rapf's pictures.

Rapf declares his check-up system is similar to the one used by Joseph Plunkett at the New York Strand which was described by Danny recently in THE FILM DAILY. Rapf declares that, as a producer he has always felt the need for such a system, especially since the producer in Hollywood can not very well tell what (Continued on Page 2)

New B'way First-Run

Between 51st and 52nd St. and Close to Capitol—Will Seat 1,576—Lee Ochs to Build

Broadway will have a new first-run picture house along about June, 1924. Lee A. Ochs, owner of the Costello theater, at 23 Fort Washington St., is sponsoring the project which will be known as The Piccadilly.

The house will seat 1,576 divided as follows: orchestra, 838; the stadium, as the balcony will be known, 512; loges, 226. Ochs has secured a site at 1662-64-66 Broadway, between 51st and 52nd St., now occupied by a three story building housing several used automobile stores and a rug store. The site is less than a block away from the Capitol and on the side of the street that houses the Rivoli.

Nathan Burkan has been handling the legal end for Ochs and has finally cleared the title on the property which will be demolished in about a month's time. It is planned to carry on construction during the winter. The house will be built in the stadium style and will have a 30 ft. entrance, bordered on each side by two stores, each with a 14 ft. front. A broadcasting station will be part of the equipment.

The plans have been so prepared by Schloss and Orlando, architects, to permit of the erection of a large-sized electric sign, which will be about a foot smaller than that on the Criterion front for "The Covered Wagon." The site runs through from (Continued on Page 2) the public in scattered sections of the country likes or dislikes.

"I have been advocating for over a year a system which follows so closely that which built up the Keith Booking Office," says Rapf. "Their wonderful system has enabled them to only book such acts as their audiences like. They never repeat with an act that an audience does not like. Each week, after the opening performances the house manager sends to the home office a report of each act, how it was received by the audience, a description of the act, its merit, all of which gives the home office the opportunity of knowing whether they are booking the right material. The same thing holds good for pictures."

Rapf's questionnaire seeks information about the business done by his pictures whether the title, the cast or the story proved the drawing card; whether the cast pleased and who was the most popular player; whether the print was in good condition; what type of picture the exhibitor's audience prefers and whether well known books or plays drew better than unknown material. The questionnaire will go forward to every exhibitor booking a Rapf picture.

New B'way First-Run

Broadway to 7th Ave., and on the 7th Ave. side, a sign projecting about eight feet from the wall will be installed. It is figured this will stand out above anything else in the neighborhood and will be clearly seen as far down Times Square as the Times Building.

The house will cost about $600,000. Ochs and his associate are understood to have secured the property for a number of years. While Ochs could not be reached for a statement yesterday, it is understood he is considering a long run policy when the theater is finally ready. He is understood to have been influenced by what distributors have done on Broadway with special pictures for which they desired long run houses, and for which they found themselves turning to legitimate theaters. The Astor is housing "The Hunchback." It has a trifle over 1,000 seats. The Central, with about 900 seats, is running "Monna Vanna"; the Criterion, with "The Covered Wagon," has only 609 seats, and the Cameo, to which many distributors have turned for Broadway showings, only has 539.

The Piccadilly will be very close to the Capitol. On the 52nd St. corner, what is termed the largest dance hall in the world is under construction. Across the street, B. S. Moss is putting up a new theater which will probably operate like the State-Lake in Chicago, pictures and small time Keith vaudeville. With the Piccadilly, the Broadway first-runs will then include the Capitol, Rivoli, Strand, Criterion, Rialto and Cameo.

In Albany yesterday, the Piccadilly Holding Co. and the Piccadilly Theater, Inc., were formed. Ochs heads the theater company and will be treasurer of the holding company.

"The Spanish Dancer"—F. P.-L. Rialto, Los Angeles

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—"The Spanish Dancer" opened at the Rialto simultaneously with the New York premiere at the Rivoli. Consensus of local newspaper opinions follows:

LILY NEWS—There is action—plenty of action—from beginning to end. It is ent. * * * Pola will surprise you. As "The Spanish Dancer" * * * she is delightful. There are enough comedy situations wed into the story to give her opportunity at over some delicious bits of humor. The best thing she has done since "Pas-

AMINER—Pola Negri as a beautiful—the Pola of some of her first pictures comes back to us. * * * It's a Pola will rejoice with in her moments of y. * * *

The picture, which is a Herbert Brenon production is lavish with beautiful settings, scenes which reproduce the gorgeous beauty of the early Spanish period. * * *

CRALD—A masterpiece * * * "The Spanish Dancer" should not only take its place among the real big pictures of 1923, but in doing so it can hardly do otherwise. It adds new laurels to those already won by Pola Negri and Antonio Moreno, the latter at last having an opportunity to do a big part after his many years before the camera.

CORD—"The Spanish Dancer" is a picture of beauty (both Pola and the picture) and beauty is what you seek in drama. But drama it is decidedly no joy forever. * * *

The compensating quality of good horseplay is a part of Antonio Moreno and Wallace Reid saves the picture from being down-fluff.

MES—She's almost herself again, in the parts of "The Spanish Dancer." The dismay that was felt following the ending of "Bella Donna," and which was greatly relieved by "The Cheat," the picture in which she appears is somewhat of a relief.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Many Novelties For Exhibitors

Warner Brothers have ready for "The Gold Diggers," any number of effective novelties that can be used by exhibitors in exploiting the film. Among them are:

Twelve different framed oil paintings in striking colors have been supplied for theater lobbies, and an unique gold lobby display of cards 22 x 28 in attractive colors. A cut-out lobby hanger 8x12, in colors, showing a money bag with the head of Hope Hampton emerging from it, makes an effective display for any marquee. A door-knob hanger in colors can be attached to autos parked on the streets or festooned across the lobby.

Among the smaller novelties is a 16 page booklet, "Famous Gold Diggers of History," describing such characters as Cleopatra, Nell Gwynn, Lucretia Borgia, Camille and others. This is a splendid teaser throw-away. Another throw-away is a check-book herald printed in colors, the outside showing a check-book and inside a cancelled check describing the production, with a back space blank for the theater's imprint. The tie-up made with the popular song hit, "The Gold Digger," ("Dig a little deeper"), insures exploitation with all music dealers.

Postmaster Helps Sell Postal Film

Evanston, Ind.—The presentation of "Loyal Lives," at the Hoyburn theater, was not only endorsed warmly at a pre-release showing by William J. Hamilton, postmaster, but he contributed to the management of the theater a statement concerning the activities of his department in Evanston. This statement was published in the program of the theater and in the newspapers of the city. "Loyal Lives," is receiving similar co-operation from postmasters throughout the United States.

The Journal, also helped with a contest in which 25 prizes were awarded to the writers of the best 50-word essays on "What Does a Postman Do With His Time?"

Loew's Uses Animated Doll

Toledo—"The French Doll," recently had a very successful engagement at Loew's Valentine. The exploitation campaign used was in the nature of a window display featuring a "French Doll." This was done in Toledo's biggest department store, the Lion Store, on the busiest corner in the city.

In the midst of the big window set with a large lobby painting of Mae Murray an animated French Doll, impersonated by a young and beautiful woman stood on a raised stage. Her "animated French Doll," performances were instantly popular.

Ads and Window Displays Gratis

Chicago—The fact that Walk-Over shoes adorn Andree Lafayette's pedal extremities resulted in a tie-up with the Walk-Over people when "Trilby" played at the Chicago.

The shoe people inserted half-page advertisements in six Chicago dailies mentioning the shoes worn by Lafayette in "Trilby", "now at the Chicago Theater". Every Walk-Over shoe store in the city gave prominent window display to the film.

Hodkinson Issues Special Buttons

The Hodkinson publicity and exploitation department has sent out to exchanges throughout the country, attractive "Be Square," buttons to be used by exhibitors in putting over "Michael O'Halloran." The buttons will attract the youngsters and can be used in forming "Be Square" clubs.

THE LULL

By DANNY

Hollywood—It's on. And for some one may be grateful. Of course there is a lot of production in work. But the wildness of a few months ago is so much so that "Camera" a local publication, issued by, contains an editorial "Zero Hour," likening existing conditions to the lull which occurred in between battles of peace. And then going on to say, in part:

"Things have not been at such a lull in Hollywood for some time. It is nothing to be alarmed at, it is indicative that the conscientious expended has been for naught. Zero hour is at hand, that is all. Pictures have been made this season, and when they are released this autumn they will decide the status of pictures among the arts. For they are representative of the combined efforts and experiences of many years, the output of Hollywood's industry, and again they have imposed upon the industry has only caused things to come to a temporary standstill."

The Warning

It is not the lull that is counting. It is the thought of what will occur in the passing of the lull. Actors, stars, directors—all are wondering what scale pictures will be made and how prices will compare with those paid last January. That is what they are interested in. But the statement of Dick Rowland made a few days ago tells the story. It is all that need be told.

There must be reduction in production costs for the coming season if there is to be a pure making industry. Big pictures, fine pictures, will be made. But they will not be produced by every company in the business. Generally speaking sanity will come. Good, fine box office values will be the rule. And they will not have negative costs of $20,000 and upward.

Backs Wells' Plan

Ross Rogers of Texas For Exhibitor Council in Washington—"A Splendid Idea," He Says (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Richmond—Jake Wells has received a long telegram from Ross D. Rogers, of the Dye, Ford and Rogers Enterprises, Inc., operators of theaters in Amarillo, Wichita Falls, and Plainview, Texas, in which Rogers expresses his approval of Wells' idea to form a council of exhibitors, one for each exchange territory with headquarters in Washington.

The telegram says:

"Your proposed plan as outlined in THE FILM DAILY, of a council of 26 as a Washington lobby for exhibitors' interests in my opinion is the most splendid idea ever conceived for our good. Composed of right men this council can become the greatest factor for good to both exhibitors and producers."

Cohen Wants Peace

Urges Jimmy Walker to "Bury the Hatchet"—"Enemies" Matter Going to Will Hays

The olive branch was extended to State Senator James J. Walker by Sydney S. Cohen at the T. O. C. C. meeting yesterday. And while "Jimmy" Walker didn't accept it he didn't exactly refuse but diplomatically turned the issue aside and let it go at that.

The signs that read harmony and which were talked about at length in THE FILM DAILY last week were not wrong after all. Cohen urged Walker to perform the familiar ceremony of burying the hatchet and to permit bygones continue their peaceful slumber but Walker was not so receptive. He went to the T. O. C. C. meeting to explain how the court had decided against the T. O. C. C. members in the two "Enemies of Women" actions. When he finished, Cohen arose and made a plea for M. P. James Cruze Starts Preliminary Work—To Be Made on Large Scale (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—"North of 36," Emerson Hough's story of the days that bridged the gap between Indian warfare and America's industrial birth, is to be filmed at once as the result of a decision reached after months of planning, by Famous Players.

James Cruze already has taken up production reins. He left Hollywood Monday with a corps of cameramen on location survey work, to be gone ten days or more. Jack Holt and Ernest Torrence have been selected for leading parts.

Austin, Tex. and Abilene, Kan. as they were 56 years ago, will be rebuilt. Granted climatic conditions permit of uninterrupted work, months will be occupied in making the picture. The adaptation of the story is in the hands of Walter Woods. Assisting in the direction will be Vernon Keays, while Karl Brown will head the cameramen.

occasion to attempt renewal of former relations with Walker. The latter declared that he wouldn't throw any obstacles in the way of the exhibitor plans to secure the repeal of the admission tax, but from the sarcastic nature of his remarks relative to Cohen's overtures, it was evident to those present that reconciliation might not prove so easy to accomplish.

To be exact, several exhibitors spoke to Walker later and urged him to forget the past and join in on the fast-growing plans to secure the admission tax repeal. Walker has evidently not forgotten the newspaper attack launched on him by Cohen and indications point to the fact that the memory still lingers. It seems doubtful if Cohen and Walker will get together but then again the signs may be wrong. It's possible.

There has been a feeling in some quarters that the Hays organization has failed in not taking up the controversy over "Enemies of Women." Charles O'Reilly stated quite emphatically at the meeting that he intended going to Hays at once with the matter to ascertain definitely whether the Hays creed of confidence and co-operation means anything. It is felt that the T. O. C. C. in persistently fighting Goldwyn in this connection is waging a battle that involves the entire principle of the uniform contract and that to admit that Goldwyn is right would mean that the uniform contract on which T. O. C. C. members worked for many long months has failed.

Leo Brecher of the Plaza and Joe Weinstock of the Elsmere were fined $150 each for playing "Enemies." Weinstock secured the picture only after the Supreme Court had denied injunction proceedings brought against him by Haring and Blumenthal who held a Paramount contract on the picture for the Belmont.

The organization officially voted to support M. P. Day but made it binding upon the members as individuals only. However, it is expected that the majority of them will donate 25 per cent of the receipts of Nov. 19, which is the day selected to the national treasury to be used to fight for the repeal.

Marcus Loew's resignation was accepted by the Chamber.

Buys Out Great Authors, Prod.

While Carl Anderson was on the coast, he purchased seven pictures produced by Benjamin B. Hampton, and originally released through Hodgkinson as Great Authors Prod. The pictures include, "The Westerners," "The Sage Brusher," "The Dwelling Place of Light," "The Spenders," "Heart's Haven," and "The Gray Dawn." The deal also includes the rights to several stories that were never made.

Backs Wells' Plan

"One member from each exchange center is a splendid thought and will certainly represent the crux of the opinion of the needs of the nations' exhibitors as a whole. I believe every exhibitors' unit in this country will be one hundred per cent strong for this council. Do not let the idea drop for it is the finest thought yet advanced in the history of the business.

"Every producer and distributor should see a great good in the proposed council. Congress will be impressed more forcibly than ever before that the motion picture industry is one of the greatest factors of this nation's business.

"You are to be highly congratulated for idea advanced and I consider it every exhibitor's and every exhibitor organization's duty to back the plan in every way. Such a thing as politics could not enter into this proposed plan with reference to producer distributor influence being exerted.

"Your plan, if pushed to completion, will eventually result in all exhibitors being treated fairly by Congress as to tax regulations and law regulations, and will also produce an understanding between exhibitors, producers and distributors that will result in infinite good to all. Our company pledges its support to the proposed plan and I believe every exhibitor in the South will back you up."

Brandt Invited

It was recalled yesterday that at the Syracuse convention of the New York State exhibitor unit Brandt had advanced the idea of a group of national Chambers of Commerce to function like the T. O. C. C. in New York. It was his plan to have 26 with territorial headquarters located in the exchange centers and the country divided up, not geographically, but according to film zones. The presidents and secretaries were to meet quarterly and confer with a nationally known man as the chief advisor—Brandt had General Pershing in mind—at some central point. The organization was to be financed by assessing each zone on its territorial value. Thus, the New York zone, which is rated as a 14 per cent territory, would be assessed $14,000.

Upon his return, Smith will leave for the coast together with J. Stuart Blackton, who by that time will have completed "Let Not Man Put Asunder." Blackton will work all through the winter at the Hollywood plant.

COME BACK

By DANNY

Hollywood—Says Harry Rapf come back to the good old days of "Schooldays" "Why Girls Leave Home." Says Harry, that all of us—producers, distributors, exhibitors—can make money. Yes, fine big productions are made—they are an inspiration to the public. But why spend half a million making a picture, only to lose it on the gross, and over-look the sure fire results of smaller pictures as mentioned?

Isn't it about time that producers stopped working their heads off and gambling with the future, to give a lot of stars and directors all the money that comes in?

Something must be done," says "to get back. Just how it can be done is up to each producer. So long as they keep bidding their heads for the services of certain stars and directors, just so long as pictures continue to cost sufficient money, producers either broke, or going where the money's coming from.

And how they can continue to do the coming season I don't know. We must get back to some degree of moderation—that's all there is to it."

"There are certain stars who can well afford to put a million in a picture. 'Doug,' for instance. It is sure fire money will get it back. But the average producer who figures his way is en route to the old bank home, and you can bet your bank roll on it I'm not going to do that."

Sues For $250,000

Tony Kelly Brings Action Against Al Jolson—Claims He Aided in Griffith Contract

An echo of the Jolson-Griffith deal came to light in the Supreme Court yesterday when Anthony Paul Kelly filed a suit against Al Jolson, seeking $250,000 for services rendered on the comedian's behalf.

Kelly claimed that he was responsible for negotiating the deal with D. W. Griffith for a series of pictures in which the Shubert star was to appear and that he figures his services in that connection are worth $250,000.

When Jolson abruptly departed for Europe, leaving Griffith with an expensive cast and a number of sets up at Mamaroneck on his hands, negotiations were started that resulted in the substitution of Lloyd Hamilton in what was to be Jolson's role. The picture is now finished, awaiting release.

No Successor to Krock

Cohen Issues Call

His Directors to Meet in Rochester—Up-State Exhibitors Plan Convention, Too

The campaign for the repeal of the admission tax is gaining momentum. Sydney S. Cohen yesterday issued a call for a meeting of his national directors to be held at the Seneca Hotel, Rochester on Tuesday, Oct. 31. The next day, up-state exhibitors will hold a meeting at the same place at which the directors will sit in.

Those who will attend the Rochester meeting are allied with Cohen and are not members of the M. P. T. O. of N. Y.—the Brandt organization. Motion Picture Day and the tax repeal will probably constitute the greater part of the discussion.

The M. P. T. O. of Canada will also hold a two day session, Nov. 1 and 2 at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. At this meeting, exhibitors outside of

Oppose Theater

Indiana M. P. T. O. Seeking to Stop Bond Issue Designed to Finance F. P.-L.'s Indianapolis House (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—The M. P. T. O. of Indiana has filed a protest with the State Securities Commission against the proposal of the Market-Circle Realty Co., to issue $600,000 in preferred stock in connection with the construction of the Famous Players theater designed for the English Hotel site. The hearing was scheduled to come up on Tuesday but has been put off until Oct. 26.

The realty company has a lease contract for the theater with the Star Amusement Co. This company, in turn, has arranged a lease for 99 years with Famous Players. Under this lease, the corporation agrees to pay enough to enable payment of dividends on the preferred stock, to provide a sinking fund and other financial guarantees.

The protestants allege that the guarantee of Famous Players is not sufficient to protect the preferred stock. The proposed theater was to be erected on a portion of the site of the Hotel English. Whitcomb & Dowden, attorneys, are officers of the realty company, and Wilson & Wilson for the theater owners' association.

Richmount Pictures, Inc., is the name of a new export combination in which D. J. Mountan, at present export manager of Arrow and J. V. Ritchey, of the Ritchey Lithographing Co., are the prime factors. The first deal closed gives the company the foreign sale of the Charles C. Burr product.

Mountan is president and Ritchey, secretary-treasurer. The former sails for the other side on the 30th, to dispose of his line-up, which is understood to include about 40 features all told. He will probably resign from Arrow in order to devote all of his time to the new project.

In the Courts

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Seattle, Wash.—Anton Arropian, for the past three years manager of the Liberty, is being held by the police charged with having stolen valuable equipment and property belonging to the theater.

Chicago—"The White Rose," is being shown at the Orpheum under an order issued by Judge Wilson in the Circuit Court, over protests of local reformers, who charge that the film contains immoral scenes.

An original permit for the showing was given some time ago, but was revoked when the charge was made. A second permit was asked for and refused. An injunction was then applied for and granted, restraining the Mayor, police and other public officials from interfering with the showing.

A Finis Fox Series?

It was reported yesterday that Finis Fox would make a series of pictures to be released probably by Selznick. Fox is to leave in a few days for the coast.

Jesse Weil is handling special publicity for Producers Security.

Cohen Issues Call

Ontario and Quebec will be brought into the organization.

The T. O. C. C. yesterday issued a statement embodying what has been essentially published regarding that organization's support for M. P. Day. The following committee has been appointed to handle it:

BOROUGH OF RICHMOND: Charles Moses and Leon Rosenblatt.

NORTHERN NEW JERSEY: Joseph Seider, David Keiserstein, Louis Rosenthal, and Joseph Stern.

Rochester Changing Its Front?

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rochester, N. Y.—It is reported that the local exhibitor body which sided with Sydney S. Cohen and the M. P. T. O. when the Cohen-Walker controversy split the national organization may again join the M. P. T. O. of N. Y. The harmony trend prevalent in New York between the T. O. C. C. and Cohen is said to have carried considerable weight with the local body.

De Mille Film at the Harris

It is understood that Famous has taken over the Harris theater on a long-term lease beginning the end of November and that "The Ten Commandments" will open there. The picture will have its coast premiere about the same time in Hollywood.

Cecil De Mille will probably be in New York for the premiere. He will also shoot some scenes for "Triumph" while here.

Riesefeld on Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Hugo Riesefeld is here from New York looking at "The Ten Commandments," for which he will prepare the musical score.

Many Bills Defeated In Alabama

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Montgomery, Ala.—The legislature, which has just adjourned defeated two Sunday closing measures and three theater tax bills. One bill, proposed by the reformers after their failure to have the Sunday closing measure enacted, would levy a tax of $100 imposed on each theater operating on the Sabbath. Hoxey C. Farley did much in fighting these measures.

"If Winter Comes" at Rivoli

"If Winter Comes," goes into the Rivoli on Sunday. This is one of the extremely rare instances when a Fox feature has played any of the Paramount houses in Broadway.

Oliver Wins "U" Contest

One of Carl Laemmle's reasons for his trip to the coast is to present William Elswell Oliver, of the University of California with the $1,000 prize under the terms of the Laemmle Scholarship Contest.

Under the terms of the contest the University is also to receive $1,000 to be applied for scholarship purposes. In addition, Universal has purchased Oliver's scenario "The Throw-Back," and will use it as a vehicle for Reginald Denny.

Universal has also purchased "Beyond the Law," by Cleo Woods, of the University of Denver, and "Headlights," by Charlotte K. Kunsig of Temple University.

DEMONSTRATION BULLETIN

Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer"

DETROIT

"The Spanish Dancer" is a capacity hit at the Madison Theatre.

Detroit Times: "Miss Negri can set this down as her finest picture, not even excepting her 'Passion.'"

Detroit Free Press: "The Spanish Dancer' is in every sense a fine picture that will please with its splendid acting, colorful scenes and beauty."

Detroit News: "Pola is radiant, sparkling, beautiful."

CLEVELAND

Karl Kitchen says in the Cleveland Plain Dealer: "At last Pola Negri has a picture worthy of her talents. 'The Spanish Dancer' is the best picture she has made since 'Passion.' Could have been shown at advanced prices, for it is a 'super special.' However, it is wisely presented at regular motion picture prices and is easily the best film offering in many moons. There is no question, after seeing this picture, that Pola Negri is the greatest actress on the screen today."

"Puritan Passions"—Hodkinson—
Cameo

AMERICAN—Yet the Guild must be commended for its courage in selecting an American drama with an unhappy ending for its initial picture. . . . On the screen it is sufficiently phantastical, but the symbolism is not so clear.

EVENING WORLD— . . . Include "Puritan Passions" in your itinerary for the week. You won't, we feel sure, regret the inclusion.

While we are going to keep the film's secret, we simply can't slither by without mentioning the fine work of Glenn Hunter. . . . To us "Puritan Passions" was a movie treat.

HERALD—"Puritan Passions" has just two visible qualities that deserve favorable citation: a singularly fine, graceful performance by Glenn Hunter, and a small character bit by a trick crew.

For the rest, "Puritan Passions" is suffused with the hopeless air of "let's all get together and make an artistic movie." It struggles through many feeble reels of painfully artificial settings, drearily drawn out situations, amateurish acting and stupid plot.

POST— . . . A most interesting, weird, and fantastic film which apparently pleases everybody at the Cameo Theater. It has been screened without exaggeration, the photography is good and the acting is of a high order of merit.

SUN— . . . A fantastic, at times almost diabolical, and often enthralling photoplay, unique in its vein and searching out a new line on the screen that makes it in a way part of the hope of the future for the films. . . . Moves along with a good rhythm, sticking persistently to its point and mounting to an ending that is as unhackneyed as the rest of the picture.

TELEGRAM—The photography is excellent throughout. . . . Mr. Hunter appears in an entirely new type of character for him as the Scarecrow, who becomes Lord Ravensbane. His gradual awakening from the dummy into a living creature is accomplished as cleverly as was the work of the famous Continental actor who appeared as "The Golem."

There are touches of imagination all through the film.

TIMES—It is an unique effort, a bold photoplay. . . . This production is filmed in a conservative manner, without any over-acting, exaggerations or exasperating reminders; although there are close-ups they can be overlooked because they are not posed as such, or at least, do not appear to be. The narrative itself is not overwhelmingly thrilling, but it has spark and is always interesting. Each player seems to have taken his share of the photoplay in an unselfish way, none more so than Mr. Hunter. . . . This is a singular film, weird, but nevertheless gripping.

TRIBUNE—It seems to us that by making "Puritan Passions," Frank Tuttle has just naturally made it impossible after this to leave his name out of the list of the world's best directors. . . . It is a fascinating story, and Mr. Tuttle has directed it so marvelously that nothing of the grimness, the evilness nor the charm has been lost.

WORLD—"Puritan Passions" is a weak-kneed little fantasy laid in Salem Towne in the early colonial days. It is cleverly written and if acted on the spoken stage for the benefit of children would be received as a right entertaining piece.

W. A. V. Mack Honored

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Buffalo—The Pathe office recently tendered W. A. V. Mack, for many years manager of that office, a banquet at Brown's Hotel, upon his promotion to manager of the company's exchange in Philadelphia. Mack was presented with a handsome traveling bag. Basil Brady succeeds Mack. All of the exchange managers in Buffalo attended.

Of Industry in Eliminating Jokes on Prohibition—Governors Meeting in Washington

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The committee on educational policy of the Governors' Conference, which is discussing the prohibition problem at length, has submitted a report which suggests a conference with picture producers in an effort to obtain the complete elimination of flings at prohibition.

The committee is of the opinion that prohibition has been scoffed at in the current crop of pictures and that this has had a tendency to induce a disregard of the law on the part of the general public.

It seems safe to assume that such a conference would fall within the sphere of activities of the Hays office. It was stated there yesterday that no word had come from Washington relative to this.

Walsh in "Ben Hur"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The Times states definitely that George Walsh has been selected for the title role in "Ben Hur."

The coast report occasioned no comment at the Goldwyn offices yesterday.

Denny Injured in Accident

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Reginald Denny and Ben Hendricks were injured in an automobile accident on Monday. Denny was quite severely shaken up, sufficiently so to hold up work on "Love Insurance," which he is making for Universal.

Abe Warner Better

Abe Warner's condition has so improved that he will be able to leave the hospital today. He is going down to Atlantic City for several weeks and declares he would be tickled pink if a lot of his friends dropped in to see him at the Ambassador.

"Rosita" at the Capitol

"Rosita" goes into the Capitol, following "The Green Goddess," which will probably play that theater next week as well as this. Following the Capitol, the Brooklyn Strand gets the Pickford picture.

Lachman to London for "Hunchback"

Carl Laemmle is sending Marc Lachmann to London to exploit "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which will open at the Empire on Nov. 20th, for an indefinite run. Lachmann sails on the Acquatania next Tuesday.

"Nymp" Dissolves

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Dissolution papers for the New York M. P. Corp., or "Nymp," as it was familiarly known in the business have been filed.

Shapiro Leaves for N. Y.

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Victor Shapiro, of Pathe, has left for the East.

At Broadway Theaters

Cameo

Glenn Hunter in "Puritan Passions" is the feature here.

Rivoli

Ambrose Thomas' "Raymond" is the overture; followed by Fowler and Tamara in "Dance Divertissements," (a) Waltz, (b) Fox Trot, and (c) One Step. The usual Rivoli Pictorial comes next, just before Bernard Ferguson, assisted by the Rivoli Ensemble, sings "Mary," baritone. "The Eternal Struggle" is the feature. A Snub Pollard Comedy, "It's a Gift," is the closing unit.

Strand

The current Strand program mentions, "Martha" as the overture; "Mother Sings" (in silhouette), inaugurating the return of the Strand Male Quartet; the Topical Review; a prologue to the feature picture, which follows, and a closing selection on the organ, played by Percy J. Starnes.

At Other Houses

"The White Sister" continues to be the attraction as the Ambassador, as does "The Hunchback of Notre Dme," at the Astor. "The Green Goddess," which played the Harris a few weeks ago, is back on Broadway for a two week run at the Capitol. "Monna Vanna" continues at the Central. "Little Old New York" is in its 12th and last week at the Cosmopolitan. The Criterion still houses "The Covered Wagon" and the 44th St., "Scaramouche." "A Woman of Paris" is at the Lyric. ## SURPLUS

By DANNY

Hollywood—Hal Roach talks something. And when Roach talks he is up to the exhibiting end of the business to really provide surplus needed in this business—just as it is needed in any other business. The reason for this being in his belief no other branch of the business can pile it up.

"The stars won't provide that surplus. nor the directors; the producers cannot—they haven't—and the distributors claim they cannot operate on the 30 and 35 per cent they get for marketing. So it is up to the exhibitor to provide that surplus."

during his trips in the East to exhibitors Roach has held this belief. Hoping that exhibitors would see the wisdom of conditions as they arise. Believing like many other thinking men, Roach believes that a big change is coming in the industry in the next few years—perhaps sooner. Like other thinking men, he believes that the industry should prepare for it.

He is right in his own opinion. And is about to begin the first of two five reel comedies so that if the era of "big productions" continues and the short subjects are crowded off the bill he will not be forced out of business. At the "Our Gang" comedies grossing over $80,000 a week—and without doubt the most successful short subject releases on the market. But that is how Roach is figuring.

Incidentally, Roach may intend to demonstrate that having had to do with the success of Harold Lloyd that he can duplicate this. He intends directing the five comedies himself. And he hasn't done in several years.

Blames First Runs

H. M. Warner Says They Lower Production Standards Because of Reluctance to Pay High Rentals

By HARRY M. WARNER
of Warner Brothers

Producers today more than ever before in the history of the picture business are expected to turn out stupendous, mammoth making productions. They are expected to bring forth productions which have never been excelled, but they can never hope to fulfill the demand, because—

The first run situation is responsible for lowering the standard of production.

There isn't a first run house in the country that is willing to pay an adequate rental for a big feature attraction in order to encourage the producer to keep on making bigger and better screen-offerings.

A producer cannot look for large revenue from the smaller houses. The big returns must come from the first run houses. If a producer can't get this big return, he is bound to do one of two things which will effect the growth of bigger and better attractions.

Producers will either go out of business or,

War In St. Louis

Impending for First Run Control—Goldman Leases Delmonte Theater From Fred Cornwell
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—One of the biggest deals of its kind ever put over in St. Louis is covered in an arrangement, whereby William Goldman obtains the Delmonte theater. Under the agreement entered into by Goldman and Fred L. Cornwell, owner of the Delmonte, the theater will play day and date with Goldman's Kings. "The Green Goddess" opened at the Kings and Delmonte on Saturday and was the first picture under the new plan.

The addition of the Delmonte to his group gives Goldman tremendous prestige in building up his forces for the impending struggle with the Skouras Brothers and Famous Players for the domination of the first-run situation. To date, Goldman has the Kings, Delmonte and the Queens, and will shortly begin work on his new $1,000,000 St. Louis theater, adjoining the Grand Central, owned by Skouras Brothers.

For some time it has been reported that Goldman would head a powerful coalition of independent houses in a line-up to combat Skouras, Famous and St. Louis Amusement Co. com-

52 Theaters Picked

First Paramount Group—More Planned to Bring Total Up to 100—Small Towns Included

Famous Players yesterday announced the names of 52 theaters, comprising the first group of pre-demonstration houses under the new sales plan. Additions now under consideration will bring the group up to one hundred.

The initial block includes cities as large as New York and Chicago and towns as small as Billings, Mont. with a population of 15,100. Paramount declares that the only change in the original plan is in the number of theaters selected, the list being much larger than was at first contemplated. Thirty-five theaters on the final list will be located in so-called key cities, with the remaining fifty-five or sixty in smaller cities where local conditions are such as to justify their selection for the tests. The result is that Paramount feels the theaters chosen represent as widely divergent conditions as are possible, not only as regards population but as to the character of their audiences and their tastes in entertainment.

As the first step toward carrying out the announced provision for "an adequate but not unnatural" exploitation and advertising campaign for each picture, Claud Saunders, director of exploitation, left several weeks ago on a trip which will take him to prac-

Blames First Runs

Producers must of necessity decrease the standard of productions. For example:

"If the Warner Brothers, or any other producer for that matter, make a production costing in the neighborhood of $250,000, $300,000 or $400,000 can they receive an adequate profit on their investment if the first run theaters refuse to pay a reasonable rental? Will they pay a sufficient amount to make it possible to exploit the pictures properly, and in addition make it possible for the producer to gain some measure of compensation for his efforts? The answer to these questions is an emphatic—No!

The first run theaters expect a producer to spend more money to exploit a picture in their theaters, than is received from them as rental.

Now the first run theaters of America are not starving to death by a long shot. The truth of the matter is that they are making big money, and conclusive proof of this fact is easily to be seen by those who are not blind. All over the country one can find new, big sumptuously invested theaters cropping up. The theaters are getting bigger and bigger, finer and finer, because they are all making the big money.

On the other hand, a careful study of the production end of the business brings to light the fact that nine people out of ten that are in the producing end are figuring out how to cheapen each picture. And they can't be blamed for assuming this attitude in face of present first run conditions. But ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, the theater people are figuring how to build more impressive picture palaces and expecting to be paid for the privilege of showing an attraction.

Another thing: The men owning first run theaters are also figuring out how to monopolize the theater situation in their respective cities in order to prevent producers that do not meet their demands from showing a picture in their territory. I know of cases where the theater owner expects the producer to even pay the express charges for his picture.

We have got to realize that a picture which has cost a fortune to make, must play a first run because the neighborhood houses cannot afford to pay the large sums of money necessary to keep making big features. There is no bunk about this.

Under present conditions the producer is figuring in this fashion: "Why should I make a picture for $300,000 and get $1,000 a week rental out of a first run house, when I can make a picture for $100,000 and get the same amount of money?"

With this attitude made imperative by the first run situation the producers can never climb out of the present method of picture making. They will fall back into the old ruts, they will not be so eager to make spectacular productions, and the reaction is bound to be very severe for the larger theaters that are constantly catering to the bigger and better motion picture movement.

There is only one way out of the present crisis. First run theaters must support producers turning out big attractions, or within the very near future they will not be able to show pictures in keeping with their palatial theaters.

Plans Set to Film Race

Arrangements are about completed for the filming of the race between Zev and Papyrus, by Pathe on Saturday, at the Belmont track. Ten stands have been erected around the track where 20 cameramen will be stationed to shoot the race. Five cameramen have been kept constantly at the track, filming the workouts. "Temporary theaters will be opened in Tokyo and Yokohama, where the people will be able to find some relief from the horrors through which they have just passed. It will be many months before the two great cities are restored. The motion picture industry was seriously crippled as many of the leading theaters in the earthquake district were destroyed."

Newspaper Opinions

"The Eternal Struggle"—Metro Rivoli

DAILY NEWS—You'll like the settings tremendously, and Renee Adoree's eyes are adorable.

EVENING WORLD—* * * For sheer beauty, we have never seen such "spaces." * * * It is well worth the seeing, even if only for the magnificence of most of the exteriors. The company * * * acquits itself nobly.

MAIL—It makes no pretension at being anything but an out-and-out melodrama with a big thrill and fights aplenty. Those who saw the film yesterday, seemed to enjoy it.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—The picture has been well directed, and if it is properly cut so that it isn't so long, it will be quite a bit better than most pictures dealing with the daring Northwest Mounted.

SUN—* * * Reginald Barker has provided something more powerful than the customary Canadian picture. * * * The scenes of the northland are remarkably striking.

TELEGRAM—Miss Adoree is a member of a distinguished cast, but it is certain her work in this picture wins stellar honors for her.

TIMES—An effort is made to give an idea of the maddening loneliness of the trio during the Winter. Tempest, bored to extinction, tears a pack of cards in half. One feels like doing the same thing when sitting through this picture, which is relieved only by a couple of sequences.

TRIBUNE—* * * This is just a little different from most of them. * * * But there is spice and go to this picture which make you feel that the evening is not wasted, even if you do not care for this sort of thing.

WORLD—* * * Barbara La Marr * * * is as furiously beautiful as anything we have seen in the cinema for weeks.

"The Eternal Struggle" is one of those "bristling, vigorous, primitive" things. * * * The picture is well fitted out with "atmosphere." Even the trees seem to know their parts. It is a fairly good movie.

War In St. Louis

binations. In this connection, the Delmonte has been mentioned and the new arrangement indicates that the balance of the program may be carried out.

The alliance between the Goldwyn and Cornwell houses is bound to have far reaching effect. The Kings has the first-run of Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, while Cornwell recently perfected a contract with Metro Pictures whereby he obtained the exclusive St. Louis and St. Louis County rights for a two year period on the entire Metro program of 30 pictures. Cornwell is said to have paid $120,000 for the contract and under it the Delmonte was to become the first-run house for Metro while Cornwell was accorded the privilege of saying whether any of the pictures shown at the Delmonte could again be exhibited in St. Louis or St. Louis County. In short all subsequent runs of Metro pictures in the city and environs would have to be approved by Cornwell.

Thus with the Kings and Delmonte controlling both Metro and Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan, the new combination has a powerful position. In addition the joint-booking arrangement enable the houses to bid high for pictures other than Famous Players which show at the Missouri, and First National, Warner Brothers Preferred and other features controlled by Skouras.

In Sight

Hollywood—Just what—as to production costs for next year? Have been doing a lot of digging. And find this: broadly speaking there will be a lot of pictures made for next year that will cost a lot of money. This does not include the super-specials, the great big boys that are scheduled to go out on a road show basis—but the general average of regular releases.

This, despite all statements advanced by production leaders in the East who admit that costs should come down.

Everybody admits pictures should not cost as much as at present. But mighty few have any idea of how costs can be cut to meet existing demands for "fine pictures."

Practically everyone admits pictures cost too much. Practically everyone says "something must be done." How? In what way? Everyone has a different answer.

AS TO SALARIES

Harry Rapf has never won an international reputation because of his desire to pay star's big money. And here is what Harry says:

"Electricians, carpenters and labor generally is at a high level. Such costs mount with every production. You must have a capable crew. So when you put a cheap actor in a part and he has to be rehearsed for an hour or more to give you the same result that a well trained actor costs you are saving money in production by paying the big salary, because the overhead rises tremendously otherwise."

Expansion

Hodkinson Increases Capital from $800,000 to $1,500,000—Reports of Production (Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany, N. Y.—The W. W. Hodkinson Corp. has increased its capital from $800,000 to $1,500,000.

The large capital increase put through by Hodkinson is understood to presage an era of expansion with that organization. There have been reports current for the past few days that the company planned to enter production on its own, although no one at the Hodkinson offices would admit this on Friday.

If it is true that Hodkinson will enter production, it will mean an unusual departure for him since he has always maintained that the duties of both distributor and producer in this business were sharply defined. It has been his contention that a distributor should not produce because the problems attendant upon the proper operation of a distributing organization were sufficient to engage the distributing heads at all times.

Millions For Lease

Balaban & Katz Will Pay Over $16,000,000 in Rentals on Fifty Year Lease for New Colonial

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Balaban & Katz, who, as noted, have closed a deal for the new Colonial theater which is to be erected as part of the new Masonic Temple, on Randolph St. between State and Dearborn, will pay $16,350,000 in rentals for the fifty years which they have leased the house. The annual rental amounts to $327,000, or about $6,288 a week.

The securities of the new Balaban & Katz Corp., formed recently to consolidate various B. and K. houses, are being traded in on the Stock Exchange; 28,476 shares of preferred, of $100 par value, and 26,400 shares of common, of $25 par were offered. Of the common stock, 50,000 shares were bought up by a local syndicate, the balance, amounting to 214,000 shares, will be used by the corporation on an exchange basis to acquire the stocks of the various Balaban & Katz enterprises.

The 50,000 shares, offered by the syndicate at $47.50 a share, have been far oversubscribed for. Shares sold one day last week on the curb for $66 on a "when issued" basis.

The new Balaban & Katz Corp. has a capitalization of $11,000,000, with theater property, etc., valued at $9,800,000. It is expected that the company will pay dividends of 25 cents a month, or $3 annually on the common. Net earnings for the current year are expected to be in the neighborhood of $5 a share on the common.

DEMONSTRATION BULLETIN

Pola Negri in "The Spanish Dancer"

SANDUSKY, O.

Exhibitors in the Sandusky district: If you want to learn the truth about "The Spanish Dancer," ask Art Himmelein, manager of the Plaza Theatre, Sandusky.

Mr. Himmelein reports that the picture equalled the figures on "Manslaughter," which holds his house record. He adds: "Thanks for your wonderful support. I honestly believe 'The Spanish Dancer' will prove one of the season's sensations."

PITTSBURGH

"The Spanish Dancer" is the most sensational success the Olympic Theatre, Pittsburgh, has ever had. The opening was big, and every day has been consistently bigger. Since Wednesday the lobby has been jammed solid every performance and overflowed onto the sidewalk.

The fact that business is better today even than it was at the wonderful opening proves the picture itself must be good. Ask Thomas Schrader, manager of the Olympic, to verify these facts.

A Paramount Picture

In Sight

Almost any producer will admit Rapt is right. But there be a class of the profession in-between the very cheap and very costly competent to handle these parts. For instance—"Trilby" was being made for First National Richard Wal-Tully was up against it for the right kind of a "Svengali." Tests were made of well known actors. None suited Tully. Finally secured Arthur Edmund Carewe. Now Carewe, a actor, had never had a chance to set Hollywood on fire. In they didn't know a lot about him. But "Svengali" put him ne map—and he did not get a salary equal to a prince's om, either.

There are hundreds of good actors about Hollywood who get a chance unless something unusual happens. Producers seem willing to stay in the same old rut constantly trying employ men and women "whose names have box office value". Yet everyone knows most of these names can never be used as exhibitor in advertising the picture. One—two at best—all that can go on the marquee. And six point advertising of known names means nothing.

ONE OF THE EVILS

And one that is will do a lot of harm for next season is... the m of "hiring out" stars by one producer to another. A producer places a player under contract. For argument's sake, let's the salary at $600 a week. Another producer wants the use of that player. Do you suppose producer number one lets the second one have that player at $600 a week? Guess again. The first is "hired out" at a profit. But the shortsightedness of the second plan is apparent. The player knows what the second producer paid and when the contract with number one expires the player gets as compensation that which number two has paid. And the bubble grows bigger and bigger.

And then these same producers yell like the devil because of the players' salaries. Isn't it a joke?

CUTTING COSTS

There is one big producing unit—one of the very largest that has put a certain maximum on production costs for next season—in fact in effect this minute. That maximum is $200,000 a picture. Directors employed are so told. Scripts must be kept on a shooting basis that will allow this figure to be met. Serious effort is being made to reduce the amount of "shoot-

Why burn up negative only to have it cut out in the developing? On one production the budget planned has so far been reduced $87,000 on one picture. Which only goes to show what can be done. Yet the cost is still over the $200,000 mark.

THE DIRECTORS' VIEWPOINT

Talked to a number of directors about these conditions a few days ago. At the regular M. P. D. A. meeting; Fred Niblo speaking. Mighty interesting. Directors as desirous of cutting costs as producers—but how? One interesting angle which developed was along the line that if producers and distributors were to showmen a much stronger result would develop after they have left the director and before the exhibitor got it. Too much possible revenue is lost from this point on. And this angle developed another—that the director might well get in closer touch with the exhibitor, and keep in touch with him, to ascertain why some of his pictures do not get over, why others do. That the particular clientele of this or that exhibitor wanted. In other words, let the director know his customer and not everything to the cut and dried publicity machine of the exhibitor or distributor. Several directors declared they intended to do this—at once.

PLAYERS ALL TIED UP

There isn't wild activity about any of the studios at the moment. Only a few studios have more than one or two contracts at work. And yet almost any producer will tell you it is difficult to get people—they, at least the good ones, are all tied up under contract. And, as noted previously, when one producer "loans" a player or star to another the "loan" usually means a profit to the producer who holds the player under contract. And this, incidentally, is what keeps production costs up.

MICKLES AND MUCKLES

When you suggest, however, that this does count in production costs the producer tells you it's only a small matter. But that is where the real trouble lies—all of these matters are incidental—a carpenter holding a whole company up because a nail head isn't painted, and the director or cameraman doesn't use his brains and "shoot" below that pesky nail. It is easier to wait until it is daubed over—even if the company cost is $1,800 a day. It's all these mickles and muckles that go on the production cost sheet that finally mounts it to an impossible figure. Everyone knows you cannot have efficiency of the blue print type about a studio. But common sense isn't the costliest of things. And what a lot of it could be used—to the advantage of everyone!

CHAPLIN'S PICTURE

Naturally it has caused much comment out here. The incidental fact that the Criterion (Los Angeles) playing the picture is using increased advertising space on the production indicates that it isn't booming in business, but the big point being registered is the disappointment of the kiddies in not being able to see the picture. A well known producer who was talking of the picture a few nights ago was compelled, reluctantly, he says, to tell his 10 year old boy that he couldn't see the Chaplin picture, and then couldn't tell him why.

Chaplin has made a place for himself among the kiddies unequalled by any player on the screen. These kiddies are going to find it difficult to understand why they cannot see a Chaplin picture—and certainly they won't understand the difference between Charlie just directing a picture and playing in one. Even some grown ups will expect to see him in it despite the efforts made to show that he only directed, and does not appear in the picture.

"A Woman of Paris" may be a great triumph from a directorial viewpoint but those countless thousands—yes, millions—who haven't had a chance to laugh at Charlie's fun for over a year, will certainly be disappointed. They did so want a Chaplin comedy.

SOME OFFICE

Hal Roach is having a new office built in his studio. Of course it will be well furnished. But the crowning point of all is a mural decoration showing the making of a motion picture from beginning to end; probably the first movie mural ever painted.

A NEWSPAPER STUNT

"Billy" Leyser, the popular picture editor of the Cleveland News-Leader is pulling a stunt that many other movie editors might well follow. He is out here getting material for a series of articles. But he is incidentally having a five reeler made showing what is going on at the various important studios, and is being photographed as often as the occasion permits. When finished the picture will be shown to Cleveland picture goers at the various Cleveland houses and prove a boom for the News-Leader, as well as the industry in general. A clever stunt.

GIANT STUFF

John Aason, the giant of "Why Worry" has, or will issue a challenge to fight Jack Dempsey. Publicity stunt of course. But good. Incidentally in the showing of "Why Worry" here all the giants involved in picture making will be put to work carrying feathers around Los Angeles. Just a stunt—but good.

WARNING

When you happen in at the Mission, Los Angeles, and get talking to Jack Root the amiable manager, and he starts telling you not to worry about the little bugs that crack around your ears don't worry. Because it isn't a bug at all—just a peculiar noise which occurs when Jack taps the big diamond ring he wears. But it's a great trick and has fooled a lot of people up to now.

Mastbaum's Ideas

Sees Outlook Bright—Still Room for Theaters—Frowns on Road Shows

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—Jules E. Mastbaum, in answering a questionnaire of 12 paragraphs bearing on the needs of the industry, prepared by "The Exhibitor," gives a comprehensive idea of what the business really needs in the way of further development to assure it of a still greater future. Following are the questions and answers:

Question: Do you think pictures will be better in quality the coming year than the past?

Answer: "Yes. There is every evidence on the part of the larger producing companies to give the public better pictures in every way including stories, cast, direction and settings."

Question: What is the outlook for business at the box office for the current season?

Answer: "The outlook for the season from the box office viewpoint would indicate that business will be very good for the beginning of this season. The start of this season would seem to be my basis for this statement for the business thus early has been larger than for many seasons past at the same period."

Question: In your opinion will it be necessary for the exhibitor to increase admission prices to meet the increased cost of pictures?

Answer: "This is a matter to which the exhibitor must give his own careful consideration in view of the fact that he is best qualified to know whether his patrons would stand for any increase in the price of admission."

Question: Do you agree with the policy of the producers to road-show their big productions in legitimate theaters?

Answer: "I fail to see where anything can be gained in this direction. Photoplays belong in photoplay theaters and it is seldom that any great benefit is derived from exhibiting pictures in legitimate houses."

Question: Do you think percentage booking a solution of the film rental question?

Answer: "No. The present system of film rental, I believe to be much better than the percentage booking idea."

Question: Which system of booking benefits the exhibitor the more—Block booking or individual booking?

Answer: "I consider that the exhibitor himself is the one best qualified to answer this question."

Question: What is the future of the small exhibitor?

Answer: "The small exhibitor will be curtailed by reason of his 'smallness.' He is not in a position to present his patrons with films that will attract them. Consequently, his future is not very encouraging."

Question: Do you look for a curtailment in production activities in the coming year?

Answer: "Yes. I believe that during the coming year, there will be a curtailment in production due to the fact that while fewer pictures will be made they will be of a more artistic and entertaining make."

Question: What, in your opinion, is the greatest single need in the industry today?

Answer: "I think that what is needed to interest the public who go to pictures are stories that are good and carry a greater punch than any of those of the present day."

Question: In your opinion will the repeal of the admission tax result in a marked increase in attendance?

Answer: "This is a matter that is impossible to answer off-hand. The people have become accustomed to paying the tax which they know goes towards government expenses and they are attending the motion picture theater in larger numbers than ever. At the same time it would probably do no harm if the tax were removed from admission tickets."

Question: Should motion picture theaters close in the summer and operate on a 40-week basis the same as the legitimate houses do?

Answer: "It seems to me that this would depend upon many conditions and according to the places where such houses are operated. Some of them undoubtedly should close up for the summer. Here in Philadelphia we have a condition that probably does not exist to such a degree in other cities. Philadelphia motion picture lovers seem to enjoy going to these theaters in the summer as well as in the winter and this was still more effectively illustrated during this past summer of 1923, when the Stanton theater, which we have closed heretofore during the summer, continued open all during the hot spell with very gratifying attendance."

Question: Is the country over theatered?
Answer: "No. It seems to me there is plenty of room for still more theaters."

Yoder's Post Unfilled

Pathe has not yet appointed a successor to Col. William Yoder, Southern district manager, who has resigned. The post will remain vacant for a time.

"American Comedies the Standard

Earl W. Hammons, recently returned from Europe says:

"Practically no short subjects are produced in England. They depend entirely on the American made productions. British concerns are producing longer features, generally using American stars and directors, but there is practically no comedy production. American made comedies are the standard."

Progress will also distribute three serials, "The Fighting Skipper," "The Vanishing Trails" and "The Sante Fe Trail."

Newspaper Opinions

"The Fighting Blade"—1st Nat'l Strand

DAILY NEWS—Mr. Barthelmess and Dorothy Mackaill do the most work, of course. Morgan Wallace and Bradley Barker are the best of the supporting cast.

EVENING WORLD—* * * One of his most praiseworthy. We will say that for sheer, enjoyable, thrilling film entertainment it ranks up near the top.

HERALD—* * * It deserves to be ranked up near "Tol'able David" in the list of fine pictures that Richard Barthelmess has given to the screen.

Coming at a time when competition in this particular field of the movie art is especially keen, "The Fighting Blade" is able to stand up and hold its own.

MAIL—A motion picture of delightful romance of the days of Oliver Cromwell, beautifully photographed. * * * It teems with action, seventeenth century melodrama, to be more exact, and keeps moving so nicely that we feel certain anyone who goes to this theater will be well entertained.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—After you have picked out the leading players and things are cleared up the picture gathers momentum and rolls along in an entertaining and charming manner. * * * "The Fighting Blade" is an entertaining picture enhanced by the presence of an excellent cast.

SUN—"The Fighting Blade" is Richard Barthelmess's weakest picture in quite some time. We could find little merit in it. * * * The whole trouble with the picture is that it has no story to speak of.

TELEGRAM—* * * Richard Barthelmess takes a first place by his vivid acting in "The Fighting Blade."

TIMES—* * * One must admit that it is an entertainment of certain merit. At the same time one leaves this photoplay with the impression that it fails in subtlety and suspense, and that the narrative has not been made as effective as was possible. There is a certain flatness about the story which has not been redeemed. * * * The settings are remarkable, well constructed, especially those of the old inn and some of the sequences in which the castle is shown. The costuming in this film is especially well done.

TRIBUNE—John Robertson has directed the picture beautifully and it is full of excitement and suspense. * * * Mr. Barthelmess is wonderfully fine in the new role. He is a gallant soldier and an ardent lover. * * * But all of the honors do not go to the star. There is Dorothy Mackaill, who gives a delightful performance as Thomasine.

WORLD—The sticking process seemed to amuse yesterday afternoon's audience particularly. * * * Otherwise the production was pictorial and entertaining. The star is as capable as ever; his lady, Dorothy Mackaill, an able partner in romance.

Reviews of the Newest Features

Hollywood Previews

As productions are invariably cut after previewing, a general idea of each picture only is given, rather than a complete analysis. The usual review will appear when the picture is shown in New York.

Baby Peggy in

"Whose Baby Are You?"

Everyone will like Baby Peggy in her first feature production. She is certain to hit with the public. The story starts in Italy, then quickly shifts to the New York underworld. Some interesting touches are developed in the latter atmosphere—and naturally there is a good bit of melodrama.

Of course Baby Peggy dominates the picture—that's as it should be; but Sheldon Lewis and Gladys Brockwell also stand out particularly in the good cast of players. Theater-goers are certain to give it a big play.

Emory Johnson Prod.

"The Mailman"

F. B. O.

Here's another in the series of commercial heroes that drags in every conceivable kind of melodramatic thrill and shopworn situation. But that is the kind of stuff that Emory Johnson gained fame on, and results show many audiences eat it up.

"The Mailman" has all of the forced melodrama, grossly exaggerated; oodles of heart interest; and all of the inconsistencies; that made the old Blaney melodramas famous. It will undoubtedly do as well as the other pictures in the Emory Johnson series—certainly it has all the necessary "hokum".

Short Subjects

"Beasts of Paradise"—Universal

Excitement and thrills

Type of production...15 chapter serial

Serial fans are in for fifteen episodes of thrills, romance and excitement laid against the colorful background of a South Sea Island judging by the first three chapters of "Beasts of Paradise". It stars William Desmond and Eileen Sedgwick, a happy combination. In the supporting cast are William Welsh, Ruth Royce, William H. Gould, Margaret Morris and others. The story and scenario are by Val Cleveland and the direction by William Craft. There is plenty of punch and excitement in each episode with the hero escaping from dangers on every hand and the lovers left in a perilous position at the finish of each chapter.

The story deals with the efforts of Philip Grant to reclaim five million dollars in gold stolen from his fathers' steamer by a submarine. The crew of the steamer is lost with the exception of the Captain, John Frazier who is washed upon a South Sea island, which is ruled by Marie Verne, a white woman. The captain's daughter, Helen, is informed by Clegg, one of Grant's skippers sent to try and recover the gold, that her father is still alive. He and Helen leave for the island followed by Philip Grant who is in love with the girl. There are some thrilling scenes showing a storm at sea with Grant being washed off the deck of the vessel during a fight with Clegg. The photography in this sequence is particularly good.

Exploitation on this should be easy and effective. A good bally-hoo stunt is suggested in Universal's press book. Rent some paper mache animal heads and either have the men wearing them drive around the town or have them walk in a procession. With plenty of heralds and placards advertising the title and play date of the picture.

"Frozen Hearts"—Hal Roach—Pathe

A Russian Burlesque

Type of production...2 reel comedy

This is the second of Hal Roach's series of two-reelers starring Stan Laurel. The first, "Roughest Africa" was very funny. "Frozen Hearts" while not quite as mirth-provoking, is also extremely good. It burlesques to some extent the Ibanez' feature, "Enemies of Women." Laurel is seen as a poor and simple Russian peasant whose sweetheart is taken off to court by one of the Russian officers. The comedy has been elaborately produced. The scenes in the interior of the palace are large and impressive. The action is quick and snappy and the laughs at close intervals. There shouldn't be any trouble pleasing them with this.

"The Knockout"—Hal Roach—Pathe

A "Dippy Doo Dad"

Type of production...1 reel animal comedy

The "Dippy Doo Dad" comedies should need no introduction to you. If you aren't playing these novel and highly diverting animal and bird comedies its high time that you were. This one shows the inhabitants of

"Cameo Kirby"

Fox

As a Whole.....DELIGHTFUL ATMOSPHERE OF THE OLD SOUTH AND A LOT OF INTRIGUE IN INTERESTING PLOT MAKES "CAMEO KIRBY" ENTERTAINING.

Cast.....John Gilbert featured in title role; he gives an admirable performance, about the best thing he has ever done. Characterization is interesting and convincing. Gertrude Olmsted a very pretty heroine. Alan Hale a good villain. A first rate company all told, that includes Eric Mayne, Richard Tucker, Phillips Smalley, William E. Lawrence, Jack McDonald.

Type of Story.....Drama in which old Southern defense of honor is the keynote. Colorful atmosphere provided through picturesque settings completely representative of the South of old, even to the well known river boats in a race,—a bit that is especially well done.

The story contains situations that provide for plenty of deep-dyed intrigue with a villain doing his utmost to put hero out of the way and hero fighting squarely to live until the finish when his name will be cleared and he can prove that he is not guilty of murdering the father of the girl he loves. Sounds a trifle conventional perhaps but it affords good entertainment for a majority.

Box Office Angle.....Will satisfy your patrons. Picture has good audience value and splendid pictorial appeal. Play it up from that angle particularly. The offering is mighty good to look at at all times. They'll like the performance of John Gilbert as "Cameo Kirby" and your women folks especially will find the love story part of it thoroughly delightful.

Exploitation.....A trailer of the race between the river boats should arouse their interest. Show plenty of stills in the lobby to give an idea of the picture's pictorial value. Use stills of Gertrude Olmsted and John Gilbert and promise them a pretty love story. Play up the title and say that it was adapted from the stage play by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson.

Have a man dressed to represent Gilbert and decorated similarly with cameos. Arrange a tie-up with a jewelry shop, having them display a variety of cameo pieces and displaying the sign: "Wear a cameo. It might bring you luck. See an instance of it in 'Cameo Kirby', at the blank theater."

Direction by.....John Ford, satisfactory in most respects; production values very good.

Richard Barthelmess in "The Fighting Blade"

Producer: Inspiration Pictures
Distributor: First National
Whole.....COLORFUL ROMANCE WITH PICTURESQUE MIRROR OF ENGLISH HISTORY FOR A BACKGROUND; MOVES AS VERY PLEASING ENTERTAINMENT FOR A GOOD MAJORITY OF PICTURE PATRONS.

.....His admirers will probably be thoroughly interested in his prowess with the sword and his ability to portray a gallant cavalier convincingly.

.....All wear costumes of the period in good style and with ease. Richard's male support adequate though not imposing. His biggest rival Dorothy Mackaill. Her play is sure, sincere. She demonstrates no little ability as a comedienne in the few opportunities that come her way. Very pretty in close-ups where she is properly lighted. Others Lee Baker, Morley Wallace, Bradley Barker, Fredrick Burton, Stuart Sage.

Type of Story....Dramatic romance, stripped of its historical atmosphere and attractive dressing, would be pretty conventional, but with these added elements, becomes an interesting and enterprising theme that should appeal to the majority of tastes. Romantic element is delightful and will pull with feminine patronage. There is action and thrills besides and a fairly good suspense, with no little realism,—probably a little more of it for comfort, especially in the opinion of folks not used to seeing tortures depicted.

Box Office Angle.....Looks good. You know what you can do with Richard Barthelmess' name. His name should well satisfy his following and patrons in general.

Exploitation.....Boost the star's name for your starting point. Display it in large letters wherever an announcement appears. Get every square space you can in your newspaper and let star's admirers know that he has a role a good deal different from anything he has done before. Promise them excitement and thrills and for the benefit of the women folks, particularly, build up the romantic element cunningly with promises of a delightful love story. Be sure to mention Barthelmess' new leading lady, Dorothy Mackaill. They're always on the alert for new faces, although they'll remember Miss Mackaill for her splendid work in the mighty Lak A Rose'. They'll like her especially well in this.

Direction by.....John Robertson; good.

"Forgive and Forget"

Producer: Harry Cohn
Distributor: C. B. C. State Rights

As a Whole.....ANOTHER REHASHING OF THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE THEME INVOLVING DRAMATIC SEQUENCES BUT PLEASING CAST, GOOD TOUCHES AND A CERTAIN DEGREE OF SUSPENSE HELP CONSIDERABLY.

Cast.....Excellent for the most part, and well chosen for their roles. Wyndham Standing thoroughly convincing as the husband. Carries his emotional scenes with fine repression. Estelle Taylor pretty and a good type for the wife. Vernon Steel, although killed off early in the story, does some nice work. Pauline Garon a mighty bright spot whenever she is on the screen. Philo McCullough a true-to-type villain. Others in the cast in small bits include Raymond McKee, Joseph Swickard, Lionel Belmore.

Type of Story....Again the wealthy, pretty, neglected young wife who turns, this time to her golf instructor, for amusement. When he is suspected of theft she turns back to her husband. The really innocent lover is shot to death in a struggle with his villainous roommate who has lured the wife to their apartment on the pretense of returning her love letters. Her husband, following her, is arrested for the crime. After much incident, somewhat stretched to heighten the suspense, the villain is accidentally killed and the husband exonerated through the wife's effort.

Box Office Angle....Should be good for average crowd. Nicely produced and quite a list of names that should attract. Society atmosphere nicely presented. The title with the catchline that appears on all the posters—"The Story of A Woman's Mistake"—will attract those who enjoy this type of entertainment.

Exploitation.....Play up your cast. The names of all the players should be sufficiently well-known to attract. A good display of posters on which the names of the players appear should bring them in as should a lobby display of stills, display cards, etc. A trailer of the tense moments or of the young lovers should not fail to interest them.

Throwaways folded in the form of envelopes with the address reading "Picturegoers", "Everywhere", could have scenes from the picture and a good display of the title and its catchline inside.

Direction by....Howard M. Mitchell; Good. Showed keen sense of dramatic values and kept the suspense well.

"Lights Out"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole....GOOD AUDIENCE PICTURE WITH COMBINATION OF MYSTERY, DRAMA AND COMEDY AND CONTAINS SITUATIONS THAT WILL INTEREST MANY; CUTTING IS NEEDED TO SPEED UP THE CLIMAX.

Cast.....Ben Deeley a sure enough villain both in the main story and the "movie" within the "movie." He gives quite an effective characterization as High Shine Joe. Theodore Von Eltz is first rate as a scenario writer with Walter McGrail and Ruth Stonehouse contributing good work. Hank Mann takes care of the comedy business satisfactorily. Others are Marie Astaire, Ben Hewlett, Mabel Van Buren, Harry Fenwick.

Type of Story....Crook melodrama with some original angles, one idea in particular that is quite effective—that of bringing a crook to justice by making a moving picture of his crime and forcing him into the open through his desire to "get" the man that wrote the scenario and thus expose his work. There are intermittent thrills, comedy bits, and the regulation romantic twist to make the picture complete with elements of audience appeal. There is also a mysterious bit of business in the early reels in which a black bag plays a prominent part. Everyone is after the bag, supposed to contain money stolen from a bank. It develops that the bag contains nothing but scenarios for moving pictures. There is some good natured fun poked at the "movies" and the people that make them that will register well with the typical "fan" audience.

Box Office Angle....Particularly well suited for the regular picture goer. They'll like the studio plant which the story develops in the making of a serial to expose a crook. The number contains a degree of audience appeal that should make it a good one for exhibitors.

Exploitation.....Play up the title and advertise it in advance with teaser ads reading: "Watch for the lights to go out on (use showing date)." Just prior to the play date follow the stunt with the announcement of the title. They should get the connection. Use the names of the players whom you think are best known to your folks. Tell them about the studio scenes.

Direction By...Al Santell; good with a few exceptions: should have speeded up climax and occasionally wasted a trifle too much footage on unimportant bits of detail. Studio sequence has been very well done; production values first rate. Usually handled players to good advantage.

"Pioneer Trails"

Vitagraph

As a Whole...A GOOD AUDIENCE PICTURE WITH VARIETY OF ENTERTAINING ELEMENTS THAT USUALLY APPEAL TO THE MAJORITY; MOST EXHIBITORS CAN USE IT VERY NICELY.

Cast.....A first rate company with Cullen Landis and Alice Calhoun a good hero-heroine team; Landis all that the crowd expects a hero to be and Alice Calhoun pretty and a loyal sweetheart. Bertram Grassby is a bit too theatrical as the villain. Otis Harlan generally injects appropriate comedy touches as lawyer-philosopher. Others Dwight Crittenden, Virginia True Boardman, Aggie Herring, Nelson McDowell.

Type of Story...Drama with prologue of pioneer days that starts the picture off with a good thrill. Indian attack has been very well staged and furnishes an initial thrill. The theme is picked up twenty years later with hero, the baby survivor of the attack, the foster son of a prospector's widow.

The remainder of the story is more or less conventional but it has been so well handled and with such a good amount of action, thrills and intermittent comedy bits, that it becomes interesting and undoubtedly will prove entertaining to a large majority. The picture contains the usual elements that go for audience appeal and make a box office attraction.

Box Office Angle....Should be very good. Folks who still like their entertainment to contain the more popular elements of appeal such as comedy, thrills, action and romance, will find this one very interesting.

Exploitation.....The title will stand plenty of advertising and stunt exploitation. They'll expect a picture of the early days of the settlers and the prologue will serve to satisfy their expectations, followed by a theme of more modern times and yet savoring of California in olden times.

Promise them a variety of entertaining elements. For your men folks play up the action and thrills; for the women talk about the love story end of it. Show them stills of Cullen Landis and Alice Calhoun.

Use a trailer showing shots of the Indian attack. That should readily arouse interest. An old prairie schooner driven about would also be good advertising.

Direction by....David Smith; Gave story a good production and generally handled it to the best advantage. Comedy touches in one or two dramatic sequences are a little out of place. Provided splendid locations that give picture good amount of pictorial appeal. Photography also is good.

"The Acquittal"

Universal—Jewel

As a Whole....ABSORBING MYSTERY DRAMA THAT SHOULD PROVE FIRST RATE BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION, ESPECIALLY WHERE THERE IS LIKE SUSPENSE. GIVE THEM SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.

Cast.....A well suited and, for the most part, capable company with Richard Travers, Claire Windsor, Norman Kerry and Barbara Bedford in the more important parts. Claire Windsor very pretty and does good work; Travers also gives a good performance. Norman Kerry appears ill at ease and nearly as clever in his portrayal as he is capable of. Others Charles Wellesley, Ben Deeley, first rate the butler.

Type of Story.....Murder mystery involving a number of suspects with the trial aiming to fasten guilt on one of the adopted sons of the victim, but with sufficient incident to implicate others. The plot is particularly well developed and keeps the spectator in suspense and entirely in the dark as to a possible solution. The production is cleverly handled, the climax approached carefully with increased suspense. There is a possible loophole that may create the notice of the keen observer at no time during the trial do not discuss the instrument of death, is there an obvious inspector in the room of the murder.

Box Office Angle....Tell some of you have a murder mystery that they will not be able to solve it before the actual denouement and that is sufficient challenge to bring them in. And they'll be out satisfied. "The Acquittal" give them something to think about and if they like cold suspense, assured there is enough of it in the picture to please them.

Exploitation.....One of the stunts to interest them will be of a trailer of the opening, showing the characters implicated and victim of the murder with the title: "Who killed Andrew Irtice", followed by a big question mark. Carry the idea further your lobby display, posters, newspaper ads. Run a teaser first reading: "Who killed Andrew Irtice". You might stimulate interest by giving them some and offering prizes of admission for the nearest correct solution. Use the names of the principal players, especially Claire Windsor and Norman Kerry.

Direction by....Clarence L. Brundage did a very good piece of work especially in sustaining the interest and retaining the suspense; minor details could have been given more care.

Russia Looms Up In Foreign Field

Trade Looked For

Porters Here Think Country Offers Possibilities—Political Situation Important

In certain exporting circles in New York, there is a strong conviction that Russia is about to open up and in mean something in a business way, so far as the export of motion pictures is concerned.

At least two companies have received a number of inquiries relative to Russian rights for their product. The general consensus of opinion seems to be that while Russia, at the present, does not offer a market of worthwhile proportions, the time may not be very far off when that territory will definitely count for something in the foreign field.

In a certain measure, pictures are now being imported into Russia, almost entirely through Berlin. The German Government and the Russian Government have a trade agreement that provides for the German business man the usual protection that comes through the existence of consuls and trade relations but which the American exporter does not enjoy, in view of the fact this Government has never recognized the Soviet.

It is the opinion in one quarter that if the Russian market does grow, that buying will not be centered in New York or even in London. Berlin seems to be the logical center through which those operations will be conducted.

Scattered sales have been made of American pictures for Russia but the terms, while reported satisfactory are not considered an approach of what might be secured if the market were thrown wide open.

E. E. Shauer, head of the foreign department of Famous Players, who has recently returned from Europe has apparently touched on the crux of the situation when he declares that until the Federal Government recognizes Russia and banking interests feel that investments in that country will be accorded the protection that is usually guaranteed in foreign countries, there is little use in endeavoring to do business there. Once this is reached, according to Shauer, the opportunities should be worthwhile.

One individual who is well-informed on conditions abroad stated that the fact that the Soviet Government has failed to recognize the Imperial Russian debt has had a good deal to do with the failure of European powers to recognize the Soviet. Therefore, trade relations have not been socially renewed and business men are a resultingly hesitant to enter upon business transactions when they are not assured of adequate protection.

American organizations are compelled to transact trade with Russia through their Berlin offices because German companies are protected through a trade agreement with the Soviet, Ben Blumenthal of Export and Import pointed out.

No Ban on Trade with Russia But Exporters Assume Full Risk

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Although the Government has refused to recognize the Russian Soviet, there is nothing, according to officials conversant with the situation, to prevent Americans who are "willing to take a chance" undertaking to do business with that country.

As a parallel case, the situation which existed with regard to Mexico up to a few weeks ago is cited to show that business transactions are not necessarily dependent upon government recognition, although, of course, Americans who do business with a country not recognized by our Government, do so entirely at their own risk and without the many safeguards which Uncle Sam furnishes them in other countries through his ambassadors, consuls, commercial attaches and other officials.

The return from Russia recently of several members of Congress who have been studying conditions abroad, has apparently done nothing to clear up the fog which surrounds the conditions actually prevailing in that country. One Congressman has recommended that the President take no steps toward recognizing Russia at this time, while it is understood that other members will recommend immediate recognition.

As in the case of Mexico, the best business prospects in Russia are the concessions which are being granted. It is semi-officially stated that very little actual purchasing of goods can be done by the country, because of lack of gold currency among the people; that very little goods can be sold because of lack of manufacturing and transportation facilities, and that, therefore, industrial America is but little concerned with Russia.

As has been the case ever since the revolution of 1918, the chief obstacle to American recognition of the present Russian government has been its refusal to agree to stipulations providing for the protection of Americans in that country, of property they might secure there or of transactions they might undertake. Refusing to recognize the right of ownership or the sanctity of contract, the Russian government has no grounds on which to base an appeal for recognition by any country not imbued with the principles which control the Soviet.

When Russia indicates its agreement to the rules which the civilized world has laid down for the conduct of business between the nationals of different countries and the protection of citizens in foreign lands, it will have something to trade with, but it is held here that until that time comes Russia will be in the same position as was Mexico until she recognized the necessity of making similar admissions, and can look to no resumption of diplomatic, business or social relations with the United States.

"In view of the fact that the American trader has no legal status with the Russian Government, this has become the practice," said he. "It has been my observation that Russians have money and that they are ready to deal in cash. There are about 10,000 theaters in Russia before the war but what the number is now, I do not know. The Government there confiscated all property and turned many of the houses into other uses.

"A recent order has been promulgated, however, which permits foreigners and other former theater owners to again secure their theaters, upon application to the Government. There have been at least two companies formed to deal in films there. The usual custom for the Government to follow provides that the Soviet is to control 51% of the stock with the rest in private hands.

"I know that important pictures, recently made have been shown in various parts of Russia. This occurs because prints of them held for adjacent territories manage to get into the country.

"I am sure that the Russian field has possibilities."

William M. Vogel, who has been making frequent trips to Europe of late is of the opinion that the Russian market will reach a real position of importance in about a year. "Some American pictures are going in there," he said, "but the prices paid are not very high. Conditions in general do not warrant that but I think in about a year, real money will come out of the Russian field. That's the policy

I have been following with the Chaplin series. I intend holding off until conditions bring about better business."

Louis Brock, of the First National foreign department, said:

"Through our Berlin office, there have been some inquiries of late emanating from Russia. We have felt the pressure. Several of our pictures have been sold for Russia recently and at substantial figures, too. The transaction was for cash. I should say the prospects are good, although it is true that we have made no contract covering pictures in bulk.

"The market has not been entirely closed. There have been some pictures placed there through Germany since the war."

"About one half of our time in the past few weeks," said Arthur Loew, manager of the Metro foreign department, "has been spent in answering inquiries on Russia. Personally, I am not acquainted with the market but I feel that the fact that these inquiries have been made indicates the trend. Our Paris office has also been the recipient of similar communications. I think the field offers possibilities."

"Until conditions become more stabilized over there I don't see how Russia can interest Americans," declared George E. Kann of Goldwyn. "The Russian Government is desirous of attracting capital to that country without permitting any of the money to get into foreign hands."

Edward L. Klein said:

"Improvement in the motion picture situation in Soviet Russia is dependent upon improvement in her monetary condition. What Russia needs and wants is capital and investors from other nations to put her back on her feet. Germany is playing strongly for Russian favor and the bulk of the films going into the Soviet Republic come through Berlin. Russia has something like a thousand cinemas; I say cinemas because some are theaters and some are merely places where pictures are shown. These cinemas are served from Moscow, Petrograd and Charkow as well as from Berlin.

"Better distribution facilities are needed, which of course means money! There is a vast audience in the Soviet Republic but until better living and business conditions prevail through intercourse with other nations, Russia's progress in the film industry will be slow."

Sydney Abee, foreign manager at Fox, said his company was not prepared to go into the Russian market. Further than that he would make no comment.

A. C. Berman of United Artists said his company has been looking into the Russian market which he feels has possibilities. He expects that a definite policy will be formulated in the near future.

Joe Brandt, of C. B. C., in speaking of high rentals says:

"It is quite unfair to the producer for an exhibitor to talk about the high cost of rentals when he himself does not do the utmost to get behind the picture and get every dollar out of it that he is entitled to, and which the producer intended that he should get, considering the lavish productions he makes and the wonderful advertising campaign put behind the picture and the exploitation aids that he gets out.

Judge Learned Hand in the U. S. District for the Southern District has handed down a decision permitting Samuel Goldwyn to use the name "Goldwyn" in exploiting motion pictures, provided he follows the word "Goldwyn" with this expression: "Not connected with the Goldwyn Pictures Corp."

The decision follows a bill in equity filed by Goldwyn Pictures Corp. which sought a court order preventing Samuel Goldwyn from using that name. When "Potash and Perlmutter" was shown at the Strand the main title was changed to "S. G., Inc., presents" pending the decision.

The Arrow Film Corp., has filed suit in the Supreme Court against "Edward" R. Champion, of 160 Broadway to recover $6,406, a balance alleged still due on a note for $6,822 given by the defendant in June 1922 when there was an agreement signed by the parties under which Champion admitted the indebtedness. The Christian name of Champion is unknown to the plaintiff, for which reason the name Edward used in the complaint appears in quotation marks.

Two judgments have been filed in the City Court against the Twin Americas Film Co., the plaintiff in both cases being Charles H. Martindale. ## BARREN

By DANNY

Hollywood—The place where players and directors obtain thousands from producers. Here wages—there is no such word used here—are terrifically high. And where the money goes. But what becomes of it?

How much can you recall of players putting back into this business—unless they felt they were slipping and had to make a picture to show what they were worth?

What becomes of all the money they take out of this business?

Most of it is in real estate. Right in Hollywood. Outside of that money is well invested. As a rule under the guidance of their attorney, who, is often a lot more than a lawyer. As a rule the attorney serves as mentor, agent, advisor in every respect. A certain star would not part with $3,500 for a fur wrap last year until her attorney had seen it and believed "it was a good buy."

There is hardly any other business on earth where so much is taken out of the business never to go back into it—this. And yet the development of this industry continues apace. Only proving that a tremendous business really is.

That Harry Reichenbach is in the Peter Gridley Smith is proving himself out here. Peter is handling publicity for so many stars and directors that he has to keep a record of each "breaks" on the first page. He is getting a great "break" out with his players. First page right along. And this is the life of Hollywood publicity—the big star or director doesn't care anyone whether a line is printed or not anywhere else—so long as "breaks" out here—chiefly that rivals see it.

Organ Here From Australia

William J. Morgan, of the contract department of First National, is back in New York from Australia after absence of seven months. He is the future for motion pictures is very bright, particularly, he is, for First National.

Loew Subpoenaed

Appears Before Trade Commission Today—Hearing Resumes in New York

The Federal Trade Commission will resume its investigation into the activities of Famous Players this morning at the New York headquarters of the Commission, 105 W. 40th St. Marcus Loew has been subpoenaed to testify at this afternoon's session. It is quite likely that Nicholas Schenck will also appear.

The Government expects to rest about the middle of the week. Famous Players will probably then introduce some witnesses and after that procedure is gone through, briefs will be submitted by both sides. The examiner will make his findings to the Commissioners and then will come the decision.

Ingram Remaining Abroad?

A special dispatch from Paris to the Chicago Tribune quotes Rex Ingram as follows:

"I will never make another picture there (America) if I can help it.

"I suppose I might have to go back to America once or twice to direct, but I intend to do all my work abroad and remain here permanently."

At Metro, it was stated on Saturday that no plans which would provide for Ingram's remaining abroad indefinitely had been made. It was admitted that the director has a preference for the continent and that such a move was possible.

Still On the Job

Hiram Abrams Again Denies Reports of New Affiliation—Laughs at Stories

Hiram Abrams again denied on Saturday persistent reports that he was negotiating to join an important distributing corporation in a sales capacity.

"I am still on the job here and I haven't been asked to resign," he said in response to an inquiry from THE FILM DAILY.

Officials of the company Abrams was reported negotiating with laughed at the report. This is the second occasion Abrams had to deny rumblings about himself. Recently on the coast, the Los Angeles Examiner reported that J. D. Williams was to succeed Abrams at United Artists. This was denied by Douglas Fairbanks and at the time, Abrams was contented to point to Fairbanks' statement as sufficient to kill the report.

In Good Shape

Rome—Emil Jannings is here, working in the new version of "Quo Vadis?" which is being made by the Unione Cinematografica Italiana.

Goldwyn in Detroit

Expected to Build Theater There—May Work With Phil Gleichman

Reports from Detroit indicate that Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan will build a theater there to insure for itself a permanent outlet for its product.

While no one at Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan cared to talk about the matter on Saturday, sufficient credence is placed in the report which comes from the Middle West, especially in view of the fact that James R. Grainger, general manager of sales for the company, has visited Detroit about five or six times in the past few months. John H. Kunsky, at present shows the bulk of the Paramount and First National product at his various houses there while William Fox has his own theater, the Washington.

Phil Gleichman, owner of the Broadway-Strand, Detroit, has been variously reported as being interested in a new theater there and in this connection, has made frequent visits to New York to interest distributing companies in his project. It is quite possible that the new Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan theater may be constructed in conjunction with Gleichman.

Grainger Going to Coast

James R. Grainger expects to leave for the Goldwyn studio in about ten days.

Hays Will Help

United English Trade Reciprocity Here, Says Ernest Fredman in New York from London

Will H. Hays promised the heads of the three nationally organized associations in England that would confer with American producers in an effort to see if English pictures could not secure more reputation here, according to Ernest Fredman, of "The Film Renter," London, who arrived in New York Sunday.

Fredman attended a trade luncheon given to Mr. Hays during a conference held by the producers and representatives of the cinematograph Manufacturers' Society, the Kinematograph Renters' Society and the Cinematograph Exporters' Association, the organizations that represent production, distribution and exhibition in England. It was then that a friendly interchange of ideas ensued and the statement made by Hays that he would favor to comply with English proposals.

Hodkinson Won't Produce

W. Hodkinson declared yesterday that it was not true that his organization would produce. He has a number of deals under way for new pictures that his company will sponsor but the company as such will not produce them. He explained that as long as he could secure the kind of pictures he wanted through independent producers, there would be no reason for the Hodkinson Corp. to enter the picture. Incidentally, the capital raised, recorded in Albany last week, should have read $1,800,000 and not $1,500,000.

Deal on With Chadwick

It is understood that Nat Spitzer, on the coast, is dickering with I. Chadwick of Chadwick Pictures to distribute his product through that organization.

Baltimore Deal

Between Whitehurst and Wonders Covers Bookings—Control First Runs There Now

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Exchangemen here are very much interested in the reported booking arrangement entered upon by C. E. Whitehurst and Guy L. Wonders of Baltimore.

Whitehurst controls the New, Century and Parkway while Wonders operates the Rivoli. Between them, they have pretty much their own way so far as the first run situation is concerned. The arrangement is said to have been designed to bring about lower rentals.

Sales managers yesterday evinced lively interest in the reported Baltimore booking arrangement. Famous Players have been selling pictures to Whitehurst while Wonders is the First National sub-franchise holder there.

New Zoning System for Philadelphia Designed to Prevent Jockeying of Prices There

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—The F. I. L. M. Board of Trade has a committee at work on a new zoning plan which, it is hoped, will eliminate a good deal of competitive bidding and ultimately reduce the price of rentals.

The new plan would divide the city into zones and the exhibitors in one zone would not, in their purchase of film, be pitted against others in adjoining zones. This zoning system would be strictly observed by all exchanges in the territory and should be a step toward putting the purchasing and selling of film on a more equitable basis.

There are 12 exchanges here that are now using the uniform contract including Metro, First National, Goldwyn, Warner Brothers, Fox, Select, Pathe, Paramount, Vitagraph, Hodkinson, F. B. O. and Educational.

W. P. De Wesse of Vancouver, B. C., is in New York serving on First National's routing committee.

Loew, Star Witness

Explains to Trade Commission That Zukor Never Attempted Control of Metro or Loew, Inc.

Marcus Loew, chief witness yesterday at the resumed hearing on the Federal Trade Commission charges against the Famous Players-Lasky group, declared that neither Adolph Zukor personally, nor the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, had any control or made any attempt to dictate the policy of Metro or Loew, Inc.

The examination of Loew, the feature of the afternoon session, followed the testimony of Leopold Friedman, secretary and counsel for Loew, Inc., by whom the Government brought out that several members of the Zukor family owned stock in Loew, Inc.

Asked whether he owned any stock in F. P.-L., Loew replied: "I wanted some, but Zukor wouldn't let me have it."

The hearings, which had been adjourned for several weeks, got under way again yesterday morning at the offices of the Commission, 105

Lascelle Producing

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Ward Lascelle has signed Lester Cuneo to appear in a series of eight westerns which will be state righted. He also plans a series of dramas to be sold in the same manner.

Lascelle, however, has a new kink in distribution. He intends selling the pictures himself so that the product will be made and sold through his own organization.

Hays Will Help

When Hays reached England he had a meeting with Col. A. C. Bromhead, of the K. M. S., A. C. Bromhead of the K. R. S. and Major A. J. Gile of the C. E. A. This was followed by another meeting, at which were present six members of each organization. That second meeting was, in turn, followed by the luncheon at which the distribution of British pictures in America was discussed.

Fredman is here on a three weeks' visit during which time he hopes to foster a kindlier spirit on the part of American distributors toward English pictures. He will confine his visit to New York. On Friday, a number of his American friends will give him a lunch at the Ritz Carlton.

Conditions in England, while not normal are improving, according to Fredman. The entertainment tax, which totals about 20 per cent, but which is arranged on a sliding scale to reach that level is so prohibitive that new investors are not attracted to the business and for that reason there is no great activity in theater construction, Fredman maintains.

"In production, England is improving" he said yesterday. "We are really trying to make pictures that will appeal to America. American artistes like Betty Compson and Betty Blythe have appeared in English pictures, which now involve a greater negative cost than ever before. Graham-Wilcox Prod., Ideal, Gaumont and Stoll are particularly active. Harry Rowson of Ideal may come over in about five weeks with the prints of several new Ideal pictures. 'Mary, Queen of Scots,' which Denison Clift directed and 'I Will Repay,' directed by Henry Kolker, one of your directors."

"It is important to bear in mind that England has over 1,000,000 unemployed and a factor of that importance must be considered in amusements. American programs constitute 90 per cent of the shows in England today. French pictures do not mean a thing in England. German pictures have not made a very great impression although 'Dr. Mabuse' has been heavily booked.

"The most important event in England at the moment is British Film Week, scheduled for Feb. 4. Trade shows will be held in November with the Prince of Wales the guest at a luncheon which will officially inaugurate the event."

In several quarters, it was suggested—and this has been advanced before—that a new first-run theater in Baltimore might do a great deal toward relieving the situation there far as those distributors who experience trouble in getting into that city are concerned.

Loew, Star Witness

W. 40th St. A full array of counsel were on hand, W. H. Fuller and Gayloré Hawkins appearing for the Government, and Robert T. Swaine, Bruce Bromley, C. Frank Reavis, Ralph Kohn and E. J. Ludvigh representing Famous Players.

When Friedman had produced a stock record of Loew, Inc., Fuller brought out by questions that the following owned Loew stock as of April 4, 1923, according to the list:

Jay Mastbaum, Joseph A. Mastbaum, Jules E. Mastbaum (1500 shares), Mrs. Sadie Sablosky (1900), George H. Earle (2400), Abram D. Saenger (150), Julian H. Saenger (150), E. H. Hulsey (46), Eugene J. Zukor (6,000), Mrs. Adolph Zukor (6,392), E. J. Ludvigh (500), Mrs. Ludvigh (800), C. J. Ludvigh (144), J. E. Brulatour (672), W. H. English (1931), W. H. English, executor (5480), Richard A. Rowland (58), Arthur M. Loew (47,911), Mildred Zukor Loew (6000), Mrs. Marcus Loew (35,481), Marcus Loew himself (5929) and David Loew (47,964).

Swaine prepared to cross-examine, declaring that the implication of what had just been put into the record was "subversive of the truth." There was a tilt between Swaine and Fuller at the end of which the latter said he had no objection to finding out how many shares total were outstanding and how many stockholders there were.

He then asked the witness these questions, to which Friedman answered there were 1,060,780 shares outstanding divided among 8,000 stockholders. Swaine announced he would cross-examine Friedman at the conclusion of Loew's testimony.

When Loew took the stand, Government counsel went through the entire list of Loew theaters, as furnished by the witness, and inquired as to their policy and whether they were first, second or third run.

In the instance of the Aldine, Pittsburgh, a new house, Fuller asked: "Is that a picture theater?"

"It is," the witness answered, and it will be as long as we can get the pictures. We are having a great deal of difficulty in doing so." He declared the same thing was true in the case of other Loew houses.

When Fuller came to the name "Braves Field Exhibition Co.," the witness explained that the company gave picture shows at Braves Field, Boston, last Summer.

Asked whether they were "first runs," Loew answered: "Yes, I'd say they were first runs, and last runs, too."

Loew then traced the history of his acquaintance with Zukor. They met, he said, some 25 years ago, when they were both in the fur business, and were partners in the penny arcade proposition on 14th St. Later, Zukor became interested financially in some of the Loew's theaters, but "neither thought much of the other's ability," according to the witness. At one time, he said, Zukor voted against Loew's getting $2500 salary.

Fuller then brought out, by reference to exhibits introduced some time ago, that Jane Constance Loew, Mr. Loew's granddaughter, owned 100 shares of F.P.-L. stock, and Mildred Zukor Loew, 900 shares. On cross-examination, Swaine pointed out that the Zukor family owned about 1% of the stock of Loew, Inc., and then the witness stated there was no attempt to dictate the policy of either Metro or Loew, Inc. by the Zukors.

"Since Zukor and I parted company as business associates thirteen years ago, neither has had anything to say about running the other's business," summed up the attitude of the witness.

No favoritism had been shown him in booking F.P.-L. pictures, or any preference given Metro pictures in the Famous Players houses, he went on. "In fact," he declared, "Famous Players does things to us they wouldn't dare do to others."

Regarding the distribution of Metro pictures in Brazil and Australia by F.P.-L., to which he testified on direct examination, Loew told Swaine the arrangement came about merely as a business transaction, because F.P.-L. was able to deliver the goods.

On the subject of protection, Loew told the F.P.-L. counsel that the distributor always favors short protection, because it means a quick turnover, but the exhibitor wants long protection against the other fellow. The condition existed throughout the country, he declared.

When Friedman resumed the stand, Swaine took up the Loew stock record again and read the names of a large number of people in the industry, who were recorded as owning Loew stock. He brought out that those whom Fuller had enumerated owned altogether about 26,000 shares out of 1,060,780, and that neither individually nor collectively had they ever attempted to control the policy of Loew, Inc. or Metro.

He read down through the list, and asked the witness if the fact that these people owned stock in Loew enabled them to dictate policy or gave Metro or Loew the right to dictate to them in a business way. The witness replied "No, there is no community of interest" in each case.

"I see by your record that Hiram Abrams owns 100 shares of stock in Loew, Inc. Does that give him any voice in the affairs of your company or you in his?" Swaine asked. The answer was "None whatever."

"I also see that Sydney S. Cohen is out down as owning 100 shares. Does that give him a voice in running your company?"

"No," Friedman answered.

"Does it give you control of the M. P. T. O. A?"

The answer was "No."

Among the others whose names were read from the list as owning stock in Loew, Inc., were these: George Arliss, Ascher Bros., Hans Bertsch, playbroker; Irving Berlin, A. C. Berman, Abraham Carlos, J. B. Clark, William Collier, Hugh Ford, John L. Golden, Heine Groh and Arthur Fletcher, Sam H. Harris, David P. Howells, John H. Kunsky, Carl Laemmle, June Mathis, the President and Fellows of Harvard University, Jake Ruppert, William Russell, Sig Samuels, Norma and Constance Palmadge, Victor M. Shapiro, Alfred Weiss, and others.

"Did the Mastbaums ever have anything to do with dictating the policy of Metro or Loew, Inc.?" Swaine queried. The witness said they never did, and added, a minute later, that the Zukors never did, either.

"In other words, all these people bought stock merely as an investment," didn't they?" Swaine pursued. He got an affirmative reply.

On redirect examination, Fuller brought out that "it doesn't alienate a man's affections if he buys stock in your company," and Swaine came back with a few more questions, chief among which resulted in the witness saying that the people on what Swaine called "Mr. Fuller's two and a half per cent list" had never even attended a Loew stockholders' meeting.

The first witness at the morning session was S. E. Applegate, United Artists manager in Philadelphia, who told in detail of the booking situation there. Questioned by Fuller, he went over a list of twenty-one theater zones, describing the first run situation in each, and specified the houses booked through the Stanley interests or controlled by them. It was shown that most of the key centers in the Quaker City were under Stanley control in some form or other.

At the conclusion of his testimony the defense reserved the right to cross examine at a later date if desired.

H. O. Schwalbe, the next witness, sketched the organization of First National Exhibitors Circuit, Inc. 1917 and its reorganization into associated First National Pictures, in 1920.

Examined by Hawkins, of government counsel, Schwalbe said he was the president of the Electric Meter Supply Co. of Philadelphia, that he owned nearly all the capital stock.

Participating in the organization of First National in 1917, the witness said the Peerless Feature Film Co., which he had an interest in, got the Philadelphia franchise paying four a

 June 24, 1916; an agreement between the Pickford Corp. and the Nanuet Holding Corp., dated July 6, 1916, and lists of the stockholders and officers of each. It was brought out that the Nanuet concern was merged into Famous Players-Lasky in 1917.

Fuller then went into an extensive examination of the witness relative to the Famous Players Canadian activities. The Famous Payers Canadian Corp., the witness explained, was organized for theater acquisition only, was capitalized at $4,000,000, the stock to be sold to the Canadian public. The company handling the stock sales failed to dispose of the last million, and F. P. L. was compelled to take $750,000 of the amount, J.
 B. Beckell and his associates taking the other $250,000.

Responding to questions by Fuller,
 the witness said that the F.P.-L. parent corporation has very little to say about the Canadian Company.

"Well, Mr. Zukor is president of the Canadian corporation, isn't he?"
 Fuller asked.

Ludvigh said he was, but only "by courtesy", and that Zukor had less than nothing to do with the corporation.

Turning to F. P.-L. theater activities in the United States, Ludvigh said the corporation itself was not building any theaters at the present time. Only two developments were in contemplation: the theater and office building on the property at 1493 Broadway, and the theater on the English Hotel site in Indianapolis.
 On the Putnam site in New York
 Mr. Ludvigh said, Famous would build a theater that would compare with the Capitol in every respect except size. "The general feeling is that the Capitol is too large for a picture theater," he added.

Fuller brought out that F.P.-L.
 owns all the common stock of Charles Frohman, Inc.

Following are the theater acquisitions by F.P.-L. through subsidiaries or directly since April 4, 1923, according to Ludvigh's testimony fifty per cent interest in the Fairfax, Fairfax, Va; lease on the Community, Miami;
 the Sugg and Kozy theaters, Chickasha, Okla; the Graphic, Bangor, Me; the Capitol, Pittsfield, Mass; and fifty per cent interest in the Criterion, Oklahoma City. Ludvigh also testified that F.P.-L. had taken a lease on McVicker's Chicago. Seven theaters, owned or controlled by Southern Enterprises, Inc., have been sold since April, Ludvigh's statement showed. And Famous Players, according to the statement, now wholly owns the Metropolitan, Grauman and Rialto in Los Angeles.

As E. L. Smith Sees It—Backs Up
 Harry Rapf's Ideas About
 "Good Old Days"

E. L. Smith, who has just signed
 Will Nigh to make a series of pictures, thinks Harry Rapf is right about the "good old days" in production. Smith talks about the happy medium in production. Here are his ideas:

"Harry is right one hundred percent, and is in a position to know what a simple, gripping story, well directed can do towards making money for producer, distributor and exhibitor. The two pictures he mentioned demonstrated that.

"Harry does not go quite far enough, however. If the same director who made those pictures were to screen other stories with the same elements of human appeal as were contained in them, and if he were allowed five or six weeks for production instead of three or four, and if twenty to twenty-five thousand dollars more were judiciously and intelligently expended in production, the same high quality could be turned out as 'To'able David,' 'Humoresque' and other similar successes.

"This would result in pictures with the same money making possibilities as 'School Days' and 'Why Girls Leave Home' with the additional benefit of supplying the first run exhibitor with product that he would be proud to run in his theater.

"There is a happy medium in everything. No one is justified in investing more in an article than it can be sold for and give satisfaction.
 Neither should a product be made without putting into it such a reasonable sum as is necessary to make it of a quality acceptable to the greatest possible number of purchasers.

"Unquestionably those producers who can find the middle ground will be those who will make the most net profit for themselves, their distributors and the exhibitors who run their pictures in the future, and we will not except any of the 'million dollar pictures."

Three Paradoxes

In Motion Pictures as Gilbert Gable Sees Them—An Echo of Rowland's Ideas

"Love, labor and law have now become the three great paradoxes of the motion picture industry," says Gilbert E. Gable, president of Achievement Films, Inc., which have just completed "Slave of Desire," for Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. He says:

"For one thing, I would like to rise up and tell you what I think of the so-called Rowland expose. So far it seems to me the thought in connection with it has been more or less destructive, and I believe I have a constructive idea. It is the last knell of the swash-buckling, buccanering, pioneer methods of the motion picture business. Gone are the opportunities for even apparent or temporary success from sharp practice and grasping and greed. Gone is the margin that once covered carelessness and wanton waste, or thoughtless, extravagant expenditures. Gone are the men who once used those methods. Going are those who still seek success through those methods.

"Mr. Rowland's statements are outward evidence of a great inward change. Love, labor and law have now become the three great paradoxes of the motion picture industry. There are still thousands of people to whom

Hollywood is no longer a place in California, but a state of mind; there are thousands who, in thinking of this industry, place the word 'illicit' before love; 'no' before labor; and 'joke' after law. Nothing could be further from the new truth, for love in this industry is beginning to mean something akin to the 'Golden Rule' and every recent visitor to the coast knows that those who succeed give unlimited and uncounted hours to good hard work; and finally, law, is beginning to mean a relationship so founded upon justice that it is perfectly safe to tear up a contract as soon as it is signed.

"Producers will succeed in proportion to their faithfulness to these principles. Mr. Rowland has scratched the surface at a single point, for obviously there is no justice without perfect cooperation between sales and production at every step of the way.

"Let us not stop at putting that wheel in order. Let us patiently correct it, step by step, from fundamental policy up."

General endorsement and support for worthwhile motion pictures registered at a three day meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs held in Minneapolis last week according to Col. Jason Joy, chairman of the Committee on Publications of the Hays organization. Col. Joy returned on Sunday from conference.

Representatives attended North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois and it so happened, Oregon. A general thought on motion pictures seemed to be that by encouraging good, the bad would gradually be forced out. While no vote was taken children's matinees were heartily endorsed.

Addresses were made by Joy and Charles C. Pettijohn.

List F. P.-L. Stock

Trade Commission Establishes Bulk Is Held by Brokers—None in Zukor's Name

Examination into the stock holdings of Adolph Zukor and the other officers and directors of Famous Players-Lasky was taken up yesterday at the hearing on the Federal Trade Commission charges before Examiner E. C. Alvord.

According to the stock record, produced by E. J. Ludvigh under subpoena and prepared and certified by the Empire Trust Co., Zukor on Sept. 15, 1923 had no common and no preferred stock in his name "as of record." It was brought out, both in the direct and cross examination of Ludvigh, that while the record of that date showed no stock held by the president of the corporation, the stock might be in brokers' hands. "That happens in the case of every corporation," Robert T. Swaine, F.P.-L. chief counsel, took occasion to declare.

W. H. Fuller, Government chief counsel, brought out that the whole board of directors of the corporation had on Sept. 15 only 9378 shares of common as of record out of 225,000 common issued. According to his figuring, the books also showed over 62,000 shares of common in brokers' hands on the date mentioned. Early in the examination of Ludvigh, it was brought out, through a letter written by him, that Zukor in September, 1920, was one of the largest holders of common in the corporation, having 15,163 shares.

List F. P.-L. Stock

"And on September 15 this year, Mr. Zukor didn't own any of record?" Mr. Fuller asked the witness.

"He does not appear as a common stockholder of record," the witness responded. "But it is impossible to state the complete ownership of stock at any given time. There may be thousands in brokers' hands. They sometimes make transfers in the names of clerks, and the person in whose name the stock stands would, of course receive the dividend."

Explaining that the corporation paid dividends quarterly, Ludvigh, answering a question by Fuller, said that "no dividend was paid Mr. Zukor in October." When Ludvigh was asked whether he knew the name of the broker in whose hands the Zukor stock might be, he declared that he had only impressions and that he thought it would be "very unfair" to make any assertions without consulting Zukor.

"That's all right," Mr. Fuller said, promptly. "If you know yourself, of course we would not want you to say."

According to the stock record, the holdings of other members of the Zukor family on the date mentioned were shown as follows: Eugene Adolph Zukor, grandchild of Zukor, 31 shares common and 100 preferred; Eugene Zukor, 1500 preferred, and no common; Mrs. Adolph Zukor, 1000 common and 1500 preferred; Mrs. Eugene J. Zukor, 2000 common.

Holdings of directors of the corporation were shown as follows: Jesse L. Lasky, 300 shares of common of record as against 3530 in September, 1920. William H. English, 1043 common; Maurice Wertheim, no common and no preferred; Felix E. Kahn, no common and no preferred; Frederic G. Lee, 100 common and no preferred; Frank A. Garbutt, 141 common and no preferred; Theodore F. Whitmarsh, 600 common and 500 preferred; Dominick & Dominick, 3933 common and 2515 preferred; Sir William Wiseman, no common, no preferred.

At this point Mr. Fuller queried: "The list doesn't necessarily indicate, does it, that there are no shares owned by some of these directors?"

"The list can't possibly show the beneficial holders of all the stock," Ludvigh explained. "For instance, I saw in THE FILM DAILY today where my name was read out here yesterday as owning stock in Loew, Inc. As a matter of fact, I sold the stock years ago, but no dividend has been paid, so there was no transfer made on the books. I myself have more F. P.-L. stock in my broker's office than appears on this stock record."

Continuing the list of directors and holdings, the following were shown as of record: Jules E. Brulatour, 100 common, no preferred; Cecil B. DeMille, 10 common, no preferred; Albert A. Kaufman, 521 common, no preferred; Daniel Frohman, 701 common, no preferred; Sidney R. Kent, no common, 100 preferred; Mr. Ludvigh, 860 common, 2 preferred.

Referring again to the letter written by the witness, Mr. Fuller pointed out that it showed the former owned 3785 common in 1920. "Some of it was trustee stock," the witness declared, "and has since been delivered to the parties it belonged to. The eight hundred and sixty common doesn't represent all the common I now own.

"How much do you own?" he was asked. "Twenty-five per cent of 85000 shares," was the answer.

Continuing the list: Emil E. Shauer, 100 common, 150 preferred; Ralph A. Kohn, nine common, no preferred; Harold B. Franklin, no common, no preferred.

"Then," said the Government chief counsel, "outside of the Stanley Company, which is shown as owning 7500 common of record, the largest stockholders shown by the books are brokers." He then read a list of brokers with amounts of common as follows:

Halle & Stieglitz, 4590; Harriman & Co., 40,017; Hutton & Co., 13,105 Keech & Co.,

5682; McClure, Jones and Reid, 17,680; Payne, Weber & Co., 2056; Post & Flagg, 3379; Rothschild & Co., 2209; and Seligsberg & Co., 5390, totaling, according to Mr. Fuller's addition, over 62,000 shares.

The witness explained that 450,000 common were authorized, approximately 225,000 issued, and the rest not issued. Of the preferred, 100 shares had been originally sold to the public, of which 12,000 or 13,000 had been redeemed.

Ludvigh then told how he came to have the Loew, Inc. stock, and which he had since sold. He said he was attorney for Loew and incorporated the People's Vaudeville Co., Loew's "first company." He was to have paid Ludvigh $1000, said the witness, but was unable to do so in cash, so he paid in stock, which was afterward exchanged for stock in Loew, Inc. He was attorney for Loew, he said, up to three years ago.

The only other witness of the day was Harold B. Franklin, head of the Famous Players theater department, who was subjected to lengthy examination, cross-examination, re-direct and re-cross, on the methods used by his department in booking pictures from Famous and other distributors for houses in the South.

When he took the stand, he produced a copy of the "Buying Record" used by the F. P.-L. theater department in booking the Southern Enterprises' houses.

Cross-examined by Swaine, the witness said that the "Buying Record" was in no sense a contract, but merely a memorandum. In booking pictures for the Southern theaters, he went on, the opinions of local house managers were taken into consideration, relayed through the district managers, and taken up at periodical meetings held in the home office at booking times of the year. The buying of the pictures was actually done, he said, on the usual forms of film contracts used by various distributors.

"Yes," Fuller insisted, "but you fix the price, don't you?"

"I finally have to approve it," Franklin rejoined. "But I don't fix it. The prices we set down on the memorandum are frequently raised by the distributor before negotiations are finally concluded."

Again cross-examined, the witness Swaine that prices paid by F. P.-L. to distributors other than Famous were typically the same as those paid by otheraters of like quality. He also said the L. houses had to buy in competition other theaters and were frequently outl

Mr. Swaine also wanted to know wt the prices paid by Franklin's departme Famous Players as a distributor were h or lower than those paid to other distors. "Practically the same," said the ness.

"The distributor is never satisfied, added. "He always wants more."

Fuller brought out that the F. P.-L. ater department had worked out a perce arrangement with the distributing de ment, and there was frequent haggling whether a release was a twenty per cent ture or a twenty-five per cent picture. C examined again, Franklin said perce arrangements had been worked out also certain other distributors.

With Fuller insisting that contracts the South had to have Franklin's approva Swaine declaring that the "Buying Rec was in no sense a final contract, the hea was adjourned until this morning.

MATERIAL

By DANNY

Hollywood—Where to find it? It's the question. Talking to a number of directors this week out: What is the best of all time? What book has more copies than any of the rest of the so called "ten best" year in and year out? Is the type of fiction called "sophisticated," towards which the type of the present day popular has trend? It is not.

The best seller of all time is the Bible. More Bibles are sold every year than all the rest of the so called "best sellers" combined.

Which accounts for this: that the type of picture which is the most successful is that picture which appeals to the better thinking class—the picture which in homely sentiment, fine instincts, cleanliness and sympathetic appeal reaches out to all kinds of people.

In this wild race for material, in these days when bidding for popular success finds one producer outdoing another, this might well be borne in mind. Because the American people are a body, fine, clean thinking, loving people. Every chance we have to demonstrate this they might in the little old box office. "Miracle Man," "Humoresque," "Over the Hill" are but incidental sales. You will note that none of the so called "great, spectacular" pictures are mentioned. For the obvious reason that their appeal lies in another direction which may, or may not, be the reason for their success.

And if any of the finer, more homely world appealing stories cannot be produced for less than $200,000 then there is something wrong. The greatest of all assets at the box office is story value. The few outstanding exceptions do not prove the rule. Shakespeare are said "the play's the thing." This has been proven during the past decade by

The slave market scene from the new C. B. C. production "THE MARRIAGE MARKET," featuring Jack Mulhall, Pauline Garon, Alice Lake and an all star supporting cast.—Adv't.

New Sales Plan

Sponsors Say It Would Mean Faster Turn-over for Producer and Aid Exhibitors as Well

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—A new plan of distribution, which its sponsors maintain will mean a quicker turn-over for the producer and bring to the exhibitor worthwhile pictures while their prestige is in the ascendant, is in the making here.

The system would involve the sale of the pictures by units, each unit to consist of a separate sales and exploitation force. The plan provides for the breaking up of the country into districts, based on geographical boundaries. Two units would be started simultaneously in two different sections of the country and then work their way East and West. For example, one unit starting opera-

Common and Preferred Take Drop—Hodkinson and Lichtman on Stand

There was a break in both Famous Players common and preferred on the exchange yesterday. The common closed at 64¼, a drop of 2½ points from Tuesday's close while 19,900 shares changed hands. The preferred closed at 85, a drop of 3½ points from Tuesday.

The financial editor of the Sun said yesterday:

"Apparently, holders of the stocks of the Famous Players-Lasky Corp. were not very much pleased with the disclosures made during the Federal Trade Commission's investigation into the affairs of the company. It was brought out at the inquiry that at the present time, the president of the company has no common stock recorded in his name, though three years ago he was recognized as one of the ten largest stockholders, having held at that time some 15,163 shares.

Promises to Help T. O. C. C. in Settling "Enemies" Situation —May Attend Meeting

Charles L. O'Reilly has carried out his original intention of taking the T. O. C. C. troubles over "Enemies of Women" to Will H. Hays. The latter has been informed of the matter and intends giving it his attention at once. William Randolph Hearst and Cosmopolitan Prod. are members of the M. P. P. D. A.

T. O. C. C. members are confident that the long-standing discussion over existing contracts for the picture will be settled through the Hays office. The General will be invited to attend the regular meeting at the Astor on Tuesday. He plans to go to Sullivan, Ind. for a few days but will probably be back in time to attend the meeting, should he accept the invitation.

The T. O. C. C. feels that inasmuch as it was that organization that first endorsed the Hays movement, among exhibitor bodies, and worked so long on the uniform contract, that Hays will make unusual efforts to arrange an amicable settlement between the two parties.

New Sales Plan

sons in Cleveland would work East after playing that territory, while the second, working out of Columbus, would travel West.

The proposition is one of bulk bookings. No one unit will remain in any designated territory longer than six weeks, during which time as many theaters as can be lined up will play the picture. The plan revolves around the exploitation of individual pictures, so that each sales unit can devote its entire time and energy to the promotion of that attraction. If terms cannot be arranged with the first run, the surrounding towns, embracing non-competitive theaters will be booked. At no time will there ever be more than two units at work. In the New York territory, for example, openings may be held in Buffalo and in New York City simultaneously or in either one of the cities. If no Broadway first run, for example, should book any picture handled under this scheme, a circuit booking will be sought for neighborhood theaters in New York and surrounding towns lined up. Local advertising will be resorted to in order to focus the attention of the public on the picture.

The sponsors point out that the plan elevates all theaters to the rank of first runs. Only big productions that mean something at the box-office will be handled under this plan. A committee will pass on the drawing power of each picture, figuring out the cost of distribution and then add a percentage which goes to the selling organization for handling it. This percentage, it is said, will be more attractive than the percentage arrangement usually made. The organizers point out that the life of the picture will be lengthened, but that the country will be covered the first time in about nine months; and that, in that period, the producer will have his money and his profits back rather than wait from 18 months to two years for his investment to bring returns.

"Growing In Dignity"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Kansas City—Ex-Governor Henry J. Allen, editor of "The Beacon," Wichita, in commenting on the recent convention of the Kansas theater owners, stated editorially in his paper:

"The convention of the moving picture exhibitors in Wichita is revealing to a public that hasn't understood much about it, that the moving picture business has produced not only a steady growth in the quality of pictures but likewise in the quality of the business men and women who have gone into the moving picture business.

"The great enterprise which had a somewhat ragged beginning in shabby theaters made over from vacant store rooms has in less than a dozen years arrived at a point of real dignity and profit.

"The convention presents a type of business manager as keen and constructive as any growing industry in the whole country affords."

Another prominent member of the management now holds only 300 shares of the issue contrasted with 3,350 shares in 1920, and the holdings of the secretary of the corporation now total only 860 shares against 3,785 shares several years ago. It developed that brokers are now the largest holders of the issue. This condition caused further heavy selling of both classes of stocks today, making them for a time the weakest features of the list, the common losing some 3 points and the preferred about 4 points, both touching new low prices for the year."

The Hearing

W. W. Hodkinson and Al Lichtman were the only witnesses yesterday at the Federal Trade Commission hearing in the Famous Players case.

Hodkinson, who testified briefly in the afternoon, told of demands made by Mary Pickford on Adolph Zukor for increases in salary 'at various times, and advances made to the Famous Players Film Co., of which Zukor was the head, to meet the demands.

Discussion of the merger of Famous Players Film Co., the Jesse Lasky Feature Play Co., and Bosworth into the Famous Players-Lasky Corp., was touched upon.

On cross-examination by Robert T. Swain, of defense counsel, it was brought out that prior to the merging of the producer group with Paramount, the distribution end, into the Famous Players-Lasky Corp., the same thing had occurred in the case of the Mutual group.

"Then there was a combination of production and distribution in a single ownership before the Paramount distribution and production was combined," Swain summed up.

The situation in the industry in the days of General Film, the length of pictures released, and other topics of the sort were also discussed.

At one point, Swain asked the witness whether he considered that Miss Pickford was superior to the other Paramount stars at the time Hodkinson was president of Paramount. The witness said he did, with one exception, namely, Marguerite Clark.

The entire morning session was occupied with Lichtman's testimony, which was featured by his statement that since F. P.-L. completely took over Southern Enterprises, he, as a distributor, had been able to sell pictures on an entirely satisfactory basis in the South.

The witness told Hawkins, of Government counsel, that he had sold the entire Preferred output for the present season, where it was available, to the Southern Enterprise houses.

"Whom did you deal with?" asked Hawkins.

"With Harold B. Franklin," was the response. "It was a percentage arrangement, twenty per cent of the gross on some pictures and twenty-five on others."

Lichtman also said he had recently booked one picture, "The Broken Wing," into the Rialto, New York, on a percentage which gave him 17½% of the gross and made money on the deal.

Last Spring he had testified that the situation was quite different. On one occasion, he rented the Criterion from Famous, showed "Poor Men's Wives," and lost money.

Cross-examined by Swain, the witness said he found Franklin entirely fair in his dealings in every respect.

"There was no difficulty whatever," he added.

"Did Mr. Franklin try to coerce you in any way?" Swain queried.

"No," Lichtman responded.

"Last Spring," Hawkins went on, "you said the booking situation in the South was 'awful.' You mean that it's not awful now?"

"That's right," the witness declared.

He also told Swain that in some theaters in the Southern Enterprise chain, Famous had even split the gross fifty-fifty.

The major portion of Lichtman's testimony was occupied with an enumeration, city by city, of theaters which he considered first-class, first run, and a resulting argument between counsel, carried on through redirect and cross examination, over what makes a theater first-class.

This duplicated much of the material brought out at Lichtman's two previous appearances as a witness.

Gaylord Hawkins conducted the case yesterday for the Government. The hearing will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock before Examiner E. C. Alvord.

A Correction

In reporting Elek J. Ludvigh's testimony at the Tuesday session of the Federal Trade Commission hearing, it was stated that Ludvigh's interest in Famous Players stock was 25 per cent of 85,000 shares. The number of shares should have read 8,500.

"Unseeing Eyes"—Gold-Cosmopolitan Cosmopolitan

AMERICAN—The picture is crowded with action. There is the thrill of the aeroplane flying on the icy waters, and there is the thrill of the blizzard in which both heroes and heroine are separately lost. Lionel Barrymore played the always difficult role of a dramatic hero with his finest suppression.

"Unseeing Eyes" is a quite unusual film, its surprises, its atmosphere and its dramatic appeal.

LY NEWS—The picture is beautiful in question; clever, extremely clever; yet a trifle too, too—well too much evening's entertainment.

el of the Barrymores is capable, and as fine as an actor could possibly be under the circumstances of the film. * * * The story were disappointed in, said True, there is action, a goodly share. But somewhat of a lack of plot.

NING JOURNAL—* * * It presents a series of scenes so fraught with amazing and high romance that they burn lives upon the memory with the sear of perils personally experienced.

L—A film of the wide open spaces, full of action, including fights—fist and knife—and airplane pursuits. There are several very dull moments also. * * * graced by the presence of two very actors, Lionel Barrymore and Louis.

NING TELEGRAPH—Those who prefer their film fare with action, thrills and of good old-fashioned melodrama can find all these ingredients in "Unseeing Eyes." * * * It has everything the public —With condensation of some of the protracted and easily anticipated parts in this photoplay, what with good acting principals and by Seena Owen as the one as invigorating as a real plunge into

GRAM—To retell the story here and rob the film play of its thrills. * * * will find yourself gripping the edges of your chair in suspense when the big fights come long. * * *

ES—* * * And some of the snow scenes are as beautiful as anything that has been produced. As a story, however, it is full of impossible adventures that are reduced to a point when they become reality. * * * This picture is not a brilliant successor to the charming "Little Old New York."

BUNE—"Unseeing Eyes" is an interesting snow picture. * * * E. H. Griffith brought out all that there is of interest in the story with his quite sane and modern treatment. He permits his people to act like human beings, which is all wrong.

ORLD—Indeed, some of the views made in the airplane on the trip to the mountain are marvellously done. And glorious scenes are shown. * * * Perhaps there is much made of the snowstorms. And it is quite likely that much of the dramatic interest is heavy and long looked for before the end.

"On the Banks of the Wabash"— Vitagraph—Rialto

AMERICAN—A number of unnecessary scenes, situations and plots upset the scenic—and then—a fire registers itself—a dam bursts somewhere and a flood sweeps over the town. * * *

LY NEWS—"On the Banks of the Wabash" * * * is scenically extremely well presented. * * * The story—a somewhat interesting one. * * *

NING JOURNAL—* * * Combines the "heck" school of motion picture writing with some distinctly impressive flood and good performances by two members of the cast.

picture, at the Rialto, inclines to gross exaggerations of rural types and occasional liberties, but when the Wabash goes on the page * * * one's interest is thoroughly stimulated.

L—The title doubtlessly will bring to theater many sentimental folk who will revel in the hokum and manufactured thrills which have been gathered together here for their special consumption. * * * The big scene comes when the Wabash overflows its banks.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—This latest effort of A. J. Stuart Blackton has all the concomitants requisite to a popular appeal. * * * The picture, in addition to the un-failing sentimentalities of bucolic drama, has exciting river scenes, strongly reminiscent of "Way Down East" which brings the story to its climax.

POST—It is pretty poor stuff to offer these days. The picture at the Rialto, however, has one trump card, and that is held until the very last reel—just to keep the picture awake and incidentally the audience. Very likely it will go big in some localities, for it is full to the brim of "Home Sweet Home," and "mother-love" supplied chiefly by Mary Carr.

TELEGRAM—The story centres about a fine old character, "Cap" Hammond, quaint in humor, strong in manhood, who rises to an emergency and provides the thrill of the picture, a climax startling in its immensity.

TIMES—This film happens to be unique inasmuch as it is so irritating that it actually keeps one awake. * * * The acting is pathetic, the direction is negligible, but the photography is excellent. * * *

TRIBUNE—It will no doubt be a very popular picture with those who are interested in the Wabash, and perhaps with those who are interested in banks, and by that we mean that its appeal is catholic. Everybody concerned seems very sincere.

WORLD—Here we have a flood for the climax. And it is quite well carried out. The picture as a whole is slow, tedious, involved business built around the home life in a small country town and the staunch heart of Mary Carr. * * *

"Richard The Lion-Hearted"—Allied Prod. and Dist.—Strand

AMERICAN—For, to be perfectly frank, I was bored profoundly. I'll admit that a certain amount of imagination, and of ingenuity found a home in this screen adaptation of Walter Scott's decidedly demodé novel, "The Talisman."

EVENING JOURNAL—The reviewer believes that this is the first time that a character created in one photoplay has been utilized as the central figure of another. However, that may be, the results are so good in the present case that one is constrained to cry for more. * * *

All this is done at high pitch with many fine pictures of horsemen prancing and charging and cutting and parrying and swishing their blades on the rocky roads before Jaffa and in the city itself.

Mr. Beery is so outstanding in his role that one pays little attention to the others in his company.

HERALD—"Richard the Lion Hearted" is a good picture, but not by any means a great one; it measures up to "Robin Hood" in only one respect—that being the performance of Wallace Beery in the role of Richard. Mr. Beery is the same splendid, forceful, vital, engaging king that he was in the Fairbanks production.

MAIL—* * * Here Beery is at his best. He makes the character majestic, proud, cunning, noble and brave. For this the hero-worshippers should be satisfied. * * *

It is a poor successor to "Robin Hood." It lacks the spontaneity of that picture—and more than anything else, Douglas Fairbanks.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Wallace Beery as Richard Coeur de Lion, the mighty king of England, gives a convincing and vital performance. * * * There follows an excellent staged scene in which the Christians meet Saladin's forces on the field of battle.

POST—* * * A surrounding cast of excellent quality. A story which never loses interest, and costuming, staging, and photography that show great care.

SUN—There are many beautiful scenes in this movie with the armored crusaders, their pennants, banners and chargers against backgrounds of Oriental cities and countryside. The cast, headed by Wallace Beery as King Richard, is an excellent one. Charles Gerrard as the Sultan Saladin and Marguerite de la Motte as Lady Edith Plantagenet are splendid.

TELEGRAM—Chet Withey directed it and also supplied Mr. Beery with a glittering cast to match his shining talents. * * *

TIMES—Judging from "Richard the Lion-Hearted," the first production of the Associated Authors, Inc., a newly formed, motion picture concern, much is to be expected from this combination. In their initial effort * * * they have struck home, and it is decidedly gratifying to observe the clever manner in which this picture, * * * has been handled.

On the whole the cast is far above that in the average good production. We shall look forward to future efforts of this new producing company, as they deserve great credit for the characterization inculcated into the players in this picture, which is possessed of originality and stirring interest.

TRIBUNE—* * * But big sets do not make a big picture, and we enjoyed Richard quite as much as we did Robin. In "Richard" we were happily surprised, because we had not expected great things, while in the Fairbanks picture we were very disappointed, having looked for so much. * * * But as Richard the Lion Hearted he (Wallace Beery) is magnificent.

WORLD—* * * The picture, while pictorially beautiful, is occasionally ponderous.

Says Help Is Vital

It is interesting to recall that it was only recently that a certain sales manager for a state right organization upon his return from the Middle West declared that the market was gone. In the main, other state righters agreed with him, although there were certain angles on the matter as seen by this individual that were objected to.

Now Brandt sums up his impressions by declaring that a production monopoly is gradually coming to the fore, and says that unless aid in no uncertain manner comes to the state righters from exhibitors, it means the end for them: This is what he maintains:

"I look for a return to a production monopoly similar to that of the producers of General Film Co. days. There is the same affinity of interest between the Wall Street-financed producers of today as existed amongst the Patents Company producers.

"It will be remembered that the latter producers were independent and were competitive for many years until financial reasons made it wise for them to consolidate their interests. This is happening amongst the Wall Street-financed companies of today. They have been spending money extravagantly in productions that cannot possibly pay out, and the spirit of amalgamation is in the air. The almighty pocket-book is already talking, even as it did ten or twelve years ago.

"In the days of the General Film Co., the independent producer was the only factor that helped to crush the tremendous hold that this organization had on the industry. Today a great many exhibitors are not talking about it out loud, but are nevertheless whispering among themselves to book independent pictures to bring down the prices demanded by the Wall Street-financed companies. In short, the independent is being used today as the goat just as he was in the days of the General Film Co.

"The independent companies are fighting the battle of their lives today, but they are getting very poor aid from the exhibitors for the risks they are taking and the product they are building. Without the independent factor the field is left open to a consolidation of large interests, some of which have already taken place.

"The independents realize that they cannot possibly hope to get any big revenue from the key cities in the United States, because most of the key cities, as far as first-runs are concerned are controlled in one way or another by Wall Street or affiliated interests. They must necessarily depend upon the best run they can get in each city as a first-run, and the support of the rest of the exhibitors in neighborhood houses and the outlying towns in order to stay in business. The Wall Street pictures made at a tremendous cost goes into a first-run in a key town, and even if that theater should lose money on the engagement, it really means nothing, because it's charged up to exploitation. But because of the money poured in by Wall Street to exploit the picture, the exhibitors who follow this first-run must pay for the loss.

"In other words, most of the exhibitors of this country are feeding their money into the coffers of a great many Wall Street concerns who are threatening the very life of the independent producer, who must exist if the independent exhibitor is to exist.

"Almost five years ago I resigned from an important company to further the idea of making independent motion pictures, and in the five years I have made a great many pictures that have played first-runs in a great many of the key cities, and I have played them at a sacrifice simply because I was an independent producer. Often when the run was over, the exhibitor a little shame-facedly admitted that it was as good, or better, than some pictures he had bought from some Wall Street-financed organization, and that he had purchased it at half the price that he had paid for a picture of less value at the box-office.

At one point, at least, Brandt touches on the situation as seen by Harry M. Warner, who stated last week that production standards were being lowered by first-runs because those theaters refused to pay equitable rentals for pictures whose negative costs were high. Here Brandt declares:

"What is the incentive for the independent producer to continue? He is told point blank that he cannot expect any support from the first-runs in the big cities—he is told furthermore that unless he gets first-runs in the big cities that he can't expect any sort of a price from the neighborhood houses in the outlying towns. If he makes a big picture, and the first-run does take it, he pays half of what it is worth, and usually the Wall Street-affiliated theater doesn't put half the exploitation behind it that a Wall-Street-financed picture would get.

"In my opinion the handwriting is on the wall. Unless the exhibitors take the situation seriously in hand and begin to realize that the more they support independent pictures the quicker they are going to be able to make the Wall Street-financed producing unit bring down their cost of production and make pictures on a basis that will insure reasonable rentals. Unless the exhibitor is willing to do this, the independent's fight is useless and he might as well give up the field to the Wall Street-financed organizations and let the exhibitors take their chances as to what the result will be.

"The time for theorizing is past—we must get down to brass tacks—if the independent means anything to the industry, he must be supported. If he doesn't let the exhibitor be fair enough to lay his cards on the table and the independent will fold up his tent and disappear from the industry."

Coolidge Streeter at F. B. O. Plant—
Schnitzer Says Only Temporarily

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Coolidge Streeter, formerly with Hodkinson, has assumed charge of the F. B. O. studio here. Emil Offeman, former studio manager, who is now in New York, is definitely out.

The impression here is that there will be no further changes in the immediate future, but that a reorganization of the studio forces will be made. An increase in production is also looked for.

There is some speculation locally regarding the status of Joseph I.
Schnitzer, Harry M. Berman and Nat Rothstein, and also relative to the future of the exchange system.
Streeter arrived here from New York

Twenty Productions Ready—Zukor to Watch How Exhibitors Buy Product Before Carrying Out Re- mainder of Program—Future Schedule Will Be Based on Returns of this Group.

Orders were issued yesterday by Famous Players to close down all production activities in both the Eastern and the Hollywood studios, effective at once.

The cause for this unusual and unexpected move, as explained by Adolph Zukor is, briefly, that Famous intends to wait and see what returns come in on the 20 productions now finished before proceeding further on a production schedule which calls for such huge sums as outlined.

In other words, Famous will wait to see whether the present productions will sell at a profit. Otherwise, existing production schedules will be cut to meet the returns from the field.

The statement issued by Mr. Zukor is brief, and reads as follows:

"The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has completed the production program for this fall that was outlined in its announcement several months ago. We are now curtailing production in our studios to the greatest possible extent and we will not resume the making of any further new negatives until production costs have come down to a common sense basis."

In addition to the schedule of regular releases Famous has out, "The Covered Wagon" and DeMille's "Ten Commandments" will be presented both here and in Hollywood in a few weeks.

Editorial Note—There need be no apprehension—nor should there be any misapprehension—of the unexpected order issued yesterday to the studios of Famous Players. It is, in all likelihood, a move, the wisdom of which will be demonstrated in a few months. Because by then all sales reports for the season will be in, or practically so. There can then be no alibis. The sales department heads may invoke all the curses they please upon the heads of exhibitors who "wouldn't come through." But these curses will not pay off bank loans. The producer who is depending upon big returns from his "big" pictures may well take a tip from the action of Famous Players, and not anticipate too highly the returns on his pictures now in the field.

Minneapolis—The F. I. L. M. Board of Trade has declared war on bicycling and circuit buying. This was decided on at a special open meeting conducted by the board for a general conference between exchange managers and salesmen. L. O. Lukan presided.

A special investigator has been hired to travel through the territory checking up alleged bicycling of prints. Salesmen have been provided with special cards, on which to report films shown by the various theater owners included in their territory. Through this double check on pictures being exhibited, Minneapolis exchangemen hope to eliminate bicycling.

Circuit buying of pictures in the future is not to be tolerated. Every contract signed by an exhibitor must specify the picture contracted for and the date and theater where it is to be played.

Every manager and salesman in the territory, with one or two exceptions, attended the meeting. Closer cooperation between distributor and exhibitor by the salesman as the point of contact, was urged. Practically every function of the salesman, his difficulties, duties and place in the industry were discussed, with all exchangemen present making brief talks.

Moore Testifies

"I gave them my check on the spot and signed an agreement to enter the circuit," said Moore. "I had tried then unsuccessfully to get Paramount pictures."

The witness then described various meetings of the Circuit which he attended, and the determination of the original franchise holders to stop the releasing of "factory-made and sausage-made product" to the independent theaters.

As an original franchise holder, he testified, he ran the Circuit pictures first and then sold them to exhibitors in his territory through his exchange, singly, the same policy being followed throughout the country.

At this point, Gaylord Hawkins, conducting the case for the Government, asked the witness if he had information of a meeting of the First National Directors at Los Angeles in 1919, when Adolph Zukor appeared before them with a booking plan.

There was vigorous objection by Robert T. Swain, of defense counsel, who was sustained by Examiner Alvord, as Moore had not been present personally at the meeting. Hawkins made a statement for the record and got in his version of what he offered to prove by the witness.

In the Fall of 1919, First National meetings were held at the Astor, New York, the witness continued, as a result of the sale of the Hulsey franchise.

"The purpose was to hold the Circuit together," he explained. "We were being menaced by propositions made to franchise holders by F. P. L." Paramount, according to Moore, at this time was attempting to control production and exhibition, and "forming booking combines."

A committee of which the witness was a member was appointed to devise ways and means to meet the situation, he said. Several methods were proposed but the sub-franchise plan was finally adopted.

Then came the Atlantic City meeting in 1920, the theme of which was according to the witness, that Paramount must be prevented from making "further inroads on the theater field and from taking away stars and directors."

"Block-booking was also a great menace," he added. "Independent exhibitors all over the country were crying to us for help."

The sub-franchise plan was agreed to, the witness went on, by everybody present at the meeting except himself. He did not approve it.

Then came Moore's narration of the Chicago meeting, at which the sub-franchise plan was perfected. This was followed, he said, by the proposal made "either by Mr. Gordon or Mr. Schwalbe" for a national booking combine. Jules Mastbaum, he continued, urged the plan.

Again Swain objected vigorously, declaring there was no connection between Mastbaum and Famous at that time. He was overruled and voted an exception.

Famous Ceases Production

Summed up in a nutshell the action of Adolph Zukor simply means this: That if exhibitors will pay sufficient for the productions which have cost so much to make then Famous will continue making such productions. If the exhibitor doesn't then the production schedule will be altered to meet that which the exhibitor can afford. If that isn't good sane business, what is?

The only difference is that instead of waiting until next February or March to see what returns develop, Zukor is paving the way now, and all future productions will be held up until there is a definite idea, in dollars and cents—and sense—just what the market will accept, and pay for.

If the various old line companies and important "independent" producers are wise they will do what Famous is doing—stop producing on these tremendous high levels of cost and wait and see what is going to happen. It may be too late by next March. The red blooded sheriff that "Dick" Rowland talked about a few weeks ago may be perilously near some if they are not overly careful.

DANNY.

"The National Booking Combine was endorsed, and Mastbaum was elected President," continued Moore. "Only Finkelstein and Ruben opposed it and they later fell in line."

The next step, according to the testimony, was a meeting by a committee of which the witness was a member with Mastbaum in New York. The sub-franchise plan was to be abandoned, if the booking scheme went over. "Mastbaum said," continued Moore, "that if First National would put the booking company into effect, the Stanley company would join it."

He quoted Mastbaum as having said that the "whole industry would be eating out of our hands in six months."

A visit to Philadelphia followed, he said, and a meeting in the Stanley offices, where Moore took an active hand in the proceedings.

"The conference broke up in a miniature riot," he added, "when it was proposed that the Stanley company direct the booking combine. I told them that they were trespassing on dangerous ground that would lead to the Federal Courts. I advised them I would resign from the Committee and give the truth to all the franchise holders, both of which things I did."

In July, 1920, he also got out of First National and sold his franchise to J. D. Williams, the witness continued.

Attempts of the witness to get a fifty-fifty break with Loew in Washington and afterwards to get a day-and-date arrangement, both of which failed, were then told.

The negotiations were prolonged, he said. At one stage, Moore offered to give Paramount fifty per cent interest in his Rialto theater, he testified, and was also favorable to a plan proposed by S. R. Kent that he go into Baltimore and other cities.

He quoted Kent as having told him that Famous was dissatisfied with C. E. Whitehurst and willing to help Moore build and give him all the product.

H. D. Salisbury, the witness declared, went to Washington and looked over his books, and Moore also made a detailed statement in writing to the F. P. L. home office. Finally, W. E. Smith of Philadelphia visited Moore, continued the witness, and an agreement was signed, subject to approval, giving Moore a percentage arrangement on the Paramount pictures. Meanwhile, he bought two large tracts of land in Washington, so he testified, as possible theater sites.

The negotiations came to nothing, in the end, the witness explained, as Loew would not agree to the fifty-fifty split, because, as H. G. Ballance said in a letter to Moore, Loew had bought the Paramount product 100 per cent for the country and this might be endangered if an exception were made in Moore's case.

The direct examination of the witness was concluded by a vigorous denunciation by him of block-booking.

"It makes the exhibitor the goat," he asserted. "But the public doesn't know that. In addition, I believe all our censorship troubles are caused by block-booking. The system makes the producer the censor of the public morals. Under this system, the director, star and author are blind men. They have to turn out pictures on a factory plan to meet the release schedule."

The witness saw distinct hope however in the fact that certain stars and directors had broken away from what he called the factory system, and were thus making pictures on the individual basis.

At the afternoon session, Nixon-Nirdlinger was recalled to identify certain booking contracts with the Stanley Company.

Moore then resumed the stand for a long cross-examination by Swain. The witness had stated on direct examination that in 1917, at the time Williams and Johnson visited him, "Paramount had all the stars and directors."

The Paramount chief counsel took up in detail a who's who of industry in 1917 to show that Paramount did not have them all.

asked the witness to name the Paramount stars and directors in 1917 and Moore responded with a list of names, chief among which were M. Pickford and Marguerite Clark.

Mary, the witness said, was foremost rank. To which Moore agreed, but pointed out that W. Hodkinson had given the opinion the day before, that Marguerite Clark ranked with her.

"Well," said Moore, "if Mr. Hodkinson had been in the exhibit end where I was, I don't think I would have so rated Miss Clark. There is only one Mary."

At several points, Swain declared that stars "didn't get big till they went to Famous."

The witness qualified by saying that Paramount in 1917 had the best of the stars and directors plus a "different standard of picture" than Mr. Zukor had created.

"Then it's not true, as you Williams and Johnson told me," Swain pursued, "that Paramount in 1917 had all the stars and directors." "Couldn't have them all," answered the witness.

Swain then started reading the directors in 1917 to show that most of them were not with Famous at that time.

Recess was taken from 4:55 o'clock, when the night session began.

Just before recess, Schwalbe took the stand to identify a letter he had written to Moore, June 5, 1919.

The meeting was carried long beyond the usual time in order to allow both sides to finish examining Moore. He returned to Washington last night. Further details will be published Sunday's issue.

Zukor's Interests Large

The following appeared in the financial column of The Mail yesterday:

"The statement appearing in some of the newspapers that it had been testified in Federal Trade Commission proceedings that Mr. Zukor, the president of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, had since 1920 all his stock in the corporation and the directors of the corporation now own but little of its stock is entirely erroneous. No such testimony was given, and the facts are quite the contrary. Mr. Zukor's interests in the corporation are not large, but are even larger now than in 1919."

The Telegram said:

The financial district has been keenly interested in the movement of the Famous Players stock on the exchange. The price has dropped more than 35 points since high. The ownership of the majority of the stock through brokerage houses regarded as significant.

There was a recovery in Famous Players stock yesterday. The stock closed at 65½ a rise of 1½ points over Wednesday's close with 8,000 shares changed hands. The preferred went up 1½ points, closing at 85½.

Has New Process

C. H. Verity Coming from London to Float Company for Synchronization Invention

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Claud H. Verity, an inventor of synchronized pictures, sails on the Aquitania Nov. 3rd, to interest American capital in his process.

Verity calls his invention the Veritiphone and declares it can be used with any standard projector. The synchronization apparatus and the control are operated in the same projection room. He claims that there is never more than one twenty-fifth of a second difference between the two machines.

His method is different from other processes of this kind advanced. If a feature were to be made under his process, the dramatic action in the studio would go on without any interruption. That portion of the production would be made first. A stenographer records the speech of the artists during production. The picture is then taken into the recording studio and, if it is found that the artists do not have suitable voices for reproduction purposes, the process allows a substitution of other voices that will be more pleasing to the audience.

Hearing Adjourns

Government Gets More Witnesses—Moore Tells of Inner Workings at First National

Contrary to expectation, the Government did not finish presenting its case last week at the Federal Commission hearing on the charges against Famous Players-Lasker.

Government sine die was taken at 12.30 o'clock, after Charles O'Reilly, president of the T. O. S. P., had testified for the second time. The only other witness Friday was C. Berman, United Artists' manager.

When O'Reilly had finished, Ex-Attorney General E. C. Alvord inquired of Gay-Lawkins, of Federal counsel, whether the Government rested its case.

Lawkins answered in the negative. The examiner then informed Robert O'Brien, Famous Players' chief counsel, that he would be advised by the Government was ready to adjourn.

Loew, Rowland, Cochrane and Others Subscribe to Policy—Fredman Lunch Provides Keynote

The announcement of Adolph Zukor which appeared in Friday's issue of THE FILM DAILY, that Famous Players intended to cease all production pending the return to normalcy throughout the industry proved a veritable bombshell among motion picture people.

While a number of the more important leaders such as R. H. Cochrane, Universal, F. J. Godsol, Goldwyn H. M. Warner, Warner Bros., issued statements relative to the Zukor idea, it was left for the luncheon tendered to Ernest W. Fredman, editor of "The Film Renter" of London, and held at the Ritz, to really sound the strongest keynote of endorsement of the Zukor idea.

While the luncheon tendered to Fredman developed a splendid spirit of cordiality and courtesy to this well-liked and very popular editor, in reality from a business viewpoint it became practically an endorsement of the production shutdown idea.

Richard A. Rowland, general manager of First National who, as previously noted, has been opposed to the excessive production costs was the first speaker to mention what was in the minds of all present—the sensational announcement of the Famous Players production shut-down. Rowland said that it took a great amount of courage on the part of Zukor to make the move that he did.

"It is practically impossible to make pictures and sell them at the prices paid today," he said, "and Zukor should be congratulated for what he has done. The great trouble with this whole business is that it is 'overheaded' to death. There is too much overhead in production, too much in distribution, too much in the operation of theaters and unless this

Close 12 3/8 Points Under Day—47,800 Shares Changed Hands on Exchange

Shut-down in production announced by Adolph Zukor late Thursday strongly reflected on the Exchange Friday when the market closed at 53 3/4, a drop of 12 3/8 points from Thursday's close. Stock was very active, a total of 47,800 changing hands during the day. The preferred closed at 83, a drop of 2 1/2 points from Thursday's sale of 300 shares.

Figures

They look lovely in red bathing suits on the beach. But what a difference when in red ink! And it's the red ink that's now being talked about. And not the other kind of figures. Because, summing up the situation, in a nutshell it looks like this:

Tremendous pictures, huge spectacles, great epic events, destined for road shows first and picture houses later, may gross any amount. But pictures to be a success in picture houses dare not cost over $150,000 on an average—and must not—if the producer hopes to stay in business.

This isn't going to be sweet reading to the producers who figure they are all set if they "can turn out a good one" so long as it doesn't cost "much over $200,000." But the facts are there just the same. Who ever—except in slapstick comedies—liked to take castor oil?

oil. He established the basis for a lot of trouble. And it's the old ledger maker which causes the trouble here.

If the ledger of the production end of this business could be set in type it would look something like this:

Average gross intake on very good pictures, $350,000 to $400,000.

As against which would be set up the following:

Average cost of distribution about 35 per cent, or about $100,000 of the sum above mentioned, including advertising in trade publications. Any other advertising is additional expense. Deduct $100,000 from $350,000 and you have $250,000 left. From this deduct print cost of about $20,000. This leaves $230,000. All this should go to the producer who must pay interest on the capital needed for the production, any special advertising he desires, plus exploitation, probably a bonus for the money loaned him to make the picture, and figure to yourself how much he has left over and above $150,000?

Then multiply this amount by three, figuring he can make three pictures a year, and you have his probable profit. Bear in mind that if you get two good ones out of three you are walking around with the left hind foot of a graveyard rabbit in your hip pocket, or you are especially blessed by Allah. Because the record shows that practically no producer in the business hits with two out of three pictures. So against the probable profit coming from his successful pictures he must arrange to cover a possible—and likely—deficit from some of the others.

WHAT'S THE ANSWER?

Some large, important producers do not hesitate to say they don't know. A few try to bluff it out. They talk fulsomely of "the public" and "the insistent demand" for "fine box office attractions." They talk in titles. They either don't know how, or won't put their ears to the ground. Or they wouldn't hesitate at all.

The answer is simple. If exhibitors cannot afford to pay on the quota basis for costly pictures; if a percentage scheme is not workable; then there is only one thing to do—make pictures at a price that the exhibitor can afford to pay.

The time for quibbling and hesitating is over. That day has passed. The average picture will be made at a price that allows exhibitors to show it a profit—and that must not cost over $150,000—or they must be made at a cost of $500,000 and upwards. These costly productions may work out. Just as the "big specials" did a few years ago when average cost of production was $30,000 or less. If production costs, star and player salaries, carpenters and electricians wages are too high they must come down. You can't bite off more than you can chew.

All of this is more or less of a rehash of what has been written during the past few weeks from Hollywood and during the past six months.

FAMOUS PLAYERS MOVE WISE

Nothing could more clearly demonstrate that production costs have been too high than the announcement on Thursday by Famous of plans to close down production until the market is re-adjusted. If the largest production unit in the industry finds this necessary and bravely admits it—well, need more be said?

The note of warning regarding excessively high production costs was first sounded in this publication last March. Since then, from time to time, it has been touched upon until we were told to "stop harping" and "be optimistic." Optimism is one thing—sound business sense another.

There are others besides ostriches who stick their heads in the sand to avoid seeing things.

Both Bryant Washburn and Elliott Dexter have just begun work on their first productions for the Grand-Asher Distributing Corporation. In these two features will be seen all that the combined abilities and brains of an extremely carefully chosen group of expert and experienced men can produce.

Into these productions will go sincere effort, thought and the priceless experience in exhibiting and distributing which has been the record of both Samuel V. Grand and Harry Asher, who will act as a guiding critical power to create pictures in which high box-office value and low cost combine to completely satisfy the just demands of the exhibitor and the public.

With Cullen Tate directing Bryant Washburn and R. William Neill in a similar capacity for Elliott Dexter, excellent direction and production is assured. And the marvellous supporting casts which have been selected for both players will further perfect the filming of two stories of outstanding dramatic worth.

Samuel V. Grand and Harry Asher take great pride and pleasure in announcing the two features of which further details may be found on the next page.

the very beginning the Grand-Asher Distributing Corporation set a standard of feature production which will always act as complete and final assurance of superlative value.

The elements of this new standard are the following:

That Grand-Asher features shall be produced only by men who have already proven their abilities.

That the actors employed shall be of established box-office worth.

That no absurd amount of money be spent on unimportant details. In other words, while no money or effort will be spared to create fine pictures, yet lavish and gaudy spectacles of little importance to the story will be avoided. This is as much for our protection as it is for the exhibitor's.

That no picture shall leave the Grand-Asher studios of which the producers are not proud.

In the first productions of Elliott Dexter and Bryant Washburn for the Grand-Asher Distributing Corporation this standard will be in evidence. And it will be maintained as long as the Corporation exists. Remember, then, that when you hear of a new Grand-Asher release, you may be certain that the picture will be as good as any you have seen.

Reviews of the Newest Features

"Unseeing Eyes"

Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan

Whole.....FINE PICTURE EXHIBITORS. HAS EVERYTHING FOR THE BOX ICE: THRILLS, ACTION, DANCE, AND GORGEOUS SCENERY.

Louis Wolheim the real star, although Lionel Barrymore and Seena Owen are given great prominence. Wolheim, a fearful villain,—a great character actor. Barrymore not suited to either the role or the sphere. More than likely it is his name in the cast that they expect. You'd rather expect to see the woman fighting for him, than the reverse. Seena Owen, and everyone else for that matter, works very hard in the picture. Othes are Gustav von Seyffertitz and Walter Miller.

Story....Melodrama laid in the Northwest. Never before, that we recalled, have they employed an aeroplane to furnish thrills in a picture of the Northwest. The story of the plane sailing around snow covered mountains, and landing on the frozen lake. Thrills that are sufficient for anyone wanting to see a picture. Here are genuinely good hair-raisers. The plot, what-critical analysis you might want of it, under such treatment with such a vivid production, will fail to prove vastly interesting and entertaining for picture goers everywhere. It is audience friendly from start to finish. There is no end to the marvelously beautiful locations, all gorgeously photographed.

Box Office Angle....Likely to bring good returns for both the producer and exhibitor. Doesn't matter how the meller toward the close on a bit thick, it furnishes thrills and thrills—what they want they're not apt to kick even if it's a trifle long. It holds the audience on all the way.

Exploitation....Will make money for you to get behind it. Play up the point of the production:—the production of an aeroplane into infrequented regions of the Northwest. It's the big new feature. Can't go too strong on this. Show them trailers, especially one of the plane landing on the frozen lake. Promises are in the air.

Use Lionel Barrymore's "Unseeing Eyes" offers what may prove to be the big money makers of the Northwest in some respects has done a big job in great style.

"On the Banks of the Wabash"

Vitagraph

As a Whole.....CONTAINS ELEMENTS OF APPEAL POPULAR WITH MANY PICTURE PATRONS; OLD FASHIONED MELLER BUT FIRST RATE ENTERTAINMENT OF ITS KIND AND CAN UNDOUBTEDLY BE USED TO ADVANTAGE BY GOOD MANY EXHIBITORS.

Cast....Mary Carr always capable of putting over a "mother" role satisfactorily; a uniformly good cast with many pleasing performances.

Type of Story.....What is usually conceded to be "old fashioned meller." Has situations that lead into elements of appeal usually relied upon as real audience getters. They're perfectly willing to overlook improbabilities and poor logic so long as the situations provide thrills, action and the customary ingredients of so-called audience appeal. They'll accept the disappearance of Anne Bixler's husband readily enough and be thoroughly thrilled by his sudden return, in time to take a lively part in the climax, which, incidentally is a corking fine one for the exhibitor to talk about. The flood has been realistically staged and furnishes an exciting finish for the story.

Box Office Angle...."On the Banks of the Wabash" will very likely be a happy choice for a good many exhibitors. You know best whether or not the regulation melodrama goes big with your folks. The majority of picture goers is made up of people who still favor this type of entertainment.

Exploitation....Mary Carr's name and the flood climax—your two outstanding points to exploit. Tell them that Mary Carr, the screen's greatest portrayer of "mother" roles, plays a principal part in the picture,—that of a wife faithful unto the end, who is rewarded by a happy reunion with her husband. Use a trailer showing shots of the flood sequence. This will get the excitement lovers. On your announcements run the line: "Watch for the big flood in 'On the Banks of the Wabash,' J. Stuart Blackton's production for Vitagraph." Get your local music shop to display copies of the song and if there is a local broadcasting station, have them put on the song prior to the showing. This "listening in" should be a good advertising stunt.

Direction by....J. Stuart Blackton; observed good continuity and supplies satisfactory production climax well handled.

Author....Adapted from Paul Dresser's song.

Scenario by..... Elaine Stern
Cameraman..... Nicholas Muracas
Photography..... Good
Locale..... Indiana
Length..... 7,150 feet

"The Darling of New York"

Baby Peggy in

Universal-Jewel

As a Whole.....BABY PEGGY ADORABLE; PICTURE HAS EVERYTHING THAT MAKES FOR ENJOYABLE ENTERTAINMENT: LAUGHTER, TEARS, EXCITEMENT, AND A GOOD THRILL.

Star....She comes through like a million dollars in her first feature. They will "just love" her. Those who enjoyed seeing her in comedies will be delighted with her work in this, and those who haven't seen her have a treat in store.

Cast....Generally very well selected as to types; Sheldon Lewis good as Italian; Gladys Brockwell gets her emotional work over in fine shape. Max Davidson a big laugh as little shoemaker.

Type of Story....Affords the Baby every opportunity imaginable to show what she can do, but also holds the attention and interest closely all the way. Amusing and entertaining with one peach of a thrill in the fire sequence. Deals with adventure befalling a child who, after her mother's death, is sent from Italy to America where her wealthy grandfather lives. She falls into the hands of diamond smugglers, and thence from place to place in the Ghetto of New York, finally being restored to her grandfather.

Box Office Angle....Get them in. That's all you have to do and they'll be perfectly satisfied with what they see. As this is the Baby's first feature you may have to do some talking and exploiting, but go ahead. "The Darling of New York" should undoubtedly satisfy and delight any audience, especially the women folks. A special children's matinee could be worked with good results.

Exploitation....Get behind this and do your best to get them in. Get the name of the picture and the star well in front of your public sufficiently long enough before your playing date. Tell them it's Baby Peggy's first feature and that they have a treat in store.

A good exploitation stunt might be to give away little ragdolls such as Peggy uses in the picture, with cards attached reading: See why I made Baby Peggy the most popular child of the slums, in "The Darling of New York." Or you could have a little girl dressed as Peggy appears with a handkerchief tied over her head, parade the streets bearing a placard saying "I am the 'Darling of New York.'"

Direction by....King Baggot. Very good. Gives a little too much footage to opening sequences but cutting will take care of this.

Author.... King Baggot and Raymond L. Schrock

Scenario.... Raymond L. Schrock
Cameraman..... John Stumar
Photography..... All right
Locale.... Mainly New York's Ghetto
Length..... 6,260 feet.

'Richard the Lion-Hearted'

Producer: Associated Authors, Inc. Distributor: Allied Producers and Distributors Corp.

As a Whole.....INTERESTING STORY WITH HISTORICAL BACKGROUND GIVEN COLORFUL PRODUCTION; IS WELL ACTED AND WILL APPEAL TO THOSE WHO LIKE PICTURES OF A SPECTACULAR NATURE.

Cast....Wallace Beery continues his portrayal of Richard, the role he made such a success of in Fairbanks' "Robin Hood." Beery's performance splendid in every way. He makes an excellent King Richard and his work in interesting at all times. The cast is uniformly good with the more important roles played by Kathleen Clifford, Marguerite de la Motte, John Bowers, Charles Gerrard.

Type of Story.....Adapted from Sir Walter Scott's famous novel of English history, "The Talisman." The theme is especially interesting from a historical standpoint and is more or less of a sequel to "Robin Hood." Incidentally there are two shots taken from that picture with Fairbanks appearing in each.

The picture may not appeal universally, but by those who appreciate an especially fine effort to produce something worth while, it will undoubtedly be very favorably received. The spectacular angle of it will also make it a drawing card where they like their entertainment done on a big scale.

Box Office Angle.....Facts such as that it is a follow-up on "Robin Hood," has Wallace Beery once more portraying King Richard, and has been produced on a large scale, give you talking points that should make interesting reading for your patrons.

Exploitation....Be sure to tell them "Richard The Lion-Hearted" is a sequel to Douglas Fairbank's "Robin Hood." Play up the name of Wallace Beery and tell them about his splendid performance in the title role. Show them a trailer of Beery fighting off an attack by his enemy. Give an idea of the humor of the characterization by a trailer showing Richard partaking of sugar cane from India.

Display stills to indicate the attractiveness of the production. Be sure to have a good musical accompaniment. Your ushers and attendants in costumes appropriate to the period of the play, should attract attention.

Direction By.....Chet Withey; has handled the story nicely and provided first rate production; might have speeded up opening and closing reels to the picture's advantage.

Author..... Sir Walter Scott
Scenario By..... Frank Woods
Cameraman..... Joseph Walker
Photography..... Good
Locale..... Crusade period
Length..... 7,298 feet

Says Russia Offers Big Marke

Recht Talks

Soviet's Attorney Here Claims Field Is Important—Washington Doesn't Share His View

Far-sighted American companies can build a substantial business in Russia provided they are willing to extend lines of credit, according to Charles Recht, attorney for the Soviet Government in America. Recht has spent about a year studying the film situation as applicable to Russia and is therefore qualified to speak of the potentialities of that field.

"There is a decided field in Russia for the right organizations," he maintains. "The chief difficulty is that American companies will only do business on a cash basis. Russia will buy. There is a field there but the Soviet insists in making purchases on its own terms. Films are being bought for cash, but the deals closed on that basis are, at the moment, involving small outlays of money.

"The situation is merely this: To the American company or companies that deal with the Soviet and extend credit will eventually come the proper financial rewards. At present, Russia has four companies which will shortly start active production. That will also engage in exhibition. The City of Moscow has about 200 theaters and the number is growing rapidly.

"While Russia wants American pictures, I predict that unless the Government can make the satisfactory arrangements with producers here, the market will be closed in about two years. This, simply because by that time those producing units will have reached their full bloom and enough pictures will be turned out by them to meet the Russian needs.

"Some American pictures are now being shown in Russia, it is true, but the vintage of these dates back some years. When I was there last year, 'Intolerance' was being shown. In the 'Kino' of Moscow, a weekly paper devoted to film activities, Fox and First National are advertising regularly.

The attitude of the Hays organization toward Russia is understood to be unchanged since the report submitted last winter by Joseph M. Schenck upon his return from Europe. Schenck spent ten days in Berlin where he met Recht on a prearranged plan. Together, they were to journey into Russia to interview officials of the Soviet Government. Schenck, however, changed his mind and abandoned the Russian trip. Al Kaufman, then in Berlin for Famous Players was designated the job of securing data on the Russian situation. When Schenck returned here, his opinion was against dealing with Russia on the ground that internal conditions there had not sufficiently stabilized themselves.

That the Russian Government considers the motion picture important is indicated by the fact that back in 1918, an arrangement was made with Jacques Cibrario and $1,000,000 in cash deposited with the National City Bank to buy projectors for use in Russia. Cibrario was charged with bad faith and sued for the major part of the money.

Ernest W. Fredman, editor of "The Film Renter" of London stated yesterday that he considered the Russian market important and that, he had planned going to Moscow this fall to see if a reciprocal arrangement with the Soviet could not be made on behalf of English manufacturers.

Washington Disagrees

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—Government officials today puncture with a few well chosen words the Russian film bubble which seems suddenly to have made its appearance. Russia as a film market, it was declared would be non-existent for a number of years, regardless of the form of Government. It was pointed out that ninety per cent of the Russian population are peasants, who rarely see money and never in any considerable sums. Of the population living in the cities, it is true a few have made real money since the Soviet government revised its regulations regarding trade and industry, but even so, there is not a population sufficient to afford the quantity audience which is necessary to make moving pictures profitable.

One thing to remember, officials of the Commerce Department declare, is that all the moving picture activities in Russia are handled, directly or indirectly, by the Soviet Government. No film may be shown in the country which has not passed the censorship of Soviet officials, and no film of the type issue in this country has any chance of passing that censorship unchanged. While it is true a number of German films have been imported, they are chiefly what would be termed junk over here, or re-issues of very old films, and some American re-issues also have been purchased. The films which are permitted in the country are such films, or films showing the successful working out of the Soviet principles, and the high-class type of film issued in this country would not be very popular in Russia.

Any inquiries made to American producers relative to Russian rights for films are "feelers" put out by the Soviet government, even though ostensibly coming from independent individuals or concerns, according to opinion here. There are a number of organizations, with their own staffs, officers and personnel, but they are, nevertheless, merely the agents of the Soviet government and their policies are dictated direct from Russia. It is felt here that the only way to sell a picture for exhibition in Russia is to get the cash before the picture is turned over to the buyer.

No figures regarding imports of films into Russia have been available, it is stated at the Department of Commerce. However, such data has been secured indicates that the theatrical industry, as least so far regards moving pictures, is much more important than it was before the war. While the Soviet Government has made an effort to keep the theaters open in the larger cities, the lack of fuel, electric power and other necessities has made it difficult to conduct them regularly. However, it is believed that if the Soviet deems it desirable to open the picture theaters to the public, it has plenty of money with which to purchase films and equipment and can operate the theaters at a low price of admission which it would certainly have to do if the bulk of the populace were to be enticed therein.

It must not be forgotten that the Russian Government even today does not recognize the right of foreigners to own property or conduct business transactions in the country other than concessions granted by the Soviet. Furthermore, any American business man who runs afoul of the Soviet government has no remedy with his own government. Even though the Soviet government becomes the most stable in Europe (there is a chance of its being recognized by the United States until property and personal rights of American nations are admitted.

As a Whole....VERY CONVEN-TIONAL AND IMPROBABLE SITUATIONS OF AN OLD TIME "MOVIE" VARIETY; NOT A SATISFYING ENTER-TAINMENT FOR THOSE
LOOKING FOR A PLAUSIBLE, ORIGINAL STORY.

Cast.....House Peters too good a performer to be waster on such unworthy material; he strives to make his role convincing but the job is too big for him. Others adequate in parts that hold little for them.
The cast includes Evelyn Brent,
John Sainpolis, Lydia Knotte,

Type of Story....Drama of a poor, illogical type, that holds little appeal for the overage picture goer.
The plot consists of a series of situations in which a woman plans an elaborate revenge for the man who once loved her—and whom she lost through her own unfaithfulness—by arranging to disgrace him in the eyes of his fiancee and the people who look to him as a model of everything that is good and righteous. The characters are made stupid and uninteresting not through the fault of those portraying them but by the author who resorts to such out-of-date methods of plot development as are used here. The spectator feels urged to get up and knock some sense into all those concerned in the plot.
There is a glorious self-sacrifice in which hero prepares to accept the disgrace in order to protect his fiancee's brother,—an equally un-original and weak twist that serves as a climax.

Box Office Angle.....Not at all promising, especially if your clien-

"Held to Answer" that can be recommended, except perhaps the appearance of House Peters but even he cannot lift this one out of its rut.

Exploitation.... Cannot be considered unless it is merely a matter of bringing them in. If you have to worry out pleasing them and so bring them back again, you'll have to give them a better entertainment than this. To be sure that you don't go wrong you might look at it and decide for yourself. You may happen to cater to a class of patronage that still favors pictures of the old school variety. In that event you can probably fit it in without difficulty. The title isn't a bad one and might readily attract those who usually select their picture entertainment from the title you display.

"So Long Sultan"—Universal

Fairly Diverting

Type of production....1 reel comedy

Starring Chuck Reisner, who also directed this one reeler, "So Long Sultan" is another of the series dealing with the adventures of a reporter on "The Morning Mist." This time he is sent to Turkey to find out how the Sultan manages his wives. He gets mixed up with some Turkish soldiers—incidentally there is a good bit of pantomime used here, with Reisner drawing an American flag in the air with his finger to make them understand who he is—and then a grand chase through the Sultan's garden with Reisner all dressed up as a harem beauty. Pretty good diversion.

"Golfmania"—Century—Universal

Pretty Good Burlesque

Type of production....2 reel comedy

Billy Engle and Jack Earl are the stars of "Golfmania," a Century tworeeler, which, as the title indicates, is a burlesque on the great American sport. Some of the stuff is funny—some is not so funny, but as a whole it will probably get by as good entertainment with the average crowd.
There is rather too much of the bear sequence, in which Bruin wrecks everything he comes in contact with.
Almost all of the second reel is devoted to this sort of action.

"Lucky Rube"—Sid Smith—Grand-Asher

Amusing Slapstick Comedy

Type of production....2 reel comedy

Good, snappy direction makes Sid Smith's latest comedy "The Lucky
Rube," entertaining and diverting.
It is slapstick humor but funny nevertheless. Duane Thompson is the girl and Smith is a blacksmith's helper. A horse kicks him in the head and he dreams that he goes to the city, etc., etc., coming back six months later to boom the town. He has just gotten Hickville into shape as a blooming young city when—he wakes up. Should easily please.

"Roughing It"—Hal Roach—Pathe

Another "Spat Family" Riot

Type of production....2 reel comedy

If you have shown "Heavy Seas" or "Let's Build," the two preceding numbers of the "Spat Family" series all you'll have to do is bill this one and they should come back strong.
The series is without doubt one of the most amusing now being released struggles of the ill-assorted family who are forced to go west to take care of a gold-mine that Mr. Spat has foolishly purchased. They are caught in a rain storm, lose their water supply, etc., but it isn't the incidents that are so funny as the way in which they are handled.

Frank Butler is extremely good as the very English husband. The wife in this particular number is Marie Mosquini, with Sidney D'Albrook again the overbearing brother.

Some Excellent Stuff

Type of production....2 reel comedy

Bathing beauties, laughable incident and some wonderfully done aero-plane stuff make this Sennett comedy thoroughly enjoyable. There is also a trained bear that comes in for a good deal of footage, some of which could be cut without injury to the picture. The plot is somewhat helter-skelter, dealing with the love affairs of a gentleman-about-town, whose chauffeur provides a good portion of the laughs.

"The Whole Truth"—Hal Roach

Snappy and Amusing

Type of production....I reel comedy

This Stan Laurel—Hal Roach one reeler is decidedly amusing and is built around the scientific discovery of a drug which when administered to a patient forces him to tell nothing but the truth. Laurel is being sued for a divorce and to make him tell the real story of his desertion of his wife, the court orders the drug to be administered. The story he tells is so pitiful that his wife takes him back with open arms—but when Laurel leaves the courtroom, he takes from his mouth the still unswallowed cap-sul. There's a big laugh in this bit.

My dear friends:

After reviewing the final cutting of the print of "The Gold Diggers," I was deeply gratified, as it assured me that it was possible to faithfully portray a legitimate comedy upon the picture screen.

It made me realize there was much already accomplished in the way of better productions to bring the screen nearer to the Theatre.

The characters are all clean cut and distinctive.

You have indeed made a fine picture. A compliment for

Night Scene Device

Claimed by Virgil Miller, Cameraman —Valuable in Securing Better
Moonlight Shots

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Turning night into day with three bits of glass is the feat in photography claimed by Virgil Miller, cameraman at Universal City, and inventor of a number of effects in camera technique. Miller has perfected a "panchromatic filter," which, it is claimed, by reversing rays of light entering a camera lens, can turn noonday sunshine into a moonlight, on the film, so real that the effect is uncanny.

The new invention is a series of glass ray-filters, which break up light into its component parts. When it is applied, peculiar tricks occur. For instance, red, which photographs as black in the ordinary film, comes out as white; blue, which appears as white in ordinary photography, tends to black. The blue sky becomes black, but without "reversing the colors of actors in the foreground, thus resulting in a perfect moonlight effect, according to Miller.

Miller says he is the first man to use the actual moon in motion picture photography, and is also the inventor of a color-filter by which absolute color values may be transformed into light and shade on the screen with accuracy. This device has done much to remove the necessity of makeup for actors.

call more witnesses. The defense will then put in its case, after a thirty-day recess.

Tom Moore, the Washington exhibitor, was subjected to a rigid cross-examination by Swain on Thursday, the session running till 10 o'clock that night.

On Friday Berman told of the Canadian theater and booking situation, with particular reference to the activities of the Famous Players Canadian Corp. He produced a list of the theater holdings of the latter, and Hawkins took him through it city by city, inquiring as to the ownership of houses and with whom Berman dealt in selling United Artists' pictures.

It was brought out that, in the case of the Famous Players houses, bookings were arranged through N. L. Nathanson.

O'Reilly produced the two resolutions passed by the T. O. C. C. in August on the subject of block-booking and buying pictures "sight unseen."

Referring to the new Paramount policy of demonstration runs, Swain asked the witness whether it accorded with the spirit of the resolutions, and got an answer in the affirmative. O'Reilly went further and said that he knew of some instances where exhibitors were already being permitted to see F. P.-L. pictures before booking, although the policy was not scheduled to become fully effective until Nov 1st.

A long discussion of the relation of the circuits to the independent theaters in New York City followed. The witness maintained that the distributor would do better to favor the independents against the circuits "as a matter of good business."

Swain put a couple of hypothetical questions, one of which led to the query:

"Is there anything unfair in the distributor accepting the larger offer from the circuits, such as Loew, instead of favoring the smaller exhibitors?"

The witness said "yes," and went on to explain that the picture was only one of the things the exhibitor bought in dealing with the distributor, the others being publicity and protection.

"In my judgment," said the T. O. C. C. head, "the distributor ought to turn down the bigger customer to develop a number of smaller ones."

He admitted to Swain, however, that the distributor was virtually "powerless" in dealing with the circuits, but drew a sharp distinction between selling pictures to the circuit as a whole and recognizing specific instances where a circuit house of poorer quality competed with an independent theater of better grade.

"The distributor ought to keep the independent house going," O'Reilly declared.

Asked by Swain if he didn't know that Famous two years ago told Loew he could have only half of the product for first runs in New York, the witness said "No."

He was then asked how he would rate distributors today as to quality of product. This was O'Reilly's rating: first, Warner Bros.; second, Goldwyn; third, First National; fourth, Paramount. The witness also told of the formation of the A. B. C., and its effort to get a portion of the first run product by bidding against the circuits.

"The A. B. C. had twice the number of days Loew had," he explained, "and better theaters in many cases. But the big distributors refused to do business with it."

Swain quickly closed his cross-examination when O'Reilly, in answer to a question declared:

"Mr. Zukor told us that Famous Players had to buy theaters because exhibitors were going into production and distribution" (meaning First National).

Night Session Held

At the night session held by the Federal Trade Commission Thursday in order to permit Robert T. Swain, Famous counsel to compete cross-examination of Tom Moore, the workings of the original First National organization were gone into. Swain fired question after question at Moore in an effort to ascertain the motives behind the formation of the organization. In this connection Swain sought to define production, distribution and exhibition.

The cross-examination brought forth a number of remarks from Moore about the First National group that were tinged with a note of bitterness. He declared that the reasons that prompted the organization of the circuit were changed after he had entered as one of the 23 franchise holders because "the inside at First National got drunk with power." Moore testified that he voted against the contract with Charlie Chaplin and that instead of making money as the distributor in Washington, he had lost $75,000. "I saw the inside power," said Moore, "and First National was not working for the benefit of the circuit. Then I saw my days were numbered and I wanted to get out and back into exhibition."

Moore told about a letter he had received from Mary Pickford in which she expressed her willingness to go into partnership with him. He said he had offered the pictures to First National.

Swain asked that if First National controlled upwards of 500 theaters, whether it was an unfair thing for Paramount to secure its own theaters. Moore in reply stated that if such a move was necessary as a measure of self-defense, he could see no objection to it. Swain succeeded in showing that the idea of distribution and exhibition in motion pictures was not new by securing the admission from Moore that various of the First National franchise holders had owned exchanges and theaters at the same time in their respective territories and that therefore, when First National was formed it was merely expanding on a plan that already existed.

Toward the close of the session, Swain declared that Paramount had tried out the pre-demonstration plan now in effect back in the Spring of 1920 as a "selective booking plan" but that it failed because exhibitors refused to support it. Moore also went on record as stating that he thought Famous Players was losing $1,000,000 a year in rentals by selling pictures nationally to circuits rather than dealing on a competitive basis with exhibitors in various cities.

Los Angeles—King Vidor has completed "Wild Oranges."

Fredman and Reciprocity

At the Ritz luncheon given in his honor yesterday Ernest Fredman bespoke reciprocity for English pictures—

Billy Brandt told of an experience with one English picture—entertaining, he admitted, but it didn't go over.

So Fredman parried: "Well LOOK at them, anyway—judge them on merit."

Pictures with a national bias WON'T GO.

But has anybody said anything about one reason American pictures are better than any other?

Here it is: Pictures that attract Americans are those that have something back of them that the picture itself may not have—EXPLOITATION.

L U X O R is presenting in the American market, to the Exhibitors and to the Public pictures made on an International Scale, properly prepared for this market, properly advertised and exploited.

That's something Mr. Fredman wants to tell his readers—ENGLAND'S got to give us PICTURES PLUS!

That's what L U X O R offers.

Production Problem Widely Discussed

Support For Zukor

overhead is reduced in all three of the branches trouble must develop. It is a fact that of all of the millions invested in all of the companies in the motion picture business only one company is now paying dividends. All three of the units mentioned are to be blamed for existing conditions—one as much as the other."

Samuel Goldwyn, next called upon by Harry Reichenbach who acted as toast master, declared that it took great courage for Zukor to make the announcement that he had, and that it would take greater courage to go through with what he had started. But, he added, it was, for the first time, a real bull argument for the industry as a whole.

Exhibitor control, he declared, throughout the country, especially in closed towns, was liable to ruin this industry.

"The exhibitors who get together to break down prices are short sighted individuals—just as short sighted as was the General Film Co. Such action on the part of the exhibitor is forcing the producer back to where he was. What we need is for producers to support Famous Players in this move. You will see a tremendous gain for the business. The exhibitor, especially in closed towns, is driving the producers together."

Goldwyn closed predicting the greatest prosperity in the country and in the business.

"Billy" Brandt who followed, declared exhibitors only got together when film prices were so high they could not exist otherwise. He declared that Zukor's movement "would strike at the heart of things—the high prices paid directors and stars."

Marcus Loew proved most interesting. Relative to the Zukor move he said:

"I predicted this would happen six months ago. We have only seen the beginning. But it is no different with pictures than any other young industry. It's simply a case of getting the industry where it belongs—on a business basis. Zukor has started something. We've all started, I believe. The overhead—the excessive cost of making pictures—has gotten away with us. The reason was that a few people started it a year ago on the Coast—and it takes only a few people to start a thing like this and to double the cost of pictures. "The exhibitor has his own troubles. I know. You may be interested in this:

"My New York theaters did $46,000 more last week than a year ago; and the Loew circuit did $100,000 more than a year ago, due to increased admission prices. But we made $6,000 less than last year. And that's unhealthy. We don't dare go any higher in admissions. There is only one way to stop this extravagant waste of money; the terrible cost of selling, producing, everything that goes into pictures. It's far greater than any other business.

"Zukor deserves a lot of credit for taking the bull by the horns. I don't know that this will cure the situation, but it will help. We've got to watch the pennies—and that has never been done in this industry."

In a formal statement issued later in the day, R. A. Rowland said:

"The action of Famous Players in temporarily abandoning production took a lot of courage—but there was no alternative. When mounting cost mount to such heights that only the negative costs are returned to the producer, it is time for drastic action. The action came as an economic shock to the industry—perhaps a few more such shocks will accomplish some real practical betterment of conditions.

"As far as First National is concerned, we are in a different position and no such action is called for. Our picturegoers go to our own theaters—First National franchise holders—and our contracts with independent producers were made a year ago or earlier when costs were not nearly as high as at present. With respect to the few pictures which we are producing ourselves we are in an excellent position. By producing so few we can naturally exercise a closer supervision in the fight for economy than a volume producer, and can cut all corners in expense that are consistent with quality pictures. We know the number of working days on each picture; we economize on salaries by employing our casts no longer than absolutely necessary. Overhead costs between productions has been annihilated.

"I want to state that First National is optimistic and not pessimistic. The action of Famous Players is a step toward a general house-cleaning which will do the industry a world of good. We are in a splendid position to pull through this period of high costs without curtailing our program."

Commenting on the Zukor statement, R. H. Cochrane, vice president of Universal said:

"Mr. Zukor is right. Production conditions are and have been outrageously abnormal. It would be a great thing if all studios could close their doors until the people who have been forcing costs skyward have a chance to wake up.

"The only reason why the Universal has not closed its studios is because it would leave us with so many unfinished negatives on hand that we would risk a loss of over a million dollars. When these negatives are finished we intend to shut off production as close to the complete stopping point as our releasing contracts will permit."

A statement from F. G. Godsol said:

"The Goldwyn Pictures Corp. will make the same number of pictures as originally planned and the studio at Culver City is running on schedule and will continue to do so. If over production is the case with any other company, it is not the case with Goldwyn, which is operating on a carefully thought out and carefully arranged schedule. The entire Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan Distributing programme, which includes Cosmopolitan, Distinctive and Goldwyn Pictures will go forward in a normal course."

Harry M. Warner said on behalf of Warner Brothers:

"While rumors are rife everywhere, concerning the closing down of different plants it is only fair to the exhibitor and to the public to issue the statement that the Warner organization intends to keep the different production units working at full blast with no changes in the elaborate plans we have made for the future.

"When the news broke concerning the move of Famous Players, Hollywood was thrown into apprehension and this has rebounded in all directions affecting every organization in the producing business. I have not been aware that conditions are below normalcy and I see no reason to fear for the future as far as our own productions are concerned.

"Up to this date we have completed 12 of the 18 photoplays on our roster, and in addition our two specials. We have several productions now working and we are ready to begin work on our forthcoming productions as soon as studio space is available. There will be no let-up.

Joseph I. Schnitzer of F. B. O. said:

"Mr. Zukor is to be congratulated on the wisdom of his move and the courage that prompted him to take the step. It's fine and certainly a long step in the right direction. I have nothing but commendation for this decision. So far as F. B. O. is concerned we have been operating on a minimum production schedule for some time past."

A Fox official declared his company was going ahead full blast. The last of the promised specials for the new season is now in work and 1924 product will be launched at once. The Mix, Jones, Gilbert and Mason series and all short subject units will continue uninterrupted work.

At Vitagraph, John M. Quinn, general manager had left his office for the day. Albert E. Smith is in Europe.

Furore On Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—The intention of Famous players to shut down on production was announced here by Jesse L. Lasky, simultaneously with the statement issued by Adolph Zukor in New York. It created a furore in Hollywood, coming as it did so closely on the heels of the curtailment at Warner's, Preferred and many of the coast studios.

Lasky, in his statement, declared that in January "following a complete readjustment and reorganization," the studio here would be re-opened.

Production in general has been slowing up in Hollywood. Inquiries made at the various studios revealed the following:

Abraham Lehr of Goldwyn issued a statement to the effect that his company would not close and that two companies would be kept at work continuously until Jan. 1. First National is going ahead on its original schedule with four companies now busy and two more planned within two weeks. Metro will have two of its own units at work and, in addition, there are at the plant Fred Niblo and the Reginald Barker units. Carl Laemmle declares that Universal will continue as per usual.

There has been a definite slowing up all along the line here. Independent units are not particularly involved. Those companies that have only one unit at work are expected to continue.

Fredman's Lunch

Among the other speakers at Fredman lunch were the Editor THE FILM DAILY, Abe Bernstein, United Artists who said the only regret that he had was that "Fredman was not an American; Nathan Brown who in a delightful vein told Fredman that inasmuch as he was here only two weeks he would be Moses to lead the industry out of its problems;" and Frederick Hall of the New York Times said that the majority of people had heard, were really tired of big crowds and big sets appearing in new pictures.

Charles Pettijohn of the Hays organization said that those people might be interested to know that percentage of bookings in church schools and colleges and in places other than regular motion picture theaters had now passed nine per cent of the volume of productions released.

Fredman closed the luncheon first declaring that he was overjoyed by the splendid reception and in a plea for "just a little reciprocity on the part of American exhibitors and the trade press to English pictures, pointing out that the leading English producers, in an effort to meet the American market, were employing well-known American studio directors and technical men in a sincere effort to make pictures suitable for America.

"Three years ago after I had visited America," he said, "I returned here and told English producers that they could not hope to compete in the market with American producers unless they cause English pictures did measure up to the standard of American pictures, but that has now changed."

"To the Point"

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Minneapolis — "Greater Amusements," in commenting on Richard A. Rowland's statement, relative to the imaginary grosses producers expect their pictures to reach, says, editorially:

"Timely and to the point is the warning to producers and directors sounded by Richard A. Rowland. In plain terms, in characteristic blunt and fearless manner he tells them to quit kidding themselves about the grosses they imagine their pictures are capable of rolling up.

"The Rowland message is important to everyone in the industry, and in sounding his warning, he merely is taking cognizance of and stressing fact."

KEEP COOL

By DANNY

Probably the greatest, the most important crisis in the history of the industry is at hand. It should be met, and it is to be expected it will be met, with calmness and understanding; appreciation of the gravity, and optimism as to the result.

If every important producer follows the lead of Famous Players what might have been a real panic next February or March will have been averted. Certainly something closely akin to a panic was scheduled for next February when the production departments would have faced the inevitable showing of the sales departments which promised—and still promises—to be "shy" hundreds of thousands, if not millions, from what the producers had expected, and will need.

There are ample pictures on hand. Exhibitors need have no fear. There are many good pictures to come; several tremendously big ones—notably "The Ten Commandments," "Abraham Lincoln" and "The Thief of Baghdad," which "Doug" is completing. These are the great big ones. There are others, smaller, but of real importance at the box office. So nothing need worry anyone from that

And if there isn't a camera cranked in Hollywood for the next three months no one need worry—except the stars and directors. And considering the salaries they have received during the past 10 months, why many of them should worry is almost laughable. There are a lot of average players who will be hurt—but someone always is hurt in an operation of this sort—this is unavoidable.

What that need be done in this crisis is to keep cool. Keep your heels planted. Don't worry about the professional operators are going to values in Wall Street. If it appears are having their innings to the bulls will come in some other way. It has always been this way. If your own film stocks hold them. Don't get a chump you would be to sell the market so demoralized? If you are "in" on margin you're in for a bad luck—that's gambling. But so

Seeking a Remedy

Non-Theatrical Situation Growing More Serious—F. I. L. M. Boards Conferring Generally

The non-theatrical situation throughout the country is growing more serious. The various F. I. L. M. Boards of Trade are meeting in their various cities to seek ways and means of settling the problem which has grown in proportion rather than diminish. In Utah, the competition offered by non-theatrical exhibitors to the regular theaters is particularly acute. In Michigan, where the necessity for action became so urgent that H. M. Richey and others of the M. P. T. O. came to New York to confer with Will H. Hays relative to it, the pressure has now become less severe.

The F. I. L. M. Boards will call in the salesmen of the various companies and go over the situation generally. The attitude of the majority of distributors as reflected through these bodies is that the regular theatrical exhibitor must be protected at all costs, since he represents the backbone of the business. Just how the situation will be met depends largely on the conditions in the various parts of the country.

Other problems, such as bicycling of film and reorganization of the zoning systems will also come up. In particular, Philadelphia and Minneapolis have already conferred along these lines with results that are reported extremely satisfactory.

Reductions All Over Country Made—H. M. Saulsbury Out of Real Estate Department

Famous Players has lost no time in retrenching all along the line in view of the shutdown in production. A number of employees in all departments were let out on Saturday.

Over at the Long Island studio, the executive staff was pretty well cut down, although it was stated that "The Humming Bird" and "Piped Piper Malone" companies would continue until the pictures were finished. The company declared that the move was one in carrying out the policy of retrenchment that has been decided upon.

Henry M. Saulsbury, one of the officials of the real estate and theater departments, is among those who are no longer with the organization.

The common stock on Saturday made a recovery on the Exchange. The closing price was 55¼, an increase of two points over Friday.

Rowland Denies Report

R. A. Rowland denied on Saturday that First National would spend $3,500,000 in production in the next two months, as reported by the Associate Press from Los Angeles. He declared:

"On the contrary, we intend to retrench as much as we possibly can with the pictures we ourselves make. Our contractual relations with inde-

Exhibitors Need Not Worry Over Production Shutdown—63 for November-December

A survey of the pictures to be released in November and December by important distributors reveals the fact that exhibitors need not worry over a shortage in releases, in the event that a shutdown in production should become general.

Below will be found an approximate list of the product available for those two months. It must be understood that the compilation in no sense is complete. It is true that it covers the releases of most of the national distributors, but there are a number of independently-made pictures which are not included.

THE GREATEST FUN IN THIS BUSINESS

No. 356. Straight-from-the-Shoulder-Talk

By CARL LAEMMLE

President of the Universal Pictures Corporation

AT a time when exhibitors are refusing to book the pictures of other producers until they can actually see the pictures, they are giving exactly the opposite treatment to Universal and I'm here to say that such an expression of confidence warms the cockles of my heart. I thank you!

For years I have been preaching "Look before you book." This slogan has finally taken hold. It has got underneath the exhibitors' skin. They have learned that it pays to look before booking. But at the same time they have learned that they can book Universal pictures before they even leave the studio!

Read the next paragraph carefully:

In our New York exchange alone, nearly $200,000 worth of contracts were signed on three Jewel pictures, "A Lady of Quality," "Thundering Dawn" and "The Acquittal" before any one of these three pictures was completed!

Not a single exhibitor saw any one of these pictures or any part of them before signing up. In some cases we did not even have still photographs to show.

All our salesmen had to sell was the news from our studio that the pictures were great! They told the exhibitors that our studio staff had promised three corking good pictures. Well, many a studio has made promises of this sort. The exhibitors have heard such things before, only to learn afterward that the pictures were not so good.

But they took our unsupported word for it. All we had ready to sell was our word. And it goes without saying that the word will be made good.

Just as soon as the story began going the rounds that "Universal has the pictures," the flood of contracts began to pour in. In spite of the fact that this was the company which had urged exhibitors to look before booking, this was the very company in which exhibitors had such supreme confidence that they booked blindly.

Confidence! It has taken years to earn such confidence and we'll never shake it!

Trust! I have more fun running this company as a sort of sacred trust for the thousands of exhibitors who lean on us than you will ever know. The fact that I can look you in the eye and can know that you and I are making money for each other is a deep rooted joy which cannot be described in words.

So I'll continue to say it with pictures and you can answer with contracts.

Sees Opposition From Cohen

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Oakland, Cal.—C. C. Griffin, an important figure in Northern California exhibitor matters, thinks that opposition to the Jake Wells' plan for a council of 26 and well-established Washington headquarters will be made by the Cohen forces. He says:

"This is the identical same proposition that I made to a large number of exhibitors in Chicago last convention. My proposition then was in the nature of a compromise and was as follows:

"Each zone or state organization to send a representative to Washington, those representatives to be a governing body of a national organization, and to have the power to elect an executive and conduct all other business of the national organization. The expense of each delegate to be borne by the organization; this, of course, would eliminate all politics which was the object I sought to attain. So you can well see that I am heartily in favor of Jake Wells' plan and hope something may be developed from it, although I predict that it will meet with opposition by the Cohen forces."

Puzzle Proves Good Stunt

Leavenworth, Kans.—John Topper, of the Abdallah theater, used one of the Goldwyn yellow sheet exploitation supplement ideas to exploit "Three Wise Fools." He arranged with a drug store, near the theater, to place in the window a large card 40 x 60 inches, reproducing on it the block numbers that must be added together in such a way as to total twenty-one. Those who were interested in the puzzle went inside and got smaller cards, which were taken home to figure on. Prizes of tickets to see the picture were offered for the correct solutions.

A thousand letters were sent out to prominent residents and to all the officers at the Army Post telling them of the showing. Fifty window cards were used in prominent stores and the lobby was decorated with posters and stills.

Big Stores Use Doll Angle

Cleveland—Two large department stores in Ohio have pledged their cooperation on Century Comedies in which Baby Peggy appears.

One of them is the May Company of Cleveland, considered one of the largest department stores in the country. After purchasing several hundred dozen Baby Peggy Dolls they began immediately on window tieups, newspaper spreads, etc., in connection with theaters running Baby Peggy comedies.

In Akron, the M. O'Neill Co. also has pledged cooperation in connection with the dolls and Baby Peggy comedies.

Effective Surt for "Drivin' Fool"

Olympia, Wash.—Through the efforts of R. C. Hill, of Hodkinson, and the manager of the Rex theater, a tie-up was arranged with the State Highway Safety Club.

When "The Drivin' Fool" played the Rex, the club showed stills made from actual photographs of wrecks that resulted from careless driving. Dodgers were distributed telling the public to "see what happens to a 'Drivin' Fool' at the Rex theater—then join the Washington State Highway Safety Club."

Extensive Campaign for This

St. Louis—An extensive exploitation campaign marked the opening of "The Drivin' Fool" for a two weeks' run at the Rivoli theater. The campaign was along the lines laid out in the Hodkinson press and exploitation book.

More than 300 sets of pictorial window displays were put out covering every transfer point. These news pictures showed the folly and results of reckless and careless driving. 500 "Crossing Warnings" were used along every main thoroughfare and most of the important street intersections. In addition, upwards of 5000 of the automobile wind shield stickers were distributed among motorists. A business bringing newspaper campaign was conducted, a system of rotating advertising being used, with large copy in two different papers, alternately, each day.

Ye TOWNE GOSSIP

Copyright, 1923, by Star Company.

By K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.: I'm working for a corporation that is trying to make the world safe for pedestrians. That is, I was. I made up a sticker that said: "Half of the road is yours; stick to it—don't be a drivin' fool." I talked the corporation into printing it and I had a fellow go around to motorists in my town, and many of them put the sticker on their windshields.

And then one of these birds played a dirty trick on me. My boss happened up in Yonkers and was knocked nearly cuckoo by a car that was on the wrong side of the road. That wasn't so bad, but one of my stickers was on the windshield. Friend boss was indignant and told me the sticker idea was punk. One word led to another and I was canned.

Is there really any use trying to do things for other people, or should a fellow be like the driver who bumped the boss?

RALPH F. STITT.

MY DEAR Ralph.

THINK your boss WAS PERFECTLY right.

WHEN HE fired you. FOR THERE he was.

ON HIS side of the road.

OBSERVING THE rules.

AND THIS other car, WAS COMING along.

AND HE saw the sign, WITH ITS advice.

THAT HALF of the road.

BELONGED TO him.

AND TO stick to it.

AND SO he did.

AND THE other fellow.

HAD THE same idea.

AND JUST didn't know.

WHICH WAS his side.

AND YOUR boss got bumped.

WHICH GOES to prove.

YOUR ADVICE was wrong.

FOR THE real wise fellow.

ON ANY road.

IS THE one who knows.

THAT IT'S sometimes safer.

AND SOMETIMES better.

FOR ALL concerned.

IF ONCE in a while.

HE'LL FORGET his rights.

YOUR STICKERS are wrong.

AND IF I were you.

I'D WASH 'em all off.

I THANK you

These are the stickers that compel attention

Wants New Receiver

Wants Waters Removed From Triangle Management—Charges Against F. E. Kahn

Hearing will be heard tomorrow in Federal Court on a motion by Roy E. Aitken, a stockholder of Triangle, to have Percy L. Kahn removed as receiver. Aitken is named in the motion by Triumphes Corp., creditor and owner of a quarter of the stock.

The motion charges Felix E. Kahn with motives of destruction and Waters, under the control of Felix Kahn, a director of Famous Players-Corp., and owner of very large interests therein, and under the ad-

Mr. Early, who is now, or was until attorney for the receiver, has been in a quiet and private liquidation of Triangle Corporation for several years.

Kahn holds voting control and no other has been listened to in regard to management. The company has been and has been kept moribund; no one is allowed to refinance the corporation if it going again.

Kahn, whose creatures the directors are, has no substantial interests. He has an interest and ample motive in the destruction of Triangle and complete elimination from the moving picture field. He has prevented the Triangle Corp. from operating in the motion picture field and its assets have, under his management, been sacrificed to procure to pay debts with."

Kahn denies all of the allegations. He states that although he is a trustee, he is not a stockholder and is only trying to liquidate the assets of the company in the best interests of the stockholders, of which the largest is Aitken.

The following significant paragraph is in the papers:

"The collusion in the filing of these proceedings was not known to the Court, nor the relationship of Mr. Kahn to the affairs of this company, nor was it made known that an asset of this estate of considerable potential value is a cause of action which the corporation has against the Famous Players-Lasky Corp. under the Sherman Law."

Die Higley, of Higley, Sherman and Booth, attorneys for the Aitkens, refused to comment on it. An effort was made to reach the Aitkens at Tri-Stone

Trade Commission May Go to 'Frisco and Seattle Before Government Rests its Case

The Federal Trade Commission will resume its investigation into the affairs of Famous Players in Los Angeles, on Nov. 8th, it was learned yesterday. Further sessions may be held in San Francisco and Seattle before the Government rests its case.

Ralph A. Kohn, of Famous Players, who has been sitting with Robert T. Swain, chief counsel for Paramount in the Government case, will leave for the coast in a few days in order to be on hand when the hearing reopens there.

Kaufman In Charge

To Manage Coast Theaters for Famous Players—Grauman to Enter Production Later On

Al Kaufman, formerly general manager of the European Film Alliance, the quondam Paramount producing unit in Germany and lately business manager for the Tom Meighan unit, is now in Los Angeles, where he will assume management of the Rialto, the Millicen Dollar and the Metropolitan theaters, in which Famous Players has purchased the interest of Sid Grauman. The deal with Grauman gave him for his fifty per cent interest in the houses about 11,000 shares of Famous Players common.

Grauman intends building a theater in Long Beach and a residential house in Hollywood where he will, of course, continue the operation of the Egyptian theater. Outside of that, he intends entering production and devoting a good deal of his time in order to see how much money he can amass in real estate operations.

Stars The Evil

And Not Exhibitor Combinations, Maintains Billy Brandt—Make Cuts There, He Says

Billy Brandt came to the defense of the exhibitor at large yesterday in a statement in which he asserted that producers experienced trouble in getting their costs back, not because of exhibitor combinations throughout the country, but because stars' and leading players' salaries were out of all reason.

Brandt declared that at the Fredman lunch last Friday, much stress was placed on the exhibitor and what he was doing to make things miserable for the producer and asserted that prices and terms were not dictated by the exhibitor, despite statements to the contrary. In part he said:

"It is impossible for the exhibitors to accede to the requests of the producers, with the result that the producers have found themselves burdened with expensive productions which they can not sell to the exhibitor in accordance with their cost. In my opinion, the greatest portion of the expense going into the production of a motion picture today is the salaries of the stars, directors and supporting cast. These salaries are clearly out of proportion to the services rendered in similar professions, and should be readjusted immediately.

No Decision on Stock Issue

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—Decision in the case of the Market-Circle Realty Co., which has petitioned to issue $600,000 in preferred stock to finance a new theater on the English Hotel site, has been taken under advisement by the State Securities Commission, following a hearing of arguments. The M. P. T. O., of Indiana, is protesting the issue, which is backed by Famous Players-Lasky. Attorneys are to file additional briefs, it was said.

It is alleged that Famous cannot provide adequate financial guarantee for the preferred stock. Payment of dividends on the preferred stock before the building begins to provide sufficient returns to meet the payments is one of the issues.

Stars The Evil

"With these tremendous salaries paid to stars, directors and supporting casts, the average picture is boosted way above its normal cost, necessitating a corresponding increase in exhibition value, with a corresponding increase in film rentals which the exhibitor can not assimilate, so that the entire matter backwashes to the producer.

"My experience in appearing before legislative committees on the question of advocating more favorable laws in the matter of taxation for the smaller exhibitor, of whom over eighty percent are represented in this industry, has been that the legislature immediately points to the enormous salaries which the industry is paying to its stars, and declines the relief prayed for. An immediate adjustment must come, and that at once."

Julius Bernheim in New York

Julius Bernheim, director general of Universal City, is in New York on his way to the bed-side of his mother in Laupheim, Germany. He will sail for Europe today. Mrs. Bernheim has been sick for several months.

Concerning the activities at Universal City, Bernheim asserts that Universal is far better off as regards the 1923-1924 product, than ever before at this time of the year. It will be possible to cut production to a minimum during the rainy season, as a result, it is Bernheim's opinion.

Monogram Has Seven Ready

Tom North of Monogram Pictures stated yesterday that his organization should be included among those that would have pictures ready for November-December release. Monogram has six with Fred Thomson and "The Whipping Boss," a seventh made by Beverly Prod. on the coast. The Thomson series includes "The Mask of Lopez," "North of Nevada," "Shadows of the Sage," "The Sheriff of Tombstone," "Riders of the Rio Grande," and "The Desert Ranch."

"George Ade wrote 'Woman-Proof' and Thomas Meighan plays the star part. The answer at the Rivoli was a line that stretched into 49th St. when the fire department rules stopped the sale of tickets several times. There never was a line-up less than four deep behind the orchestra rail."

—Times Square Daily.

"A picture of charm, humor and emphatic entertainment value. Funnier and a more skillful production than 'Back Home and Broke.'" —N. Y. Herald.

"Good entertainment. The star and supporting cast do excellent work. Simplicity and naturalness are the picture's chief charms."

—N. Y. Tribune

"A thoroughly enjoyable motion picture comedy. Light, original and amusing. Acted flawlessly."

How Films Cut In

William A. Brady Explains Their Effect on the "Legit" Attractions in the "Sticks"

"Producing plays these days is not so attractive a game as it used to be," says Wm. A. Brady in the Sunday World. He speaks of increased operating expenses and adds:

"Then the enormous growth of motion pictures does not help any. There was a time when many grew rich playing the 'one-nighters.' That is a thing of the past. Today it is almost an impossibility to secure consecutive bookings in the small town circuits. There are not enough traveling shows that can play to enough to pay expenses, and so the little managers of 'the tanks,' as they used to call them, are content to get their shows in tin cans, and depend on their projecting machines and operators for their entertainment.

"You must have noticed how lavishly the movie theater and the successful picture manager advertises. Well, he can afford it. After he has paid the rental of his subject and his orchestra, he can afford to plunge into publicity, where we who follow with living actors and the other necessities that go with them, must pause and reflect about the size of our advertising bills. Then it is very hard to gauge the public taste these days."

Griffin Supports Rowland
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Oakland, Cal.—C. C. Griffin, in commenting on R. A. Rowland's slam at high negative costs and the gross of pictures says:

"I have been reading Dick Rowland's article and also replies to same and wish to say that they are the most sensible of any that I have ever read from any producer or distributor. Knowing Rowland as I do, I am not surprised that he has the courage to state his opinion, and I hope that the interest created by his statement will not be allowed to die such as many other good movements have in the past."

Stanley Co. Makes Some Changes
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Philadelphia—Charles Cherry, who managed one of the Stanley houses in Baltimore has been transferred as resident manager to the Aldine. Charles Hetzell, assistant manager under Cherry, is now manager of the Victoria. Joe Battersby has succeeded Leonard Wilson as resident manager at the Stanton. Harry Allen, assistant at the Broadway is now filling similar position at the Alhambra. George Sobel is in charge of 333 Market Street, succeeding Charles McConnell, resigned.

T. & D., Jr. Buy Lincoln, Oakland
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Oakland, Cal.—The T. & D., Jr., Circuit has taken over the Lincoln from Allen E. King. The T. & D., Jr., interests took over King's Palace not long ago. King formerly controlled four houses here, but now has two.

"The School for Scandal"

We wish to thank our many distributor friends who so kindly have inquired regarding "The School for Scandal."

The Richard Brinsley Sheridan masterpiece will be previewed by the Columbia University Alumni Reunion at the Columbia University Club Thursday evening, Nov. 8, at the special invitation of Mr. George Sidney Hellman, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, and other prominent and distinguished alumni.

It will be impossible, therefore, to screen this subject—now in the final stages of editorial work—before November 9.

Mr. Hellman has been kind enough to allot us a limited number of invitations available to a few officials of distributing organizations desirous of seeing "The School for Scandal" before the most critical audience possible to assemble in the city of New York.

Requests for these must be in our hands by Saturday, Nov. 3.

The third and fourth of "LUXOR'S 15" pictures to be presented during the forthcoming season also will be ready for general viewing on November 9. They are "THE SLAVEWOMAN," made in India, France and the Alps, and George Eliot's "DANIEL DERONDA."

Loew Profits Larger

7,617 More Than 1922—Total for Year Ending Aug. 31 Reaches $2,415,488

Net profits of Loew's, Inc., and subsidiary companies owned 100 per cent for the fiscal year ending Aug. 31, totaled $2,415,488, an increase of $7,617 over 1922 and an increase of $4,938 over the profits for 1921. The annual meeting has been called for Nov. 15.

The list of officers carries no new names with the exception of that of David Warfield, who became a director when Charles E. Danforth died. The total assets of the companies placed at $39,520,024 as compared with $35,596,353 in 1922. One of the most striking items is that covering advances to producers which total $84,261 in the current statement, compared with $348,870 in last year's report.

The items listed under liabilities indicate that the company is in better financial condition. Accounts payable as of Aug. 31st total $926,145 as compared with $1,113,270 last year; notes payable now total $226,250 as compared with $374,180 in 1922; while loans to banks totaling $300,000 in 1923 do not appear in the current statement.

Giannini Dines Schenck

H. Giannini, of the Bank of Italy and the Commercial Trust Co., gave Joseph Schenck a dinner last night, prior to the latter's departure for the coast today. A number of well-known film men attended.

Dinner for Reichenbach

A testimonial dinner is being arranged by a number of friends of Harry Reichenbach, to be held at the Crystal Room of the Ritz on Wednesday evening, Nov. 28. The committee in charge will include many of the best known people of the industry. Roxy has agreed to act as treasurer and Billy Brandt, president of the New York M. P. T. O., will act as chairman.

Reichenbach's friends feel that he has done so much to make various parties and social gatherings in the industry a success that it is about time that he was allowed to attend a dinner where he did not have to act as toastmaster.

A number of unusual stunts and surprises are being prepared for the program, and there will be but 250 tickets issued to prevent overcrowding in the Crystal Room.

Hays Has Plan

T. O. C. C. Expected "Enemies" Decision Yesterday—Couldn't Get to Meeting, However

The T. O. C. C. yesterday expected Will H. Hays to attend its meeting in person to go over the "Enemies of Women" situation. While the meeting was in progress, however, Charles L. O'Reilly received a telephone message telling of Hays' inability to get to the meeting.

It is understood, that, as a result of conferences with the Hearst organization, a plan has been evolved that will settle the "Enemies" matter amicably. It is expected the details will be presented to the T. O. C. C. shortly, possibly tomorrow.

"Rosita" Makes Record

It is understood that "Rosita" grossed $12,470 at the Capitol on Sunday, thereby establishing a new Sunday record at that house. The previous high figure was reached by "Robin Hood" but the "Rosita" total tops it by over $800.

Kann Forms Company

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—The George E. Kann Corp. of New York was formed here yesterday, listing 900 shares of common stock, no par value. B. F. Kraft is the attorney.

Kann resigns as foreign manager for Goldwyn tomorrow. He intends operating in the export field, in particular, but will not confine his activities to that branch of the business.

Confer With Zukor

Olsen and Lieber Talk Over Indianapolis Theater Project—Famous Going Ahead

Robert Lieber and Charles Olsen, both prominent in Indianapolis exhibiting circles, conferred with Adolph Zukor and Harold B. Franklin yesterday relative to the proposed Famous theater to occupy the site of the English Hotel there.

There has been some opposition raised in Indianapolis and, as a matter of fact, the M. P. T. O. of Indiana, as noted, has filed protests with the State Securities Commission against the flotation of the bond issue to float the project on the ground that Famous could not supply sufficient financial guarantees.

Famous wants to assure for itself an outlet for its product in Indianapolis. If it is necessary to construct a theater in order to secure that assurance, the company fully intends doing so.

Outlook Dubious for Repeal of Admission Tax, Say Politicians

Huge Figures Quoted Regarding Star Salaries and Other "Millions" Among Reasons—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator Smoot Have Their Own Ideas—Smoot's Antipathy Natural

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—If the leaders of the movement looking to the repeal of the admission tax from the Government budget have any optimistic ideas as to the likelihood of this tax being removed from the books they had better take the first train to Washington and have a few words with some of the Administration leaders.

At this writing the possibility of the tax being removed is slight—very slight indeed—if what Administration leaders say has anything behind it. Naturally, these men will not be quoted. But they point out that several moves have been made that make the going difficult, so far as removing the tax is concerned.

There are but two men whose word counts on any problem affecting the revenues of this country—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator Reed Smoot, Chairman of the Finance Committee. And neither of these men is very much interested in repealing the tax. Mellon is interested only in the budget. Smoot, who, for reasons best known to certain film folk, has no particular interest in pictures or picture people, steered Sydney Cohen to the idea that if the Soldiers' Bonus bill was killed there might be some hope for the repeal of the admission tax. Those politicians favoring the defeat of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill would like to see the picture people take up this idea—they need propaganda in an effort to try to kill off the passage of this measure.

Several Bills in Sight

It is reported that several bills are now in the hands of Congressmen who are awaiting the right moment to file them. But it is said that these

Sound Keynote

For New Exhibitor Organization in Washington—Southern States at Meeting There

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The keynote of a new organization was sounded here yesterday when exhibitors from Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, Texas and District of Columbia held a meeting at the Arlington Hotel.

Declaring that the present exhibitor organization was not functioning, Jake Wells of Richmond again put forth his plan for a national council of 26 exhibitors, amply financed and backed by a well organized Washington office. Wells charged that exhibitors all over the country are disgusted with the methods of the existing body.

Plans Three New Stages

Cosmopolitan will build two new stages at its Harlem plant and on an unannounced site in New York will erect another studio. All future Cosmopolitan Prod. will be made in New York.

bills are drawn in such a manner as to take the tax off admissions of all kinds. In other words the tax would be removed from grand opera tickets, fight tickets at $35, and all amusements. Yet there was reported to be an understanding that when the bill was filed it was intended only to affect admissions of 25 cents and under. One of these bills is in the hands of a Pennsylvania Congressman.

Sound Keynote

Harry M. Crandall of Washington and Samuel Boyd of the Crandall theaters were elected chairman and secretary respectively of the meeting. Crandall criticized the present system under which national organizations operate, declaring that the time of conventions is largely taken up by electioneering and the airing of personal grievances to the slighting of exhibitor problems.

Col. H. A. Cole, of Marshall, Tex. and president of the Texas unit advocated the formation of a new organization that would bring about results in the repeal of the admission tax. He said he failed to see where the present organization had secured results.

The cry of the meeting was "Get away from politics and inactivity."

Nov.-Dec Releases Total 79

Since the publication on Monday of the approximate number of November-December releases, the total has been advanced to 79. Sixty-three titles were included in the first list; Monogram listed even more, and yesterday John S. Woody said Associated Exhibitors, Inc., would have four during that period. These will be "Going Up," and "The Yankee Consul," with Douglas MacLean; Mabel Normand in the "The Extra Girl" and "The Courtship of Myles Standish." Early in the new year there will be a new Lloyd picture, tentatively called "The Girl Expert" and "Souvenir," a Halperin Prod.

You Gave Us the Slogan We Gave You the Goods!

You—the exhibitors—are responsible for the slogan “Universal has the pictures.” You passed the story around among yourselves. It spread like lightning from coast to coast and from north to south.

You advertised us more than we ever advertised ourselves. Your word-of-mouth praise of the Universal product shot out with the speed of radio, and, like the radio, it spread in every direction.

You gave us the slogan “Universal has the pictures.”

So it was up to us to give you the pictures! WHICH WE DID!

First we gave you Merry-go-Round, which has brought more joy to the exhibitors' hearts and more profits to their purses than they have enjoyed for many a moon. Rupert Julian's great work, uncovering to the world the star caliber of Mary Philbin and Norman Kerry, is still going lickety-split and tearing records to pieces everywhere.

Again you said “Universal has the pictures” and we came right back at you with William A. Brady's great story of Drifting, with Priscilla Dean in the lead. The reviews on this picture have been nothing short of remarkable.

So you repeated the slogan “Universal has the pictures” and we replied with Thundering Dawn, directed by Harry Garson and starring Warren J. Kerrigan and Anna Q. Nilsson—a thundering good picture with a thundering big climax!

But that's not a drop in the bucket!

We are simply going to knock your eye out—in fact six of your eyes—with the next six pictures. If you have said “Universal has the pictures” up to now, you will sell it from the roof of your theatre after you have seen the next six!

The Acquittal comes soon! Heavens, what a picture! That's eye No. One. Then baby Peggy in her first big feature picture, The Darling of New York. There goes another eye! Then Priscilla Dean with a whale of a cast in White Tiger. Then Reginald Denny in the best racing story ever screened. No title selected yet. Then Virginia Valli in A Lady of Quality! A Hobart Henley production that will perfectly ruin another eye or two. And then Mary Philbin again in My Mamie Rose, which will make her work in Merry-go-Round pale into insignificance by comparison!

When you gave us a slogan you put us on our mettle. You gave us a tough one to live up to.

But the job is done.

You gave us the slogan and we're giving you the goods!

Need For Drama

World's Critic Says "Quackery" Stories Must Be Discarded for Real Material

Quinn Martin, photoplay critic of the Morning World, says the most vital need of the business is real story material. In this connection, he says:

"What we mean to say is that if the motion picture industry really wishes to be accepted seriously as a medium of dramatic expression, it ought to put an end to filming stories that are full of holes and quackery. It ought—and it must, if it is to go forward with the times—to go out in search of real dramas, by real playwrights with real thought in them. Then back up these stories with convincing and manifestly faithful and honest backgrounds for atmospheric effect. A combination of such a play, for example, as 'The Dancers,' along with a set of Canadian Northwest exteriors, such as those shown in 'Unseeing Eyes' would at once command the respect of the entire picture-going public, which ranges well up into the millions daily. And it would convert a great many of the present day scoffers, who attend pictures only when they can slip away alone without any of their friends seeing them."

Minneapolis—Tom Kress, who has been laid up with the "flu" for some time is again back selling for F. B. O.

Newspaper Opinions

"Woman Proof"—F. P.-L. Rivoli

AMERICAN—* * * and he (George Ade), has assumed that picture audiences like the old stuff, with the old ideas, and the old types and the old ending. * * * The story was quite long, and quite stupid, and how it was carried through so many reels was extraordinary.

DAILY NEWS—Tommy Meighan does what is required, with his usual naturalness and sideway smile, but we've seen him do lots more. Well, it's all in the picture, we guess.

EVENING JOURNAL—The picture follows the path of least resistance, having a plot of the add-hot-water-and-serve variety. This is really too bad when it is considered that almost every one who follows the screen has something pleasant to say about Mr. Meighan.

EVENING WORLD—Always a strong friend to Tom Meighan, we couldn't help liking "Woman Proof." * * *

Ade and Meighan is a combination hard to beat; and Ade, aside from writing the story, titled the picture and has done a good job of it.

HERALD—Without carrying any surplus weight, it manages to move along at a brisk gait and to maintain a convincing semblance of cheerfulness throughout its journey across the screen. * * *

The result is a picture of charm, humor and emphatic entertainment value. It is funnier and a more skillful production than "Our Leading Citizen" and "Back Home and Broke" * * * and they were both highly worthy.

MAIL—George Ade has written a thoroughly delightful fable for the movies called "Woman Proof." * * *

"Woman Proof" is old in theme but fresh in treatment. It is told in a simple, straightforward manner, with many laughs interspersed and a thrill here and there thrown in the bargain. The captions are well written and the photography satisfactory.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * a light, but amusing, comedy by George Ade. * * * The film is just a trifle longer than it might be and there are visible signs of "padding" to draw out the story, but despite these minor faults, the picture is entertaining and well acted.

Thomas Meighan gives an easy and unstudied performance.

SUN—Thomas Meighan appears in an affable little movie called "Woman Proof" * * * it is the sort of genuine entertainment they are looking for, and while there is nothing wildly exciting about it, the screen comedy leaves the beholder with a glowing sense that he has just met somebody who is right kindly and neighborly. It has the same soothing, chuckling effect as the average Ade film. * * *

Every new photoplay which carries the names of Meighan and Ade takes on an added significance.

TRIBUNE—* * * Al Green directed this picture and simplicity and naturalness are its chief charms. There is not much plot, but the proof of the story is in the screening and every inch of it is interesting. * * *

George Ade has handled the situations with extreme humor and delicacy. The star and the supporting cast do excellent work. "Woman Proof" is good entertainment.

WORLD—* * * Light, original, amusing and never too serious. Indeed, "Woman Proof" is an entertaining story, acted flawlessly, without a solitary attempt either to stop and teach a lesson or to sidetrack and put on a fashion show. Both Mr. Meighan and Mr. Ade know the difference between an orchid and a head of cabbage, and this helps a lot.

Van Cleve Back

Assumes Former Duties as "G. M." of Cosmopolitan—Vignola Reported Out

George B. Van Cleve, former general manager of Cosmopolitan Prod., has again taken over that post, succeeding H. O. Davis, who was originally scheduled to remain at the studio for five weeks before going to Seattle to manage a newly acquired Hearst newspaper.

It was reported yesterday further re-arrangement had been made at the studio and that thirty employees had been discharged. It was likewise reported that Robert G. Vignola, who has just completed "Mary of Burgundy," was through with the company, and that he would make his own productions. Lynn F. Reynolds is understood to have joined the company as one of the directors who will make "Janice Meredith," the new movies picture. This production will be made on a large scale and, according to studio gossip, will be put in sections with Reynolds in charge of one and other directors responsible for their particular assignment.

No one at Cosmopolitan could be reached yesterday for confirmation. Vignola was reported out on location.

Fredman Guest of A. M. P. A.

Ernest W. Fredman, of London, will be a guest of the A. M. P. A. at their luncheon today. Henry Macrae, who recently returned from an extended trip in Siam where he produced "Suwan of Siam," will be one of the speakers.

M. P. Exhibitors' Alliance Formed; Council for Washington Zone Named

To Operate Under Jake Wells' Plan—Existing National Organization Condemned as Incapable and Inefficient—Fight to Remove Admission Tax

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Washington—The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Alliance was formed here yesterday at the closing session of Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Michigan and Texas exhibitors. It will operate under the Wells' plan of organizing the country according to recognized film zones with a direct representation in Washington and adequately equipped offices here.

The Washington zone will include Maryland, Virginia and the District. An executive council with three members representing each state unit will be drawn up.

Tentatively and until a permanent council can be selected Frank Durkee and Lou Rome will represent Maryland; E. T. Crall and Jake Wells, Virginia and Harry M. Crandall and Maurice Davis, the District of Columbia.

The Washington zone adopted a resolution opposing the practice of distributors placing features in any but picture theaters. A second resolution protesting the extreme length of features was also passed.

Admission and seating taxes were also discussed and methods of bringing about their repeal gone into. The new organization will also seek an amendment to the copyright law so that the music tax will be removed.

The criticism of the M. P. T. O. A., which began with the speeches of Harry M. Crandall, of Washington, and Jake Wells, of Richmond, Va., was carried in the speeches of other exhibitors attending the convention. The principles governing

Court to Appoint Trustee

Judge Learned Hand in the Federal Court yesterday denied without prejudice to another application, the motion filed by the Aitkens to remove Percy L. Waters as receiver for Triangle and extend the receivership to the subsidiary companies on the ground that, inasmuch as a disinterested trustee would be appointed by the Court, there would be no necessity for removing Waters. The opposition to him is understood to have been made only because he was so long and so closely identified with the affairs of the company.

Alliance Formed

the operation of the association were roundly scored, not only by Colonel H. A. Cole, of Marshall, Texas, but by Judge Alfred J. Murphy, legal counsel of the Michigan M. P. T. O. as well.

They declared that the national association has overlooked all opportunities to properly organize exhibitors, and that there is great need for a strong organization to combat hurtful legislation, and to bring about the repeal of the existing war taxes levied. They declared that the neglect of the national officers has been "shameful," and Colonel Cole said he had been unable to find that the association has done anything helpful. A previous speaker had given credit to the national association for the repeal of the rental tax, but Judge Murphy said that if that speaker knew the inside facts concerning the repeal he would not have made that assertion.

Judge Murphy referred to what he termed the unwise tactics of the present national officers in announcing that an entire State congressional delegation had been pledged to the repeal of the admission taxes, members of the delegation later repudiating the assertion and declaring that their votes could not so be delivered. He related how Michigan had seceded from the national organization, and he referred to what he termed high-handed methods used in connection with bringing about the national election in Washington.

President Max Bryant, of the South Carolina association, pledged the cooperation of his State, adding that he also was authorized to speak similarly for North Carolina.

President Frank Durkee, of the Maryland league, spoke on behalf of the M. P. T. O. A., and for Sydney S. Cohen, expressing the belief that much of the trouble complained of is due to the lack of cooperation on the part of the State units. He was answered by Jake Wells, who said that the lack of cooperation was brought about by the growing indifference of the exhibitors for the national organization because of its lack of accomplishments. President E. T. Crall, of the Virginia association, pledged cooperation in a move for the formation of a "do-something" organization to be national in its scope.

There was some disinclination on the part of some of those present to enter into criticisms of the national association, and some of its adherents were willing to admit that it could accomplish more if its tactics were changed and if there were less political activity.

Legislative Fight

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Rochester, N. Y.—The board of directors of the M. P. T. O. meet at the Seneca Hotel yesterday to discuss legislative matters as they effect motion pictures. The next meeting of the board will be held in Washington, in December, while Congress is in session, and from this meeting a national legislative committee will be evolved with headquarters in Washington during the entire session of Congress.

The particular work of the committee will be to bring about a repeal of the admission and of the seating taxes and to prevent the passage of legislation inimical to the business.

The officers and directors of the M. P. T. O. feel that this plan will offer a line of protection to theaters not heretofore attained in the industry.

Aside from local theater owners, the meeting was attended by Sydney S. Cohen, New York; Harry Davis, Pittsburgh; C. E. Whitehurst, Baltimore; R. F. Woodhull, Dover, N. J.; John Schwalem, Hamilton, O.; Ernest Horstman, Boston; Sam Bullock, Cleveland; M. J. O'Toole, Scranton, Pa.; William Bender, Indianapolis; George F. Aarons, Philadelphia and E. M. Fay, Providence.

Willard Repudiated

Extravagant Claims for Cosmos Art Squashed by J. E. Bowen—"Too Enthusiastic," He Says
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Minneapolis—The extravagant claims made by Frank M. Willard, the organization's studio manager, when in Minneapolis several weeks ago, have been repudiated by J. E. Bowen, president of Cosmos Art Pictures Association, and Willard recalled, the company head said this week in a letter to Greater Amusements.

Overenthusiasm was ascribed by Bowen as the cause for Willard's statements, in which the latter declared, among other things, that the association, for a $10 membership fee practically would eliminate all the worries of the exhibitor through the reduction of film rentals, alleviation of the burden of financing and in other ways make the life of the theater owner a happy and contented one. Already, he said, the association boasts 14,000 exhibitor members. In addition, Willard claimed that contracts had been closed for the distribution by Cosmos Art of Harold Lloyd, William S. Hart and Charles Ray pictures, which claims have been branded as false. Willard was dismissed as soon as news of his "wild" assertions was received by the company, Bowen declared.

While Charles Ray and Bowen have entered into a large real estate and building program, it in no way has anything to do with Cosmos Art or the release of Ray's pictures, Bowen made clear. Neither has the organization the 14,000 membership Willard claimed. Bowen, president, said, adding that the number represents a goal toward which the association, "progressing rapidly" is working.

When he reached New York some weeks ago and declared his company would handle the Harold Lloyd product, Willard found himself in a tilt with John C. Ragland, Lloyd's Eastern representative, who questioned him about the authenticity of the statement. Willard later said he was misunderstood.

Race Film in Legal Tilt

Advice received yesterday from London states that Pathe seeks an injunction against Fox from showing pictures of the recent Papyrus-Zeyturf classic. Justice Astbury, sitting in the Chancery Court is hearing the case, and, relative to this states that pictures taken from the air are legitimate.

On the Coast, a change has been made in the management of the Globe at Vancouver. J. H. Allen has gone to Calgary, where he has joined his brother, H. J. Allen, in the handling of Preferred and numerous British-made productions at Dominion Films, Ltd., the new exchange established by the Allens. The new manager of the Vancouver is Hugh W. Wallace.

J. J. Allen, representing Dominion, is now in England, where he is looking over new releases. The Allens are making good headway with the 24 British picture which they secured for distribution.

Ince Going Right Ahead

The production schedule for 1923-24 at the Thos. H. Ince studio will continue just as it was planned months ago, according to the producer. The problem of readjustment which has caused a temporary shut-down of some of the studios was foreseen, it is said, and dealt with by Ince almost a year ago.

Plans Three Units

J. J. Goldberg Signs Franklynnum—To Build a Studio in Hollywood

Jesse J. Goldberg, president of dependent Pictures returned from coast yesterday with a batch of plans. He has signed Franklynnum to star in a series of westerns; he plans two units to special features and will erect a company studio on Sunset Blvd. Gower St., Hollywood.

Goldberg expects to remain only ten days and will then return to the coast with his family to start his new pictures. The Franklynnum of eight and four specials from other units will give him eight pictures for state right release. He stated yesterday that the Franklynnum group had already been sold for eighty per cent of the United States.

In conjunction with the studio will be a building to house Goldbur's Western distribution headquarters. The Los Angeles office will handle sales as far East as Denver and New York office as far West as San Francisco. Agnes Parsons of Palmer School will be Goldbur's scenario chief and in association with Joe Farnham.

While in the West, Goldbur secured for distribution "A Prince A Night," with Robert Gordon; "Offenders" with Margery Wilson; "What Three Men Wanted" starring Miss Du Pont.

Newspaper Opinions

"The Common Law"—Selznick
Strand

AMERICAN—There are all the hectic situations and sets demanded by an audience who want to see Bohemian life as they think it is; there are lovely women, brave artists, bright lights and lovely close-ups of Corinne.

DAILY NEWS * * * a cast superb— as superb as we have ever seen in a screen production of a well known story by a popular author. And this superb cast serves somewhat to make this usual story a trifle unusual.

EVENING WORLD—We never cared so much for "The Common Law," when Robert W. Chambers issued it as a novel, and this feeling is in no wise changed after looking upon the Selznick film.

HERALD—"The Common Law," is a good picture. Its chief value lies in the throbbing quality of the love it unfolds.

The production is lavish; indeed, it is frequently over-elaborate, the hugeness and crowded details of certain sets making it necessary for the spectator to look carefully for the players.

MAIL. It is difficult to condemn this picture because so many women will like it. They will revel in its artificial sentimentalism.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—Good photography and an effort on the part of Selznick to provide a harmonious setting characterize the film. The producers have evidently gone to great expense to reproduce New York in its gala dress ushering in the New Year.

SUN—* * * an expensive, shiny motion picture—a picture just bristling with stars, with lavish settings and exposures of Corinne Griffith's back. To say that it is cheap stuff is undoubtedly the right sort of criticism, but we are forced to admit that we sat interestedly through it. It never bored us for an instant.

TELEGRAM—* * * one of the most important photodramatic gems seen on Broadway in the past two months.

TIMES—Three artists, a model, who is unusually good looking; a studio building and a family opposed to taking models into society, are liable to make any film entertaining. But when you have Corinne Griffith there is added interest in the film.

Here and there this production is a little coarse, and in a storm scene, * * * Corinne

Griffith has a very pleasing personality on the screen, and she sincerely attempts to look as if she were interested in the narrative.

TRIBUNE—A long time ago Robert W. Chambers wrote a novel called "The Common Law." At that time it seemed to us a dull and a preposterous story and our views have not changed in the least, only we never realized quite how dull until we saw it in its screen form at the Strand yesterday.

WORLD—"The Common Law," made and exhibited by Myron Selznick, is one of those films whose chief intent is to be daring in their reference to morality and sex, yet which succeed above all else in being vulgar and dull.

"The Drivin' Fool"—Hodkinson
Cameo

AMERICAN—It is the fastest film seen on Broadway this season. From the first flicker, every scene is cut and trimmed as closely as possible without destroying the continuity of the plot. The result is a realistic effect of breathlessness, quite in keeping with the title and the spirit of the story.

EVENING JOURNAL—"The Drivin' Fool," * * * is one of those high-speed, joyous farces that coax the spectator into settling comfortably into his seat to laugh his heartiest. It does not attempt to be reasonable in all of its incidents and it is not especially romantic, but who cares, as it is so downright funny?

EVENING WORLD—It is rather an enjoyable picture and seemed to please the Cameo patrons.

SUN—* * * moderately satisfactory entertainment.

TIMES—To those who delight in speeding automobiles, with agreeable suspense, plenty of fair comedy, in spite of impossible incidents, "The Drivin' Fool," with Wally Van, will prove entertaining.

TRIBUNE—"The Drivin' Fool," is not a 1923 model, for the plot has seen long service, but it is a good model and usually may be relied on. In spite of its familiarity we enjoyed "The Drivin' Fool."

WORLD—"The Drivin' Fool," is superficially entertaining chiefly because it makes no pretense of being anything else. It is rapid, care-free, utterly unimportant. There are stretches of suspense, trifles of comedy, intervals of horrible impossibility.

"BEN HUR"

By DANNY

most engrossing topic at Goldwyn lot in Culver June Mathis seems set to her dream come true. been living, sleeping, singing and working on "Ben Hur" several years," this clever man says, "and I'm hoping on Christmas Day, 1924, the premier of this great picture will occur. That is the most fitted for the release."

Usually the question arises as to effect Cecil De Mille's "Ten Commandments" will have on "Ben Hur." But on the Goldwyn lot they are at the suggestion. And from Mathis and June Mathis down any minute will tell you that there is no connection between these pictures than between "Scarface" and "Orphans of the Storm." Although both of the latter were made in the period of the French Revolution.

There is an axiom in the picture business that no company really a great company until it produces an unusually great picture. "The Four Horsemen" and what it did for Metro is cited as an example. And those who carry the Goldwyn production banner say "Ben Hur" will prove the axiom for Goldwyn.

Naturally there has been much interest in the selection of Charles Brabin as the director for this vast production. The answer is simple. June Mathis and Brabin were work-brother and sister in the old days and Miss Mathis knows Brabin can do. They are keen-sympathetic; the understanding between them on pictures is well balanced. That is why Brabin will do "Ben Hur."

Actual shooting will start in Italy approximately January 1 next. Brabin is now on the coast. Miss Mathis and the rest of the company leave in December.

Off for the Coast

Alphonse Kohn, of Famous Players, left for the coast yesterday. James R. Grainger, of Goldwyn-Napoleon, leaves today.

Saving A Million

Famous Players Salary Roll to be Cut to This Extent—Many in Exchanges Out

In an effort to bring about a saving of a million a year, Famous Players officials have swung the axe broadly during the past week or 10 days. As a result many of the exchanges now show a payroll of less than half of what has been paid out heretofore. The cut reached to salesmen, assistant managers, bookers, examiners and office help.

The New York exchange is undermined by less than 50 per cent; and the same condition exists practically throughout the country.

Reports from Los Angeles yesterday were to the effect that a number of people employed in the studio, including a number of well known scenario writers and others had been let out.

Theater Combine Incorporates

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—The Small-Strauseberg Circuit, of Brooklyn, has been formed here, listing 1800 shares of common stock, no par value. The incorporators are S. Strauseberg and S. and J. H. Small.

Early in October, six Brooklyn theaters were merged in one company. The houses were the Kismet, Sumner, State, Republic, Marcy and Williamsburg. The above company is the corporate name under which the houses will operate.

Brush Deal on With Selznick

William B. Brush is negotiating with Selznick for a series of pictures, the first to be "The Price of A Party," by William MacHarg. Later, Brush will make "Water Babies." Production will be centered at the Ince studio on the coast.

Two New J. and H. Houses?

Valentino Sailing Tomorrow

Cable advices from London state that Rodolph Valentino will sail for New York tomorrow.

"Rosita" Held Over

"Rosita" will be held at the Capitol for a second week.

A. M. P. A. Luncheon

The regular weekly luncheon of the A. M. P. A. yesterday was a big success. Ernest W. Fredman, of The Film Renter, London, made a happy address, and told a good yarn at the expense of Horace Judge, who inaugurated the publicity stunt in England of showing pictures to prison inmates, and Henry MacRae told many interesting things happening while making his picture in Siam. Baby Peggy was introduced and made a hit.

Ten More for Grand-Asher

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Ben Wilson has returned from the East with a contract to make a second series of ten pictures for Grand-Asher.

Elliott Dexter may make a picture in New England with a historical background for Grand-Asher. F. Heath Cobb is back from Boston where he negotiated for the necessary story rights.

Luporini Forms Company

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Albany—Labertini Pictures have been formed here by Ferdinand V. Luporini, A. B. Bellock and M. Kaufman, listing 2,500 shares of preferred stock at $100 each; 1,000 shares, Class A, stock, no par value and 2,500 Class B, no par value.

Luporini until now has been active in the export field, dealing in Italy and of late, in South America.

Many at Loew Ball

At the hour of going to press the first annual Loew-Metro ball was just getting under way at the Astor. Along about midnight, the after-theater crowd swelled the number already dancing and the party then really got under way. Right then and there, a lot of folks decided where they would have breakfast.

Ad Contract Covers Canada

The Continental Screen Service Corp. has closed a contract with the M. P. T. O. of Canada, covering 700 theaters. The exhibitor retains the right to show either an advertising slide or an advertising reel for which Continental pays his dues in the M. P. T. O.

Leases Tilford Plant

Sam Goldwyn has leased the Tilford plant where the next Fitzmaurice picture will be made.

Selling In Blocks

Famous Players Now Reported Selling Four in a Group—Individual Selling Costly

Famous Players has modified its orders to sell pictures individually. A block of four can now be bought at one time. It is understood that this change in selling policy has been brought about first, because of the difficulty encountered in having exhibitors see each picture, and again because the cost of selling individual pictures has proven very costly.

While the sale of the individual picture has worked satisfactorily where the picture was "big" unless the production showed this particular value it has proven difficult.

The demonstration centers are proving of real value over at Famous. Even those members of the sales department who at first opposed the idea, are now in agreement as to its merits. It is pointed out that the salesmen can now go to exhibitors fortified with actual figures of what various of the Paramount pictures have done in important cities near the houses of the men they are selling. The mere fact that Broadway will not be used as a criterion, but that Ohio exhibitors, for example, will be presented with box-office receipts from the pre-demonstration theaters in Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Lima, Sandusky and Zanesville will definitely establish what the picture can be expected to do in their own houses. That the plan will be continued is a certainty.

Cohn Conferring on Coast

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Jack Cohn, of C. B. C., who is now in San Francisco, is due here shortly. He expects to discuss production costs with a number of directors whom he has known since the Imp days in an effort to see if some basis of understanding can't be reached whereby negative costs can be lowered.

Cohn is on the coast relative to C. B. C. production plans any way, but he intends giving directors and actors the New York angle on production costs in the hope that they may see the advisability in cutting salaries.

Beck Filming Chicago Fire

Arthur Beck intends making a picture based on the Chicago fire. Leah Baird will be featured. The release title may be "The Chicago Fire." Associated Exhibitors will release.

Suit Over "Merry-Go-Round"
(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Eric Von Stroheim has filed suit in the Federal Court against Georges Lewys, alleging that he was the author of "Merry-Go-Round." The complaint states that Von Stroheim wrote the story prior to June 23, 1922, and that he disposed of the picture rights in September of that year. Von Stroheim asserts he conversed with Georges Lewys about publication of the novel in book form. He said he delivered a copy of it to her, and that the novel later appeared in book form over her name as her own work. He attacks the validity of the copyright in his plea for an injunction and request for a financial accounting of the sales of the book and the film.

The subterranean views are shown in rich colors, and the colorial decoration is carried through the modern reveals splendidly. The battle in the waves where the story leaps to the peak of its climax is shown with vigorous realism. * * *

DAILY NEWS—Very rarely before have we seen such a gorgeous spectacle; very often before have we seen a similar plot—ordinary and most amusing in serious parts. Director Otto decided to mingle myth and mortals. And we're sure we're crazy about the way he works things out.

EVENING JOURNAL—It is, strictly speaking, neither melodrama, comedy nor fantasy, but it is a bit of all, with mythology, classic dancing, scenic glories and the life of the seal thrown in for good measure. * * * The picture is full of wonderful things, but the most wonderful is how Miss, or perhaps Mrs. Carr ever thought it all out.

HERALD—Many strange celluloid contrivances have emanated from the active studios of William Fox, but none quite so weird or inexplicable. * * * Actually it is a mosaic, composed of all the various qualities that have met with favor in the box office and that will continue to meet with favor in the box office so long as the birth rate exposed by P. T. Barnum continues.

Unfortunately these little chips of hokum have not been put together with any perceptible skill; en masse, they form a spectacle that is neither beautiful nor particularly interesting.

MAIL—It's a serious movie that aspires to be another "Neptune's Daughter," but it can't be judged as such. * * * "The Temple of Venus" represents the heights of hokum and lavishness, and we hope it sounds the death knell of a type of film that has had its day.

SUN—There are moments of exquisite beauty in "The Temple of Venus." * * * There are moments of iridescent beauty. * * * But there are moments and moments. There are moments of as splendid hokum as have been seen in many moons and bits of Fox's own brand of the exotic which must cause the other producers of spectacles to throw up their hands in utter despair.

TELEGRAM—Combining modern drama, phantasy and magnificent studies of wild life and aquatic growth, the picture is probably the most artistic achievement of its kind ever developed.

TRIBUNE—So we enjoyed "The Temple of Venus" because Mary Philbin plays the leading role.

The story is silly and the undersea stuff is dragged in ruthlessly, as are also some interesting pictures of seals at play which should have been reserved for the news reel. If the picture had had only the star and the seals we should have liked it better.

Boosting Safety Week

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

St. Louis—The St. Louis M. P. Exhibitors' League is co-operating in the plans for Safety Week, which begins Nov. 18, and will devote their screens to advocating safety first methods.

New Sales For Artclass

Max Weiss, of Artclass, announces the sale of 18 "Tense Moments," to Lande Film, for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and to Creole Enterprises for Louisiana and Mississippi.

Lieber Buys Burr Product

Floyd Brown, of the H. Lieber Co., Indianapolis, has bought the Michigan rights of the 1923-24 series of C. C. Burr productions.

WORLD—I have never seen so many different subjects touched upon in a single motion picture before, and I must say that in a great many instances the photographic effects were lovely to look upon. * * *

All this and more I could easily believe of "The Temple of Venus." I could believe that six authors, each writing a separate story, and two travelogue photographers had contributed to it. Its range is really remarkable. Some of its individual pictures are magnificent.

"The Country Kid"—Warner's—Rialto

AMERICAN—* * * and concerted efforts to keep the three children together during the entire photoplay. * * *

Wesley Barry, still freckled and still growing, wipes emotional tears on the sleeves of his calico shirt.

EVENING JOURNAL—It's a sad story, mates, that "The Country Kid" tells at the Rialto and it's shameless in its drain on the tear glands, but Wesley Barry and the two other kids with him will "get" you completely.

EVENING WORLD—Time was when we thought Wes Barry and his freckles were a "cute" combination. * * * The more we sat and gazed at Wes in "The Country Kid," the more we realized what a terrible tragedy it will be when Jackie Coogan grows up. * * * Fair entertainment.

MAIL—The plot is cheap and trite, but several extremely amusing incidents have been introduced, in all of which little Bruce Guerin appears.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * so full of hokum that it just oozes out, runs down into the orchestra platform and overflows into the aisles. "Good old hokum and lots of it," seems to have been the slogan in making this picture. * * *

Wesley Barry is quite grown up and we liked him much better as a boy.

SUN—He is pleasantly sincere and simple in a play where his part is very nearly a grownup one and where he is forced to combat a series of rather banal situations. * * * The play is on the "over the hill to the poorhouse" motif, with Oliver Twist variations, and not particularly exhilarating.

TELEGRAM—Wesley Barry is growing up and has now reached the time of life when he is at his quaintest—an ideal figure to play the title role in "The Country Kid." * * *

TIMES—* * * One of those models of triteness without a redeeming high light Young Wesley Barry, with his competent freckles, is not a bad little actor; but it would take a young Holbrook Blinn to do anything with the story of this picture.

TRIBUNE—"The Country Kid," is used as a starring vehicle for Wesley Barry, and if one had known what was coming he never would have referred to any of the star's previous pictures as "silly and dull." This leaves no course open to a critic but repetition. "The Country Kid," is perhaps superlatively silly and dull.

"White Rose" Passed; Banned

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Cleveland—"The White Rose" passed on July 17th by the Ohio Censor Board without a single elimination, has had its license revoked. The picture has already played Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo. The board now says that "The White Rose," is immoral. In July it was not immoral, but, under the law, the board has a legal right to change its mind. This is the second time that the board has exercised this right. The other picture that was passed, re-called and later passed again was "The Law and the Woman."

Oppose Increased Admissions

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Minneapolis—According to "Greater Amusements," Southern Minnesota exhibitors are averse to any proposed general increase in admission prices. This was made clear at the regional meeting held at Windom under the auspices of the Northwest exhibitor unit. Sentiment of patrons will not permit any increase, it was pointed out, with exhibitors present declaring such a move would be unwise in view of present conditions.

Exhibitor Ass'n

Be Launched at French Lick—
Meeting Set for Nov. 14 and 15—
Indiana Holds Session

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Indianapolis—The French Lick meeting of Mid-West exhibitors will be held on Nov. 14 and 15. There is a strong possibility that a new exhibitor organization will develop out of that two-day session. The decision was reached at a meeting of the directors of the M. P. T. O., Indiana, at which twenty-one of twenty-four directors were present.

There was a good deal of discussion over National Motion Picture exhibitors. Some of the directors favor it and others are opposed. In one instance, the idea was advanced that it might be well to ascertain first whether the money thus accrued would go into the promotion of exhibitor distribution plans or whether it would be used to help solve exhibitor problems.

Talking

About distribution again. On sane lines. Possibly a merging of physical distribution. Several real talks occurred this week. Among some important people of the business. Which may lead to something definite. Later. Or maybe not.

This is a hard crowd to get together to do something. Even when it's for the greater good for the greater number.

You remember all the articles published last Spring. On a better distributing plan? With here and there a real thought? Something worth while. Well, it need not prove utterly surprising. If you see something happen in this direction.

Talking of distribution. To show how it can work out. In Nevada a number of the big companies are working together. On a catalogue scheme. Selling the exhibitor direct. Because it costs far too much to travel.

If distributors can work together in Nevada. Why not elsewhere?

SAVING MONEY

Distribution costs will be cut over $6,000,000 during the year ending next June as a result of economies effected by the F. I. L. M. Clubs, according to Charley Pettijohn. Here is one of the savings: Every time an exhibitor opened a house, or something happened, either a wedding or some sort of an event where flowers could be used, exchange managers through the country did their darndest to outdo the other fellow and send a bigger display of flowers. Result thousands of dollars spent unnecessarily. Under the new scheme of things when the celebration occurs hereafter just one floral offering will go forward—from the F. I. L. M. Club. Saved one concern over $500 the first week it was in operation.

PIRATING IN ENGLAND

Reports from the other side are to the effect that pirating is going on to an annoying extent in London, and that as a result several companies find prints in foreign territories and causing all sort of annoyances.

Pirating has been killed off in this country to a great extent, but it seems to have developed in England—the last of all places where it would be expected.

REGARDING DeMILLE

Jimmy Quirk's "Photoplay" beat us to this one—incidentally one of the best stories current on the Coast:

"Cecil De Mille was an extremely busy man during the making of his "Ten Commandments." Two of his leading actors in the film version of the Tablets were very anxious to see him concerning some of their work, but after repeated efforts gave up the attempt and sent him a note saying that Moses and Aaron would like to speak to God for a moment. Then they wondered why they got no reply."

HE LIVES

You've heard a lot about hokum in pictures, haven't you. But you never knew, did you, that A. H. Hokom lives in Hollywood—where they make 'em—and is an electrician.

Loew Dividend

Declared After Lapse of Two and a Half Years—Payable End of December—Expected to Continue

After a lapse of two and a half years Loew's, Inc., will return to a dividend paying basis. The directors have declared a dividend on the basis of $2 a year payable Dec. 31. This is the same rate in effect when dividends ceased in April, 1921.

Editor's Note—Probably the most important phase of this dividend declaration is that it means a resumption of dividends for this concern for the future. It has long been known that Marcus Loew was on record that dividends would not be resumed until he felt certain that—barring calamities—they could be continued.

Considering the hectic strain through which the industry has been progressing the declaration of this dividend bears an importance which cannot be underestimated. It demonstrates at least this; that the Loew (which also means the Metro) organization has full optimism in the future.

DANNY.

E. H. ("Mannie") Goldstein, treasurer of Universal left for the coast Friday to take charge of Universal City while Julius Bernheim visits his sick mother in Germany. Goldstein will stop off at Chicago to meet Mr. Laemmle who is coming in from the coast.

F. P. "Farming" Out

Agnes Ayres, Bebe Daniels in Halperin Picture—More Deals May Result During Shut-down

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Agnes Ayres and Bebe Daniels, both of them under contract to Famous Players have been loaned to Victor Hugo Halperin for "Souvenir" which is now rounding out its first week in production.

As far as it can be ascertained here, the question of further "farming" many of the players under contract to Paramount will depend largely on the result of individual negotiation. It is expected that other members of the Lasky troupe will be permitted to work for other producers during the shut-down period.

Halperin's picture is part of his series for Associated Exhibitors. Alvin Wyckoff and C. R. Wallace are handling the camera work and aside from Misses Ayres and Daniels, the cast includes Percy Marmont, George Siegmann, Leo White, Otto Lederer, Rosa Rosanov, John George, Inez Seabury, William Orlamond and Mary Alden. Halperin is directing personally.

Buxbaum Out

Harry H. Buxbaum, state sales supervisor for Paramount is no longer with the organization as a result of the change in plans that came with the cessation of production. John Hammell will be in charge of the territory under direct supervision of the home office. "Bux" has had charge of the New York City and State territories as well as Northern New Jersey.

A Paramount official summed up the situation by merely stating that, whereas the company formerly sold 100 pictures a year, it now only handles 52 and naturally there must come a general revision in the sales force with a drop of that proportion.

27 Million In Budget

Ambitious Fox Schedule—20 Million for Production, Two for Stories and Five Million for Studio in L. A.

A lengthy statement from the Fox offices declares that the company has decided on a $27,000,000 budget for 1924-1925. Of that large amount, the statement says, $20,000,000 will be spent for production, $2,000,000 for story and play rights and $5,000,000 for the new West Coast studio which will be erected on a 444 acre plot of ground in the Beverly Hills section of Los Angeles.

Fox now has 16 dramatic units at work here and on the coast, according to the statement while nine companies are turning out comedies to meet the schedule. "These various producing companies," says Mr. Fox, "are employing 250,000 persons, and a weekly expenditure which stands now at a little more than $300,000 a week will be increased to between $400,000 and $500,000 immediately after Jan. 1."

A partial list of new properties acquired and about which mention has been made previously includes "The Fool," "Loyalties," "The Man Who Came Back," "The Warrens of Virginia," "It Is The Law," "Strathmore" by Ouida, "The Hunted Woman" by James Oliver Curwood and "Hearts of Oak" by James A. Hearn. Fox will leave for the coast about Jan. 1 to supervise construction of the new studio. A complete laboratory is planned in connection with it.

Fairbanks Wins

Court Reverses Decision and Reverts Cutting of Features to Two Reels Until Trial

The Appellate Court has reversed the decision of a lower court action brought by Douglas Fairbanks against Hyman Winick, the Film Co., the Majestic M. P. Co. and the Triangle Film Corp., and granted Fairbanks an injunction restraining the defendants from any of the Fairbanks-Majestic pictures down to two reels until trial comes to trial.

Counsel for Fairbanks maintains that his original contract with the Majestic called for directorial supervision by D. W. Griffith and upon completion of the picture, star would have the right to the finished product. In the pictures were released in form that was considered commercially successful. Hence Fairbanks' objection to reducing pictures from feature length to reels.

"The Common Law"

Selznick Distributing Corp.

Whole.....MIGHTY FINE BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION. SOME SCENES IN EARLY DAYS MAY SHOCK SOME MEN AND WOMEN AND PRUDES, BUT ALTOGETHER LOVE STORY WILL HOLD. A BIG STEP FORWARD FOR CONNOR GRIFFITH.

.....They knew what they were doing when they put Corinne Griffith in this as Valerie, the model, who is ready to sacrifice herself for her artist lover, but she never gets the chance. Conway Tearle again makes a "lovely" lover. How the girls will adore him! Cast replete with so many good box office names that it's a pity you can't use them—Elliott Dexter, Bryant Washburn, Doris May, Harry Myers, Jess DuPont, Phyllis Haver, Wally Van, Dagmar Godowsky—all names that look well on the program but they have very little to do in the picture but stand around.

Type of Story....Drama of the studios. Deals with the love of an artist for his model and her sacrifice in refusing to marry him at the request of his family but of her agreement to be his common law wife. The climax however is O.K. The theme is strictly a sensuous one with sex appeal the dominant keynote. The daring scenes and suggestive situations will draw capacity business no doubt, but if you refer to family patronage you might see this first. Production is attractive and atmosphere of luxury predominates.

Box Office Angle....Maybe a trifle splashy. Depends almost wholly on what the likes and dislikes of your patrons. You know best whether they'll be satisfied, shocked, thrilled or offended. The picture will make money wherever it shows, provided there is no interference from local reformers.

Exploitation....Doesn't need a whole lot if you really want to bring them in. Promise a story of the studios, dealing with the love of a model for an artist whose family refused to accept a model into their family. A few feet of the opening sequence will be all you need to give them the idea of the picture. Sensation makers will be on hand to spread the news of the thriller you're going to show. This is one type of picture that will always benefit by word-of-mouth advertising. The minute they hear it contains something risqué, they'll be interested. Plenty of good names in the cast to lead and the title is well known.

Direction by.....Geo. Archainbaud; competent about as far as he could, and sometimes a bit further, with daring touches.

Author.....Robert W. Chambers
Scenario.....Edw. J. Montagne
Cameraman.....Jules Cronjager
Photography.....Very good
Locale.....New York
Length.....7,527 feet

"The Temple of Venus"

Fox

As a Whole....POTPOURRI ENTERTAINMENT. CONTAINS A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING THAT WILL FURNISH THE EXHIBITOR WITH TALKING POINTS. PATRONS WILL PROBABLY FIGURE THEY GET A LOT FOR THEIR MONEY IN THIS ONE.

Cast....Mary Philbin heads a capable and satisfying cast. Besides a bevy of nymphs and ballet girls the company includes William Walling, little Micky McBain, who doesn't have half enough to do, Alice Day, David Butler, William Boyd, Phyllis Haver, Leon Barry.

Type of Story....Rather difficult to define. Might be classed as a spectacular, fantastic drama. There is a main, modern theme, also a lot of mythical sequences which offer visual appeal in the way of pretty shots of beaches with plenty of flimsy gowned dancers, beautiful water shots, attractively illuminated and highly imaginative caverns where dwell Venus, Neptune, Jupiter, and the rest of the gods. These episodes are rather reminiscent of the Fox production of several years ago, "The Daughter of the Gods."

Still further in the way of variation there are some remarkably fine views of wild animal life, showing seals and tropical birds. Also mixed up in this unusual entertainment cocktail you have a jazz sequence. If "variety is the spice of life" then "The Temple of Venus" contains spice to the nth degree. As a bigger and better screen endeavor, however, the offering is not likely to make its mark.

Box Office Angle.....May be very good. It depends on what your people want. You know best whether or not you'll be able to satisfy them with a spectacular potpourri such as this. If you think they like variety to the extent that it is carried, go to it. It's a matter of knowing the wants of your individual clientele.

Exploitation.....Certainly you have enough to talk about: sea nymphs, mythical gods, under-water sequences, tropical atmosphere, jazz, romance, a few thrills, beautiful locations. To get them in should not be difficult. A trailer of some of the more spectacular episodes should readily interest them, such as the bathing scenes, the caverns, or shots of the lovers. The title will lend itself to stunt exploitation.

Direction by....Henry Otto; results look as though the scenario called for everything that was ever used in a picture; direction not consistent; at times good and again very poor.

Author.....Catherine Carr
Scenario.....Catherine Carr
Cameraman.....Joe August
Photography.....Good
Locale.....Coast town
Length.....About 7,000 feet.

"The Courtship of Myles Standish"

Charles Ray in

Producer: Charles Ray
Distributor: Asso. Exhibitors.

As a Whole.....PICTORIALLY ONE OF THE MOST MAGNIFICENT PICTURES EVEN IN THIS ERA OF GREAT PRODUCTIONS. RUNS LONG AND STORY FAILS TO HOLD AT FINISH BUT THE SHIP SCENES SHOULD PUT IT OVER.

Cast....Charles Ray as John Alden, the famous lover of Pilgrim days, gives an excellent performance but suffers from too many close-ups. Enid Bennet charming, but not photographed to the best advantage as Priscilla. E. A. Warren good as Standish.

Type of Story....Deals, of course, with the sailing of the Pilgrims and their adventures after landing in New England. A fortune undeniably has been spent in the making of this tremendous production. The ship scenes are particularly noteworthy and stand out as probably the finest work of this kind ever shown on the screen. There is a lot of adventure, attacks by Indians, etc., and the story halts at times. This, however, could be remedied by severe cutting.

Box Office Angle....It all depends upon the kind of house you run as to what you can do with this tremendously big spectacle and fine production. If your people like the epic type of picture, if you have a clientele of mothers who like to bring their children to your house they will undeniably flow in because the picture contains historical as well as entertainment value. If your audiences like thrills, there are several in this that should please, notably the rescue during the storm at sea and the attack of the Indians. You had, however, better see this because it must be released at a high price because of its huge cost.

Exploitation.....You have a great deal to work with here and if you run this you must get back of it in a real way. The picture deserves all you can give it. There is hardly a young person who doesn't know the well-known expression, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John," which has to do with the love affair between John and Priscilla.

Then you have the big sequence of the ship scene and you can make promises galore for this because it is magnificent.

Direction by.....Frederick E. Sullivan. At times has handled his work magnificently.

Author..Based on Longfellow's poem
Scenario by.....Albert Ray
Cameraman.....George Rizard
Photography..Usually magnificent
Locale..The Mayflower and bleak New England
Length....Approximately 9,000 feet.

"Long Live The King"

Jackie Coogan in

Metro.

As a Whole.....JACKIE A DELIGHT AS USUAL BUT ALL THE MONEY THEY SPENT UPON THE PRODUCTION DOESN'T FILL THE GAPS WHEN JACKIE ISN'T ON THE SCENE. WITH A DRAWING CARD LIKE THIS YOUNGSTER THEY DON'T NEED TO SPEND A MILLION."

Star.....The inimitable Jackie; as Prince Otto he has a more serious role than anything they have given him before, that is, more serious in scope, although it gives him plenty of opportunities to be cute and clever, in turn. Does some delightful imitations and there are many close-ups showing Jackie's command of facial expression that are charming.

Type of Story....Jackie, as Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto, is the whole show regardless of the rest of the plot that has to do with the dying King, the plot to overthrow the government, the scheme to kidnap the Prince, etc. Even the vast sum expended upon big sets, scenic effects and the like, aren't important in comparison with Jackie and his performance. It doesn't seem at all necessary to supply a lavish production, or plot either for that matter, when after all it is only Jackie that counts. And he is all that counts for when he's off the set and the plotters are at work, the interest lags badly.

Box Office Angle....You'll want to show it, of course. And you'll undoubtedly make a lot of money. Your folks will be delighted,—but, to pick on the point,—you made just as much money and your folks enjoyed themselves just as much, when Jackie wasn't cavorting about amid million dollar sets.

Exploitation....Doesn't require a lot of explanation. You know what the star's name can do for you and how much boosting you have to give him to get them interested. Let them know you are showing his latest feature, his first production for Metro, "Long Live the King." Jackie is always great entertainment, both for young and old. Make a specialty of matinee showings.

Direction by....Victor Schertzinger; handled it on a big scale from a production standpoint but might have conserved not only on that angle but in footage and unnecessarily long drawn out sequences in which Jackie has no part. Should also not have put Jackie into slapstick,—the instance where he takes his stand at a door and pops off each entrant with a bottle.

Author....Mary Roberts Rinehart
Scenario..C. Gardner Sullivan and Eve Unsell
Cameramen.....Frank Good and Robert Martin
Photography.....Excellent
Locale.....Mythical kingdom
Length.....9,364 feet.

A DREAM COMES TRUE

When Von Stroheim made "Foolish Wives" he wanted it run as a regular show, covering two nights performances, with reserved seats. It wasn't considered practicable in the States and so it was cut to run for the usual regulation show of 10 reels. But in South America, at this moment, they are running "Foolish Wives" just as Von wanted it and they are getting $4 for the show.

ARTHUR KANE PROUD

No proud papa, boasting of his first son, compares with Arthur Kane these days. Just mention Associated Exhibitors and its product to Arthur and he would buy the drinks—if there wasn't a law opposing it. And whether you want to hear or not he'll tell you all about the Harold Lloyd's "Why Worry," Charles Ray's "Courtship of Myles Standish," Mabel Normand's "The Extra Girl" and "Going Up" with Doug MacLean at his best.

It's a line up of big pictures, real pictures. No doubt about that. And it gives Jack Woody something to sell. No doubt about that either.

WESTERN'S MADE IN GEORGIA

Ben Blumenthal likes to laugh. And how he enjoyed the following signed by John A. Pollock of Bainbridge, Ga., Rural Delivery Box 67: "Export and Import Film Co.

"Dear Sir: I am writing you to let you know that I have 7 pictures that I would like to have produce. I would like to sell them to you.

"I want to act them myself if you will come to Brainbridge, Ga. I will meet you there. One of my pictures is a chapter play. Write me and tell me when you can come and I will meet you there.

"When you come bring about 35 men and about 15 wimmen. 12 to be from 16 to 22 years old and 3 old wimmen.

"I want to have them made in Georgia. They are Wild western plays. Expecting a quick answer

"Yours truly."

THE EXTREMES

Of things. The other day Metro screened "Long Live the King." Jackie Coogan's latest. Dave Warfield was there. And shed a few tears. Also raved about Jackie's genius on the screen. Which brought to light that about four years ago. Following Annette Kellerman's act at a Los Angeles theater. Jackie made his first public appearance. And then gave his version of Warfield in one of his famous roles.

Who says artists don't know art?

LOTS OF PICTURES

It's funny how ideas get around. And cause trouble. For instance Famous Players production shut-down. Immediately an idea developed that Famous had no pictures to release. In fact Famous will have a picture a week for release for the 19 or 20 weeks—and most of these were made, and on the spot when the announcement was made.

There are five productions being completed. When these finished the studios will be closed until after Jan. 1.

That's the whole story—excitement, wild rumors, crazy reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

As indicative of the many wild reports circulated. Upon announcement of the closing of the studios. The Boston Globe and many other papers, carried sensational reports. To the effect that 125,000 people. Were out of work in Hollywood. Because of the shutdown. The entire population of Hollywood is a 90,000. Including extras, ambitious students who never see inside of a studio, and all interested in production. There are 10,000.

JIMMY'S WEEK

Jimmy Grainger had a "week" last week. And all the Goldwyns tried to see how much they could get in his honor. It was a pretty good week. For Goldwyn. Meanwhile take a peek at this picture. Looks like it came out of the family album. The red plush cover. This shows "Jimmy" Gene O'Brien and Eddie Bonns. In Frisco. 10 years ago.

HANDWRITING

On the wall. Says Joe Brandt. Who says exhibitors are placing themselves in a position. To kill off the independent market. By refusing to give them a good break. And pointing out the possibility of a monopoly. In production. As in the old days of the General Film Co.

Well, Joe, things may be bad. They may be tough. But don't you worry about production monopoly. It isn't going to happen. Not for a long time, anyway. And probably never.

Story of Laughing Memory

IN this the second Douglas MacLean Production for Associated Exhibitors our popular star has planned his most ambitious achievement.

Following a wise policy he selected for picturization another well remembered knockout musical comedy, "The Yankee Consul." This piece made Raymond Hitchcock famous on Broadway and was applauded for three years by the laugh-seeking American public.

The film story is a perfectly killing romance of the U. S. Consular Service and has a surprise with a kick that will again make the Nation literally roll in the aisles with laughter.

Jack Hoxie in
"Men In The Raw"
Universal

As a Whole.....LOOKS LIKE A LAST MINUTE DECISION TO TURN A WEAK DRAMA INTO A BURLESQUE THROUGH A LOT OF COMEDY SUB-TITLES. NOT UP TO UNIVERSAL'S STANDARD.

...Role doesn't give him much chance to make a favorable impression. Is required to work pretty hard, nevertheless, to live up to the reputation that the introductory scene gives him—that of the world's greatest liar.

...Ample; includes Marguerite Clayton, opposite Hoxie, Sid Jorjan, J. Morris Foster, Tom Kerrick, M. Lowery and Art Manning.

Type of Story.....Comedy-drama that's rather shy on both comedy and drama. Story deals with relations of cowboy, acknowledged by his pals to be the worst liars. Picture visualizes hero's showing the thing as it actually happened and the sub-titles indicate elaborations and exaggerations. There is a lot of reading in the picture,—far too many sub-titles for picture of such short length.

Some of the incidents related afford fair enough action in the way of fights, escapes and captures, that they satisfy those who like excitement regardless of the derivation. The incident in which hero and sheriff make sleds of themselves and coast down the side of a mountain is a new one in thrills. Other action bits consist of steer throwing, of evading the sheriff by leaping his horse in the middle of the sea and swimming under water,

Box Office Angle.....Probably all right for regulation single day showing, or if star is popular draw-card. Picture doesn't warrant special exploitation, but will undoubtedly get by as an average entertainment unless they are inclined to be critical.

Exploitation.....Use Jack Hoxie's name if you think it will mean anything to your folks. If he isn't well enough known stick to the title and try it up with catchlines such as: "You've heard of a 'born liar.' Here's one in 'Men in the Raw' at the blank theater."

Teaser lines could read: "Who's the biggest liar in this town?" Or, "The worst liar in the world will be found at the blank theater on—e." Another: "See Jack Hoxie 'Men in the Raw,' at the blank theater, and you'll never tell another Producer: Elliott Dexter Prods. Inc.

Distributor: Grand-Asher Distr. Corp.—State Rights

As a Whole....ANOTHER FAITH THEME, THIS TIME IN THE WAY OF A SOUL SAVING CRUSADE. A SINCERE ATTEMPT TO MAKE A PICTURE WITH A MORAL. THE RESULTS ARE RATHER CONVINCING ALTHOUGH THE METHODS ARE SOMEWHAT CONVENTIONAL AND CONVENIENT.

Cast....Elliott Dexter works miracles nicely and gives a generally satisfying performance, except perhaps for the agonizing close-ups depicting his mental message whereby he causes the father of an injured child to cease his attack upon a young girl and hasten home to the little girl who is calling for him. Mildred Harris suitable as the girl. Anders Randolph a convincing seducer. Grace Carlyle adequate as Randolph's wife. Others DeWitt Jennings, Sydney Bracy.

Type of Story....Drama that occasionally borders on melodrama. For the latter it has a fire, a train wreck and the incident of the child falling from the balcony. The story aims chiefly to bring out the power of faith over evil and to that end the moral is continually pointed. They bring it out in many different ways. As far as this goes the picture is convincing and shows a sincere effort on the part of the producers to present a picture with its motive very definite.

For those who favor stories with morals, the picture should prove interesting. A more critical and exacting audience will observe a conventional plot, with a development that is convenient, coincidence playing a prominent part in it. The sub-titles have a tendency to anticipate the development.

Box Office Angle.....Probably an average picture but its appeal is likely to vary, depending upon the class of patronage. If you think the faith theme will be taken seriously, that they'll sympathize with the characters and be convinced by their actions, it will do nicely.

Exploitation....Here's a catchy title that will no doubt get the eye of entertainment shoppers. Use it with catchlines and show them trailers of the two or three exciting moments such as the fire, the wreck (too obviously an old piece of film, however), and the child's fall.

In view of the sex appeal angle you may have to see the picture, especially if you cater to family trade.

Wesley Barry in
"The Country Kid"
Warner Bros.—State Rights

As a Whole....CONTAINS MANY AMUSING MOMENTS AND GENERALLY OFFERS A WHOLESOME JUVENILE COMEDY; WESLEY BARRY HAS OUTGROWN THE WESLEY BARRY HE USED TO BE, A TRAGEDY THAT CAN'T BE AVOIDED.

Star.....Barry strives to hold the place his freckles and natural comedy ability won for him but the age of "longies" has overtaken him, leaving a tall, rather awkward near-man who, like others of his age, doesn't know whether to act like a boy or a man.

Cast.....Little Bruce Guerin and "Spec" O'Donnell easily steal Barry's honors for juvenile comedy. Both youngsters are delightfully and naturally comical and contribute practically all of the feature's laughs.

Type of Story....Comedy-drama that suffices for good wholesome amusement. The situations have all appeared in various story combinations heretofore but are nicely handled and furnish suitable material in which to present Barry and his two little competitors. Each of the comedy bits register successfully.

Folks will be delighted with the maneuvers of the two youngsters who play the roles of Barry's little orphaned brothers, especially such incidents as that in which Bruce Guerin plants seeds by holding them in his mouth, dropping them into the furrow and kicking the dirt over them, the enforced bath, the trip to the orphanage.

Box Office Angle....A good audience picture for the majority. It may not be up to expectations for Wesley Barry's admirers but even though Wesley isn't playing a real kid role himself, he does good work and his two youthful supporters help immensely to make the picture interesting.

Exploitation....Tell them there's a good combination of comedy and pathos with Wesley Barry and two cute youngsters playing the parts of three orphans whose conniving uncle schemes to get their farm after having managed to put them in an orphanage. Show a trailer wherein Barry steals the two boys away from the orphan asylum. If they enjoy good wholesome juvenile entertainment you can count on satisfying them with "The Country Kid."

The youngsters of your neighborhood will gladly don overalls and broken straw hats and parade about with signs, for the price of admissions.

Direction by....William Beaudine; handled the story very well and supplied a suitable production; comedy and pathos well blended.

Author .....Julien Josephson
Scenario .....Julien Josephson
Cameraman .....E. B. Dupar
Photography .....Good
Locale .....A farm
Length .....6,200 feet.

Thomas Meighan in
"Woman Proof"
Paramount

As a Whole.....WHOLESOME, CLEAN COMEDY ENTERTAINMENT OF THE POPULAR THOMAS MEIGHAN BRAND; AFFORDS FIRST RATE AMUSEMENT AND THE TYPICAL GEORGE ADE HUMOR NEVER MISSES FIRE.

Star....Gives another one that will please the picture going public. They'll like him in this as the woman-dodging hero who refuses to marry even to win a million dollars which he and his brother and two sisters will inherit provided they are all married within five years from the date of their father's death.

Cast....First rate; includes Lila Lee, opposite Meighan, John Sainpolis, Louise Dresser, Robert Agnew, Mary Astor, Edgar Norton, Chas. A. Sellon, Geo. O'Brien, Vera Reynolds, Hardee Kirkland, Martha Mattox. An unusually good supporting company here. Lila Lee quite a charming lead.

Type of Story....Delightful comedy theme, light and probably not a knockout for originality, but serves as appropriate vehicle for Meighan and certainly has been made a corking fine humorous entertainment. A lot of genuinely effective George Ade comedy business that seems to fit the star particularly well. Picture contains generous amount of laughs and comedy sequences. Titles are also laugh-makers. Ending is a bit draggy and would be improved considerably by cutting. Takes a bit too long to bring hero and heroine together. Might just as well happen a little quicker since it's inevitable.

Box Office Angle....Wholly favorable. Here you have another completely satisfying Thomas Meighan picture. If your folks appreciate good clean comedy entertainment you can't go wrong on these George Ade-Thomas Meighan combinations. You've already had "Our Leading Citizen" and "Back Home and Broke." Here's another.

Exploitation....Use the star's and author's names in all your announcements, and in big type. Be sure to mention the two previous pictures, written by George Ade and starring Meighan. Then promise them another enjoyable evening in "Woman Proof." You can't go wrong in boosting the picture. It's clean wholesome entertainment, good for all types and classes. The title can be exploited with catchlines and numerous attractive posters that Paramount has prepared.

Direction by....Alfred E. Green; did a satisfactory job, got a lot of humor out of the piece and supplied first rate cast to support star; took a trifle too long with the ending.

Hollywood—John Francis Dillon will direct "Lilies of the Field" for First National. The cast is now being assembled and production will start in about two weeks.

Short Subjects

"Hustlin' Hank"—Roach—Pathe
Will Rogers in Another Laugh

Type of production...2 reel comedy

This, the second of Will Rogers' two reels produced by Hal Roach, shows the comedian in an entirely different sort of comedy than the first one, "Just Passin' Through." However, it is none the less amusing and some folks may enjoy it even more. Certainly the fun is less subtle—more hilarious. Rogers is seen as a farm hand who is so lazy that any sort of work makes him sick. A "naturalist" offers him a job photographing "wild beasts" in their native haunts and the rest of the comedy deals with his very funny efforts in this direction. There is rather a good bit of slapstick stuff used. Should please easily.

"Discontent"—Bruce—Educational Sad Story; Beautiful Backgrounds

Type of production...1 reel scenic

As with the other "Wilderness Tales," a story is woven through the exquisite scenic shots in "Discontent." It deals with the huge fisheries in the Northwest, and tells a sad tale of a woman's discontent. She is married to a superintendent of the fisheries and when he is called away, she leaves her home and deserts him. The manner in which this is handled is exceptionally fine, leaving a haunting sadness in the spectator's mind. The scenic shots, aside from being beautiful, are exceptionally good from an educational standpoint, showing the manner in which the fish are hatched.

"The Idea Man"—Universal Funny Tramp Comedy

Type of production...1 reel comedy

Bert Roach's excellent make-up and personality put this one over with good speed. It's thoroughly entertaining. Roach's antics, hand-clapping, etc., will bring a smile to almost any face. Not much to the picture—all a dream at the finish, but still amusing stuff. Roach is a tramp and so hungry he eats grass in the hope that a more fortunate individual will take pity on him, but to no avail. All he gets is a newspaper. He reads that a wealthy man will pay for ideas. And the rest of the footage deals with the ideas he presents.—cut-backs to costumed episodes. William Watson is responsible for the good direction.

"Three Cheers"—Hammons—Educational

First Rate Juvenile

Type of production...2 reel comedy

Produced under the supervision of Jack White, this is a two reel juvenile comedy that should find a place on any program in any house and satisfy. The cast is entirely composed of kids—mostly boys—and they look like ordinary kids look. There isn't much plot, just a series of amusing incidents with plenty of humor sprinkled all through. Several animals have been used at different times throughout the comedy with good effect, among others are Jack, a clever dog, a monkey, and a skunk, which last, one of the kids calls a "black and white kitty."

"Do Women Pay"—Aesop Fable—Pathe

Excellent Comedy Cartoon

Type of production. Animated cartoon

This should be an exceedingly successful number of these amusing cartoon reels. Its story is a burlesque of several of the time-worn gags used in the dramas several years ago—the abduction of the girl by the villain who takes her to a deserted barn and locks the door and swallows the key—the little champagne supper for two—the struggle and finally the appearance of the hero just in the nick of time to save his bride. A laugh all the way through.

"Up in the Air"—Imperial Comedy—Fox

A la Harold Lloyd

Type of production...2 reel comedy

Fox is offering a new brand of comedies, Imperial, with "Up in the Air" one of the first. The picture is a mixture of comedy and thrills and if it were not for the fact that the latter consists almost entirely of duplications of Harold Lloyd's stunts in "Safety Last," the number would probably be quite a sensation. As it is those who haven't seen the Lloyd film will probably experience all the shocks that most folks are already familiar with. The comedy business is of the slap-stick order with an elevator shaft and stairways providing excuses enough for a chase of great endurance in which the villain pursues a rather uncomical comedian with each in turn falling through the shaft. Like many other comedy entertainments "Up in the Air" suffers from too much repetition.

"Down in the Ships to See"—Century—Universal

Good Diversion

Type of production...2 reel comedy

Some amusing incidents, several pretty girls in bathing suits, some interesting views of the decks, etc. of an ocean liner, a most intelligent dog—Pal—and Roscoe Karns complete the line-up of this Century two-reeler. There is some good jumping and climbing around the decks, ladders, ropes, etc. on the ship that may afford a thrill or two, also several laughs afforded by Pal's tricks. Good photography also helps.

Warner Plans Remain Unchanged

WARNER BROS. Pictures, Inc., announce to the trade that no changes in its 1923-24 production plans are being made, and that none are in contemplation.

Several months ago we announced a program of 18 Warner Bros. "Classics of the Screen." Today we amplify that statement with the announcement of an additional TWO and probably THREE big pictures to be released as SPECIAL PRODUCTIONS.

Of the original 18 pictures scheduled, twelve have been completed and four others are in production. One SPECIAL is now being released, another is practically finished and a third is in the early stages of preparation. Others will be started just as soon as studio space is available.

The outlook for Warner prosperity was never so bright as it is today. Our program for the year, carefully mapped out in the beginning, is brilliant with promise for the future. Though of an elaborateness that assures greatness in the finished product, our production plans have been laid along safe, sane and economical lines. They will be carried out to the letter.

WARNER BROS.
Classics of the Screen

"Blow Your Own Horn"

Film Booking Offices

As a Whole... PICTURE OF AVERAGE MERIT. A MORE CAREFUL DIRECTION MIGHT HAVE SECURED GREATER NUMBER OF LAUGHS FROM THE SITUATIONS AND INJECTED LESS HECTIC ACTION.

Cast... Young John Fox, Jr. the best comedian. A good bit of juvenile comedy played by Fox and little Billy Osborne, as poor and rich kids respectively. These several encounters of the freckled poor lad and the dainty rich boy provide the picture's best laughs. Warner Baxter a capable hero but a poor comedian. He overdoes his comedy moments almost entirely. Ralph Lewis rather out of place in such light material. Others Derelys Pardue, Eugene Acker, Wm. H. Turner, Ernest C. Warde.

Type of Story... Comedy-drama that will probably amuse a big enough majority to get it over with most audiences. The story is rather slight, on the whole, and not always handled as well as it might be. There is a pretty fair idea to start with, that of a rich man introducing an ex-soldier, minus funds, as a man of wealth and forcing him to keep up the masquerade. Instead of piling on complications and bringing about embarrassing situations because of the deception, that would provide amusement, the director has used up too much footage in staging a house party and having the guests trooping all over the lawn. There's too much hectic action and not enough attention to the comedy end of it. The dramatic turn in the climax offers a good thrill, improbable in fact, but sufficiently exciting to please those who like their comedy combined with thrills.

Box Office Angle... An average picture that will do satisfactorily for a one time showing. Has good exploitation angles if you want to bring them in.

Exploitation... A good title, the name of Ralph Lewis, and a first rate thrill in the climax: these are your talking points. Play up the name of the picture with catchlines such as: "Don't be afraid to 'Blow Your Own Horn!'" It pays to advertise yourself. See the picture at the blank theater and you'll know why."

Distribute miniature horns with tags attached reading: "Blow Your Own Horn"—at the blank theater on (date). The youngsters will be only too glad to do this advertising for you. Let your folks know that Ralph Lewis is in the picture. He is probably the best known of those in the cast.

Direction by... James W. Horne; not consistent; gets good laughs at times but lets other comedy opportunities get by.

 Scenario ..... Rex Taylor
 Cameraman ..... Joseph Dubray
 Photography ..... All right
 Locale ..... Massachusetts
 Length ..... 6,315 feet

Viola Dana in
"In Search Of A Thrill"

Metro.

As a Whole... VIOLA DANA DOESN'T SUCCEED IN FINDING THE PURPOSE OF HER QUEST. AT LEAST TO THE AUDIENCE'S SATISFACTION. THEY'RE NOT LIKELY TO BE AT ALL THRILLED BY HER LATEST, A POORER STORY THAN SHE'S HAD IN SOME TIME.

Star... Story offers her somewhat of a diviation from her usual comedy business and provides a sequence in which she makes out rather well in a character sketch, but it's not the sort of thing her admirers want and expect of her. She's much more at home in fluffy dresses, her own "bob" and the so-called jazz atmosphere. A staunch following may not kick at one variation, however.

Cast... Ample as a rule. Warner Baxter a fairly well suited hero. Others Mabel Van Buren, Robert Schable and a cleverly trained monkey.

Type of Story... Drama; rather trite material and seldom causes more than casual interest. You know from the outset that Viola will eventually cast off her pet monkey and jewels in favor of hero who writes about "life as he sees it,— which consists in poverty and degradation pictured for the spectator's benefit in case he doesn't quite gather what a fine minded man hero is. No one is likely to take the story seriously, in which event it may get by readily enough and without much unfavorable comment.

Deals with girl who again meets her old lover but finds that her mode of living does not appeal to him. How she reforms and the picture comes to a happy conclusion when she adopts an infant to replace her pet monkey, may be passably interesting to some.

Box Office Angle... Will likely go all right with star's admirers. As a matter of general entertainment, you may not find it so easy to fill the bill with "In Search of a Thrill." It depends largely upon how hard it is to suit your people. Apache episode offers some excitement and may be used as a trailer to arouse their interest.

Exploitation... Use the star's name prominently for the benefit of those who follow up each of her releases, "In Search of a Thrill" is a catchy title that you shouldn't have difficulty in interesting them in. Use catchlines asking: "Are you In Search of a Thrill? Better see Viola Dana's latest picture if you are."

Direction by... Oscar Apfel; moderately satisfactory.

Author ..... Kate Jordan
 Scenario ..... Basil Dickey and Winifred Dunn
 Cameraman ..... John Arnold
 Photography ..... Satisfactory
 Locale ..... Paris
 Length ..... About 5,000 feet.

"A Million to Burn"

Universal

AS A WHOLE... POOR FARCE COMEDY THAT VERGES ON SLAP-STICK ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS; THEY'LL HAVE TO BE EASY TO AMUSE IN ORDER TO SATISFY THEM WITH THIS.

Star... Has a very unattractive vehicle and does little himself to improve on an already uninteresting role. May go if he has a staunch following, but they'll have to be unusually loyal to stick by him with such offerings as this.

Cast... All contribute their worst efforts, it seems. Many poor comedians in this cast if you are to judge by the laughs they try to register. Includes Kalla Pasha, Beatrice Burnham, Tom McGuire, Melbourne McDowell, Margaret Landis, George Marion, Frederick Stanton and Frederick Bertrand.

Type of Story... About one amusing situation in this farce and that one short-lived. Waiter inherits fortune, buys the hotel and decides to make his employees happy by allowing them to satisfy their pet ambitions by practicing them on the lawns of the hotel. The ambitions run from sculpture to female impersonations.

This is the one fair comedy twist, but it is quickly passed over and the remainder of the picture assumes a slap-stick atmosphere that is more foolish than funny. A dream ending would have been a thoroughly appropriate denouement and permitted the story to serve to much better advantage.

Box Office Angle... The prospects of Rawlinson as a continued drawing card do not look very favorable especially if he is to be presented in such poorly suited and unattractive stories as have been given to him lately. He needs good story material and careful direction. Value of the picture depends largely upon strength of star. You know best what his drawing power is.

Exploitation... If they like Rawlinson you may show them "A Million to Burn." Where the star is not a drawing card you may have difficulty in pleasing them with the picture. There are not enough laughs in it to warrant promises.

Stick to catchlines such as: "Keep your employees happy at any cost. See how it's done in 'A Million to Burn.'" Or, "Here's a model employer. Nothing too good for the working man. See Herbert Rawlinson in 'A Million to Burn.'"

Direction by... William Parke; failed to make an amusing picture. Although story wasn't a winner, there might have been more laughs gotten out of it.

Author ..... Mary Whitside
 Scenario by ... Raymond L. Schrock
 Cameraman ..... John Stumar

Exhibitors on Big Films and High Prices

Viewpoints

FROM all over the country come letters relative to the problem of the exhibitor and the producer and the high cost of pictures. From out of the many, three are presented below—chiefly because they represent three distinct geographical sections—the South, the Middle West and the Northwest.

Nothing could better represent the frame of mind of the average exhibitor relative to big pictures and high prices.

DANNY

Wat L. Royster of the Capitol, Birmingham, Ala. writes:

Reasons! Yes, that is what nine tenths of the people are trying to do today, find out the reason why this that film didn't gross so-and-so, how the directors and producers cut down the cost of a production. No, the greater majority of exhibitors in this territory are not holding up buying thinking they can buy later at a much lower price—unless, and you, we said unless they realize that they must have it for less.

Yes, the exhibitors want fewer and better pictures, and you say in your article recently that they are here. We are firm in our belief that they are here according to the producer and the exhibitor but are they here according to the mind of Mr. and Mrs. Public? That's the question.

I have made a careful survey and one of the many new productions coming this city of 200,000 recently, most of which have been rated as the very biggest and best, and they were to the minds of the exhibitors, but when it came to the said Mr. and Mrs. Public handing over their forty to fifty cents at the old box office, there was another tale to tell. It seemed that Mr. and Mrs. Public couldn't get it in their head that a picture they were going to see was the biggest and best in the county. If so they were not breaking their necks or leaving the supper plates to get in line at the box office. There have been 'Strangers of the Night,' 'The Spoilers,' 'Bluebird's Eighth Wife' and a number of others which one would expect to pack and jam an ordinary theater of two to eight hundred seats, but which do not do the aforesaid things.

Now, in view of all this proof that the public in the smaller cities outside of New York and a few of the big cities, is not packing to see such productions at what has been here considered a fair admission price, what would you expect friend Exhibitor to do regarding the booking of all these supers?

I am not an authority on the subject, but it would seem to me as Exhibitor who listens to the comments at the doors, that the public has been rather fed up on these big spectacles, big super-specials, and the million dollar pictures.

I saw a picture the other night one of our leading theaters here, in my mind, was absolutely one of the most perfect productions that I had ever seen, and yet, when I told several of my friends who were here, and who are considered high class people, capable of judging artistic entertainment, what they thought of it, they said, 'I didn't like it very much.'

Is it because we are not catering to the masses? Is it because we have advertised far in advance of the presentation of picture fans, or is it because they do not care for the million-dollar productions, but would rather have a plain story, plainly, well told, amid surroundings that are good, substantial and familiar?

"The $500,000 picture, and the $1,000,000 picture calls for at least forty to fifty cents admission, and the forty to fifty cents admission means that fifty percent of the movie going public must not attend their favorite theater, or else must wait until it come back at reduced prices, thereby losing a bit of money for the first run theater.

"Them's my thoughts. Take 'em, or leave 'em?"

J. E. Madsen of the Idaho, Twin Falls, Idaho, has this much to say:

"Reasons.

"A film company sell their usual product for a certain figure to the house across the street. Now they come to me because I exploit and advertise and have a better house and ask me from 400% to 800% more than they sell across the street because they have a 'Special' for sale.

"I know that it is a physical impossibility for me to do from 400 to 800% more than the fellow across the street does on his picture.

"I do want fewer and better pictures and I will do all my traffic will bear to get them but I tell you the film exchanges have not the right conception of real values when it comes to selling film. True they have an 'exhibition value' and a H. O. Quota but these are evidently set on the expectation that four out of five houses will never play and so to get theirs they expect that one house to pay more.

"I might say: Let the executives instill into their managers and salesmen the slogan for longer runs in the smaller towns. Let them preach it and teach it and show examples of its value. A year ago we ran three pictures every six-day week. Now we run two a week and a three-day run was generally the limit. Now I pick the good ones for a four-day run and the weaker ones for a two-day run. My poorest day on the better pictures is apt to compare with my best day on the weaker picture.

"I know houses around here that for years have never run a picture other than the usual change; one or two days. Get them to test a three-day run. Make their rental the same provided they spend additional money for advertising and exploitation. Too much propaganda is used by the producers to sell to the exhibitor rather than to sell the public publicly and thru the exhibitor."

And from Frank J. Rembusch, this: "I have been watching the articles with reference to business conditions and they were very interesting. I get some amusement out of the cry from producers that exhibitors do not pay enough for their film service and that we are holding out for lower prices.

"I said I got amusement from it, because, after all, when a thing gets just so tragic it finally is amusing. I wonder if these producers do not really know that they have been taking over forty to sixty percent of the gross box-office receipts for film service for the last three years and that exhibitors, as a general thing, are about broke.

"The only reason they do not complain is that a great many of them are trying to sell out and if they did not say they were making money they would have to sell on the same basis that the sheriff sells your stuff.

"My experience has been that every film salesman who has come into my office to sell me for my twenty theaters during the last four months, has asked more for pictures than we ever paid before. In some cases, the increases that were asked amounted to 500% on a certain star. When I look at the cash that is coming into the box-office, I find that ever since 1921 our gross receipts have been gradually dwindling. In order to keep them coming we have had to reduce admission prices. In order to meet the high price of film service we have had to buy cheap pictures and put in vaudeville, or freaks, or jazz music, or anything else. Now if we could pay this 500% more, next year they would add another 500%. I have it doped out in talking to other exhibitors that we all are beginning to realize that there is a limit that we can pay for pictures and we have long ago passed that limit if we are to run at a profit.

"The producers will have to do just what we are doing: Cut the corners, cut the salaries, cut out all these bonuses that are being paid and give us good pictures at living prices. I know a manager, in a small exchange, who gets a bigger salary than the profits I have made on twenty theaters in one year. There is just so much and there isn't any more and this industry has to play within these stakes. If they do not learn to do it in time, they will have to do it because economics, like water, will find their level.

"Wheat less than a dollar a bushel. Corn 65 cents.

"Say almost all farms in this section have a plaster on them and they were all clean four years ago. Where there were seven years of plenty there will be (is now) seven years of famine and we call it grand if we play even. So it has been since the beginning of time."

John J. Livingston in a letter to this office, says, in part:

"On picking up THE FILM DAILY and reading of the complete shutdown that has taken place in the Famous Players Lasky Corp. I cannot help from refreshing your mind on the prediction you have made in many of your issues on million dollar productions. Everything you have stated has come true and I know of no article in any of the film periodicals I have read that so clearly forecasted the future of the motion picture production end of it as your articles have.

"But the condition as it exists lies at the head of every big producing company. Those who are at the head of the producing companies do not seem to have the proper idea in the expenditure of its money, but simply say get Mr. Director, whoever he may be, who has a name and we will let him produce the picture and Mr. Director immediately starts in to visualize a great big theme of his own and then tries to see how much money he can spend to make himself famous. Result. Mr. Producer after the first two or three hundred thousand dollars is spent realizes he has made a terrible error, and as the production cost climbs up into a million dollars or more Mr. Producer starts to pray that he will have a successful production.

"Then after the completion of the production Mr. Producer must put 25% overhead charge on to the cost of the production and then he sends it out to Mr. Exhibitor, but, he doesn't know that Mr. Exhibitor has finally had his eyes opened up to the excessive expenditures that he is supposed to pay for when he should not if the business were conducted properly.

"The motion picture business was founded on its cheapness to the masses. The masses accepted it under those conditions but the unscrupulous methods employed by many in their efforts to lick the other fellow have put the motion picture business into a very bad condition and that condition can only be remedied in one way, and that way, is, for a man like Senator James Walker or some other big man to take hold of the reins and guide the ignorant out of the dark into the light of cheaper productions.

"Another man whom I might suggest who would in my mind be a great man is Tom Ince."

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

Unusual Stunt on the Coast

Los Angeles—For the showing of "Six Days," at Miller's, an unusual tie-up was obtained. This was a photographic contest arranged by Miller, with the Sun Drug Co., which operates a chain of stores in Los Angeles.

The prizes were: first, a pastel painting, 28 x 42 inches, valued at $600, executed by Hubbard G. Robinson, second, an oil painting, same size, valued at $400., and third, a charcoal drawing, the same size, valued at $200, both drawn by Robinson. The winners of these three prizes were given their choice of having the portrait painted of themselves or of a member of their families.

The contest was held under the auspices of the Sun Drug Co., Charles Brabin, the director, Corinne Griffith and Frank Mayo, who play the leading roles in this picture. The prizes were awarded for the best examples of photography submitted. The rules of the contest provided that each photograph entered must be made with an ordinary kodak or camera; that they must be developed and printed by the Sun Drug Co. from negatives provided by the contestant; photographs might be taken at any time, but were to be entered during the "six days" period, Oct. 15 to Oct. 21. The number of photographs submitted by any one of the contestants was not limited and subjects of any kind were allowed to be entered.

The drug company prepared a four-page circular, announcing the contest and enclosed one of them in every package of films developed or printed at all of their stores. The four-page circular contained the announcement of the showing at Miller's. In addition, the Sun drug stores carried special cards, announcing the contest in their windows, together with posters and stills of the production.

Winchester People Co-operating

When an exhibitor books "Trailing African Wild Animals," the Metro big game picture, they can secure the co-operation of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co., Inc., who have stores in all the principal cities, an arrangement having been made some time ago between the two organizations, through the efforts of Bert B. Perkins, exploitation manager for Metro, and Peter B. Carney, head of the Winchester exploitation department.

A series of special exploitation features tying up the nationally known Winchester big game guns and ammunition with the picture has been devised and a special lineup of advertising accessories and window trim made up to put.

Has Real Atmosphere

Indian braves and squaws from the Oneida reservation were guests of the Park theater during the run of "Pioneer Trails."

Twenty of these Indians in full tribal regalia were given leave of absence from the reservation. They were entertained by officials of the city, and during the run of the picture visited the important business and manufacturing offices and plants of the city. They also made appearances at the theater during the performances. As a street ballyhoo, the theater used two covered wagons carrying 24 sheets of "Pioneer Trails." The Indians paraded with wagons daily through the main streets.

27 Merchants Help Harris Out

Little Rock, Ark.—When Sol Harris, of the Capitol, booked "Why Worry," he tied up with local shops on an elaborate cooperative advertising stunt.

After Sol approached the principal business concerns and broached the subject of cooperative advertising, he found 27 firms anxious to participate. The result was a broadside in the form of a double-page spread in the Arkansas Gazette and Democrat. In each unit of the display the idea of "Why Worry"—when we can supply you with the commodity or service you need—was carried out. In the center of the layout Harris spread the major message of the display, an announcement of a week's engagement at the Capitol.

Town Criers in Cleveland

Cleveland—At the time Harry Reichenbach took advantage of the newspaper strike in New York, to announce, via town criers, the showing of "Potash and Perlmutter," at the Strand, A. A. Maloney, of Loew's Ohio Theaters followed out a similar stunt.

The event was in the nature of a celebration at the Stillman of its seventh anniversary, and the opening of "Ashes of Vengeance." The town criers proved so effective that every sheet in the town gave a big story accompanied by photographs, and, of course, telling of the showing.

Credit Goes to Ray Leason

Syracuse, N. Y.—When "Strangers of the Night" played a local theater, Ray H. Leason, Metro exploiteer, effected a very successful tie-up with the Telegram-American.

The tie-up was in the nature of a "Captain Applejack" serial advertising contest, which was productive of extra display advertising for the paper and valuable publicity for the theater and picture.

TOO LATE?

By DANNY

Every time exhibitors get in trouble—or are in trouble—they want to organize. They don't seem to appreciate the need of a vigorous organization three hundred and sixty-five days every year. But, like many others, they don't worry until they feel sick. Then they send for specialists. That seems to be the situation today.

Members of the national organization, "insurgents" and others not identified with any movement, seem to be breaking their necks in a helter skelter movement to do something to do away with the admission tax. The grave question whether or not it isn't too late doesn't seem important. As a matter of fact in all probability it is too late.

The French Lick meeting may accomplish a "get-together." It may bring harmony about and eventually bring the national exhibitor body back again to something like a real national organization. But unless all news from Washington are cockeyed the net result of what can be planned at French Lick or anywhere else, promises to be nil. Too many plans have been spoiled. Too many checks have spoiled a lot of excellent work.

Fox's Millions

And now, adding to the trouble which has already developed in Washington because of the constant talk of "millions" in pictures, comes the Fox statement that for next year the concern intends spending $27,000,000. Of course, it's silly. No one in his business believes such a thing possible. But the law makers—the Congressmen who get $7,500 a year don't know it—and when you try to get to men like that about removing taxes they point to such figures and say they come from Pike County, Missouri, and live 12 miles from any concrete road. So they have to be "own" a lot.

William Fox talks about spending twenty million dollars for production and two million for material. Meanwhile, Famous, Metro, Uni-

Recovery Far Off

L. C. Barnstyn Sees Normalcy in Europe in Five Years—Dutch Conditions Unsatisfactory

Five years is the time set for a general return to normalcy in Europe by L. C. Barnstyn, head of the Netherlands Bioscop Trust, one of the largest motion picture operators in Holland. Barnstyn is here on a short visit.

He declares that Holland is placed in a peculiar position with its currency high but with a deflated financial condition existing in the surrounding countries. All transactions there are done on a cash business inasmuch as the banks will not discount commercial paper. The state of affairs has had a deterrent effect on business in general, and, as Barnstyn points out, the amusement business there as here is always a reflection of general commercial conditions. Aside from that, the tax on admissions is about twenty-five per cent and levies placed by the Government in various forms total a minimum of forty per cent and a maximum of sixty per cent of the average individual's gross annual income.

Chatkin on forty-four notes for $100 each, made in 1917 by the United Film Service of Chicago, of which Chatkin was vice-president. He alleges that he brought about a contract with the Fox Film, by which $10,000 became due the Japanese film concern, and which it is willing to pay as soon as a release is received from the defendant in Japan. He contends that the defendant has failed to keep an agreement to pay him the sum due at the rate of $500 a month.

Putting it Over

Here is how a brother exhibitor puts his show over. Send along your ideas. Let the other fellow know how you cleaned up.

"Old New York" in London

London—When "Little Old New York" was presented at the Empire, appropriate settings attracted much attention. One showed a gigantic fan spread across the lower inner curtain of the stage. The fan was made of lace and at either end on opposite sides of the stage, was a vase of flowers. Between the curtain and the footlights were four little houses of Colonial style, which helped in giving atmosphere. Another special setting used was a painted drop showing a pergola in the foreground with just a glimpse of sea and promontory in the background. The atmospheric condition created by the settings was further enhanced by the costumes of the girl ushers. They were dressed in old-fashioned costumes, such as were worn in the New York of 1810.

On the theater front was a large mounted cut-out of Marion Davies, masquerading as a young boy as she does in the film itself. This large cut-out attracted much attention at the staid and sober Empire Theater and caused much comment.

Has Police Backing

Capt. James McDowell, head of the traffic division of the Los Angeles Police Department, and nationally recognized authority on traffic problems, after viewing "Jealous Husbands," expressed the hope that every motorist in the country sees this film. A private preview of the picture was given recently to Capt. McDowell and other executives of the L. A. Police, who heartily endorsed the film. This provides unusual publicity possibilities for the picture in any city.

A sensational automobile wreck appears in Tourneur's picture, which is caused through the glaring headlights of an approaching car. The manner in which this wreck is pictured will prove a warning to motorists.

Merchants Help Floyd Morrow

Washington, Pa.—Floyd Morrow, manager of the Regent, obtained effective merchant tie-ups when he showed "Six Days." Several of the leading merchants agreed to put on special sales of different articles for six days with appropriate displays in their windows tying up with the picture. A special price was made on one article for each day of the week and a ticket given to the showing of the film to purchasers of the articles. The merchants also went in together on a special herald, advertising the tie-up.

The customary billing and newspaper advertising was done and the lobby was dressed with cut-outs from the 6 sheet posters and with frames of stills.

Talmadge Double Contest

Indianapolis—A Norma Talmadge double contest as an advance stunt for "Ashes of Vengeance," was the idea conceived by Ace Berry, manager of the Circle, when that picture was booked for his house.

The Times ran a two column picture of an entrant each day for almost two weeks, together with an outline of the prizes conditions, etc.

Several hundred photos were received, then a few days before the close of the contest, a studio was fitted up in the I. S. Ayres department store, where motion pictures were made of a goodly number of the entrants. These pictures were later shown at the Circle. Newspapers gave much space to the winner, signs were placed outside of the department store announcing the filming of the entrants, then with the theater advertising, all Indianapolis knew of the showing of "Ashes of Vengeance" at the Circle.

Tie-Up With Music Publishers

Another example of commercial cooperation in exploitation lines for the benefit of the exhibitor has been affected by the Warners in conjunction with "The Gold Diggers."

By an arrangement with Shapiro, Bernstein and Co., music publishers, a tie-up has been made with the popular song, "The Gold Digger," ("Dig a little deeper.") A special cover has been created for the song, which advertises the Warner picture. Extra covers will be provided all music dealers free in order to make window displays, and all exhibitors who get in touch with Shapiro, Bernstein and Company, will be mailed song covers, orchestrations and display material.

Uses Jackie Coogan Pencils

Louisville, Ky.—The Warners have, as an exploitation accessory for "Circus Days," a Jackie Coogan pencil. Earl Payne, of the Kentucky theater, distributed these in all local schools to let the kiddies know "the kid" was coming to his house via "Circus Days."

"Cytherea" Bought

Selected for George Fitzmaurice's Second Production—Book Sales Very Large

"Cytherea," the powerful story by Joseph Hergesheimer has been selected as George Fitzmaurice's second production for Sam Goldwyn.

The story is one of Hergesheimer's best known works and has attracted a good deal of attention. The book has gone through many editions. The Goldwyn offices declare that fully a month will be spent in picking the locations. The story calls for a number of Cuban scenes and it is planned to take them in Cuba as called for in the book. Work begins the end of the month.

"Cytherea" attracted the attention of a number of important producers when it began to create a sensation among the reading public. But most of them feared the difficulty of attempting to portray this vivid story which deals with the passion and romance that comes to two people in middle age—the man, the father of a family and an important clubman, and the woman, the leader of New York society; only ending when the woman dies in Cuba.

It is a very powerful story. How Fitzmaurice will deal with it will interest many—including these producers.

DANNY.

Seven Found Guilty

Of Violating T. O. C. C. Agreement on "Enemies"—No Penalties Imposed Yet

Bernard Edelhertz, chairman of the board of directors of the T. O. C. C., has found seven members of the organization guilty of violating the stand of the organization on the "Enemies of Women" matter.

The procedure followed calls for an investigation by the board, followed by a decision of that body and then the action of the general organization. In the case of the seven exhibitors, the findings of the board of directors have been sustained by the entire organization, and it now remains for the penalty to be imposed. This may either be a fine or suspension.

Leo Brecher, of the Plaza, and Dave Weinstock, of the Elmsere, have both been fined $150 for showing "Enemies" under contracts with Goldwyn-Cosmopolitan. Word is expected daily now relative to the settlement plan on which Will H. Hays has been working in conjunction with William Randolph Hearst.

"Deburau" Next

Ernst Lubitsch Now Preparing It for the Warner's—Warner's After Plays and Books

Ernst Lubitsch's next picture for the Warner's will be "Deburau," according to Harry M. Warner, who arrived in New York yesterday from the coast. It is understood that "Deburau" will be made on a lavish scale and that the entire coast producing organization will be at Lubitsch's disposal. The production was purposely put off until the 18 Warner Classics had been completed or nearly completed, thus leaving the plant at the director's disposition.

"Irene" will also be on the 1924-1925 Warner schedule. Hope Hampton will probably appear in it. Warner came East with Sidney Franklin and Harry Rapf. During his stay in New York, Warner intends to buy up screen rights of plays and literary material for forthcoming Warner productions. Franklin will assist him in purchasing the material. Harry Rapf is also looking for material on which he will base his future productions. While most of the 18 Classics for 1923-1924 have been completed, preparatory work is now going on for new productions.

Floods Hit Oklahoma

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Oklahoma City—The floods in Oklahoma have been very detrimental to many small town theaters in places affected by the high waters, especially in the Western part of the State. ## Hays The Medium

For Reducing Star Salaries, According to Joseph Schenck—Sees Increased Admissions

Joseph M. Schenck arrived in Los Angeles on Sunday from New York. The Associated Press yesterday quoted him as saying that star salaries must come down and that admissions must go up before the industry will be on a stable basis and in that connection reported Schenck as follows:

"Just as surely as salaries went up," said Mr. Schenck, "they must now come down. There will be no organized effort by producers to reduce salaries but there will be, and is, a friendly co-operation and understanding between producers that is bound to lead to the restoration of sanity and normalcy in the salaries of stars and players.

"The Will Hays organization, now known as the Association of Motion Picture Producers, will play an important part in this readjustment. This era, in fact, will mark the rise of the Will Hays organization to the place it originally was destined to hold in the industry."

The Schenck statement elicited no response from the Hays office where it was declared Hays would stand pat on his week-end statement in which he declared that "unwarranted extravagances must go if the industry is to survive and continue as one of the greatest forces for good."

ASSETS

BY DANNY

As represented by studios and plays. Something few outside the business—even bankers—realize. And yet the rights to plays produced years ago are such that if any important concern was compelled to liquidate the value of these plays would prove enormous. Famous Players had written off as probably worth $1 "Tess of the Storm Country." Yet when Mary Pickford bought it back she paid thousands for it.

Word from the Coast is to the effect that the Christie's will rebuild in Westwood and sell the studio site on Sunset Boulevard. It need not be surprising to see the Metro studio sold for building lots because studio sites represent too much profit for the realty alone to be used for such purposes in view of the realty boom in Hollywood. This applies to several other companies as well. Warner's have a fortune in profits on their studio realty should they turn it into cash today.

Some of the studios are turned into building lots this may have some effect on production on the Coast. Many producers—notably Richard A. Roland of First National—think they might be gained by producing in the East. Rex Ingram isn't wild about producing on the Coast. There are many others, including Griffith.

Buchowetzki's Plans

Expected to Make Modern Pictures—Coming to the Coast—Says Europe is "Through" in Production

Mitri Buchowetzki, the Russian, whose work in directing Pola Negri in "Mad Love," Jannings in "Peter the Great," and "Othello" as well as "Liton" released here by First National as "All for a Woman," led to Blumenthal putting him under contract, leaves for the Coast today. He took Buchowetzki just six weeks ago from London. All things considered,

Co-operation

Pettijohn Goes From Minneapolis to Pierre, S. D. to Dissipate Erroneous Ideas About Pictures

Pierre, S. D., the capital of the state boasts of two picture theaters: Charles Hyde runs the Grand Opera House and J. E. Hipple, the Bijou. Hyde is a banker in Pierre and Hipple owns the only newspaper there.

Pierre has a combination church to which many of the townspeople belong. The church arranged to operate the Grand Opera House on Sunday doing away with admissions but passing around the collection plate at the end of the show. Hipple objected, especially in view of the fact that Hyde is alleged to have spread information to the effect that the pictures Hipple showed could be seen later at the opposition theater without admissions. Thereupon, Hipple got angry and in Pierre's only newspaper launched some attacks on the church element. The church group, lacking an outlet for its indignation because it could not get into the columns of the only paper in town published pamphlets attacking the motion picture industry in general.

When Charles C. Pettijohn of the Hays office was in Minneapolis last week, he was told of the situation and immediately jumped on a train with A. H. Fischer, president of the Minneapolis Board of Trade and explained the entire situation to a committee of thirty, including many state officials. The point is that the expense gone to and the time involved amount to a greater sum than the industry can get in rentals from Pierre in some little time. Pettijohn, however, considered it very worthwhile in order to make the church group and the state officials belonging to it feel more kindly toward motion pictures.

The matter was straightened out by making both theaters first-runs. Hyde will not get the pictures Hipple plays and vice versa. Thus, Hipple can keep his regular clientele and Hyde can continue turning over the theater on Sunday to the church.

Changes in Plan

Paramount May Drop Demonstration Theaters in Small Cities—Not Enough Co-Operation

It is quite likely that the demonstration sales plan inaugurated by Famous Players may be confined to theaters in big cities only. The original intention was to include a batch of houses in towns of smaller proportions so that the exhibitor could see what the pictures have grossed in cities close to his own size.

The company, it is understood, was first set on the idea of using the big centers only. When the details were made public, as noted at the time, S. R. Kent received a flood of applications, many of them from theaters in medium-sized towns. It was then decided to embrace them in the sales plan. In the short time, however, that the system has been operative, it is understood the Paramount sales department has discovered that the co-operation expected and deemed necessary to the successful carrying on of a plan of this type has not been forthcoming from the smaller houses. Therefore, it will probably follow that the smaller towns will be eliminated.

Cochrane Leaves Sunday

Tom D. Cochrane will leave New York Nov. 11 to return to Kobe, Japan, where new Famous Players headquarters have been opened. Cochrane spent several weeks here conferring with E. E. Shauer, regarding future plans for distribution in Japan.

ered he speaks very fluently, though slowly. And when he becomes much interested in his subjects he drifts into French or German. This happened when he became enthusiastic over his possibilities of directing in this country. He tried to use English but was so interested that he lapsed into German to explain that picture making on the continent of Europe was "practically through." "France has no studio equipment, Germany does not make the kind of pictures that even Germans like, now that they have ceased making historical films, Italy is ambitious; otherwise there is nothing to hope for. That is why I am so happy in coming to America. My plans—I have none. I go to the Coast to see how they make pictures, and once again to see Pola (Negri). She is a great artiste; a very great artiste."

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Oct. 14th 1923

Detroit, Mich.

Gentlemen:

We wish to take this method in thanking you for not only a good picture, but a real business getter. We refer to your "Drivin' Fool" with Wally Van. This picture opened in the above theatre today to the biggest business that this house has had under the present management.

The exploitation on this picture is wonderful and we also wish to express our sincere appreciation to your representative, Mr. Ray Branch, for his untiring efforts in helping "put it over".

For the first time in this theatre, since the showing of "The Birth Of A Nation", a picture was applauded and not only did they applaud, but they also laughed at every situation that called for one.

In closing, we wish to state that we feel safe in saying that the Hodkinson products will in the future have a market in the Isis Theatre, if the balance of your pictures are any where near the standard set by the "Drivin' Fool".

Wishing you the success with this film that you so justly deserve, with best wishes and kindest personal regards, we remain,

Very truly yours,

DE MILLE

BY DANNY

The announcement that Cecil DeMille has made a new agreement with Famous should clear an indefinitely long time—dispense with rumors as to a possible change from his old home. At several well known comedies had made overtures to DeMille is known. That there is a possibility of his leaving Famous is also known. But then he had not made "The Ten Commandments." Or, perhaps it might be better to say that neither Lasky nor other officials have seen it. Because DeMille has been keeping this under cover strenuously.

When "The Ten Commandments" opens here shortly it is expected by Famous officials to prove a revelation. No one is talking about it at 85; no one is allowed to. But if it doesn't prove the green sensation of all time here are going to be a lot of disappointed people at both the home office and the studio.

After all, why shouldn't "The Ten Commandments" be a wonderful picture? Over $1,500,000 has been spent in its making. If that isn't sufficient to make the greatest picture of all time then what amount must be spent? Zukor certainly worried enough about it—so did Kent. And Lasky must have had his own worries as well. Because even Famous would not sink that much money in a picture without apprehension. But it is well that ends well—and it is hoped that the picture turns out as expected.

Do not be surprised to see Famous—or rather DeMille—continue making the big special type of picture. If he ever takes anything else it will be a fillip in-between the big ones. The effort made, and that he believes to be the result, of "The Ten Commandments" insures this.

And with this advent keep an eye on Famous for more pictures of this type.

The announcement made on the coast that Cecil B. There have been a number of reports emanating from the coast about De Mille's future affiliation, a persistent one crediting him with joining United Artists: The Zukor-Lasky statement follows:

"The new agreement with Mr. De Mille means that all pictures made by him in the future will be made for Paramount. Mr. De Mille's pictures will be of that same high standard which has characterized all his

CONVULSED OVER
 "POTASH AND PERLMUTTER"
 Once in a while this reviewer sees a picture that makes him want to throw his hat into the air and shout exuberantly: "Hurray!"
 On some occasions he has found it difficult to resist the impulse to act thusly, and one of those occasions came this week at the Liberty theatre, where "Potash and Perlmutter," a First National picture, began a weekly engagement.
 "Potash and Perlmutter" is a sparkling gem of humor and pathos; a photoplay, that in our judgment, will take rank with the greatest pictures with memory.
 It is a picture that makes you ask yourself: "What would we do without the movies?" And the only answer is a shudder.
 For fear that we may be considered unduly enthusiastic, we hasten to add that the audience of which we were a part yesterday agreed unanimously with us regarding this production. There was one continuous roar of laughter, now a happy ripple, now a tremendous crescendo. We left the theatre feeling weak from the unprecedented exercise of our fis-cibilities.
 But there is much more than merely humor in the picture. It is a human story all the way through, and interspersed among the laughs are pathetic sequences which quickly stiffle the grins and all but bring tears to the eyes.
 A picture which can achieve such results is not produced by some streak of fortune. It must possess a background of talent, and in this respect, "Potash and Perlmutter" is not lacking in a single respect.
 With such a combination it was a foregone conclusion that the picture would be a "hit" in every respect. But mere words cannot describe just how good "Potash and Perlmutter" is.

GOOD PICTURES OFFSET RAIN; PHILLY DOES BIG GENERALLY

Praise of "Potash and Perlmutter" Unstinted—Pulled $26,000—"Green Goddess" Expected to Spurt—Estimates of Last Week

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.
 Fine notices plus good box office attractions, easily offset a stretch of rainy weather here last week, and as a result almost all the downtown houses did good business; not as big, possibly, as they might have with a mere seasonable October weather, but above their recent average.

A particular case in point was "Potash and Perlmutter," at the Stanley. Seldom have critics and public been so perfectly in accord here on a picture. An official of the Stanley company made the remark that it was the first time in ages that he had seen reviews so highly laudatory that they had to be printed in full in ads and posters in order not to lose any of the effect.

Every paper had flattering things to say about this First National comedy, and the crowds started coming Monday and Tuesday, despite a heavy downpour, from morning until late evening of the latter day. While possibly not the matnec drawing card that "Zaza" was,

 "Potash and Perlmutter" was a smash in the evenings, the attendance of men being greater than the house has seen in months. It could undoubtedly have stood a second week at the Stanley with ease, but this house seems to have abandoned its practice of even occasionally showing pictures more than a single week. It will, however, have the regular second run at the Palace given to the better drawing cards at the Stanley, and may have a third showing at the Capitol.

Estimates of Last Week
 Stanley—"Potash and Perlmutter"
 (First National). Went very big; best house has had in a long time.
 Gross close to $26,500. Horse race pictures only other feature on bill-mentioned in ads, so "P. and P." was undoubtedly the attraction. "Go Diggers" this week started equal-well. (Capacity, 4,000; seats, 35 50 cents, matinees; 50 and 75 cts evenings.)

STATE BILL IS BEST GIVEN HERE IN MANY RESPECTS

(By PLAYGOER.)
 The new program which was presented at the State Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening was the best that has been seen at the handsome Livingston avenue playhouse since it went back to a policy of vaudeville and pictures. One of the strongest features of the program is the picture, Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Potash and Perlmutter" with Barney Barnard and Alexander Carr as Abe and Mawrus.
 The picture is rattling good entertainment from start to finish.
 The screen version of the Montague Glass stories and play is a sure were never better cast than as the fictional garment manufacturer whose clashes, harmonies and bug-ness experiences manufacture thousands. "Potash and Perlmutter" is downright funny even on the screen, and that's that.

"On The Banks of the Wabash"

From The EXHIBITOR'S TRADE REVIEW

"'On the Banks of the Wabash,' the entertaining Vitagraph photodrama, will be a success wherever it is shown. * * * It is a picture that ranks high in entertainment value. It affords excellent opportunity for effective prologs and in every other way is a real showman's picture."

N. Y. EVENING JOURNAL: "Combines distinctly impressive flood scenes and good performances. It is a pleasure to look at little Madge Evans."

N. Y. MORNING WORLD: "Here we have a flood for a climax. And it is quite well carried out. Mary Carr is quite effective, as indeed, she usually is, and the story ends in a roar of happiness."

N. Y. TELEGRAM: "The story centers about a fine old character, 'Cap' Hammond, quaint in humour, strong in manhood, who rises to an emergency and provides the thrill of the picture, a climax startling in its immensity."

MORNING TELEGRAPH: "This latest effort of J. Stuart Blackton has all the concomitants requisite to popular appeal. The picture has exciting river scenes which bring the story to its climax."

N. Y. EVENING WORLD: "If you like those 'down hum' films, you'll like 'On the Banks of the Wabash.'"

N. Y. TRIBUNE: "It will no doubt be a very popular picture."

MOVING PICTURE WORLD: "Thrill seekers will find something new and big in the flood climax which brings this Vitagraph melodrama to a close. The old 'Sarah Jane' plowing through Main Street, making its rescues from second story windows, is an impressive spectacle but only a part of a maelstrom of dramatic events that culminate here.

"It's stupendous climax will accomplish its purpose in bringing out the thrills and giving your patrons what the earlier part of the picture hints at—terrific flood scenes.

"The cast has many excellent types and shows enthusiastic direction."

FILM DAILY: "The flood has been realistically staged and furnishes an exciting finish for the story."

WEEKLY FILM REVIEW said: "The climax brings a real thrill when the dam bursts, houses and barns are swept along by swirling water, the hero is caught beneath a heavy piece of machinery with water rising rapidly about him, a steamboat catches fire and her boilers explode. Thrills are piled on thrills."

From The EXHIBITORS HERALD

"This subject has a great deal about it to commend it as a box office picture. It is well enacted and it winds up with a splendidly done flood scene which furnishes a legitimate big punch.

"This spectacular effect is decidedly unusual and is as well done as anything of its kind that we have seen. It is sufficiently strong and effective to insure every kind and type of patron a real thrill."

ECONOMY

BY DANNY

The possibility of economies merging of physical distribution looms up again. It has attracted the attention of a number of persons. Whether anything will come of it remains to be seen. It is having a lot of thought. Who knows—maybe this economy, like others, will follow the wave of retrenchment in production. Certainly it is an interesting subject. Certainly it is worth thought. And better action.

Last Spring a series of articles on distribution problems appeared in this publication. Among them the Aronson coup on "The Golden Bubble" invited much criticism. Some of the ideas developed in this series. Then, too, there is the old abandoned idea of the American Express Co., which might well be re-considered, and perhaps some ideas found there might be helpful.

All events this is the time to do something—if anything is to be done. Some time ago many of the leaders practically decided to try out a calling for the merging of the physical handling of film. And one man upset the apple cart. Why the idea was not tried out excluding the gentleman's concern is still one of the unfathomable mysteries of business. But there are others—others.

Certainly with probably 700 more exchanges in operation through this country something should be done. They are not needed. Salesmen, yes—all possible. Other help no—not to the extent of present day operations. This reduced cost would help the whole business, even reducing rentals. And there are other ideas that might easily be worked out. It would be crude at first. But what isn't?

To Discuss Tax Fight

Cole of Texas Expects to Meet Many Prominent State Leaders at French Lick Next Week

Colonel H. A. Cole, of Texas, anticipates that a number of prominent state leaders of various exhibitor organizations will meet with him in French Lick next week to discuss the best way of removing the admission tax.

The Colonel, who was sent East by the Texas organization of 160 exhibitors, was anxious to have such a meeting take place here during this week, but many state leaders wired that the time was too short to arrange their affairs to make such a move, so the Colonel immediately wired back that French Lick would be a good place to meet.

Inasmuch as a number of state leaders expected to attend the conference called by the Western states at French Lick, Cole may have a number of leaders to confer with.

Famous' Position Satisfactory and Dividends Will Continue, Says R. W. Saunders, Comptroller

The maze of reports current in the financial district concerning Famous Players since the company announced its shut-down in production has resulted in the issuance of a lengthy statement by R. W. Saunders, Comptroller in which he declares that there is no need for financing or recapitalization. Saunders goes into the financial condition of the company at length and declares that "the executives see no reason why the present eight per cent dividend on both the common and preferred stocks should not be maintained."

Saunders discusses three items of interest, as he puts it. The first concerns the application made to the New York Stock Exchange for the listing of an additional 14,228 shares of common stock, making a total amount great love story splendidly told; a splendid cast, and the settings of Italy. With Mussolini, the Premier, appearing in the picture. True, it isn't the wonderful story that Hall Caine wrote—it has been modernized with the Fascisti in it and the world war and other things. But the appeal is still there—the conflict between David and Bonelli for Roma with love triumphant, and some mob effects with the Coliseum of Rome as the setting—magnificent stuff. isted of 243,431 shares of common without nominal or par value, out of total authorized issue of 450,000. In this connection, he says:

"Of the 14,228 shares, 11,438 are to be in full payment for one-half of the capital stock of Hill Street Fireproof Building Co., and for one-half of the capital stock of the New York and Pacific Coast Amusement Co. As Famous already owns the other half of each of these issues, it will make them the sole owners. The New York & Pacific has been successfully operating two theaters in Los Angeles and the Hill Street company has built and is now operating with great success the beautiful Metropolitan theater at that place, which, although recently opened, has already succeeded in building up a large and ever growing clientele. By purchasing this one-half interest of the former partner, Sid Grauman, Famous Players are thus acquiring three theaters that have already demonstrated their earning capacity, and have acquired a piece of real estate in the heart of Los Angeles, the value of which is continually increasing."

He next discusses the Federal Trade Commission suit, and in that connection says:

"The second matter of information arose during the inquiry by the Federal Trade Commission, which investigation has been proceeding now for some months, and its effect has been pretty well discounted in financial circles. When, in response to a subpoena, the list of stockholders was submitted, the name of the President, Mr. Adolph Zukor, did not appear. It is a well understood practice for many wealthy men not to hold stock in a corporation in their own name, but this fact was not, apparently, understood by the reporters present, and the statement, wholly erroneous, was published that Mr. Zukor did not own any of the stock. As a matter of fact, Mr. Zukor's stock interests in the corporation are said to be even larger than they were in 1920, and this fact was promptly published."

The third refers to the cessation in production. Saunders here explains that negative costs have been mounting for the past year and adds that "as a result of this wise economy, the company will show a very substantial cash saving which will be available for the further strengthening of its cash position." He then says:

"To all appearances, the earnings of the company will not be affected by this move and they will somewhat parallel the earnings of last year. It was commented in several quarters that the write-off of about $1,000,000 of the German productions should be taken out of this year's earnings which, however, they will not affect in the least. They are a proper charge against the surplus accumulated in previous years and the write-off was handled in that manner. In accounting and financial circles this was considered a very wise procedure. The company did the same some years ago with the Arbuckle loss and is evidently following the same procedure whenever an occasion arises. There are no other items of this nature in their assets at present requiring attention."

"With earnings running at the rate of last year, and with the economies in mind, together with other cash coming in from subsidiaries, there seems no reason why a substantial strengthening of the cash position, with suitable reduction of the bank loans, cannot be looked forward to by the end of the year, or if not then, within a month or two thereafter. The larger part of the economies will be effective in the first two months of next year, and by March 15, the position of the company ought to be a very strong one. President Zukor said the other day that the company had no occasion for refinancing or recapitalization, of which there have been rumors, and also stated that he considered the outlook favorable and was looking forward to good business during the winter and spring. The executives also see no reason why the present 8% dividend on both the common and preferred stocks should not be maintained."

1st Nat'l Reports Foreign Sales

First National reports the following foreign sales. "Circus Days" to the Madan Theaters, Ltd., for India, Burma and Ceylon; "Trouble" and "Peck's Bad Boy" to Karl Suering, for Soviet Russia and Border States; 17 Mack Sennett comedies to Johan Kerre for Soviet Russia and Border States; "The Girl in the Taxi" to Albion Cinema Supplies Co., Ltd., for Austria, Hungary, Szecho-Slovakia, Poland, Yugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Roumania, Turkey, and European Greece.

Prices Up in Mid-West

Stanley C. Jacques, Pathe's manager in Cincinnati, reports to the home office that admission prices in his territory have gone up slightly. Those theaters formerly charging 40 cents now getting 50 cents. He finds business generally very good with the exception of West Virginia, where conditions in the coal fields are not yet stabilized.

THE TRUTH IS—

THE new pictures which Paramount announced to the trade last August have now been completed.

¶ They will be released at the rate of one a week beginning now.

¶ Prints of the first four, "THE SPANISH DANCER," "HIS CHILDREN'S CHILDREN," "THE LIGHT THAT FAILED," "STEPHEN STEPS OUT" may now be seen at Paramount exchanges.

¶ Demonstration runs on "THE SPANISH DANCER" have proven, in all sections of the country, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that this Pola Negri picture is one of the greatest box-office draws ever released.

¶ Demonstration of "HIS CHILDREN'S CHILDREN" in New York marks this picture as sure-fire. It is marvelously acted, sumptuously produced, has an engrossing story and is full of strong, human-interest drama. It has tremendous pulling-power. We are confident demonstrations of "HIS CHILDREN'S CHILDREN" in other sections of the country will show the same result. We ask that exhibitors watch closely its success in demonstration theatres.

- ¶ "THE LIGHT THAT FAILED" we believe is another great big picture. It has in it the romance, the drama, the story interest and the superlative acting that only big box-office attractions can hope to have. It has already received the Board of Review's endorsement as one of the two best pictures of the month.

¶ "STEPHEN STEPS OUT" speaks for itself. Is there any one who doubts the interest of the entire American public in the name "DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR."

¶ The others of the 19 new Paramount Pictures which we listed in full in this paper last week make up an output of product that is absolutely revolutionary in motion picturedom. Such stars, featured players and supporting casts, such great stories, such magnificent productions of proved-in-advance box-office merit could come only from Paramount.

¶ Exhibitors may rest assured that the Paramount Pictures in the months to come will be the greatest line-up of Paramount ever released.

¶ And that's saying something!

"David Copperfield"—Asso. Exhib.—Cameo

AMERICAN—Comparatively unheralded, "David Copperfield" opened yesterday with a splendidly chosen cast, beautiful settings, capable actors, and understanding direction. But it is in great part due to the fact of all the faces being entirely unfamiliar that gives the photoplay its distinct appeal.

DAILY NEWS—They've got a dandy "David Copperfield." The film is Swiss and its characters are a credit to Switzerland's Hollywood. There's no need to say that the story is one to be enjoyed by youth and age alike, inasmuch as it follows closely Charles Dickens' widely loved novel.

EVENING JOURNAL—* * * ought to make every movie fan caper for joy. The names of the cast are strange to America, but it is a revelation to find a group of players performing with such a uniformly high calibre of ability. Not only is the acting praiseworthy, but the settings, the natural views, the photography and the direction are as nearly perfect as one could reasonably expect.

MAIL—* * * a motion picture so simple and dramatic in its presentation, so perfect in characterization and so beautifully pictorial that we do not hesitate to recommend it to those who scoff at the films and to screen patrons.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * is an excellent picture with reservations. The action is dignified and genuine and the sets are well planned; the photography is unusually fine.

SUN—The film, to our way of thinking, captures the spirit, the atmosphere and the age of the story quite excellently. And those three qualities are peculiarly elusive.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—Carefully and elaborately produced, fairly well acted and carefully adapted—that sums up the "David Copperfield." It is a work with a distinctly limited class appeal.

TIMES—It is a film, which brings this solace, this peace of mind, contentment and a wondering about the past—a picture that is different to others, and one that cannot be said to be perfect. Yet it holds the interest.

This is a picture which Dickens lovers will enjoy in spite of its many deficiencies, as it is such a beatific change from some of the stories that are bought, paid for and produced by film concerns. Take a trip to the Cameo and get a mental rest for an hour or so.

TRIBUNE—But for Dickens lovers there is much to enjoy in this presentation, for, even if one does get the story in scenes hung together with titles, the characters are Dickens own to the life. The picture is faithfully done in every way and is quite fascinating even in its present interrupted form.

WORLD—It is simple, tasteful and a fairly faithful photograph of the author's intention. From a vulgar, commercial point of view it cannot be noted that the film knocked all or any of yesterday's audience completely out of seats.

Coast Players in Detroit

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Detroit—Mary Thurman, Tyrone Power, Arnold Daly, Kenneth Harlan and Henry Sedley have arrived from Hollywood to appear in the first picture to be made by the Detroit M. P. Co., of which Frank Talbot is the head. The studio is at Grosse Pointe on Vernier Road.

Lloyd Film at Roosevelt

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Chicago—Following the run of "Little Old New York" at Balaban & Katz's Roosevelt, Harold Lloyd's "Why Worry?" will open for an indefinite run.

"His Children's Children"—F. P. L.—Rivoli

AMERICAN—The story switched from one set of characters to the other; it required an Herculean effort to know what it was all about. Nothing was continuous or coherent. The consequence was that a fine book made a perplexing picture—a sort of conundrum to which there was no answer. Eaton and H. Cooper Cliffe. A finer cast couldn't have been secured, and yet all these actors were lost in the terrific shuffle of the emulsified picture.

DAILY NEWS—* * * we weren't at all surprised at finding no small source of entertainment and food for thought in the Rialto's feature. Certainly this is a worth-while film.

EVENING JOURNAL—Neighbors at the Rivoli who had read Arthur Train's novel said it was an interesting and well-knit story. The film version is interesting, but it is far from being well knit.

MAIL—* * * A film of the jazzy young folk of today, their drinking and foolish affairs, but through it there runs a story of the sewing of wild oats in middle age which is extremely well told.

MORNING TELEGRAPH—* * * There is nothing very exciting about the picture in general, although some of the cast is worthy of particular cheering.

POST—A better cast could hardly have been chosen, yet what chance did this little group of competent people have in a story which seemed to be interested mainly in the varied number of scenes which could be shown. Not that this picture fails to interest, but it could have been made into something fine and lasting if the characters had been allowed to develop and unfold normally.

SUN—That denouement, in which the house that starts out with so much affluence comes crashing down to ruin in all shapes and sizes, is enough to raise this film version of Arthur Train's novel above the others of its class. Shrewd directing by Wood and much deft acting by the cast bring out the best values in this story.

TIMES SQUARE DAILY—The picture, however, looks to be a money-getter for the smaller towns. It is a wallop at New York society and the present-day jazz craze that is sweeping the younger generation.

TIMES—Sam Wood with clever manipulations and ideas, revealing his usual resourcefulness and thorough knowledge of film work, has ground out a production which, if it does lack a startling denouement, is nevertheless entertaining during the whole time it is on the screen.

TRIBUNE—We are sorry that we haven't read it, for we should like to know if Mr. Train had morals concealed all over his story the way Sam Wood had in his picture. There are a lot of things we couldn't understand in this story.

WORLD—Here again is the cinema director lost in a forest of ideas, running 'round in circles, growing more and more panicky as the sun goes down. Sam Wood is one director who ought to have done well by the immensely entertaining Train novel. It is pictured with great beauty, which in this day of camera manipulation, means quite little, and it is terribly difficult to keep a line on without the aid of pencil and paper.

In the Courts

Supreme Court Justice Lehman has filed a judgment dismissing against Loew's, Inc., a suit brought by Samuel Wertheim against Loew's, the Advance Amusement Co. owner of the Colonial at Peekskill, David Bernstein and Nicholas M. Schenck, officers of the Advance company, and the Minson Mortgage Co., because the Peekskill, in which Wertheim was interested was conducted as a "tremendous loss," due to the acts of the defendants. The complaint named the Minson Mortgage on the ground that because of the actions of Schenck and Bernstein, it broke a building loan agreement with the Peekskill theater. The court found that no cause of action was stated against Loew's.

The suit brought by Jack Cohn against Adam Kessel and Charles O. Baumann for $100,000 damages because they made statements in 1920 that a film Cohn distributed called "Over the Fence," in which Babe Ruth figured, was not genuine and was a fraud on Ruth and the public, has been settled by an agreement by Kessel and Baumann to pay Cohn $750.

The Film Development Corp. has obtained an attachment against the property of Ben Strasser of Winston-Salem, N. C., for $730 due for printing and developing the films, "Shot in the Night" and "Devil's Match."

Arthur Butler Graham has been granted a motion by Judge Philip McCook for preference on the calendar for his suit to recover $62,000, alleged due him for services rendered to Rudolph Valentino. The trial was set for Nov. 26.

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court has affirmed a judgment for $1,017 obtained by Samuel J. Kessler against Max Rosenblatt for services in connection with the 170th Street Theater Corporation.

"The DANGEROUS
MAID"

Directed by Victor Heerman
Continuity by C. Gardner Sullivan
From the Novel by Elizabeth Ellis
Photography by Glenn MacWilliams

Here is a picture that has given Constance a wonderful opportunity to show her dramatic ability. A decided departure for her—but how she does it.

Her performance will astonish and delight the fans. That means big business.

Says The Exhibitor's Herald:

"Her 'Barbara Winslow' will be regarded as her best role to date."

Constance Talmadge at her best; a great title and a strong cast. What a selling combination.

Optimistic, Sails

E. W. Fredman, Film Renter, London, Refuses, However, to Comment on Occurring Changes

Ernest W. Fredman, editor of The Film Renter, London, returned home on the Leviathan, sailing Saturday, after five or six weeks in this country.

"I appreciate that the view-point of an outsider upon existing conditions is desirable," said he, "but I cannot answer the question as to what I think of conditions in America. They are changing so fast that it would be silly or practically so for a foreigner to attempt to analyze these conditions until they have become stabilized. For this reason I should like to be excused from expressing my opinion except to say that I feel certain that the many excellent pictures which America is producing is a demonstration of the sincerity with which American producers are seeking to establish that standard of satisfaction which will remain for the screen that tremendous popularity which it so deservedly should enjoy.

"I have talked to the most important men in the business and from what they have told me I certainly feel very optimistic for the future."

Danes' Perfect Speaking Film

The Times publishes a special cable from Copenhagen, which says, in part:

"Two Danish civil engineers, Axel Petersen and Arnold Poulsen, demonstrated today before an audience of prominent persons a new invention by which the problem of the speaking film is declared solved.

"The human voice is photographed by a special method on a separate film, which is not connected with the picture film. Thus the voice film can be handled separately, which is regarded as a great advantage. The same apparatus can be used for an ordinary picture film."

This Industry of Ours

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

London—Rex Ingram, speaking at a lunch said:

"They (American producers apparently) live on formulae. They believe that the box-office is the only test of success. They will not allow you to do anything new, but if you do it and it succeeds everyone follows you like sheep. It is the film producer's duty to withstand the financier's demand for a maximum number of films and to make just what films he likes, and only those to which he can give sincerity and an individual touch."

"Two-a-Day" Shows Gaining

(Special to THE FILM DAILY)

Los Angeles—Richard Walton Tully says:

"There will always be the successful continuous theater, but the field of the motion picture effort has become so large that there is a corner unbilled and a need that a certain part of our patronage will welcome. They will prefer to enter their theater at a given time, assured of a proper evening's amusement, knowing in advance that they are certain of securing comfortable seats.

"The two-a-day can never supplant the continuous run picture house. The latter will always be the most desirable for the majority of our film entertainments. It will never conflict with the two-a-day house and it will always be the real backbone of the film industry."
